Playhouse, Frosh To Show Talent

VOLUME 38 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 7, 1953 | NUMBER 15

Freshmen To Display Talent Tonight In 'The Green Years'

Gala Show Begins At 8 p.m.

By Roberta Hadley

The annual freshman talent show, to be presented tonight, March 7, in the Alumni gymnasium at 8 p.m., will feature "The Green Years," a musical romance portraying freshman life at MC.

The leading parts in "The Green Years" include Margaret Allen Hannah as Mary Guiniveer Strong, Ann Daniels as Peggy McCree, Al Hoyer as Chuck Garrington, Jim Daniels as William Hackney, Judy Burgoss as Nickie Shanks, Garnette Alexander as Sue Calchor, and Joe Lowery as Calvin Devore.

Pre-Scene Promises

The pre-scenes of the show are to include ballroom, tap and modern dancing, acting, acrobatics, instrumentals, solos and chorus numbers.

The program is being directed by Betty Messer, Walt Fosbrook and Bill Howell. Bob Jackson is stage manager.

"The Green Years" was written by freshman, Annie Buchar.

The committee for sets includes Liz Frei, Cary Valentine, and Nancy Rideout. Ethelyn Cathey and Esther Lerch aer in charge of the pre-scenes.

Other Committees

Other committees include publicity, Susan Cook and Jean Boyd; programs, Don Layton; music, Dave Williams, Jackie Spiegner and Morgan Biggs; make-up, Jo Brooks; lighting, Phil Paul and Jim Sanborn.

"The setting of 'The Green Years' is the Maryville College campus in front of Pearsons Hall as freshman life becomes the target of much well-meant ridicule," one freshman commented.

Student Council Airs Discontent

Students, Faculty Attend Meeting

At the Wednesday, March 4, holiday meeting of Student Council, about 38 faculty members and 100 students were present to hear Council discuss the problem of student discontent on campus resulting from the lack of cooperation between students and the administration.

President Brown opened the discussion by pointing out the purpose of Student Council (Article II of the constitution) ". . . to unify the student body in the common motive of self-government in order to assume responsibility in the management of our affairs, strengthen the cooperation between students and faculty, and increase loyalty to the best interest of the college."

No Cooperation

The discussion appeared to re-establish the fact that the faculty and administration were not cooperating with the students in solving their problems. Some of the opinions expressed are as follows:

"When we go to the administration with proposals, it's like beating our heads against a stone wall."

"The administration treats us like children, instead of young men and women capable of assuming responsibilities."

"This is a Christian college, but I know of only one person who has been won to Christ."

More. . .

"There is no cooperation between students and faculty at Student-Faculty Senate."

"The college has many fine traditions, but it seems that they sometimes hold onto tradition for tradition's sake."

"We like Maryville College, we just want to make it a better college."

"We must remember that the faculty is older and more experienced than we."

Council closed the meeting by planning to continue work on the problem at its next meeting, and by passing a resolution requesting the faculty to hold a meeting in order to help solve the problem. Dr. Lloyd did not attend the meeting.

Other Business

Other business of the night included a report from Student-Faculty Senate that there has

Echo Staff Hears Emert, Throws Party

February 23 the Highland Echo Staff held a business meeting in the Y rooms which was followed by a speech by Clyde B. Emert, editor of the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times. Dancing and refreshments brought the evening to a close.

The affair was attended by twenty-four staff members and their dates, Dr. F. A. Griffitts, advisor to the Echo, chaperoned.

Van Hassel Named 'Handbook' Advisor

Hank Van Hassel, junior English major from Patterson, N.J., has been named to the College Board of the Going-to-College Handbook, published in Richmond, Va., for the 1953-54 volume which is now in preparation.

Students elected to the College Board serve as advisors to the editors of this eight-year-old publication, suggesting topics for emphasis and offering their advice for present and prospective students. Nominated by national youth leaders, they are elected by the editors to serve for one year.

Recent Topics

Topics giving the combined opinion of the College Board in recent volumes have included the merits of honor systems, qualities of a good roommate, extra-curricular activities, how to choose a college, the advisability of part-time work in college, how to get off to a good start, and related issues. Questions to be put to the new College Board are now being formulated as a result of wide investigation of campus and student problems.

A product of Outlook Publishers here, the annual volume circulates throughout the nation and is widely used by churches, colleges and other groups to put into the hands of students looking forward to or already in college.

Alumni Office Works On College Bulletin

The annual alumni issue of the Maryville College Bulletin is now being prepared for printing, it was announced by President Ralph W. Lloyd's office this week.

If any students have information about alumni for the bulletin they are requested to leave it at the Alumni Office or in Dr. Lloyd's office.

Flying Helicopter Views Student Hectic Holiday

By Edna Stout

Plans to enjoy the fleeting bit of freedom of the "happy holiday" to the fullest began to formulate in the minds of the MC population from the start of its announcement. The fruition of these plans was observed from the vantage point of a low-flying helicopter.

Signs of life were noticed at 7:19 a.m. with Trudy Singleton, Jim Campbell, Hugh Walker, Grace Osborn, and Martha Lou Coile nobly giving up not only part of their precious holiday, but a most hearty breakfast for the teaching profession.

On To Knoxville!

A large percentage of the students were observed near the Knoxville area. Though Ruth Burgos, Trudy Furman, Florence Clark, Jay Spencer, Mimi Arjona, Trudy Singleton were spotted coming up the hill just as the bus went around the corner, it is reported that they finally did get to the Big City.

Charles Reid and Ruth Cross were seen tiredly trudging home after a ten-hour shopping trip in which Ruth bought some material for their coming wedding. After landing atop the S.&W. Cafeteria, I had to push ahead of Miss Walker, Jean Maxwell, Jeannine Thompson and Miss Blair in order to continue observing as soon as possible.

Above Clinton

In the nearby Clinton area, Carol Cornell and Jim Hunt, Dorothy Wells and Glen Gentry spent their vacation at a house party given by Dorothy. While cruising over Loudon Lake, I waved to a few seaworthy students motoring along it. Peggy Fisher, Ralph Force, Herb White, Margaret Blackburn, Harry McCall, Corny Force, Bill Davis, and Sally Butts were seen climbing the mountains near the Fisher home.

When swooping down by Union School, I noticed the students and teachers gawking at some spectac-

Fat-Fryer, Gift of '52, Installed

A new commercial size, deep-fat fryer, bought and installed during Christmas holidays at a cost of about $375, is a part of the senior gift of the class of '52. The long range plan includes the purchase of additional stoves which will be put into service as payments of pledges are made.

Used Once A Week

The Hotpoint automatic fryer, the first item in the plan, is used at least once a week, according to Miss Ware, dietician. It is especially good for frying fish and provides the first means the kitchen has had of preparing foods dipped in batter or meal.

When the class of '52 decided to contribute a fund to purchase new equipment for the dining hall kitchen, the total amount subscribed was $2800, to be paid over a period of time. To date approximately $700 has been paid.

The idea of such a class fund for a gift, with which Dr. F. A. Griffitts has for many years been associated, is a tradition of long standing and there are many items on campus which have been funished in this way.

Other Class Donations

The class of '51 subscribed a fund of nearly $4000 to purchase a unit in the new chapel building in their name. Gifts of past have included the chimney and fireplace in the Student Center, furniture at one time used in the Student Center, gates, and important sidewalks, for which there are five different plaques on campus.

Modern Bible Illus. Displayed At FAC

An exhibition of Modern Bible Illustrations is now in the gallery of the Fine Arts Center, it was announced this week by the art staff.

The exhibition, which consists of 25 prints by such famous artists as Picasso, Rouault, Kokoshka, Beckmann, and Chagall, is being circulated by the Museum of Modern Art in New York and forms a part of their own collection. It will be on view here until the end of the month.

Inspiration From Bible

These illustrations, showing events from both the Old and the New Testaments, show that the Bible is a source of great inspiration to modern artists, and just as compelling and universal now as it has been throughout the past centuries.

For those interested in learning more about these illustrations, a short gallery talk will be given some time during the exhibit's stay, the specific date to be announced later.

Debate Squad Vies At N.C. Tournament

The squad will return to the campus tonight.

Spanish Club Installs Seven New Members

On February 19, the Spanish Club met and installed the following new members: John Graves, Esther Lerch, Jeannine Thompson, Mary Nichol, Nancy Rideout, and Jo Biggs. One new honorary member has been installed this semester. He is Luis Cordora.

At the February 26 meeting, the Club sang songs in Spanish and played Spanish games.

The next meeting is to be on March 12.

Miss Craven Molds Coming 'Goodbye, My Fancy' Comedy

Play Slated For Next Week

By Betty McKenney

"Goodbye, My Fancy," a three act comedy, by Fay Kanin, will be presented by the Maryville College Playhouse on Friday and Saturday, March 13 and 14, at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium.

"Goodbye, My Fancy" is the story of a celebrated, liberal congresswoman, who returns to her old Alma Mater, Good Hope College, where she had been ousted, to receive an honorary degree. All the exciting, hilarious action takes place over the commencement week-end at this respectable endowed girls' school.

This three act comedy has an interesting involved plot, colored by one of those love triangles, contemplated blackmail, and typically human, funny incidents.

Leading Roles

Joanne Edwards, junior English major, well known on campus for her roles in such productions as "Our Town" and "Two Blind Mice," will star as Agatha Reed, the efficient congresswoman.

The part of the Life photographer, Mat Cole, will be taken by George Caldwell, a junior drama major also experienced and distinquished as an actor. Students remember George for his participation in "Every Man" and "The Heiress."

Dave Gates, a junior physics major experienced in "MacBeth" and "Every Man," will assume the part of Jim Merrill, the spineless President of the Good Hope College for women.

Portraying Grace Woods, the president's secretary, will be Sue White, well remembeed for her portrayal of Lady MacBeth in "MacBeth."

Other Members of Cast

Also in the cast who have appeared are Jimmy Shields, Jo Brooks, Ruth Orr, Moody Bryles, Florence Clark, Bob Reed, Roberta Rankin, Wayne Feehrer, Carol Sleight, Judy Burgos, and Cornelia Force.

Miss Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama and speech, is director of "Goodbye, My Fancy."

Moore Elected Yearbook Editor

Y' Radio to Present 'The Golden Thread'

"The Golden Thread", a play which has previously been produced for Student Vols and Parish will be given on the Y Radio program next Thursday night by largely the same cast.

The YMCA and YWCA will have a joint meeting on the World Student Service Fund Sunday.

Library Staff Adds Mrs. C. F. Leonard

Mrs. C. F. Leonard has returned to Maryville, and is now helping in the library. She is a former student of Maryville, and her husband graduated here.

Making Home In Maryville

Because of her warm and steady affection for Maryville, Mrs. Leonard is now making her home here. Originally fom Kentucky, she has made heer home for the past thirty two years in Hancock County in East Tennessee.

There her husband, until his death a year ago, was minister and director of the Vardy Community Center. This Center is under the Board of the National Missions of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Has Spoken On Campus

Since return, Mrs. Leonard has spoken to various groups on campus on the subjects of "Missions" and "Elementary Education." She has addressed Student Vols and also at the meeting of the Future Teachers of America.

Students Play, Sing At Recital Tuesday

A regular student recital was held Tuesday afternoon, March 3.

Those performing were Mary Alice Brasfield, organist; Sue Carter, soprano; Eugene Jenkins, pianist; Viola Tellez, soprano; Myrna Ginaven, pianist; Sally Butts, soprano; Esther Lerch, violinist and Sheila Sutton, pianist; Shirley Smith, soprano; and William Cunningham, baritone.

Miss Smith's and Mr. Cunningham's performances were in partial fulfillment of sophomore requirements.

Accompanists were Annette Faust, Emma Brown, James Laster, Sheila Sutton, and Maryel Vogel.

Jennings Named Bus. Manager

By Abby Crosby

In a recent class election, Carol F. Moore, sophomore dramatic education major from Waukesha, Wisc., was selected to edit the 1953-54 Chlihowean.

Also chosen was Ronald C. Jennings, sophomore business major from Salt Lake City, Utah, who will act as business manager for the yearbook.

Carol Moore is a member of Vesper Choir, Playhouse, and Theta Epsilon. She has gained extensive journalistic experience by working on the Highland Echo for two years.

As of yet, Miss Moore and Mr. Jennings have not chosen the other staff members of the 1954 Chilhowean.

Retiring Officers

Retiring officers of this year's Chilhowean are Editor Walt Elwood, junior history major from Patterson, N.J., and Business Manager Bill Dartnell, junior business administration major from Dover, N.J.

Accoding to Elwood, the 1953 Chilhowean has been finished and sent to the printers. He hopes to distribute the annuals about April 1.

Horne, Vawter Receive Degrees

Dorothy Duerson Horne and Dorothy Helen Vawter, instructor of music, recently received their degrees from the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y.

Miss Horne completed her thesis and oral exams for her Ph.D. with music as a major this January. She already had an M.A. in violin from the American Concervatory in Chicago and an M.A. in theory of music from the Eastman School of Music. She hopes to go abroad to do research on medieval music sometime in the future.

Miss Horne has been at Maryville since 1938, the first year that credit was given for music.

Miss Vawter Earns M.A.

Miss Vawter received her M.A. degree with the completion of her thesis on Beethoven's Solo Songs and her two hour oral exam at Eastman this January.

Miss Vawter graduated from Maryville in 1948 and joined our music staff the following year. Like Miss Horne, she has been interested in music all her life and plans to continue her studies.

Donald Grant Analyzes World Events For MC

By Don Layton

"We are in the beginning years of a new epoch. The imprints of this epoch are atomic energy, planes flying across the stratosphere, radio, and television. But the most significent event of the epoch is the fact that Asia will be governing herself."

These views were asserted this week by Donald Grant, noted observer and interpreter of international affairs. In a period of two days Mr. Grant spoke five times on the Maryville campus. His topics included discussions on Russia, England and Africa, and other foreign nations.

Wide And Varied Background

The veteran interpreter has had a wide and varied background that fully qualified him to speak on such diverse subjects. Born in the remote highlands of Scotland, he was like any of the typical Scotch boys. The country of his birthplace has a picturesque setting—the mountains on one side and the sea on the other.

As he grew, he played boyish sports such as soccer and football and swam in the North Sea. He learned to swim at an early age in one of the inland rivers. "I still like to go back there and bathe," he admitted.

"Uncooked oatmeal and porridge were the standard meals of those days," he confessed. As did the other boys, he probably thrilled at the playing of bagpipes in his native village.

Likes Poetry

In school he read the works of the great British and Scottish poets. He can quote Burns and Chesterton with easy familiarity. In fact when Mr. Grant visited the campus in 1949, he recorded some works by Burns. These are still used by some of the sophomore literature classes.

The Scotchman attended Edinburgh University. He graduated with a full theological training from an Edinburgh school of theology. "Education is keen in Scot-

$591.60 Paid To Hope Fund

To date $591.60 of the $1,048.10 pledged by faculty and students to the annual Fred Hope Fund Drive has been paid, it was announced this week by Mrs. Kenneth P. Johnson, director of the drive.

As is customary, the Fred Hope Table will be set up in Anderson Hall on March 10, 11, and 12 to receive payments on old pledges and to accept any new pledges. If these three days are not convenient, payments may be made at Mrs. Johnson's office in the Office Annex Building at any time.

The Hope money this year goes to help equip the new Frances Newton Hospital at Ferozepore, India, where Dr. Dorothy Ferris, class of '28, is serving.

Slides of the hospital, Dr. Ferris, and her staff were shown last week by Dr. Lloyd at Student Vols in Bartlett Hall.

Bainonians to Hunt Treasure Tonight

Bainonian will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall. A treasure hunt is being planned.

Last week's program was a joint meeting with Athenian, with Mrs. Queener leading folk games.

Germans To Hear Allison

German Club will meet at 6:45 Monday night, March 9. Speaker will be senior, Dean Allison, who will tell about his trip to Europe last summer.

All members are urged to attend.

Problem Of Discontent

As everyone well knows, the main accomplishment of the student council meeting this Wednesday was to emphasize the point that the students and administration have been and are separated by the gap of lack of cooperation, which has resulted in wide-spread student discontent and dissatisfaction.

That is to say, the students sincerely believe that they can make Maryville College a greater place than it is by instituting some new and needed improvements in the social, self-governing, and religious aspects of our college life. However, they feel that whenever they attempt to effect these proposals, the administration takes a dim outlook and either discourages or vetoes any such improvements.

Now that the council has established this point and formally requested the faculty to help in the solution of it, we think that the next step is for the student council and the faculty to make and submit concrete suggestions and proposals that would rectify the pervading spirit of discontent on campus.

The large number of students and faculty members at the meeting was most gratifying. From such interest and enthusiasm displayed by this attendance, we can foresee only good coming from this organized movement.

We feel sure that the faculty realized that we were not "just griping;" rather, we are sincerely interested in improving life at Maryville College. A few students might be wrong, but all the students could not be wrong. Certainly, by mutual cooperation and recognition of student capabilities, the administration and student body can solve this problem together.

E.V.H.

On Echo Criticism

Members of the Echo staff get used to hearing criticisms of the paper. Students complain that it doesn't carry an exciting gossip column telling all about the latest campus romance; it didn't print the announcement of a club meeting; it doesn't follow the same editorial policies as the high school paper back home; someone's name was misspelled.

Some of these criticisms are valid. Mistakes can and do happen on any newspaper. In a large number of cases, however, these complaints are due to a lack of knowledge of the principles—and the problems—involved.

The Echo omits the usual scandal column because it is better journalistic procedure to do so. Often announcements of club meetings are missing or inaccurate because club officers themselves are sometimes undecided about what the programs will be. As to the quality of the writing, it is difficult to compose polished prose when working under the pressure of a deadline. It is true, too, that critics are prone to overlook all the well-written stories in search of one that is not all it could be.

If you have criticisms of the Echo, it does no good merely to grumble to your friends about them. Bring your ideas and suggestions to one of the editors. Perhaps your theories can be put into practice, and in any event you will receive an explanation of the whole situation. If you hear of any news that should be in the Echo, let us know in time to print it.

This is, after all, your newspaper, and we ask your help and cooperation in making it a paper that will serve the entire student body.

Scots & Soda

Notice in a small Scottish church: "Those members of the parish who are in the habit of putting buttons in the collection plate instead of coins—please put in your own buttons and not those from the cushions in the pews."

Miss Walker tells a story about a young modern boy who had been told by his father about George Washington and the incident of the cherry tree. He said to his pa "I would have never told a lie. I would have yelled 'timber!' "

And then there's the world-wise history teacher who ended one lecture by saying, "Will Aaron Burr win his duel with Alexander Hamilton? Will the American people go for the Monroe Doctrine? Come to class next Monday and find out."

* * * * *

HYPOTHESIS AND CONCLUSION (SCIENTIFIC)
From way down in my cranium
I, this prediction make:
That if you eat uranium
You'll get atomic ache.

* * * * *

Tennessee perhaps? A student asked to spell weather, hazarded, "W-A-E-T-I-O-U-R." The teacher stared in amazement for a moment and then said, "That is certainly the worst spell of weather we've had around here for years."

* * * * *

I wish I were a moment
In my professor's class.
For no matter how idle moments are,
They always seem to pass.

SPEAKING OF PASSING—HERE'S HOW TO . . .

1. Bring the professor newspaper clippings, dealing with his subject. Demonstrates fiery interest and gives him timely items to mention to to the class. If you can't find any clippings dealing with his subject, bing in any clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

2. Look alert. Take notes eagerly. If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievingly and shake it.

3. Nod frequently and murmur, "How true!" To you, this seems exaggerated. To him, it's quite objective.

4. Sit in front, near him. (Applies only if you intend to stay awake.) If you're going to all the trouble of making a good impression, you might as well let him know who you are, especially in a large class.

5. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell. If he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke.

6. Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it. Just ask.

7. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.

8. Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course. If you do math in psychology class and psychology in math class, match the books for size and color.

9. Ask any questions you think he can answer. Conversely, avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he couldn't answer and in your younger brother's second-grade reader at that.

10. Call attention to his writing. Produces an equisitely pleasant expeience connected with you. If you know he's written a book or an article, ask in class if he wrote it.

* * * * *

As to whether or not you want to do some work, in addition to all this, well it's a controversial point and up to you.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Elizabeth Frei

MOVIES

Town night movie goers will have their choice next week of the Capitol's "Because of You", a love story with Jeff Chandler and Loretta Young, and the Park's "Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder", starring Frankie Laine and Charlotte Austan in Technicolor.

Monday's showing at the Park is an Indian story, "Brave Warrior". We don't even know who's playing in it, though. Later in the week at the same theater the Indian theme is renewed when Yvette Dugay and Vincent Edward play in the well-known story "Hiawatha".

Unknown Element

For the rest of the week the Capitol Theater is offering an unknown element. Their telephone wasn't working and we couldn't find out their plans.

BOOKS

In the literary line one of the library's newest books caught our attention. "Classical Landscape With Figures" by Osbert Lancaster isn't actually, except for its bright yellow cover, the kind of book to draw ones eye. Once a second look is taken, however, the reader becomes intrigued—both by the author's own colorful illustrations and by his dry style of humor.

'Something New'

Not many people would choose to read a book of facts and stale description about Greece, but this is something new. In it the author attempts, in a new and lively manner, to present a picture of Greece as it appears today.

It is his purpose throughout also to "emphasize the continuity which runs through the whole of Greek history from Agamemon to Papandreou".

This, we feel, he has done well—forming a book that makes fascinating reading. Here you also really learn of Green history and customs in the most painless and enjoyable way that we have found yet.

ART NOTES

Over in the Fine Arts Center another fascinating exhibit has been set up in the art gallery. This time it is a series of modern Bible illustrations which is being circulated by the Museum of Modern Art. Since the Bible has been the basis for art for about twenty centuries it is interesting to see the interpretations that the modern artists give to the Old and New Testaments.

Most of these prints are in black and white and on looking them over we discovered that the Crucifixion of Christ is the subject which is presented most often.

Also interesting in relation to the subject matter is the artist's use of his medium — sometimes woodcuts, lithographs, or drypoint, and other times etchings or engravings. An interesting study of this is shown in a central position of the exhibit with two prints of Pablo Picasso's "Bathsheba". One of these, done in lithograph, is on a dark background with a series of thin white line forming the figures and making the design.

Startling Contrast

The other, an identical picture also in lithograph, is done on a white background with black detail and shading—showing texture, tones, and definite shape. The contrast between the two is startling, especially when one realizes that it is basically the same design.

Many other outstanding artists besides Picasso are represented in this exhibit. Most of these prints have been selected from the collection of contemporary graphic art in the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Print Room of the Museum of Modern Art, and it is well worth anyones while, art student or not, to go and take advantage of this display.

ECHO FORUM

Dear Editor,

It was with a great deal of concern and interest that I and a great many other students and faculty gathered Wednesday evening for the Student Council meeting. It was very fine to note the interest that was evident by the large number of both groups that were present. This same interest was to make it a meeting to be remembered for a good while on this campus. The actions that took place at the gathering are my reasons for this letter.

President Brown was quick to state the basic feelings of the student body and we all waited to hear some rather quick solutions for our discontent. These could not be given because the problems were important and needed time and careful consideration before any action could be taken. Along with Miss Brown's statements I had a few of my own, but due to the impractibility of open forum, I had to save them for this letter.

A point that was very well taken was the lack of cooperation between student and faculty. It has been a great concern of mine since arriving at Maryville that we were not closer to our teachers. It appeaed to me that on a campus as small as Maryville and with the basic tie of Christianity we should be as one, not as cliques and factions. It seemed that the only time we gathered as a body was when a crisis came up. I hope that this

Sports Echoes

By Bob Coles

The Daffydils is Bloomin'

With our hats off to our dear friend, Mr. Tennyson, we say—In the Spring, a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of . . . Well, where do a young man's thoughts lightly turn at Maryville in the spring? Since this is Maryville they can't very well turn to thoughts of love as the poet would have it, because, to coin an old and true campus saying, "Maryville frowns on things like that." So, what then do a young man's thoughts turn to? I bet you could never guess, this being only the sports column on the sports page, written by someone who has never written anything for this paper except sports. You're right, they turn to sports, and for some reason, this one's turns to old records and statistics, in which probably everyone is interested.

The Good Ole Days

Way back, a long time ago, there were a lot of things for a fellow to do here in the spring, at least more than there are now. The records show schedules for a rather respectable swimming team extending back to 1936 and goin up to 1949, the year before anybody here was eligible. We don't quite remember just why it was abandoned now, but the scores in that last year certainly weren't anything to brag about. The team never did win, but lost twice to UT, twice to Vanderbilt, and once to Berea. The most industrious season was in 1940, when they swam in eight meets, splitting even, beating Morehead State, Clemson, Eastern Kentucky twice, and losing to UT twice, Tusculum, and Concord State in West Virginia

Records

Those of you who are the great swimmers should try a few of these records on for size to see how you would compare, because everybody in this modern world knows that comparison proves. Rusty Wicklund set four records in 1937; the 40 yard freestyle in 20:8, the 50 yard freestyle in 26:9; the 100 yard freestyle in 58:6, and the 220 yard freestyle in 2:43.9. The 100 yard breast stroke record is 1:8.8, and the 100 yard backstroke was done in 1:16.0. If you care to know any more of the records see me sometime, and I'll let you look at them.

Cinder-Burners

Another thing a lad could do not too long ago, was go out for track, for even a few Juniors now around were once on the team as the last meet was run in 1951, when the track team ran only once, losing that one to East Tennessee State, 82-39. The year before, which perhaps some Senior or other can tell you about better than I, we actually won a meet, beating Chattanooga, 76-55 and losing to East Tennessee State, 73-52. Way back in 1912, the school ran its first meet, beating Tusculum, and ran in meets here and there for the next twelve years, winning and losing, but the first scores we have are for 1923, when we beat UT, 78-53, and Centre, 81-49. Probably the best year in the school's history was 1933, when we won three and lost one, but also won the Smoky Mountain Conference Meet. During the season the team lost to UT, but beat Centre, LMU, and Emory & Henry and wound up southeastern A.A.U. Champs.

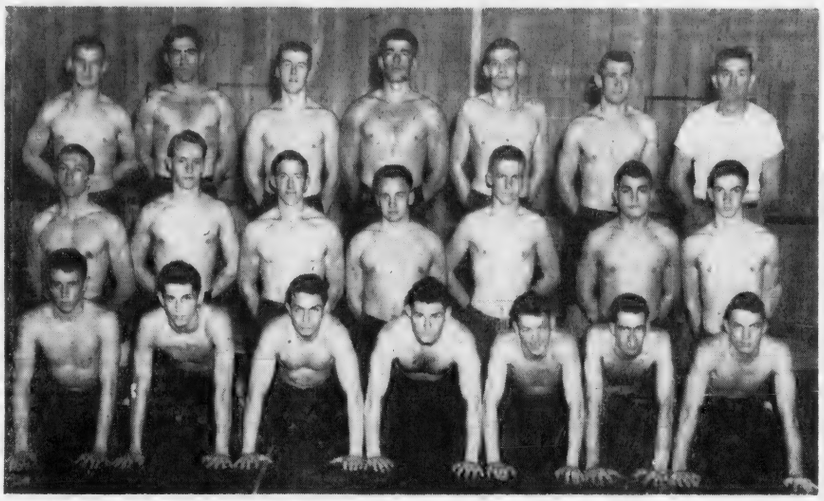
More Records

Records in track are interesting too. In 1913, Carl Smock set the 100 yard dash record of ten seconds, tied twire since then. Weldon Baird, later killed in the Second World War set three records, 50.5 in the 440, 1:58 in the 880, and 124 feet in the discuss throw. Bob Thrower, one of the great names in football here, set the record for the shot put, heaving it 41 feet 1½ inches. The mile record is 4:29, not bad at all, high jump is 6'2", broad jump, 21'3", pole vault, 11'3", javelin is 192 feet, 120 low hurdles set by Gene Orr in 1939, is 15.5, and the 220 low hurdles 25.2. Some of these are pretty good marks to set yourself to beat.

In The Land of Now

Two other long established sports are still thriving in spring sports life at Maryville College, Tennis and Baseball. And at last names that you recognize can be mentioned, like John Anderson, Ed Breitbach, Dick Lebold, Marshall England, and Kent Buser in tennis, and Jim Campbell, Sonny Short, Lynn Sexton, Don Alford, Bill Van Benthysen, Harry Robinson, Jim Wiley, Phil Young, and Bob Shelton in baseball.

Tennis



Ever since 1934, the Maryville tennis team has been one of the strongest small college teams in the south. Last year they gave UT and Florida a hard fight, and they are top-flight competition, ending up with a 9-3 record for the year. In 1934, they played no less than 14 matches, winning ten of them, including a split with UT. Since 1941 the records have been: 11-2, 5-2 ,then about six years out for the war and then beginning again in 1948, 4-7, 9-0, 7-1, 7-1 and 9-3. Opponents have usually included Carson-Newman, LMU, ETSTC, Tusculum, UT, Milligan, TPI and a number of other teams. Lost from last year's very good team is Clyde McCampbell, the number one man. Who will take his place is not yet known, but the team will probably have a good season.

Baseball

The baseball records stretch back all the way to 1905, when the team established a winning precedent with a 12-1 record, followed in 1906 with a 14-5 record. Through the many years since then, the combined record has been 460 wins to 258 losses. The list of teams played is a most amazing one. In 1913 the New York Giants, apparently on their way north, beat the Scotties, 9-1. The next year, the Brooklyn Dodgers stopped off long enough to win a 11-0 game at the Highlanders expense. In 1915, the Cleveland Indians won, 10-0, and the Carlisle Indians also took two games, 12-0 and 8-0. The major league teams kept coming for a few years. In 1916, the Philadelphia A's won 12-2. In 1920 the New York Giants stopped off again, followed by the Boston Red Sox, but the scores for these two games are missing, and the Giants returned for the last major league visit

The Maryville Scotties wound up a highly successful wrestling season with a slaughter over the Knoxville Y last Tuesday. The 31-3 score run up by Maryville was one of the largest ever made by a Scottie team. This win followed a loss to powerful Auburn University and a win over the University of Chattanooga. Maryville finished with a 6 won, 3 lost and one tied record. Things looked bad for the Scots at the beginning of the season as they only had two lettermen back. But with everyone out there fighting last year's losing record was turned into a winning one this year. With the tuornament still to be finished at this time, the Scotties have five lettermen. Two wrestlers have a chance to pick up a letter during the tourney. Looking into the future, Maryville has a good team coming up next year. Co-captains Bill Morse and Paul Merwin along with heavyweight George Kipp are the only men to be lost because of graduation. Their loss will be felt, but there are good men ready to take their places. There will be a need for a heavyweight and anyone else who wants to tryout.

Plainsmen Win

On February 21, the Auburn Plainsmen handed Maryville their worst defeat of the season. Auburn, defending SEC champs for the past five years, took six of the eight matches. One match was a draw.

In an exhibition match Jimmy Cummings decisioned Culver Deloach, 6-0.

Bill Morse drew with Bob Davis, 4-4. Bill had 3 escapes and 1 point for time advantage, while Davis had 2 points for a reverse and 2 for a take down. Buford Miller drew a tough man in Ray Downey who was last year's SEC champ. Buford tried hard, but lost a 11-2 decision.

Wild Man

Wild Man Shepard, who is improving every match, lost a 7-3 decision to Whit Gunnels. Kenny looked as if he might pin Gunnels but lost in a close match.

All Harris

Flash Harris picked up Maryville's only win as he beat Robert Hall, 3-0. Flash looked better in this match than he did any other time this season as he used a reverse and time advantage to pick up his 3 points. Tom Bugenhagen got beat by Russell Baker in the 157 set to. Tom started out right with a take down, but Baker reversed him for 2 points. The final score was 5-2. Paul Merwin was pinned by Glen Sanders only after being dazed by a blow on the head. Bob Buchanan lost a 4-0 decision to Dick Downey in the 177 pound go.

Too Bad D.P.

In the heavyweight match George Kipp held out until the third perido only to finally get pinned by Don McNair. McNair was SEC heavyweight champ last year.

Summary

123—Bill Morse (M) draw with Robert Davis (A), 4-4
130—Ray Downey (A) decision over Buford Miller, 11-2.
137—Whit Gunnels (A. decision over Ken Shepard (M), 7-3

SCOTS NIP MOCCASINS

Last Saturday night the Scot matmen beat the Moccasins of the University of Chattanooga in a close match, 16-14.

Bob Vandergriff met Oscar Scruggs in the first bout and lost a 7-4 decision. Bill Morse then started Maryville on the right road with a second period pin over John Fair.

Wild Man Wins

Ken Shepard picked up his first win with a 7-2 decision over Bill Merritt. Flash Harris beat Bill Hodges 9-5 i nthe 147 set-to. Chattanooga forfeited to Maryville in the 157 pound class.

Bad Times

Paul Merwin tried hard but lost 5-2. Paul had two escapes but couldn't take down his opponent, Jack Matowsky. Bob Buchanan was pinned by Mickey Myers in the 177 pound class.

Another Champ

Abe Cohen, a newcomer to Southern wrestling, beat George Kipp in the heavy-weight bout. Cohen was Pennsylvania state champ and could make it tough for Scottie heavyweights the next three years. It was a close match with Kipp losing a 3-1 decisoin.

Summary

123—Oscar Scruggs (C) decision over Bob Vandergrifft (M), 7-4
130—Bill Morse (M) pinned John Fair (C)

MARYVILLE ROMPS

The Scotties picked up a 31-3 win over the Knoxville Y here on Tuesday. With everyone showing up good the Scots rolled up their highest score of the year.

Feels Good

Bob Vandergriff picked up a pin and a letter over Winston Lively in 25 seconds of the second period. Bill Morse then rolled up the score on Billy Arnold but couldn't pin him. Morse had a reverse, take down, time advantage and a near pin in winning a 8-0 decision.

Quick Work

Kenny Shepard got down to business fast and pinned Dr. Irma Sabo, with only 1:10 seconds gone in the first period. Flash Harris, looking good again, beat Jim West, 10-5. Flash had 3 reverses, a take down, and riding time.

Jerry Embry beat Mrayville's Jack Renfro for the Y's only win. Renfro kept from getting pinned and looked good for his first match.

Doctor! Doctor!

Tiger Tom Bugenhagen won with a TKO over Don Jones in 2:35 of the first period. Tom was ahead at the time 2-1, Buddy Gilbert picked up 5 points for Maryville with another TKO over Monroe Adams. Gilbert was also head on points, 3-2.

Man At Work

George Kipp didn't waste any time in pinning Dick Fowler in 2:55 of the first period.

Summary

123—Bob Vandergrift (M) pinned Winston Lively (K), :25, 3rd. period
130—Bill Morse (M) decisioned Bill Arnold (K), 8-0
137—Ken Shepard (M) pinned Irma Sabo (K), 1:10, 1st period

Heavyweight—George Kipp (M) pinned Dick Fowler (K), 2:55, 1st period

SCOT WRESTLERS LEAVE FOR NCAA TOURNEY

The Maryville matmen left for the NCAA wrestling tournament at Vanderbilt University Thursday afternoon.

Alpha Sigs Retain Stinking Shoes For 2nd Year In Row

An inspired Alpha Sig team, playing one of its best games of the year managed to retain the highly prized trophy, the "Stinking Shoes" by ending a fighting Athenian team, 48-47. The game was played to a normal end only to find the two teams tied when Kent Buser sank a foul shot after the game was over. Then, in the overtime period, Howard Gress racked up four of his eighteen points along with two by Bob Mizelle to outscore Athenian's five points, four by Dick Lebold, and one by Kent Buser. Lebold had a chance to either win or tie the game for Athenian with two shots, again after the final whistle, but he couldn't make either of them, and the game was over.

A Good Start

Alpha Sig threatened to make the game a farce in the opening period, outscoring Athenian, 14-6, as Athenian could not hit at all from the field until mid-way through the second period. The second quarter was a different story, when Alpha Sig had the B League team in most of the time, and Athenian continued to try various combinations in an effort to find one that could score.

It Worked

They finally found one, because after trailing by four points at the half, they roared to a five point spread at the end of the quarter, outscoring Alpha Sigma, 13-4. But Alpha Sig had what it took to regain their poise and outscore the Athenian team by just those five points in the final period to send the game into overtime.

Big Men

For Alpha Sig, Howard Gress was the high scorer, pouring in eighteen points, followed by Bob Mizelle with 13. Kent Buser led the Athenian team with 12, followed by Dick Lebold with 11, and Dave Gates and Bill Addy with 8 points apiece.

Lineups

Alpha Sig		Athenian

YMCA Takes Volleyball League

In a season cut rather brutally short, the YMCA team emerged as the best team in the school behind the same players who made the Athenian team the league's best last year; Tim Bowman, Bill Addy, Dave Gates, Hank Van Hassel, and Dean Allison, and Bob Coles, aided by some effective new blood, Phil Young, Harold Black, and Bob Johnston. The YMCA team was never seriously pressed in the league's short history, never losing a frame in their five games, and yielding only a total of forty-five points in ten frames, or four and a half points in each frame, which is better than average.

Doobers

In the second league, the Doobers took first place honors in also going to an undefeated season, also losing not a single frame. The Doobers record of points yielded can be rectified.

Along this same line, it has never seemed that we have been given adequate opportunities to take our place in accepting responsibilities. I have worked on some projects on this campus and have always been amazed at the way our students can handle themselves. If only given more opportunity I am sure they could prove greater assets to the college than they already are. I am confident that almost all people would agree that student body and the graduates are a college's greatest asset.

There are certain issues that many of us would like action taken on. More free Saturday nights, optional town nights, a five day week, more cultural activities and answers to a lot of questions that were never made known to us. We do not expect to get all that we ask, but I feel that very careful consideration should be given to all questions asked and that this should be done in the light of the times.

I am addressing this particularly to student council. It is your responsibility to let us know why things are as they are. I think that if our students had real reasons why some of the rules of the college are as they are, it would alleviate a lot of the dissatisfaction that is prevalent. It has always appeared to me that an informed group was the best type to have.

I think that our meeting proved that the students here like Maryville but we also like individuality, responsibility, and a feeling of being a real part of the school. We want to stay at Maryville and help make it the great school that we believe it can be. All we ask is that we get a fair representation from our student council and fair consideration from our faculty advisors. I believe that if all of our problems are dealed with sincerely and without prejudice, we will all be happy.

I think all who have shown this new interest in Maryville are to be commended. Your conscientious desires to have a practical but well-rounded program are, I am sure, going to be rewarded. Only with everyone's help can we succeed.

Sincerely and respectfully,
Kenneth Wilkinson

The scent of frying chicken led me to the water tower where Alice Dravey, Lynn Keifer, Duckie Cooker, Don Moffat, Homer Rickenbaugh, and Bob Johnston were picnicing. All went well until the wind came and blew them away.

in 1922 and won their game, 5-2.

What a Record

Through twenty years of this period, the Highlanders were members of the Smoky Mountain Conference, from which they finally withdrew in 1940, when it was felt that the other schools were getting a little too much emphasis on various sports, and putting themselves in a different category from Maryville. Through their last twenty years in the Conference, the Scotties were champions no less than twenty times, a record that can not be matched by very many schools anywhere in the country in any sport.

The Last Years

For the last few years it felt almost as if the sport of baseball were getting a little bit of cold shoulder at this school, but baseball lovers have been or will be reassured this year with the long schedule that has been prepared by Coach Honaker, one of the leading baseball coaches in the south, if not in the entire country. The addition of UT and other schools to the schedule give new depth to the season and new hope for top-notch games, which seemed to go out after Robin Roberts hurled Michigan State to a 10-1 victory over Maryville in 1947. Let's all get behind the tennis and baseball teams as the last sports to which a young man's fancy may turn; they provide a lot of entertainment and thrills.

land," he said.

After World War I Mr. Grant became interested in the Student Relief Fund. He furthered its efforts in Vienna and the rest of Austria.

First Step

That was the first in a series of events that placed a vast store of knowledge and world perspective before the well-known spokesman. From 1925-1929 he served as General Secretary for the student YM and YW movements in New Zealand.

It was in 1936 that the Institute of International Education asked the world traveler to lecture in twenty-five American colleges. He lectured not only for the duration of that year but also for several of the following years, including this year.

Somewhat of a mixture of races, as he himself admits, Mr. Grant has often been mistaken on his speaking tours for a Scandinavian. He is of a Scandinavian-Celtic background. Both influences have sharply affected not only his appearance but personality.

Resides In London

Mr. Grant now lives in London. He has three children: a daughter and a younger son who are doctors and an older son who is engaged in journalistic work. All hope to visit the United States some day.

The Scotchman, turned British, is most at ease when speaking on any phase of international affairs. He commands attention and stimulates thinking. He has an amazing memory for dates.

He disagrees with the theory that Britain is but a remnant of a once great empire. "Britain is stronger today than she ever has been." To prove his point he cited such factors as follows: since 1938 industrial output has increased by 40%; agriculture has increased 35%; people in Britain have a higher standard of living today; a bigger volume of food is being consumed.

Four Solutions

In the present controversy with the Soviet Union he sees four possible alternatives or solutions. They are: (1) appeasement; (2) the United Nations; (3) war with Russia; (4) two sections of the world must live in harmony. The last point he thinks has the greatest possibilities. He says, "Not one world or none, but two worlds or none."

VOLUME 38 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, MARCH 14, 1953 | NUMBER 16

'Goodbye, My Fancy' Staged Again Tonight

Edwards, White, Caldwell Star

By Abby Crosby

"Goodbye, My Fancy", a three-act comedy by Fay Kanin, was presented to a full house last night by the Maryville College Playhouse. The play continues its run tonight in another performance at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Joanne Edwards, junior English major from Hawthorne, N.J., will be seen again tonight as Agatha Reed, the efficient congresswoman who is returning to her Alma Mater, Good Hope College from which she had been expelled) to receive an honorary degree.

Caldwell Also To Star

George Caldwell, junior drama major from Seattle, Wash., will appear as Matt Cole, the Life photographer; and David Gates, junior physics major from Fulton, Mo., will assume the role of Jim Merrill, the ineffective president of Good Hope College. The part of Grace Woods, secretary to the president, will be taken by Sue White, senior sociology major from Middletown, Ohio.

Also To Appear

Also to appear in this production are Carol Ann Doll, Jimmy Shields, Jo Brooks, Ruth Orr, Moody Bryles, Florence Clark, Bob Reed, Roberta Rankin, Wayne Feehrer, Carol Sleight, Judy Burgos, Van Alstyne, and Cornelia Force.

The story of "Goodbye, My Fancy" takes place in a respectably endowed girls' dorm on the campus of Good Hope College for Women. The exciting plot involves the typical love triangle, contemplated blackmail, and simple, every-day college fun. It is being directed by Miss Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama and speech.

YWCA Names '54 Candidates

The following girls were nominated for the offices of Y.W.C.A.: President, Carol Demler, a Bible major from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Janice Eakin, English major, from Prospect, Pa.;

Vice-president, Mildred Mowery and Helen Seay; Secretary, Rosa Bauerle and Pat Jones, Treasurer, Barbara Chubb and Jeannine Fiori; Nu Gamma, Jean Morgan and Mary Ann Thompson. The elections will be held on March 19.

Student Travel Tells Of European Sailings

New York—The Council on Student Travel (179 Broadway, New York) announced today two major round-trip sailings to Europe for students and teachers this summer.

The S.S. AROSA KULM, which made several trips last summer for the Council, will sail from Quebec for London, Le Havre and Bremerhaven June 9 and July 4; return sailings will leave Bremerhaven August 11 and September 2 for London, LeHarve and Quebec.

The Council also has reserved space for students and teachers on a number of other sailings of the AROSA KULM from May through September, and booking are now being made on all these sailings.

Fares

One-way fares on the AROSA KULM are $1.50 for space in dormitories for six to 14, and $160 and $165 for space in cabins for two, three and four.

The AROSA KULM, which is an all-tourist class vessel, was used for several Council sailings last year. Since that time it has been remodeled, making the space more adaptable for student travel. The lounge space has been doubled and a sports deck has been added. The over-all capacity of the ship has been reduced to 850 spaces. Dormitories have been reduced in size; they contain from four to 14 berths, with the average containing six to eight berths. There are some 60 cabins for two.

Rev. John H. Thompson To Speak at Vespers

Speaking at Vespers tomorrow at 7 p.m. is Reverend John H. Thompson, Jr., minister of the First Presbyterian Church of LaFollette, Tenn. Rev. Thompson graduated from Maryville College in 1941, and from Princeton Seminary.

Vesper Choir will supply the special music for the evening.

Ensemble Perform At Oak Ridge

The Maryville College String Ensemble performed in Oak Ridge Sunday, March 8, on an exchange program for the Maryville-Alcoa Music Club.

Numbers performed on the program were "Gavotte" from "Iphigenia in Aulis" by Gluck; "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" by Mozart; and "The Evening Prayer" from "Hansel and Gretel" by Humperdinck.

Members

Members of the ensemble include Sue White, Catherine Snedeker, John Graulich, Ann Yoakum, Esther Lerch, Richard Beard, violins; Ann Kirkpatrick, viola; and Wayne Shelton, 'cello.

Miss Katherine Crews is director of the group.

Theta Epsilon to Meet Bainonian in Basketball

Theta Epsilon's basketball team will meet the Bainonian hoopsters in the intra-mural Gymnasium Saturday evening at 6:45 p.m. The game, which will take the place of the regular weekly meeting, is an annual event for the two women's societies.

Alpha Sigma members are urged to attend since it is reported that Thetas never underestimate the power of men.

Inter-Club Council Assumes Responsibilities

The March meeting of Inter-Club Council was held Thursday, March 12, in Anderson Conference Room. Bob Navratil, club president, called the meeting to order.

Judy Johnson read the club's revised constituion. Several features were discused and approved. It was decided that Inter-Club should act as an agency which would receive applications for new clubs and constitutions.

Council reaffirmed its capacity to approve scheduled initiations held by clubs on campus. It also decided that each club should elect a representative to Council, rather than letting the presidents serve in this capacity.

Fine Arts Dept. Offers Scholarships

Three scholarships will be awarded by the Fine Arts Department based on competitions in music and art. All high school seniors who are planning to enter college or art or music school may compete.

An application should be sent to Chairman, Division of Fine Arts, Maryville College, Tenn., by March 17. With the application a letter of recommendation from the art or music teacher and a record of academic standing by the principal of the school is necessary.

Six Examples

Those competing in art must submit a portfolio of six examples to be considered by the judges. These must be in no later than March 17. Those competing in music must have fifteen minute auditions to be given Saturday, March 28 from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

The awards will be made on March 28, one in voice, one in piano, and one in art. They will be given in the form of a certificate to a college or school of music or art. The award in voice and piano is $200 and in art $100. If the winner attends Maryville College the College will add $100 to the award.

YMCA Names '54 Candidates

The election for YMCA officers will be held Thursday, March 19.

The following were nominated by the YM nominating committee at a meeting held Wednesday, March 11: president, Harold Black and Homer Rickabaugh; vice-president, Hank Van Hassel and Kent Buser; secretary, Bob Vandergriff and Jim Fisher; treasurer, A. C. McWilliams and Doug Stubblefield; and freshman advisory board, Sonny Shackleford and Charlie Rogers.

Members of YM may make further nominations from the floor at the regular meeting tomorrow afternoon.

UT Schedules Waring, Solomon This Month

The UT Concert series will present Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians, Wednesday, March 25, 1953. Also with Waring and his orchestra will be the Glee Club and all the soloists. The concert will be in the usual place, the U-T Auditorium.

March 17, Solomon, an English pianist, will play at the U-T Auditorium. He has been said to be "one of the great pianists of our day" by the New York Journal-American.

Finishing Touches Added To Presbyterian Church

By Wayne Brooks

Four hundred truckloads of stone have so far gone into the construction of the New Providence Church building on West Broadway.

Plans for the new $500,000 structure were laid in 1947 while building got underway in February, 1951. Rapid progress has been made since the cornerstone was laid in September, 1951, and according to William Vogel, assistant pastor at the church, work should be finished in time for the first service on Palm Sunday.

Bolton Designer

Designed by Charles Bolton of Philadelphia, it is built on the modified Gothic principle and has three main departments: the sanctuary, the educational facilities, and the church offices.

Self-closing doors, hearing aids in the front pews, and small sized water fountains for the kiddies are among the many conveniences which the new church will enjoy.

A seating capacity of 800 will be found in the sanctuary with a possible reserve 100. It is furnished with rheostatic lighting and air conditioned by exhaust fans. Upstirs will be found a bride's room and an usher's room where she and her entire retinue can stay before the service.

Graham Memorial

There will be a divided chancel and at the rear of the sanctuary a five-panel stained glass window, a memorial to Dr. Graham, the late minister of the New Providence Church, will depict the Ascension and the evangelists, while a panel beneath will picture the Last Supper.

Other Themes

The dominant theme on the side windows will be great men of the church, beginning with Abraham and closing in our modern era with David Livingstone.

A pulpit has also been erected just outside the sanctuary for vespers and other such open-air serv-

Student Council Waits For Joint Faculty Meeting

At the Wednesday, March 11, meeting of Student Council, members continued discussion of means to solve the problem of student discontent.

In line with its past resolution, Council decided to wait for an invitation from the faculty to hold a joint meeting.

Joint Effort

Council hoped that proposals for remedying the problem would come from the joint efforts of council and faculty, than from any one group.

Members then gave President Sally Brown the power to call a special meeting tonight, March 14, if any word concerning a joint meeting came from the faculty.

Other Business

Other business of the night was the approval for council to sponsor an exchange chapel program with Tusculum College and Carson-Newman College.

There were a number of student visitors presnt. Dr. Queener was also scheduled to speak, but he had to cancel his address at the last minute.

Burgos, Fiori Take 2nd. Place In Debate Meet

College Squad Gains Experience

By Don Layton

Naomi Burgos, junior sociology major from New York City, and Jeannine Fiori, junior philosophy major from Niagara Falls, N.Y., made praiseworthy records at the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament, held at Hickory, N.C., March 5-7.

Miss Burgos received second place for her extemporaneous after dinner speech entitled 'Leisure and Laziness Are Not the Same Thing." It was delivered at the banquet Friday evening. Miss Fiori was awarded second place in women's oratory. Her topic was "The American Obsession."

Team Results

As teams, Maryville's women debators won six and lost eight meets; the men took three and dropped eleven. The general team topic was a consideration of "Resolved that the Congress of the United States should enact a compulsory Fair Employment Practices Law."

Large Schools Represented

Squads representing several well known universities and colleges competed at Hickory. These included Lenoir Rhyne, the sponsor; the U. S. Naval Academy, Georgetown, George Washington, Duke, Davidson, Appalachian State, Tennessee Polytechnic Institute, Virginia Polytechnical Institute, East Tennessee State Teachers College, University of South Carolina, University of Florida, Wake Forest, Carson-Newman, East Carolina, Millsaps, Bridgewater, and Maryville. Maryville's representatives were accompanied to the tourney by two ex-debators, Miss Walker and Mrs. Pieper.

Team Members

Representing the college besides Miss Fiori and Miss Burgos were: David Williams and Charles Rogers, freshmen debators; Sarah Pledger, Evelyn Fields, Kent Buser, Robert Duff, Donald Young and Bob Navratil. Only Miss Burgos, Miss Fields, and Mr. Navratil had debated previously to this year.

Enviable Record

In past years Maryville has scored enviable records in the intercollegiate tournaments. One spokesman commented that with added experience Maryville should again become a threat to retain its enviable record.

One debator commented, "We enjoyed the trip very much. We feel it was a very worthwhile experience. The skills we learned will benefit us in future debates."

The tourney at Hickory was the first in a series of three in which Maryville will compete. From April 1-5 Miss Pledger, Miss Fiori, Mr. Buser, and Mr. Young will compete at the Grand National Forensic Tournament in Fredericksburg, Va. They will be accompanied there by Miss Walker.

To Compete at Kalamazoo

The last of the series of meets is the Pi Kappa Delta Tournament at Kalamazoo, Mich. from April 5-9. Miss Fields, Miss Burgos, Mr. Navratil, and Mr. Duff will vie for honors there. Mr. Pieper will accompany them.

Music Fete Held At FAC Saturday

For the third consecutive year the Regional Festival of the Junior Division of the National Federation of Music Clubs was held in the Maryville College Fine Arts Center. The festival was held Saturday, March 7.

The 121 entrants in the contest, who competed in groups graded according to age and ability, were rated according to superior, excellent, very good, and good.

Officials

Miss Dorothy Vawter, instructor in music, was chairman of the festival for the third year. Judges were Claude Rose of Western State Teachers' College, Bowling Green, Ky., and Alfred Schmied of the University of Tennessee.

Contest is for music students under the age of 18. Five regions in Tennessee held festivals throughout the state on the same day.

Formerly In Old Chapel

For several years the festival in this region was held in the old Voorhees Chapel. After the chapel fire in 1947, it was held in the Chilhowee Club House. Two years ago, the festival returned to the college campus.

Winners of superior ratings in the festival at Maryville will go to the state competition in Nashville to compete for awards.

Exper. Theater Slates Easter Play

"Easter at Galilee," an interpretation of the poem "The Light of the World" by Sir Edwin Arnold and Edward J. Wheeler, is to be presented Saturday, April 6, as the annual Easter play.

The plot tells of a possible meeting between Pilate and Mary of Magdala in which Pilate seeks the truth about Christ.

The cast includes Arthur Fryer, first narrator; Anne Buckley, second narrator; Nancy Rideout, Mary Magdala; Garnetta Alexander, Syrian maid; Don Thiel, Pilate; and Bill Cunningham, centurion.

FTA Slates Panel Discussion For Thursday

The program for the Future Teachers of America meeting on Thursday, March 19, will be a panel discussion. The topic for this will be "Student Teaching."

On March 26, the Maryville College chapter will attend a Delta Kappa Gamma dinner meeting at Friendsville.

April 22, Dr. Fleming, professor at U-T, will speak to the group. His topic will be "Emotional Needs in the Classroom."

Miss Tom to Address Student Vols Sunday

Speaker at Student Vols this Sunday night after Vespers is Miss Eleanor Tom, college librarian, who will tell about her native Hawaii.

Members of Vols are continuing their project to buy playground equipment for Ming Quong Home for Chinese girls in California.

Student Recital Set For Tuesday

On Tuesday, March 17, another in the series of student recitals will be given. Ruth Blackburn, organist, will be presented playing "Cantabile," "O, Had I Jubal's Lyre" has been chosen by Florence Clark, soprano.

Carolyn Kiefer, organist, will play the "Prelude and Fugue in A Minor" and Carolyn Beatty, mezzo-soprano, will sing "Amour! viene aide," from Samson and Delilah. "When Love Is Kind" will be sung by Maryel Vogel, soprano, and Lora Kinsinger, organist, will play a Voluntary on the Hundredth Psalm Tune.

Sutton To Sing

In partial fulfillment of her sophomore requirement, Sheila Sutton will sing "Le chevelure," "Les papillon," "Maman, dites-Moi," "Non, je n'irae plus au bois".

The recital will be in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center at 4:30 p.m.

Coles, Wells to Read At Workshop Monday

Writers' Workshop will meet Monday, March 16, at 4:30 p.m. in Dr. Hunter's classroom.

Bob Coles and Dorothy Wells will read, with Ed Scott and Lora Kinsinger criticizing.

Presbyterian Church Leveled To Ground

The former New Providence Presbyterian Church, age-long landmark and symbol of Maryville, has been virtually razed.

Last upright section of the building fell Wednesday to the hands of a Knoxville wrecking crew. The large brick church which was completed just prior to the turn of the century has been the victim of the wrecking crew for the past two months.

The land was sold to a group of local businessmen who have not announced officially what will replace the church.

College Men Find Mr. 'Mac' Lifetime Friend

By Joe Gilliland

Talk to any alumnus of Maryville College who graduated within the last 30 years, and the subject will soon get around to E. E. McCurry, the gentleman who has been head of Carnegie Hall since September, 1920.

Chances are that the well-known dormitory proctor will be referred to as Mr. Mac, a name that he has answered to since he began his present work.

Mr. Mac, a native of Greene County, has been proctor of Carnegie Hall and Supervisor of Men's Residence since 1920, when he succeeded E. R. Walker. He finished his college work at Maryville with the class of 1934 when he received his B. A. degree with a major in education. In 1937 he was awarded an M.S. degree from the University of Tennessee with a major in education and a minor in sociology.

Known For Understanding

Mr. Mac is perhaps known best for his patience and understanding in dealing with college men in dormitory life. "I learned to know early that my problems at your age were the same as your problems are at your age," he said in reference to his dealings with students. He has evidently put this lesson to good use because he is always ready to help boys in any way that he can.

Mr. Mac's understanding in dealing with the prevalent problem of "letting off steam" has also made him liked and admired. "Through my observations I came to regard a certain amount of play as a wholesome part of any man's daily program," he said. "Unfortunately, sometimes the individuals and the program suffer because of the lack of organization," he added.

Organizations

Mr. Mac is not only known by friends and students of Maryville College, but also belongs to several national education organizations and is a very prominent Shriner and Mason in Blount

A Galley Of Types

Not everybody in his short college career has the ability to become a drip. For the benefit of those who are desirous of the title of "Public Mess No. 1," the following gallery of types is presented:

Type one: Let us designate him as the Let-me-tell-you student. He never asks a question; he always tells one to the teacher. In the guise of seeking information he subtly passes on a cherished bit of useless knowledge he has picked up and hopes he has left the impression that he is the Informed One. Method of handling: Never tell him anything, for he already knows; never ask him any thing, or you will have a long beard by the time he is finished.

Type two: This we shall call the Chinese philosopher, On Too Long. Give him a word to spell and he will make an oration out of it. Ask him a question and you receive an encyclopedic answer. Ask him to add two and two and he comes out with a symposium on the abstract qualities of counting with a base two. Method of handling: Don't!

Type One A—Neither a radical nor wishy washy, but a staunch middle-of-the-roader who will defend his views but respects those of others. His education consists not of a smattering of a little of everything and a lot of nothing, but his studying is done in earnest with the best intentions in mind. He doesn't mind having a little fun, but molasses down a fellow's back isn't his idea of fun. Method of treatment: Make friends with this one, brother, you may not find his like again. Cultivate his friendship and lend a helping hand.

—The Babbler, David Lipscomb College

On Light Cuts

We are glad to note the progress that has been made in changing the light cut system in Pearsons. Lights may now be kept on for study every night in the week. It is reasonable to suppose that people of college age are mature enough to plan their own schedules and to allot a sufficient amount of time to study and sleep. It is encouraging to see that recognition has been made of that fact in this departure from the old light cut system.

Progress has been accomplished, however, only for the junior and senior girls. Freshmen and sophomores are still to have their lights checked every night at 11. We feel that any Maryville student is old enough to make such decisions for herself, or she would not be in college in the first place. Distinctions between the classes should not be of any importance in a matter such as this.

We hope that the change which has been achieved is only part of a realization of the fact that college students are individuals who are mature enough to take responsibility for their own lives and their own conduct. J.F.

GEORGE DID IT!

When Trig Moyer was dressing up as George Washington for his birthday party, friends were discussing her superiority to the President as to appeal. Finally Sheila Sutton settled the matter with, "I always thought George had quite a lot of appeal. Wasn't he the father of our country."

DIAPASONALLY SPEAKING

During Virgil Fox's organ concert, Mr. Hughes' pupils were carefully taking note of technique, expression, and stops used. Suddenly the brakes of a car shrieked above the lovely tones of a quiet number, and Glen Gentry asked what kind of stop that was. Mr. Hughes fired back, "That was a quick stop!"

* * * * *

FIRE DRILL! !

Do the fellows really know what constitutes the girls' fire drill routine? The usual feat, when the gong rings, is to leap from bed, slam the window shut, let the shade snap to the top, turn on the light, don street shoes, coat, and towel (over bobby-pins), and get out quickly to one's particular tree on the lawn.

This is agony enough. But, oh, the pain of last Saturday night, after we were routed out around midnight, when our friend Edna Mae Stout finished the evening with a bang by taking flash shots of her neighbors as they awaited the all clear signal.

* * * * *

WARITIES

Jim Darroch tells us that Pearsons Dining Hall has a new name. On receiving at the Student Center a bill for Nabisco celophane-wrapped crackers which he did not order, Jim took it to Miss Ware, who admitted that it was hers. The bill was addressed to the Maryville College Boarding Club.

Along the same line, Sarah Piedger thinks it's "very sweet" of Miss Ware to go along with the Presbyterian Church's plan for sacrificial meals.

* * * * *

"SLEEP, BABY, SLEEP"

Homer Rickabaugh still laughs when he thinks of the fifteen minute sleep Bill Morse took in the library Wednesday afternoon. No one could wake him as he shifted his head from one arm to the other, oblivious even to a sign under his nose, reading, "Wake up, Bill." Homer attributes this trait to Bill's wrestling training. INTERESTED IN WOLVES?

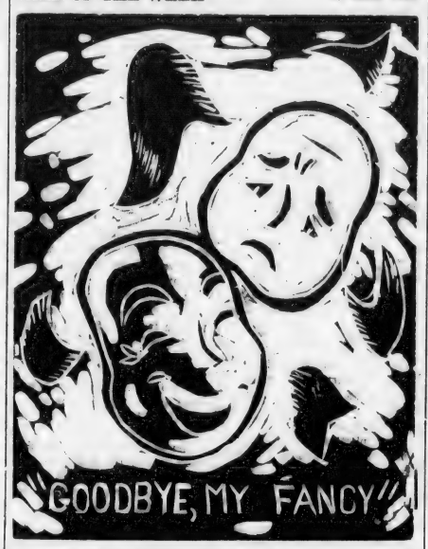
A fascinating little book has been making the rounds in the dorms lately, entitled, "From Beowulf to Virginia Woolf." It is sub-titled, "An Astounding and Wholly Unauthorized History of English Literature." The author is one Robert Manson who will be remembered as the author of such outstanding works as "The Unwritten Tale of Annabelle Nevvers," and "The Case of the Missing Umlaut."

Mr. Myers, who now teaches Creative Listening at Pamunkey State College for women ways in his forward that "the present study grew out of a doctoral disputation written at a fashionable Eastern finishing school; it appears now only after years of expensive revision and diligent research at that Harvard Theological Cemetery and the British Mausoleum."

The author's scope is tremendous; he analyzes such figures against the hysterical background of his time. Included in his study are such bits of information as the fact that the Magna Carta was a famous document which provided that "no man could be hanged twice for the same crime." And "Chaucer was the first of the Muddle English poets who dared to forsake the classic Latin of his father to write in his mother's tongue."

Discussed in the book are such well known works as "Sir Gawain and the Green Girdle," by Pearl the Poet; "The Merchant of Venus," by William Shakespeare; "Paradox Lost," by Milton; "Prudes and Prudence," by Jane Austen; "Ode on a Greasy Urn," by Keats; and "Arrowshirt," by Sinclair Lewis.

"George I founded the House of Hangover upon his succession to the English throne in 1714." "Throughout the Middle Ages England had become Roman Catholic, but with Henry's divorce she became Christian, although the French still obstinately believed in God and remained Catholic."



Mr. Myers also proves that Shakespeare never wrote Shakespeare's plays. They were written by another poet of the same name.

One can easily see from this brief study that there is a wealth of completely worthless and unreliable information to be found in this book.

For the essence of this review we are gracious to our fiend, Carolyn Symmes.

SHOWS

One performance of "Goodbye, My Fancy" is behind us now. It is a quite amusing comedy—and said by some to be the best produced here in several years. Tickets are still available.

George Caldwell is found in a different type of role from those he usually takes and does quite well with it. He is Matt Cole, the sly photographer who messes up the whole deal for the lovely congresswoman, played by Joanne Edwards. Joanne holds down her part wonderfully—as she has shown us she can do many times before.

Gates, White

David Gates and Sue White hold the other important roles in the play. Gates certainly looks the part of a college president even though the role doesn't fit the popular concept of such. All we need say for Sue is that she is superb!

The supporting cast is large and deserves its share of the praise. Carol Ann Doll, in particular, does an excellent job. This is one of the largest casts the school has had except for that motley crew that did Macbeth's soldiers last year.

Once again, I take this opportunity to express appreciation to the crews who work backstage, without whom the production would not go on. They have worked long and hard on it and have done a very good job.

THE GREEN YEARS . . . Of course I have a personal interest in the freshman class and the freshman show, but I think there is none who will deny that the show of a week ago was great—so far as amateur productions go. The freshmen were working under many handicaps, including a couple of cases of laryngitis, and still produced a well-prepared and efficient-looking show.

The old adage that goes to the effect that a poor dress rehearsal means a good show certainly came true. I went over and watched the melee on Saturday afternoon. You'd never have recognized it!

Bucher's Talent

Annie Bucher certainly shows originality and talent in the creating of the play that the entire show was built around. Maybe we have another Jim Dance with us!

The entire show was good. There is not one part that can be chosen and pointed to as being the best thing in it or the worst thing. I have one question, though. Is Esther Lerch really a pretzel?

BOOKS, BOOKS, BOOKS ..... One of interest to members of the contemporary drama class might be John Gasner's "Treasury of the Theater." He begins (inevitably) with "Agamemnon" and finishes up with "Death of a Salesman." The work is in two volumes and includes some of the best plays the world has produced.

Budding school teachers and school librarians might be interested in George Norvell's "The Reading Interests of Young People." Mr. Norvell is supervisor of English in New York State and has conducted an extensive survey in the field of what the public school student, in particular, likes to read. He has appendices and charts showing actual figures on the matter (shades of special studies).

Film Fancies . . . Showing at the Capitol Monday through Wednesday is the much touted "Above and Beyond," starring Robert Taylor as the air force officer working on a secret project and Eleanor Parker as his faithful wife. The critics (who should know) liked it very much and it's well worth the price of a couple of hankies to weep in.

Thursday and Friday they are showing "Family Secret" with the darkly handsome and exciting John Derek. Saturday promises another double-killing. This time it's Don Bary and Mary Beth Hughes in "Square Dance Jubilee" plus a Roy Rogers-Gabby Hayes Western, "Heldorado."

The Park program is not too definite or interesting. Monday they have "The Black Castle," (they're keeping the cast a secret) and on Tuesday and Wednesday it's a Republic terror called "Hoodlum Empire" starring Brian Donlevy and Claire Trevor.

Sports Echoes

By Jim Demer

Congrats to matmen—Maryville's matmen finished the season with a fine 6 won, 3 lost and 1 tied record. This was a surprise to all concerned because things looked black for the Scots at the beginning of the season. There were only two lettermen back from last years team. Maryville had a losing record for the first time in many a year in the 1951-52 season. But led by co-captains Bill Morse and Paul Merwin the Scotties fought hard and it is hoped started Maryville on another long streak of winning seasons. The team should do well next year with five lettermen returning.

Here's a good one concerning Buford Miller, freshman letterman from Six-Mile. It seems that on the way to the SEC wrestling tournament in Nashville the boys passed a river. There was a boat flying a Jolly Roger pennant, complete with the pirates skull and crossbones. "Know what that means?" Buford was asked by Paul Merwin. "Sure," answered Buford, "IODINE".

Brooklyn vs. Cleveland—With baseball hitting the front pages I thought that I would go out on a limb and try to pick the winners. But it isn't stretching the imagination very far to see the Brooklyn Dodgers picking up their first World Series win. The addition of pitcher Russ Meyer, the so-called Mad Monk, makes the Dodgers to choice in the National League. Close behind will be the New York Giants and Philadelphia Phils fighting for second place. The St. Louis Cardinals with a flock of young pitchers will complete the first division. In the American League the strong pitching of Cleveland will break the four year winning streak of the New York Yankees. The Yanks should finish second with Philadelphia and Chicago third and fourth. Looking deep into my crystal ball I see the Boston Braves at the top of the second division in the National League. The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs will have the dubious distinction of finishing ahead of the dormant Pittsburgh Pirates in sixth and seventh place. Completing the second division in the American League in this order will be the Washington Senators, Boston Red Sox, St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers.

Hats off to Johnny Lindell. Lindell, former Yankee outfielder making a comeback as a knuckleball pitcher, was the first major league pitcher to go nine innings as he hurled the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 8-2 victory over the Cuban All-Stars. He did not allow a hit until the sixth inning and retired the last fourteen men to face him.

St. John's to win N. I. T.—Really putting my life in jepordy, I pick St. John's University to win the National Invitation Basketball Tournament. The unseeded Redmen have already beaten St. Louis University and defending champ La Salle. If St. John's is to get beat I look for the Dukes of Duquesne University who play the Redmen this past Thursday night to do it and go on to win the tourney. Top seeded Seton Hall who meets fourth-seeded Manhattan in the other semi-final Thursday night will probably win to meet the Duquesne-St. John's winner in the final on Saturday night.

More Baseball—Raschi and Newhouser are the only AL pitchers to hold a winning record against all of their opposing clubs. Hal Newhouser of Detroit, who has won 200 games and lost 147 in 14 years with the Bengals, holds his biggest spread against Philadelphia. He has beaten the A's 23 times and lost 9. Hal has only a 31-30 edge over the Yankees and is just 21-20 against the Boston Red Sox.

Vic Raschi of the New York Yankees, winner of 107 games while losing only 24 times in seven big league campaigns, also has found the A's easy pickings. Vic has whipped them 24 times and dropped only 4 games. On the other hand his record against Washington is only 8-7.

Two-hundred Game Winners—Bob Feller of Cleveland and Newhouser are the league's only holders of 200 or mor victories. Seven others have copped 100 or more games. They are Vic Raschi, Early Wynn, Bob Lemon, Allie Reynolds, Joe Dodson, Eddie Lopat, and Virgil "Fire" Trucks.

HELP NEEDED—Anyone interested in being baseball manager should get in touch with Coach Honaker. Here's a good chance to have a lot of fun and at the same time help out the baseball team.

Ten Pins—With bowling of interest to many of Carnegie's men every Friday night here are a couple of records to shoot at. In the American Bowling Congress now going on in Chicago, Joe Calabrese of South Hackensack, N. J. is the leading singles roller posting 711. Joe's three games of 261,246 and 204 are a good enough goal for anyone to try for. Harry McCall is the only one to break 200 so far in the ASBToFN (Alpha Sigma Invitation Bowling Tournament on Friday Night). Dave Helwig fell short fo Harry's 206 with a good 199 game.

Congratulations also to the YMCA volleyball team for winning the tournament championship. The big men of the Y did not lose a game all season long until the final of the tournament against the Question Marks. The Y went on to take two out of the three games to complete a very successful season.

New Rules to aid Maryville—After a short and controversial life, two-platoon football was abolished when the NCAA rules committee cut out the free substitution rule which enabled a coach to switch entire teams everytime the ball changes hands. Under the new college football rules the game is being taken away from the specialist and returned to the versatile two-way player who can play both offensive and defense. This change will aid Maryville and other small Colleges who do not have the man-power to cope with larger schools. Maryville does alright the first half until they are worn out by superior manpower and not better players. With the start of spring football Coach John Davis will have a chance to see how the new rules will aid Maryville.

Spring Here As Footballers, Diamonders, Rain Start Drills

By Bill Breen

Baseball isn't the only activity starting this week. Football like anything else has to have its "refresher course." A small group has been working all week on fundamentals in order to ready themselves for four weeks of drills. There should be a larger group out by the time Honaker makes his drastic cut in baseball. Spring training always ends with a game played between the orange and garnet. This usually is an even match.

Those from last season's squad who are out are Jerry King, Frank Garren, Bob Berrong, Ted Godfrey, Roy Hayes, Harrill Akers, Bill Breen, Jack Renfro, Buddy Gilbert, Ken Shepard, Tom Paton, Bob Langford, Wayne Newman, and Leroy Gooden.

Several newcomers are showing promise in the early drills. They are Ted Wilson, John Anderson, Leo Neff, Rod Patton, Bob Jackson, Buddy White, Tom Dockery, and others whose names aren't available at this time.

Rough work will probably begin next week. This means some good scrimmages leading up to the final game. Any boy interested in football should see Coach Davis.

Baseball Drills Start

A large group of prospects turned out last week as Coach Honaker started drills for the coming baseball season. It is said that baseball is Honaker's greatest love and past records prove it. Though not announced yet, the schedule will be pretty rough. The University of Tennessee among others will make things competitive all the way.

Returning lettermen from last year's squad include Lynn Sexton, Phil Young, Bob "The Nose" Shelton, Don Alford, Bill Van Benthuysan, Jim Campbell and Sonny "Cousin Weak Eyes" Short. Short was the leading pitcher last season. Alford lost two teeth last week while trying to eat a ball, but is still in good form.

Other likely prospects are Charlie Partee, Chuck Dunn, Jack Keny, "Chico" Cardoza, Earl Lawson, Bob Ramger, Jack Saunders, Flash Harris, Larry Hill, Clifford Irwin, Don Moore, Bill Wheatley, Chick Mathews, Clarence Shepard, Bill Anderson, Jack Crouch, Tom Allen, Ernest Raulerson, O. L. Davis and Harry Robinson. Robinson pitched some good ball last season.

No definite men have been placed yet as Honaker is still looking them over. Wes Kinser, the big gun of last season, will be missed along with Tom Jones, Jim Kren, Gene Parks and others.

With the material on hand it looks like a good season. We'll soon find out during those coming sunny afternoons.

Cagers End Poor Season-Drop Two

Tusculum, CN, TWC Apply Skids To Scots

On February 19 the Highland cagers journeyed to Greeneville to play the Tusculum College Pioneers. The Pioneers led all the way and won the game 94-74. Don Green of the Pioneers took scoring honors with 21 points. Jack Keny with 16 points and Dick Abbott with 15 points led in scoring for the Scots. During the first quarter Pioneer Bob Bedford scored eleven points to lead the Pioneers to a 27-19 lead at the end of the period.

Abbott and Blair scored 16 of the Scottie points during that period. The Pioneers widened their lead durnig the second quarter and were ahead 49-36 at half time. In the third quarter the Pioneers continued extending their lead and led 76 to 53 at the end of the third quarter. Scot Bob Shelton did some fine sharpshooting and scored 10 points in the third period.

On their own court the Carson-Newman Eagles defeated the Highlanders 78 to 69 on February 20. The Highlanders won the first contest with the Eagles 78 to 70. Jack Keny of the Scots and Hawkins of the Eagles scored 17 points each to take scoring honors for the contest.

The Eagles led 23 to 19 at the end of the first quarter. During the second quarter the Eagles scored one point more than the Scotties and were able to increase their lead to five points at half time when the score was 38 to 33. Both teams scored with greater accuracy during the third period but the Eagles continued to widen the gap between the teams and led 60-51 at the end of the period.

SORRY END

In their last game of the season the Scotties were defeated by Tennessee Wesleyan College Bulldogs 101 to 88 on February 24 on the Wesleyan court.

Scot Dick Abbott led the scorers with 32 points. Burris of the Bulldogs scored 29 points. Teammate Butrick scored 20 points. Jack Keny scored 15 points for the Scotties.

The Scotties were ahead at the end of the first quarter, 28-24. The Bulldogs began to growl during the second quarter and gradually took the lead and were in command 52-48 at half time. Dick Abbott scored 20 points in the first half. In the third quarter the Scotties outscored the Bulldogs and succeeded in knotting the score at 71 all at the end of the third quarter. In the final quarter the Bulldogs really got hot and scored 30 points for the Scots' 17.

Abbott Is Scots Point Leader

By Rolfe Duggar

The Scots finished their worst season since the '41-'42 campaign ending up this one with a 7-15 record. Not since 1941, when the Scots piled up a 3-9 record, have they done so poorly percentage wise. Fifteen is the largest number of defeats ever suffered by a team from the Hill.

An amazing off-shoot of the season is the fact that the Highlanders this year scored more points during the season than any other Scottie quintet in history, 1951 points. This is four points more than last season's team which won twelve against ten defeats. Who says the emphasis on offense isn't becoming more and more supreme in basketball?

High Scorer

Dick "Rabbit" Abbott led this year's Scot regulars in average, hitting the hoops for a 16.86 mark per game. Smiling Jack Keny, easy six foot four hook-shooting center, followed with a 14.45 mark. Smooth ball-handling Ace McWilliams finished third with 9.29 points per game. This skips Dick "Deac" Gardiner, who played in only five games and held a 12.4 average before receiving the boot by the administration. Bobby Shelton ended the year with a 7.9 mark.

Slug Blair hit for 6.5 per game and Jimmy Campbell, the only senior on the squad, had a 4.6 average. We are sorry that we can't figure any of the other's point average, because on some games no record was kept of which substitutes got in.

Intramurals....

By Hersh Mosier

WRESTLING

The match of the day was between Herb Catlin and Gene Russell in the 167 lb. class. Catlin, who had decisioned Tom Fairhurst in a close one, 7-6, defeated Russell in the second overtime period by the narrowest of margins. Catlin had 8 seconds more riding time than did Russell.

Except for the 130 lb. class in which Bob Mize won by default, there was keen competition in the other weight classes and Ref "Eagle Eye" Demer was kept on his toes. In the 123 lb. class Charles "Choy" Hora defeated Dick Cave 5-2 and James Sanborn decisioned Clarence Norton 6-2. In the class finals Sanborn decisioned Horn. In the 137 class there were only two competitors. John Graves defeated Bill Howell 8-6. In the 147 lb. class Paul Payne topped Pres Bogia. In the 157 lb class Rod Patton easily defeated Bogia 5-0 and Paul Mair won a close one over Harry McCall 2-0. Patton defeated Mair 7-5 in the class final. The 167 lb. class has been dealt with above. In the heavy class big Herb Kauhel defeated Hugh "Daisy" Walker 7-4.

VOLLEY BALL

The first seeded YMCA won the tin cup for winning the intramural volleyball tournament. They defeated the fourth seeded Question Marks by winning two out of three matches by scores of 17-15, 4-15, and 15-10.

In the semifinal round the Y defeated the third seeded Sophomore Spikers and the Question Marks defeated the second seeded Doobers.

The members of the winning team are "Monk" Johnson, Hank Van Hassel, Dave Gates, Tim Bowman, Bill Addy, Bob Coles, Phil Young, Dean Allison, Hall Black, and Conrad Eaddy. The members of the second place Question Marks are "Buster" Haylock, Dick Patton, Bill Van Benthysen, Jack Keny, Jerry King, Harold Glad, Bill Breen, and Homer Garren.

This week we find that we have another sport out of the way in good ole women's varsity—swimming. Allowance for the only day of practice was made, so those of us who had no idea how to propel ourselves through the cool green H2O didn't have much of a chance against all the million dollar mermaids participating. Such things as back-stroke, crawl, breast-stroke, side stroke, and various dives were equired—and some girls passed! The Chillies missed a good luagh, though, when they left before the Howies got around to their jack knives. Such things as leg-slapping and twisters were the order of the afternoon, although Barbara Roges performed hers twice for the geen-eyed onlookers. It looks so simple.

Softball season has started again, as we find spring seeping through the layers of cool winter air, and Binny Sanderson, as major assistant, demonstrates her throwing and batting ability. Our guess has it that more than the two windows broken heretofore by Nancy Jones

Auburn Waltzes Away With Titles

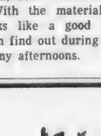
By Bob Coles

The Maryville Scotties returned from the Southeastern Conference Tournament last Saturday after nailing down a tie for fourth place in the intercollegiate wrestling event at Nashville. The Maryville team failed to take any first places in the event, but Bill Morse, Tom Bugenhagen, and George Kipp came in second in their respective weight divisions. Maryville had two pins in the match, both by George Kipp, who finally lost in the finals of the 191 pound division to Chattanooga's Tom Drake by a wild and wooly 14-6 decision.

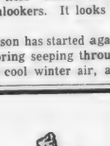
Auburn took first place in the match, which was no real surprise to anybody, but the showing of lightly estimated Middle Tennessee State was a real surprise as they took second place with 28 points behind Auburn, followed by Chattanooga with 19, and then Maryville and Vanderbilt with 18 points apiece. Emory brought up the rear with 8.

Quarterfinals

Maryville drew a bye in the opening round of the 115 pound class, as the only action saw Bill Porterfield of Middle Tennessee pin Jack McLaughlin of Emory. In the 130 pound class, Maryville was early eliminated when Buford Miller lost a 4-3 referees decision to Dick Gross of Vanderbilt. The Maryville drought continued in the 137 pound class where Ken Shepard lost a first round decision to the final champion, "Jeep" Long of Middle Tennessee.



In the 147 pound class, Maryville finally got going when Jim Harris won a 6-0 decision over Lem Vaughn of Middle Tenn. Then a bye for both Tom Bugenhagen and Paul Merwin, and no entry in the 177 division brought Maryville's quarterfinal showing to George Kipp who pinned Don Sabin of Emory.



Semifinals

In the next round there was more action. There was no action at all in the 123 pound class in the quarterfinals since there were not enough entries. Bob Vandergriff had a bye starting out, but lost 4-0 to Paul Smotherman of Vanderbilt, the man who finally won, to eliminate Maryville from that division. Bill Morse drew a bye in his class, but Bob Davis of Auburn beat Oscar Scruggs of Chattanooga 8-2 to enter the finals. Maryville was already out of the 130 pound group and the 137 division, and soon dropped out of the 147 class when Jerry Bains of Auburn beat Jim Harris, 8-0.

Then Tom Bugenhagen finally won for Maryville when he beat Bill Gibson of Vanderbilt 5-1, but Paul Merwin lost to Glen Saunders of Auburn, 6-0. George Kipp kept his team's hopes alive when he

Consolation

In the consolation matches to decide third and fourth places, Bob Vandergriff dropped a decision to Buford Cotton of Auburn. Ken Shepard lost to Harrington Witherspoon of Vanderbilt. Jim Harris lost a 5-3 match with Bill Hodges of Chattanooga, and Paul Merwin lost a referees decision to Jack Matowsky, also of Chattanooga.

Poetically Speaking

RICHARD CORY

Whenever Richard Cory went down town,
We people on the pavement looked at him;
He was a gentleman from sole to crown,
Clean favored, and imperially slim.

And he was always quietly arrayed,
And he was always human when he talked;
But still he fluttered pulses when he said,
"Good morning," and he glittered when he walked.

And he was rich—yes, richer than a king—
And admirably schooled in every grace:
In fine, we thought that he was every thing
To make us wish that we were in his place.

So on we worked, and waited for the light,
And went without the meat, and cursed the bread:
And Richard Cory, one calm summer night,
Went home and put a bullet through his head.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT!

When Bainonian and Theta meet on the basketball court, things are bound to happen! And so they will tonight when the school turns out to the Intramural Gym at 6:15 to root for those fearless, fast-moving, fair-playing gals who are there to give their best for the honor of their societies.

Organizing and coaching the teams are two physical education majors— Binny Sanderson for Theta and Emma Curtis for Bainonian. Such names as Mary Alice Kemp, Mary Ann Thompson, "Bevo" Laing, and Trig Moyer will appear on Bainonian's team roster. Theta boasts the sportability of Hazel Robinson, Liz Murphy, Betty Harrill, and Nancy Ferguson, hoping to keeep the score of the Bainonian red-devils down to a mere 80 points (I'm Bainonian, myself!)

We're hoping everyone can get out to the big basketball clash of the year—Bainonian and Theta Epsilon. Let's all pull for our own or sister society, as the case may be, and the evening can't be anything but a success. See you there!

YW to Honor Seniors

YWCA will present a Senior Recognition Day program, Sunday, March 15, at their meeting in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 1:30 p.m.

The organization will honor all of its senior members at this time.

Athenians Plan Banquet

Athenian will discuss plans for the proposed Athenian banquet and the coming ABC show at its meeting tonight at 6:15 in Bartlett.

The business session is the only thing planned so that members will have time to get to the Saturday night performance of the play.

Spring Has Sprung!

Society Selects Honor Students

By Joan Frei

Fourteen seniors have been elected to Alpha Gamma Sigma, Maryville College's Scholarship Honor Society, it has been announced by Edwin R. Hunter, secretary of the society.

Recognition Ceremonies

Recognition ceremonies honoring the new members of Alpha Gamma Sigma will be held in chapel May 7. Speaker for the occasion will be Verton M. Queener, professor of history and chairman of the division of social sciences.

Only a limited number, not more than ten percent of the senior class, may be elected to the society. To be eligible, students must have a 6.5 average, possess a high character, and offer an active contribution to the college campus.

Society Officers

Alpha Gamma Sigma officers this year are the following: president, Viola M. Lightfoot, assistant to the Dean of Students; vice-president, Louise M. Lloyd, instructor in music; secretary, Edwin R. Hunter, Dean of Curriculum, chairman of the division of language and literature, and professor of English.

Anderson, Blackburn

Jean Anderson, a biology major from Staten Island, N. Y., is a member of German club, Bainonian, and Student Council.

Ruth Blackburn, biology major from Knoxville, is an active member of YW. She is on the devotions committee and has served on the "M Book" staff.

Brown, Clark

Sally Brown, history major from Laurel, Md., is the president of the student body this year. Her junior and senior years she has been on the student council and the student-faculty senate. A member of the Echo editorial staff for two years, Miss Brown was the editor of the 1952 Chilhowean. She belongs to Writers' Workshop and Bainonian, and was a Nu Gamma leader her sophomore year.

An art major from Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Florence Clark was art editor of the 1952 Chilhowean. A member of Maryville College Playhouse, she is in the band and belongs to Bainonian.

Coles, de Nagy

Bob Coles, English major from Scranton, Pa., is sports co-editor of the Echo. A member of Writers' Workshop, he is chairman of the governing board this semester. He is an Athenian.

Doris Holt de Nagy, music major from Philadelphia, Pa., graduated at Christmas. She was a member of Bainonian and of Tau Kappa Chi, music society.

Holland, Kaebnick

English major from Baltimore, Md., Van Holland is Editor of the Echo. He is president of International Relations Club and a member of Writers' Workshop. He is on student council and inter-club council.

Joyce Kaebnick, sociology major from Erie, Pa., is a member of Christian Education Club and Bainonian.

Leech, Rutherford

Karole Kapp Leech, English major from Verona, Pa., is a member of Writers' Workshop and was on the governing board last year. She belonged to the Spanish Club. Last year she was copy editor of the 1952 Chilhowean.

Ken Rutherford, history major from Horsham, Pa., is an active member of pre-ministerials. He belongs to Playhouse and the YMCA.

Singleton, Spencer

Trudy Singleton, elementary education major from Senecaville, Ohio, has been on the Student Vols cabinet. She has served as worship and program chairman for YW, of which she is now the treasurer. She is treasurer of the senior class, and a member of Bainonian and Spanish club.

Jay Spencer is a sociology major from Chattanooga. She is a helper of varsity and the 'M' club. As a sophomore she was a Nu Gamma Leader. She belongs to IRC and is an active Bainonian, having served as treasurer and program chairman.

Stiles, White

Betty Stiles is a Bible and religion major from Clearkater, Fla.,

Societies To Vie For Skit Trophy

Show To Start Tonight At 8 P.M.

By Don Layton

Athenian, Bainonian, Alpha Sigma, and Theta Epsilon will present the annual skit night program tonight at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. Jim Hunt, vice president of the student body, will be master of ceremonies, it was announced.

Prehistoric Men

Athenian's presentation is entitled "Prehistoric Man." The plot centers around three Maryville students who find themselves in the College woods during prehistoric times. The play was written and will be directed by Bruce Heuser; Bill Stein is in charge of choreography. Stars include Jim Demer, Bob Johnston, Buster Haylock, and Bob Vandergriff.

Bainonian's production is called "Desdemona and the Dashing Dicks." Athenian's sister society will take its audience back to the 1920's and the days of the flappers. This odd-sounding playlet will feature Alice Draving, Geraldine Moore, Emma Curtis, Marilyn Johnston, and others.

Alpha Sig Presents Carmen

Alpha Sigma's program is a take off on the opera, "Carmen," Ronald Jennings and Ed Breitbach wrote the script. Filling the leading roles will be Bob Ramger, Harry McCall, Ken Wilkinson, and Ronald Jennings.

The title of Theta Epsilon's presentation is "It's a Fishy World." Naomi Burgos wrote the skit. Stars in this production include Carol Moore, Maree Richards, Doris Glad, Hazel Robinson, Martha Jackson, Ethelyn Cathey, Willie Sutton, and many others.

Trophy Awarded

The order of the shows will be determined today. Four judges will select the best production, and a trophy will be awarded to the winning society.

The production tonight will mark the seventh annual show. Last year Theta won the trophy for the third time. One spokesman commented that a three-time winner may keep the trophy. Otherwise it is retained only during the duration of the year. If another society wins, then it is relinquished.

Athenian has captured first place twice and Bainonian once. Alpha Sigma is the only society that has not won the award.

Music Ed. Club To Meet

The Music Education Club will meet Thursday night at 6:45 in the Fine Arts Center lounge.

Randal Lequire will have the program.

Student Treasurers

Dr. L. L. Willimans has announced that mid-semester financial statements by the treasurers of all student organizations were due last week, March 15.

They may be handed in to the faculty advisors or to Dr. Williams in Fayerweather Hall.

Vesper Choir Plans Palm Sunday Sing

On March 29, Palm Sunday, the Vesper choir will travel to Oak Ridge and Knoxville to begin its concert series for 1953.

The choir will present a vesper service in the First Presbyterian Church of Oak Ridge at four in the afternoon and will have dinner at the church before returning to Graystone Presbyterian Church in Knoxville to give its first full concert program of the year.

Holy Week

The choir will present a hymn-anthem in chapel each day of Holy Week and special anthems on Good Friday, including the Seven Last Words of Christ.

Preparations are being made for the annual Easter Sunrise service to be held in the college woods.

IRC To Offer Eventful Speeches April 2 Meeting

Records of important world events from 1932 to 1945, featuring speeches of Winston Churchill, Adolph Hitler, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Harry S. Truman, will be heard at the next IRC meeting Thursday, April 2, at 7 p.m. in Thaw 214.

Because of circumstances beyond Charlie LaRue's control, the records were not available for the Thursday, March 19, meeting as originally scheduled.

At its last program meeting on Wednesday, February 26, International Relations Club sponsored Mrs. Wadia Khour-Makdissis, of Beruit, Lebanon, talk concerning the Palestine question.

Previous to this meeting, the club held a banquet in the Y rooms, which was attended by 12 members and Arda S. Walker, assistant professor of history, and C. B. Fisher, adviser.

Faculty, Council To Hold Joint Meeting April 2

The Executive Council of the Faculty, upon recommendation of Student-Faculty Senate, voted at its meeting Wednesday night, invite the Student Council to a joint meeting on Thursday, April 2, at 3:30 p.m.

This action came after the Student Council approved the idea at its meting Wednesday night. Presi-President Lloyd appointed a committee of three from the Executive Council to plan the agenda of the meeting with a similar Student Council committee.

Other Council Actions

In other actions Wednesday evening, Council authorized a student body meeting this coming Thursday morning after chapel for the purpose of nominating candidates for May Queen. Class meetings are to follow the student body meeting.

On three town night violations, Council reduced penalties on two and allowed two penalties in the third case to run concurrently. The group spent most of its session discussing the three violations.

Jim Hunt reported on YM and YW elections, and Harry McCall reported on the blood drive. Trudy Furman asked for suggestions and ideas for the exchange chapel programs.

Chemical Society Meets At College

The East Tennessee section of the American Chemical Society met Wednesday evening, March 18 on the MC campus.

Chairman of the meeting was Dr. Hilton A. Smith of the University of Tennessee.

Banquet

The evening began with a banquet in Pearsons Hall at 7 p.m., followed by a business meeting in the Fine Arts Center's Music Hall.

The speaker was Dr. Fred W. Jensen, chemistry department head at Texas A. & M., who lectured on "High Frequency Methods in Chemical Analysis."

YW Sets Panel Discussion On Career vs. Marriage

The regular meeting of the YWCA will be held at 1:30 Sunday afternoon in the Fine Arts Center.

The program will consist of a panel discussion on career vs. home-making. Individual views on this subject will be presented by Mrs. Frank Clark, Mrs. Andrew Alexander, Mrs. Arthur Bushing, and Mrs. Thelma Kramer.

Pre-Mins To Hold Banquet March 31

Pre-Ministerial Association will hold its annual banquet Tuesday evening, March 31, in the Pine Room of the Fort Craig Hotel.

All pre-ministerial students, whether members of the association or not, are invited to come to the banquet.

A sign-up sheet has been posted on Carnegie bulletin board for all men interested in going.

Miss Rodemann To Show Slides To German Club

Fraulein Rodemann is to show slides of her trip to Europe at the meeting of the German Club Monday, March 23, at 6:45 p.m. in Herr Reber's classroom.

German Club president, Herb Catlin, urges and welcomes all affiliate members to attend.

Athenians Prepare ABC

Athenian will not meet this week, due to Skit night.

Next Saturday's meeting will consist of the presentation of girls for the ABC Show.

Demler, Black Win YW, YM Elections

Kaebnick And Carpenter To Give Recital Tuesday

There will be a senior non-majors recital, featuring Joyce Kaebnick, organist, and George Carpenter, pianist, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 4:30 on Tuesday afternoon, March 31.

Miss Kaebnick will play "Praeludium," (in E Flat Major), "Kyrie, O God, the Eternal Father," "Our Father, Who Art in Heaven," and "Fuga" (in E Flat Major) from the "Clavierubung" by J. S. Bach. Other organ selections by Miss Kaebnick will be "Adagio," by Flor Peeters, and "Scherzetta," and "Carillon de Westminster," by Louis Vierne.

Piano Duet

A piano duet by Barbara Schwoebel and George Carpenter, will feature two Rachmaninoff numbers, "Floods of Spring" and "It's Lovely, Here."

George will offer a variety of piano renditions in "Fugue," in D Major, by Bach, "Sonata Opus 31 No. 3" from the "Allegro Vivace" by Beethoven, and Brahms' "Rapsody," Opus 79, No. 2.

AAUW To Hold Meeting For Seniors Monday

Senior women are to be the guests of the Maryville branch of the American Association of University Women, March 23 at 7:30 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Mrs. A. B. Waggoner, Jr. will speak on the subject of "Positions Open to Women in the Community." Following the meeting there is to be a reception for the senior women.

Miss Arda Walker will be in charge of the program with Mrs. Howard Schwam in charge of the reception.

Van Hassel, Frei To Read

Reading for Writers' Workshop on March 23 will be Hank Van Hassel and Joan Frei. Jack Durant and Karole Leech will criticize.

On March 16 Bob Coles and Dorothy Wells read; they were criticized by Edward Scott and Lora Kinsinger.

Pres. Rankin To Speak At Vespers Sunday

President Raymond C. Rankin, of Tusculum College, Greeneville, will be the speaker at Vespers Sunday night, March 22.

Dr. Rankin has been president of Tusculum since 1951, before that he was pastor of Lindsay Memorial Presbyterian Church, in Memphis.

College To Present Holy Week Services

During Holy Week, the Chapel services will be led each morning by a different faculty member using the appropriate Scriptural passages. Special music will be provided by the Vesper Choir under the direction of Harry H. Harter.

Good Friday

The Good Friday service will be led by three faculty members and will be presided over by President Lloyd. The Vesper Choir will sing "Tenebrae Factae Sunt," "Go to Dark Gethsemene," and "The Seven Last Words."

The Holy Week services will be climaxed by the Easter Sunrise Service to be held at 6:17 a.m. in the amphitheater of the College Woods.

Wolpert Of Brooklyn, N.Y., Wins Essay Contest

Stanley A. Wolpert of Brooklyn, N.Y., a student at the College of the City of New York, is first prize winner of the National Council of Jewish Women's nation wide essay contest for college seniors on "The Meaning of Academic Freedom." Mr. Wolpert was presented a $2,500 cash award today by Thurman W. Arnold, former Associate Justice of the U. S. Court of Appeals and a contest judge, as the names of contest winners were announced at the organization's 20th triennial convention in Cleveland.

Richard N. Clewell of Allentown, Pa., pre-theological student at Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster, Pa., won second prize, and was presented a $1,000 award by Judge Arnold.

The winning essays were chosen by a Board of Judges headed by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and including, in addition to Judge Arnold, Ralph Bunche, winner of the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize, Mrs. Douglas Horton, former president of Wellesley College, and Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis University.

Students Choose New Officers

By Wayne Brooks

Carol Demler and Harold Black were named presidents of YW and YM respectively in the campus elections held Thursday. Miss Demler, a junior education major from Pittsburgh, Pa., will replace Ruth Burgos, while Black, junior sociology major from Ridgway, Pa., will take the office vacated by retiring President Bob Johnston.

Other Officers

These officers will form the Y Cabinet for next semester and will be installed at their annual retreat this spring:

Vice-president Mildred Mowery is a junior from Lancaster, Pa. She is a member of the Glee Club and the National Honor Society and served on the 1953 Chilhowean Staff.

Hank Van Hassel, a junior from Paterson, N.J., will assume the vice-presidential responsibilities at YM.

Secretary, Treasurer

The new secretary for YW will be Pat Jones, sophomore Bible major from Elizabethton, Tenn., while YM's scribe will be Jim Fisher, a sophomore philosophy major from Bellefonte, Pa.

Treasurers of the respective organizations will be Barbara Chubb, sophomore from Athens, Pa., and A. C. McWilliams from Northbrook, Ill.

Nu Gamma leader is Jean Morgan, music major from Mathiston, Miss., while the new representative to the Advisory Board is Sonny Shackleford, a freshman from Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Ah Spring! Lovely Maiden Of Nature, We Welcome You To Maryville Campus

By Carol Moore

Yummy! Spring has come! What joy! What bliss! What rapture will surround me as I stumble through the packs of yelping dogs on my way to chapel; as I simmer over my two ton flat iron as it masterfully presses each little wrinkle from my cotton dresses; as I gallop from classes to library to grill to dorm to Pearsons with the agility of a sprite, then collapse on the dining hall steps from heat exhaustion and over-exertion.

Flowered Maiden

Ah, spring! Thou flower wreathed maiden with breath of perfume! Why don't you keep your pollen to yourself? I get so much ob dis warm weather aversion to your seasonal dandruff. And about that perfume. Down here in the land of honey-suckle and magnolia the breeze is a bore after so many weeks of the same stench. Ever tried Tabu, dearie?

Lovely Virgin

Oh, thou lovely virgin who blowest thine warm breezes to and fro! What's your secret of keeping comfortable? Have you ever slept on an iron cot in an already stifling room and heard the radiator coughing and gurgling up more heat to waft your way? Or looked toward the walls of the Fine Arts Center and found the waves of heat distorting them until they actually appeared straight? Where did you go through training, baby, Dante's Inferno?

Ethereal Maiden

Hail thou ethereal maiden, thou bug infested jerk! What insect repellent do you use? I've tried everything from Flit to Pearsons' coffee and found my surroundings are still attractive to ants, bees, roaches, flies, bugs, beetles and other members of Baldwin's menagerie. Perhaps if you'd bathe in Lysol before you tripped the light fantastic from the mountain tops, you'd be met with less biting, itching, scratching remarks.

Ah, Spring!

Ah, spring! We greet thee with

On Coming Elections

Within the next few weeks we will be faced with the anaual election of class and student body officers. As each new campus problem arises, we realize more than ever the importance of choosing officers who hold to our own ideals.

Too often we do not consider all the necessary leadership qualities. One of the first essentials for any office is not only the ability, but the willingness to serve hard, long hours for the good of the college. Although important, the number of past offices the candidate has held is not the only indication of this desire to serve. Many students successfully exhibit this trait in the extensive work they do on small committees and less recognized jobs.

If is easy for us to "get into a rut" at campaign time and to re-elect time after time members of the same clique. Admittedly they may be good leaders, but this leadership quality is not limited to one group of people in a student body like MC's. Avoiding clique politics is not important merely as a means of dividing the honors, but as a way of gaining new ideas and interests and of making student government truly representative.

Election time is an occasion when each of us can expess his own view with his own vote. It may seem trite to repeat the time-worn slogan, "Let's everybody come out and vote," or nominate, as the case may be, but the slogan still holds true.

An understanding of student government and the capacity to criticize it require active participation in elections. Student Council is making progress; it is vital that every student take wise and unbiased advantage of this opportunity to keep our college.

—L.K.

Intellectual Bellhops

Someone said that the students of today are intellectual bellhops—that we are just carrying the world's knowledge around, rather awkwardly at that—and handing it back in pure, unworn form on examinations.

Such careless and indifferent handling of the toil, the tears, and the love of someone else's creation is pure vandalism. Furthermore, to be unmoved by the heritage that is ours shows gross egotism and shallowness of feeling.

Real learning is not a casual and superficial mastery of details but a process of entering in and living with the author his original creation, absorbing it into one's very tissue until it becomes one's very own. —The Wallpaper

By Betty Ham

Cheer-up

Here we are in the heart of the Smokies in the first lovely days of spring. One gets that old urge to hop in the old jalop and cruise around amongst them. . . but, no. . . no, check that impulse and take out your binoculars. They're prettier from a distance, anyhow. . . . .I keep telling myself.

Pass Around the Bottle

In the line of new teaching methods: Dr. McClelland has discovered an effective means of keeping his early morning A period physics class awake. If he can't keep them awake by freezing them with the windows wide open, he breaks out the bottle. . .the ammonia bottle, that is, and wafts the fumes around for awhile. Everyone stays awake but those who suffocate.

Mr. Mac.

One time Mr. Mac was attending a meeting for the men in Bartlett Hall when he raised his hand to speak. The chairman announced: "The chair recognizes Mr. McCurry."

His reply: "I recognize the chair, too, and I want to see it back in Carnegie as soon as the meeting's over."

Joke

Someone came to me on hearing that I was blessed with Scots and Soda this week and said he had a joke: Dick Dart came into Mr. Mac's office the other night. Mr. Mac looked up and said, "Hello, Mr. Dart. Where's your gun?"

(Didn't get the significance, but maybe Carnegie occupants will understand.)

New Washing Machine

Memorial has finally gotten a new washing machine and now has two. The poor things couldn't just be known as washing machines, so they had to be named. . . Frankie and Johnny . . . oh, well . . .

Then there was the time Ducky Coker went to all the trouble of using a dime, soap, and elbow grease and time, to discover she had forgotten to put the clothes in. . .

Sandy Motsinger was fairly washed out of the basement when she decided to stick a few more things in after the washer had been running a few minutes.

Poetically Speaking

Talk about poetic genius, here's one for the benefit of the English Department:

Baby Special Studies

The first batch of freshman term papers have been turned in. In a conversation concerning same, wise, old, experienced John Glanville came forth with, "It's kinda' like beating your head against a brick wall. . . . you feel so good when you're through."

Off The Cob

One (?) Woman's Verdict

"Yes, we are dumb and beautiful—beautiful so men will love us and dumb so we will love men."

What?

Grippo: "Did you ever take chloroform?"

Buddy: "No, who teaches it?"

Physical Science

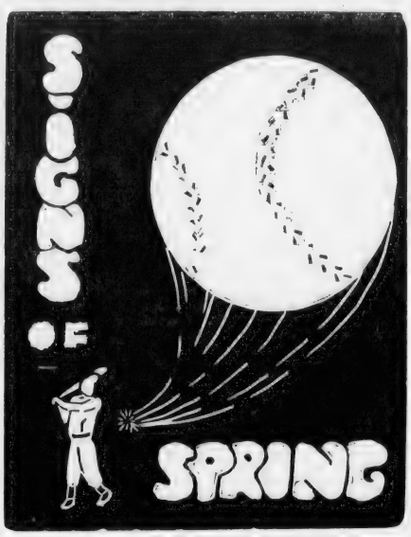
Dr. McClelland: "Come, come. Give me some answer."

Judy Krieger: "I can't say it but it's on the tip of my tongue."

Dr. McClelland: "Don't swallow it. . .it's arsenic."

Again

"They laughed when she came in in shorts, but when she sat down, they split."



Absent Minded Professor

An absent minded professor had checked out of a hotel and had gotten halfway down the street when he realized that he had left his umbrella in his hotel room. He went back to get it and meanwhile a newly married couple had moved into the room. As he stood outside the door, he overheard the following ebbing conversation:

He: "And whose itsy-bitsy nose is this?"
She: "It's oors, all oors, hon-n-ny."
He: "And whose itsy-bitsy mouf is this?"
She: "It's oors, all oors."
He: "And whose itsy-bitsy ear is this?"
She: "It's oors, all oors."

The old man could stand it no longer, and yelled through the keyhole, "Well, when you come to an umbrella, it's mine!"

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Mary Moranville

MOVIES

The picture at the Capitol for this week's town nighters has the intriguing name of "The Quiet Man." Showing Monday through Wednesday, it stars John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara.

Thursday and Friday Joel McCrea and Yvonne DeCarlo will be featured in "The San Francisco Story."

A Wild Night

On the other hand, if you aren't feeling in a quiet mood Tuesday night the Park will give you a lift into the "Wild Blue Yonder." Vera Roston and Wendell Cory are starred in this one.

The rest of the week is for any of our western students who are homesick. Monday will be "The Cattle Drive" with Joel McCrea and Dean Stockwell, and Thursday and Friday "Oklahoma Annie" with Judy Canova. Saturday will be two more rip-roarin' gun-shootin' westerns, "Blond Dice" and "Caravan Trail."

BOOKS

Have you ever wondered how you could see the worst in the best, possess humility and be self assured, judge and forgive? In that case you should read "The Lion and the Lamb" by Gerald Kennedy.

The subtitle of this book is "Paradoxes of the Christian Faith." Mr. Kennedy, a bishop in the Methodist Church, analyzes the seeming contradictions of our faith, such as sin and grace, humility and assurance, tension and peace, and brings them into the life of a Christian of today.

Are You Hungry?

Are you tired of Miss Ware's cooking? Has your mouth forgotten how to water? Then you must read "Some Favorite Southern Recipes of the Duchess of Windsor."

She tells of all the wonderful soups and the ways to fix fish and meat. There are some cheese dishes that sound good, and many salads and vegetables for the dieting girls.

Want to Gain?

For those who have given up worrying about getting into last year's bathing suit and for the boys who want to put some weight on those muscles, there are delicious, delectable hot breads, cakes, and desserts of all kinds. I don't know about you, but I'm getting hungry!

Y' RADIO

The Bible story, "Diana of Ephesus," will be given on Y Radio next Wednesday night. The cast for this play is not yet known.

Socially Speaking

By Faith Nollner

Spring has sprung and here we are again to tell you what's going around campus (besides Circle Drive).

Baldwin Beach is again open for business. All the lovelies have been braving the rather chilly spring weather in hopes of acquiring that well-done look ahead of schedule.

What with all the freshman research papers that are kicking around, it's rather surprising that so many frosh are taking off this week-end. Maybe they're brains, huh?

Elizabeth Enloe and Sandra Miller are spending the week-end in Atlanta, Ga., with Elizabeth's parents.

Also headed Atlanta way are Cornelia Force and Nancy Lou Dodge.

Mary Moranville is spending the week-end in Huntsville, Ala., and Alice Rowe is spending the week-end with her parents in McMinnville.

Kathy Garrison, Sandy Motsinger, Lynn McMillan, Margaret Blackburn, Anne Shimomura, and Nancy Rideout are spending the week-end with Betty Messer at her home in White Pine. What's she running---a hotel?

Headed toward the mountains—Gatlinburg, to be exact—are about half the college, it seems. Bruce Miller and Izzy Leitch; Helen Seay and Doug Stubblefield; Betty Hammers and Jim Wiley; Janet Kahler and Hubert Buehler; Gary Baker and Evelyn Boughton; Hal Black and Carol Demler; with Mr. and Mrs. Schwam as chaperones.

Jake Peppers has been spending a few days on campus, renewing old acquaintances and making some new ones, too, it seems.

Hap Brahms, an old grad, who is now in Princeton Seminary, has been down visiting LaDonna Baylor, his fiancee.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Combs will be here on Saturday visiting their daughter, Anna Sue. They are from Lewisburg, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nollner, from Carthage, will spend a few days with their daughter, Faith.

Last week-end Bev and Jo Brooks entertained their mothers who were down for the Freshman Talent Show.

Here at the same time were Billie Marie Lester's parents from Chattanooga.

Liz Randles, ex-'54, of Pressmen's Home visited Emily Smith last Friday and Saturday.

Glenn and Muriel Smith, members of the class of '50, and their sons, Kenneth and Terry, visited his sister, Emily, last Saturday. They are moving this coming month to Alton, Ill., where he has accepted a position.

YM To Feature 'One God'

YM will meet tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 p.m. in Music Hall, the Fine Arts Center.

SPORTS BRIEFS

The highlight of recent developments in the sports world is the controversy regarding the transfer of two major league teams, the St. Louis Browns of the American League, and the Boston Baves of the National League. The American League voted 5-2 against transfering the Browns to Baltimore. Two reasons have been given for this act. Bill Veeck, owner of the Browns, has no established connections in Baltimore and would have to start almost from scratch with less than a mnth before the season opens. Also Veeck owes a considerable amount of money to the American League which was given to him in order to keep the St. Louis franchise operating a few years ago. Shortly after the decision was made, Veeck said he was considering selling the Browns. The decision of the National League regarding the transfer of the Braves from Boston to Milwaukee was the opposite of the decision of the American League. The National League voted unanimously to permit the transfer because Braves' manager Louis Perini showed that the change could be made without too much difficulty. The Milwaukee Brewers, a Brave farm club in the American Association, will move to Toledo, Ohio. The American League accepted the Braves' offer of 50,000 for invasion of its territory and voted in favor of the move. The primary reason for the Braves' transfer is the steady drop of attendance at home. In 1948, when the Braves won the National League pennant 1,455,439 person saw their home games. Last season only 281,000 saw them play at home. Scripts-Howard sports writer, Joe Williams predicted that the next two-club city to disappear will be Philadelphia.

NBA

The regular season play in the National Association Basketball ended Tuesday. The New York Knicks won the Eastern division crown by winning 47 and dropping 23 games. The Minneapolis Lakers, led by "Mr. Basketball," George Mikan, won the Western division crown by winning 47 and losing 22 games. Playoffs will take place this weekend.

In collegiate basketball the annual NCAA and National Invitation tournamens were held recently. Seton Hall, rated the top basketball team in the country for most of the season, defeated St. Johns 58-46 in the Invitational. Indiana, Big Ten champs, defeated Kansas 69-68 with a free throw made with 27 seconds to play the margin of victory.

RECORDS

Among the items discussed recently at a meeting of college basketball coaches in Kansas City, Missouri was to restrict its team and individual records to games involving four year degree giving colleges. The coaches recommended that the rules committee to act upon it. If this act is put into effect, the sensational scoring record run up by Bevo Francis of Rio Grande College who scored 1954 points in 39 games for an average of 50.1 points, would be thrown out because only 12 of its 39 opponents were four year colleges.

TENNIS

On March 16, veteran Professional star Jack Kramer defeated newcomer Frank Sedgeman 7-5, 6-1 for his 30th win in 50 matches between them. Pancho Segura easily defeated Ken McGregor 6-1, 6-2 for his 38th win in 50 matches with his opponent. These four pros are on an extensive tennis tour.

In the first major amateur tennis tournament of 1953 Art Larsen upset Gardnar Mulloy, top ranking player in the nation in the final round of the Masters Invitational Tournament. In the semi-final round Larsen upset U. S. Davis Cup captain, Vic Sexeis.

NEW RECORD

At a recent track meet in Malwaukee Ken Wiesner of Great Lakes, Illinois set a new world indoor record in th high jump with a leap of 6 ft. 9 7/8 in. The old record for that event was 6 ft. 9 3/4 in.

One day last month a man named Harry Hamberger visited the offices of Sport Magazine. In turned out that Harry, a 64-year-old New Yorker, loves to walk and holds several original records. In 1929 he was the Philadelphia champion in the 31-mile walk. About 27 years ago he walked from Baltimore to Washington in 12 and a half hours. Once during an elevator strike he walked to the top of the 102 story Empire State Building in an hour and two minutes. Here are some records for you loop enthusiasts to work on.

BET

It is reported that Eddie Stanky, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and Leo Durocher, Manager of the New York Giants, have a $10 bet to see which of them can get thrown out of games the least. Speaking of baseball, the prodigal son has come home. Ralph Kiner has finally signed his 1953 contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates. His long holdout caused several rumors to spring up over the possibility that he might be traded.

Recently the eyes of the sports world were turned towards Perth, Australia. The cause of this attention was John Landy, a 22 year-old agricultural science student at Melbourne University. In 1952 Landy was running the mile in 4.31.6 which is considered average for that event. This year under supervision of his able coeah, Percy Cerutty, Landy has developed into one of few runners in the world who have a chance of surpassing Swedish star Gunder Hagg's world record time of 4:01.2 which he set in 1945. Coach Cerutty had Landy work out with iron dumbells and run up sand dunes. Landy ran three excellent races and his best time was only .7 sec. from Hagg's record.

Boxing

In April heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, rated by many boxing writers as a second Jack Dempsey, will fight ex-champ Jersey Joe Walcott, who Marciano defeated for the title. Although in this month's issue of Sport Magazine Walcott's trainer states that his fighter will regain the crown, the vast majority of boxing experts are picking Marciano to win easily and some say by a knockout. Their first meeting is regarded by Boxing authority Art Fletcher as one of the ten greatest matches in the last 50 years.

INTRAMURAL INFO

By Jim Demer

PRE-MINS DOUBLE SMOKIES

With league president K. P. Johnson throwing out the ball, the 1953 version of Intramural Softball got underway on Monday afternoon. In a game full of errors the Pre-Mins surprised everyone by trouncing the Smokies 22 to 11. Pre-season concensus had the Smokies fighting it out with the Ring-Noses for the league championship. But after Monday's performance it looked as if anything can happen, and probably will.

The Pre-Mins had their big inning in the fifth when they scored 11 runs aided by 3 Smokie errors.

Y NIPS CLOWNS

On Tuesday the YMCA edged out the Clowns 15-13. It seemed as if the Y had the game sewed up as they went into the last inning with a 15-9 lead. But the Clowns weren't clowning as they scored 4 runs and were finally retired with the bases loaded. Herb White was the winning pitcher and Charlie Greathouse suffered the loss.

DOUBLE HEADER

Wednesday afternoon play saw the Doobers vs. Athenian and the Ring-Noses meet the YMCA. On the Wilson Field diamond the Doobers continued their winning volley-ball ways (Ed. Note — He played with them, they didn't win them all) with a 17-8 victory over Athenian. The Doobers were never behind as thy hit Dean Allison and Dick Thom freely. Athenian didn't look bad as they out hit the Doobers 11 to 10. As far as their fielding is concerned the less said the better. The winning pitcher was Bob Pattrson with Dean Allison getting the loss. Home runs by Dean Allison, a beautiful blast down the left field line and Dock Jennings for the Doobers.

Down by the old Golf Course the Ring-Noses eked out a 35-9 decision over the YMCA nine. Led by Dick Patton with 2 home runs and 4 walks the Ring-Noses picked up their first win. A big 11 run first inning helped Homer Garren along to na easy victory. Herb White with a 24 run per game average evened out his record at 1 and 1.

NEW RULES

Here are the new rules governing 1953 Intramural Softball play. They are designed to make the game closer by stopping high scores.

1. A runner cannot steal a base until ball reaches the batter.
2. A batter cannot take first, if the catcher drops the 3rd strike.
3. On an infield fly, if bases are occupied, the batter is automatically out. If a man is on first, batter is not out unless he is put out by catch on throw.
4. The pitcher must have both feet on the rubber, ball held for one second in both hands in front of him, only one complete circle with pitching arm is allowed, and one forward step. The wrist must be closer to the body than the elbow, on release of ball.
5. A runner cannot steal home on passed ball. A runner can go home on return throw.

How Well Do You Know Sports?

(Most of us have watched or taken part in the sports mentioned in this quiz. But how many details have we noticed about them? Here is a test of your powers of observation. Four correct gives you a passing average; six or more right is excellent. Answers appear on page four.)

1. You're at a big-league game and are seated directly behind first base. In what direction are you facing?
2. Arrange th following balls in order of size, smallest first: baseball, tennis ball, ping-pong ball, basketball, hand ball, golf ball, medicine ball, polo ball.
3. In what game is the ball made of white rubber and only seven eighths inflated?
4. How wide is the gridiron?
6. In what sport are the contestants, if skillful, always facing each other.?
7. What game is played with a ball, a small part of which is purposely missing?
8. What is the only game played with a ball on the ground in which the players do not touch the ground?
9. What game is played with racquets but NOT played with balls?

ODDITIES

Here's One For Red

Good old Red, the colorful umpire at most of Maryville's home baseball games, should be on the alert, not only for firecrackers this year, but for the players, hoping they haven't heard of this story told about Frenchie Bordagaray, one-time major league star. Frenchie was managing in a minor league when an ump's decision gave him particular grief. Reaching a boiling point, Frenchie just couldn't stand it any longer, and spat in the ump's eye. A few day's later, a reporter asked Frenchie how he was bearing up under the $200 fine and sixty day suspension the league president had slapped on him. His answer was, "Oh, not too bad, but it was more than I expectorated."

Lots of Muscle

We hear that some of the lads around here think that they have at least their share of muscle. It may be, but can you match the feat of Andrew Cutter in 1878, at the Louisville Exposition? All he did was chin himself six times. Easy? Try it his way, and chin yourself on one little finger, either right or left, as you choose.

Philosophical

Craig Wood, professional golfer of a few years ago, ran into a little tough luck when he had 11 on a par four hole. When asked how he ever came out with such a score, after a little pause he replied, "Well, I had a long put for a ten, but I missed."

In 1952 a new name was added to the list of outstanding golfers who play for pay. In 1952 Julius Boros was just another golfer but in 1952 he surprised by taking the National Open and the "World" championship in Chicago. He was chosen Professional Golfer of the Year by the Professional Golfers' Association and was golf's leading money winner with $37,032.97.

(Ed. Note—Two weeks ago in my column. I wrote that Maryville had won twenty out of twenty Smoky Muntain Championships. This is a slight mistake, but not much. They won eighteen of those twenty.—Bob Coles).

VARSITY SIDE-POCKET

Crack! And the ball goes flying off the bat right back into the catcher's hands. Oh, yes, these girls have really "got" "it" when it comes to the first day out on the softball diamond with all that hitting and tremendous ball-throwing they're doing. Thus far both the Chillies and the Howies have elected captain and manager—for the Chillies we have: Capt. Helen Drinnen and manager Henny Laing —for the Howies, captain Mary Alice Kemp and manager Nancy Ferguson.

Really, though, the first day out in the Tennessee spring sunshine did wonders toward making about fifty vivacious, athletic girls feel mighty un-athletic as the ball seemed to slide through their fingers in that old American institution, softball. "Even" the boys, though, weren't too awfully good their first day out for baseball and, from where I stand, I'd say Mrs. Queener is a little more encouraging than "Grey Fox" Honaker, so we may see some fine ball played out there someday.

After basketball, Betty Harrill turns comedian when she gets up to bat with no apparent knowledge of what to do with a bat. Wait 'til she hits it, though—with that swing I'll bet it reaches the shortstop and she gets to second. Who can blame her for not having hit it when Nancy Jones is pitching to her? For those of us who aren't Superwomen it's rather hard to see that ball between pitcher and catcher.

Catcher Barbara Rogers is another thing that's hard to see behind all her paraphernalia. According to her, it's hard to see out, too.

This year's rules have some mighty strange little twists in them—for instance, once you run three feet from the base there's no "chickening out" and backtracking—you either go all the way or they explain to you from the rule sheet that you are officially out. I was heartbroken!

BAINONIAN DOWNS THETA —AGAIN!

For the second itme in a row, Bainonian Society came through to defeat rival Theta Epsilon Society with a score of 38-35. The game, played last Saturday night in the Intramural Gym, was a hard and fast, but low-scoring one. Some freshman discoveries were made in the forms of Mary Brasfield, Johnnie Ra Entrikin, Jennine Thompson, and Jo Biggs, who really showed those ole upperclassmen how to move as they fought over the ball. High-scorers for the night were Mary Brasfield and Mary Alice Kemp for Bainonian and Liz Murphy, Johnnie Rae Entrikin, and Hazel Ann Robinson. Hazel's sitting here as I write this so I must say that ole Cheex was really fighting—too bad she wasn't hitting.

Netmen Drop Exhibition

The 1953 tennis team dropped a very early practice match to the University of Tennessee last Saturday by the score of 5-0, on the College courts. Despite the losing score, the netmen looked pretty good against Tennssee, all five singles men putting up a good fight, especially John Anderson and Dick Lebold who gave their men a very hard time before finally dropping their matches. The return match with UT on the 25th of March ought to be a real thriller when both teams have had a little more practice under their belts.

Buser Number One

In the opening match of the afternoon, Kent Buser took on Tennessee's number one man, Chester Warden, who moved from being number four man last year, and went down to defeat, 6-1, 6-1. Ed Breitbach was the number two man, and did a little better against Jim Robinson, 6-2, 6-2.

Edis Hard-Pressed

In the third and fourth matches, the Vol performers had a much harder time of it. George Edis and John Anderson battled in the longest and most interesting matches of the afternoon, as Edis finally won, 6-4, 7-5, with Anderson leading in the second set until Edis finally rallied. Dick Lebold put up a good fight in his match with left-handed Kyle Testerman, who also visited the school a few months ago as a baby Vol basketball player. In the opening set, Dick Lebold held a four-three lead in games before Testerman came on to win, 6-4 in the first game, and kept going to win the second, 6-1.

Not So Bad

Pat Hogan of UT finished the day's scoring by downing Maryville's fifth man, Marshall England, 6-1, 6-3. In the doubles of the day, Edis and Warden were ahead of Buser and Breitbach, and Robinson and Testerman were also leading when time and the weather put a stop to the day's events.

Not All There

The original program for the day included three more singles matched in which Jon Hale, Dave Helwig, and George Roberts were the UT team failed to bring along to take part for the Scotties, but enough men for the scheduled show, and the match was cut short. The next match for the Scotties is with the same UT team on the 25th of the month.

Scot Baseball Team Prepares

By Rolfe Duggar

The diamonders under the watchful eye of Coach Lombe Honaker continued their workouts the past week, the third week of spring practice. Warm dry weather finally greeted the squad for most of the past week after two weeks of a mixture of rain, shine and cold.

Two big problems involving four positions weigh heavily on Honaker's mind. These are the outfield spots and first base. That's enough to give any coach a real baseball-type hangover. With only two weeks left before the opening of the season ther isn't too much time to experiment. The Scots' first opponent is the Miami (Ohio) University squad, a perennial powerhouse.

No Hodges

At first base the loss of Wes Kinser and his big bat has really hurt. There are two aspiring candidates for the job, Chuck Dunn and Charlie Partee. Latest word is that neither at the present time can fill the bill for the job. Another possibility is that Bobby Shelton might be moved over. A wise move? Only time can tell, but at present Bobby is an important fixture at third.

Earl Lawson is giving Phil Young, a returning letterman, real trouble at second. In the event that Shelton should move to first it is quite conceivable that Earl would take the keystone with Young moving over to third. The last infield spot finds Jimmy Campbell who couldn't be budged out of his shortstop position with a stick of dynamite.

Empty Shoes

The second big problem facing Honaker is the outfield. Not even Detroit who sold their trio is having this much difficulty finding decent quality ball-hawks. All three Scot spots are wide open with plenty of candidates. The standouts at present are Bob Ramger, Bill Wheatley, Bill Van Benthuysen (the misplaced catcher) and Lynn Sexton. Earl Lawson might crack into the outer gardens if the infield is too tied down.

There is no new word on the pitchers and catchers. There is plenty of hopeful talent to screen out to help Sunny Short and Harry Robinson on the rubber and Don Alford behind the plate.

The next two weeks will undoubtedly see some changes made with possibly another one or two of the other hopefuls breaking into the open. Honaker is carefully scanning the prospects for a possible sleeper. In this game with so many vital positions wide open anything can happen, remember Bill Veeck?

Now that Bainonian has won the battle for another year we're feeling pretty smug—at least until tonight when the societies again fight for the skit night trophy—whew, I'm tired of all this fighting!

PLAYING

I played with my blocks, I was but a child,
Houses I builded, castles I piled;
But they tottered and fell
All my labour was vain—
But my father said kindly
"We'll try it again."

I played with my days, what's time to a lad?
Why pore over books?
Play! Play! and be glad,
Till my days were all spent
Like a sweet summer rain,
But my father said kindly
"We'll try it again."

I played with my chance, the chance that was mine,
To win with, to work with,
To serve the divine.
With prodigal hand,
I did waste and profane
But my father said kindly
"We'll try it again."

I played with my soul, the soul that is I,
The best that was in me
I stifled its cry;
I lulled it, I dulled it,
And now, oh, the pain!
BUT, my FATHER says kindly,
"We'll try it again!"

(Rev. Dr. Robert Freeman, for many years Minister of First Presbyterian Church Pasadena, California.)

Stevenson Publishes Campaign Speeches

On Thursday, February 12, the birth date of another outstanding American, Adlai Stevenson brought to Random House the 9,000-word Introduction which he wrote for Major Campaign Speeches of Adlai E. Stevenson, 1952, now definitely scheduled for publication on April 20.

The Introduction is written in the witty and eloquent style which captivated Republicans and Democrats alike during the Presidential campaign. At the same time, it is a highly significant political document in the light of Mr. Stevenson's continuing popularity and stature in America.

The fifty campaign speeches which Mr. Stevenson has personally chosen for the book represent what he most wanted to say—and still wants to say—to the American people. They are complete as he wrote them, printed from his own original manuscripts. Along with all the major speeches the collection includes a number of addresses which were never broadcast, televised or printed in the newspapers in their entirety.

Student Summer Jobs Available

In about 10 weeks, the 1953 spring semester will end, bringing with it summer and three months of freedom from classes.

What will be accomplished with this time is up to the individual. Summer school or loafing will occupy many, but what about those who could use extra money for cashmeres or tuition come Fall? Now is the time to make definite plans for summer jobs whether just to earn extras or to serve as a basis for after-graduation work.

Waiters and Clerks

An average of $367 was earned by students of the New Jersey College for Women last summer in jobs ranging from clerking and selling to dental assistants, according to a college report. Waiting tables in resort restaurants proved to be the most profitable field, averaging $468 for the season.

Many resorts in Tidewater, the Blue Ridge Parkway, and other parts of Virginia and the surrounding states hire students each summer. The Paramount Restaurant, 1800 Atlantic Avenue, Virginia Beach, has seven positions open for formal dining room service during the coming season. Qualifications are neatness, some previous experience, ability to meet and please the public, age 21, and men who need money to continue college are preferred. For additional information write Robert T. Williams, dining room manager, by May 1.

With a good academic record you can get a summer job in a field related to your major. Students who have completed the junior year in math and physics can apply as technical assistants to the engineers at Bell Telephone Laboratory in New York, or at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard, Portsmouth, Va.

Copy-Writers

College shops in department stores will hire girls interested in a fashion career with a salary of about $35 a week. An advertising executive says selling experience will also score in finding a future copy-writing job.

Students are employed on farms, in factories, and as attendants in mental instutions under a program sponsored by the Americat Friends Service Committee, 20 South 12th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The State Alcoholic Beverage Control Stores also hire male students over 21 for relief work during employee vacations. The State Roads Commission and the national parks have summer jobs available if outdoor work appeals to you. Write the State Employment Service or the individual parks for information on these jobs.

If you are interested in travel and are not dependent upon summer earnings, apply as a tour leader for Simmons Tours. This job guarantees a free trip to Europe this summer, but it pays only expenses.

Daisy Chain Members Announced By Maxwell

Traditional Chain For Commencement

By Roberta Hadley

Jean Maxwell, junior class vice president, has announced the names of the fourteen girls who are to represent the junior class as members of the Daisy Chain in the Commencement exercises in May. These girls are chosen on the basis of being a representative cross section of the junior class. The vice-president of the class is automatically a member of the Chain.

14 Girls

Bash, Eakin, Drinnen

Joann Bash is an English major from Coral Gambles, Florida. She has been a Nu Gamma leader, secretary of Student Vols and rush week chairman for Bainonian.

Janice Eakin, English major, from Prospect, Pa., was a Nu Gamma leader, Nu Gamma chairman, a member of Y-cabinet, secretary of Student Council and secretary of Bainonian.

Helen Drinnen is a Physical Education major from Maryville, who has been a member of the Y-cabinet and vice-president of the M club.

Miller, Cornell, Ferguson

Helen Miller, Biology major, from Clearwater, Fla., has been Theta sergeant-at-arms, and a member of the French club.

Carol Cornell is a Spanish major from Groveland, Fla., who has been a Nu Gamma leader, secretary of Bainonian, secertary of the junior class and president of the Spanish club.

Mary Virginia Ferguson, Elementary Education major from Kingston has been a member of the Girl's choir, F.T.A., Bainonian, the Band and vice-house chairman of Pearsons.

Laing, King

Pat Laing is a Business Administration major from New Rochelle, N.Y., has been a member of Bainonian, the M-club and secretary of the Business club.

Ruth King, Religious Education major from Dalton, Ga., has been a member of the Christian Education club, Bainonian, and secretary-treasurer of Pearsons.

Linginfelter, Bevan

Joyce Linginfelter, a Music major of Maryville, has been Tau Kappa Che treasurer, Pi Gamma president and a member of the French club and Theta.

Mary Jim Bevan, an Art major of Whitehaven, Tenn., has been a member of the Girl's choir and WSGA, and vice-president of Theta.

Burgos, Halstead

Naomi Burgos is a political science major from New York, N.Y., who has been a member of Y-cabinet, Writer's Workshop, the Debate team, and has been secretary of Pi Kappa Delta and program chairman of Theta.

Pat Halstead is an Elementary Education major from Newark, N.J., who has been a member of Theta, Nu Gamma leader, secretary of the Sophomore class, Junior class student council representative and Barnwarming sponsor of the Junior class.

Smith, Maxwell

Virginia Ann Smith is a sociology major from Towson, Md., who has been a member of the Y-cabinet, Theta, the B. G. club, program chairman of the French club and student council representative from the Sophomore class.

Jean Maxell is a biology major from Clinton, S.C., who has been vice-president of the Junior class, Nu Gamma leadcr, secretary of Theta and the Sweetheart of Alpha Sigma.

Vesper Choir

Pictured above is the Maryrville College Vesper Choir and Director Harry H. Harter which will leave the campus on April 17 on its twelve day tour through four states that will cover 2400 miles.

Dr. Lloyd Leads Early Services Beginning at 6:17 A.M. Tomorrow

By Emily Smith

The culminating point of the Holy Week Service will be the annual Easter Sunrise Service in the college ampitheater at 6:17 a.m. tomorrow morning.

President Ralph W. Lloyd will present the morning meditation, taking as his text John 2:18—"I have seen the Lord."

Vesper Choir

The Vesper Choir will sing "Christ is Arisen" by Hirsch, "The Resurrection," an Ukrainian Canticle, "Alleluia! We Sing With Jay" by Jacob Handel, "Veneration of the Cross" by Rachmaninoff, and "O Magnify the Lord With Me" by Lynn.

Easter Play

Experimental theater and the class in religious drama and pageantry will present "Easter at Galilee" tonight in Bartlett Auditorium at 7 and 9:30.

The cast includes Arthur Fryer as First Nararator, Anne Buckley as Second Narrator, Don Thiel as Pontius Pilate, Bill Cunningham as a Roman Centurion, Garnetta Alexander as a Syrian serving maid, and Nancy Rideout as Mary Magdalene.

Scene

The scene of the drama is the garden court of the inn at Magdala beside the sea of Galilee, in April, 37 A.D., six years after the resurrection.

There is no admission charge.

Council, Faculty Hold Discussion At Joint Meeting

Student Council was the guest of the Executive Council of the Faculty at a joint meeting held at 3:30 p.m., April 2 in Fayerweather Hall.

Purpose of the meeting was a mutual and cooperative discussion of issues that would help lead to solution of the gap between students and faculty that has resulted in student discontent.

Specific points of discussion were listed under the following divisions: Social Privileges and Behavior, Schedule and Vacations, More Effective Faculty-Student Government, Extra-Curricular Activities, College Pastor, and Higher Fees.

Two Topics Covered

Due to the lack of time, only the first two divisions were covered by the discussion. But it was the general consensus of opinion of both groups that the two-hour meeting was successful, for all seemed to have gained more understanding and insight into campus problems.

Procedure

After opening prayers led by Ruth Burgos and Dr. Orr, presiding officer Dr. Lloyd made an introductory statement, followed by the background presentation of Student Body President Brown.

Discussion of the topics was next; the meeting was adjourned with a prayer led by Dr. Lloyd at 5:35 p.m. Plans for any other similar meeting or action would have to originate in the Student Faculty Senate.

It was emphasized that this joint meeting was to present all points of view on the topics, leaving to other constituted groups the responsibility for considering possible action.

Duggar Edits Echo

Rolfe Duggar, junior political science major from St. Petersburg, Fla., is editor of this week's Highland Echo.

It is customary for Echo staff members interested in becoming editor of the paper to try out in this capacity.

Joan Frei, junior English major from the Philippines, will edit the next Echo issue on April 18.

Later in the semester, the Highland Echo staff will elect its editor for next year.

Frei Announces Sale Of Chips

"Chips," annual publication of Writers' Workshop, will go on sale next week, it was announced by Joan Frei, editor. It contains ten original selections read at Writers' Workshop during the year 1951-1952, which were selected by the group to appear in the yearly publication. Members of the organization publish it for circulation among fellow students to encourage writing and to keep some of the best work in permanent form.

The editorial committee of "Chips," which includes Dorothy Wells, Hank Van Hassel, and George Caldwell, announces that the publication will sell for 50 cents each. Only a limited number of copies will be available, since fewer have been printed this year than last year.

Caldwell, Holland To Read

At the regular meeting of Writer's Workshop on Monday, George Caldwell and Van Holland will read. They will be criticized by Isabel Leitch and Pat Lewis. On April 13 Ed Breitbach and Sally Brown will read. Carolyn Symmes and Naomi Burgos will be the critics.

Council Hears Reports, Votes

At the Wednesday, April 1 meeting of Student Council at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Center, preparations for the joint meeting with the Executive Council of the Faculty were made. Jay Spencer, a member of the joint steering committee for the meeting, read the proposed agenda.

Betty Hammers, chairman of the social board, read the Revised Dance Proposal that had been recommended by the Student-Faculty Senate. Some of the revisions included the obtaining of guest cards for the formal dance from both Miss Strick and Miss Massey; extension of privilege to hold dances to organized clubs, and extension of privilege to hold more informal dances.

Council Approval

Council approved the Revised Dance Proposal and forwarded it to the Executive Council of the Faculty.

President Brown reminded all clubs holding elections to see Jim Hunt, chairman of the elections committee. She also reminded all clubs that their minutes would soon be required for filing in the Student Office.

A petition asking that the Council minutes be printed in the Echo for the rest of the semester was discussed. Council decided to write a letter to the student body (appearing in this issue) to explain the difficulties involved in following such a procedure.

One town night violation of the previous week and three town violations of this week were reported; Council voted to apply the full penalties.

Comps, Sophomore Tests Junior Picnic Bared

Comprehensive tests, which are required for graduation of all seniors, are to be given the afternoons of April 15 and 16. These examinations cover all work in the student's major field.

On the same afternoons the Sophomores will be given standardized tests on current events and English. The tests are given in many colleges throughout the nation and MC students are rated according to the national norms. Any student who has been classified as a sophomore during the year is required to take these tests.

Junior Picnic

On Wednesday afternoon, April 15, the Junior Class will sponsor a party for its members at Laurel Lake. Supper will be served, games played and there will be square dancing in the evening.

Buses will leave the campus after lunch for Laurel Lake.

Harter Names 42 For Coming Tour

Harry H. Harter, director of the Vesper Choir, released this week the names of the 42 members who will make the spring tour. They are as follows:

On April 12 and 13 Dr. Lloyd will travel to Indianapolis for the Corporation-College Money Raising Work Shop. This work shop is authorized by the Assocation of American Colleges. The affiliated colleges of Indiana are acting as hosts. The shop will last for two days.

Spanish Club Plans Outing, April 9

Last Thursday evening, the twenty-sixth of March, the Spanish Club held its regular meeting. After the business meeting, Malcolm King, the program chairman led in Spanish games. Grace Greenawalt read some humorous stories in Spanish.

Plans were made and committees were appointed for the spring outing which is to be held at the next regular meeting time, April 9, at th home of Mr. and Mrs. Schwam on Crest Road.

Skit Night Trophy Theta Wins Fourth

For the second consecutive year Theta Epsilon took top award at Skit Night competitions held Saturday evening, March 21. It was the fourth time Theta had won the award since the beginning of Skit Night as an annual affair.

This was the seventh annual show.

Title of Theta's show was "It's A Fishy World." It was written by Naomi Burgos and starred Carol Moore, Maree Richards, Doris Glad, Hazel Robison, Martha Jackson, Ethelyn Cathey, and Willie Sutton.

Scene of the skit was a fish school in the pond in front of Fayerweather, where fish pupils were examining a specimen of a human. The "human" was played by Joelene Jones.

Other Sktis

Theta won over the other women's society, Bainonian, and the two men's societies, Athenian and Alpha Sigma.

Bainonian's skit was "Desdemona and the Dashing Dicks." Athenian presented "Prehistoric Man," and Alpha Sigma gave a comic version of "Carmen."

Jim Hunt, student body vice-president, was master of ceremonies.

He Died For Our Salvation

"Jesus Wept."—St. John 11:35.

So reads the shortest verse in the Bible. And we imagine that were He with us today He would weep again.

The world is in a sorry state of affairs and has been for many years. Tomorrow is a day which should be one of universal rejoicing throughout all the earth for it is the day the Son of God arose from the dead and ascended into Heaven.

Again on this Easter Sunday the people are desperately in need of the precepts of the Prince of Peace. Jesus died and on the third day arose again and ascended into Heaven. He gave His mortal life that men might live together in peace and understanding. Nearly two thousand years have elapsed since that time and it is easy to see that man has done a poor job of following His teachings.

War has succeeded war almost without end. Science has blossomed out in tremendous strides to ease man's ills and labors. But to what avail? Its greatest fruits have been turned toward the destruction of fellowmen.

More than half of the world's people do not even know the gentle Christ, whose resurrection we commemorate tomorrow. Many of these non-Christians have good peace-loving deities of their own and would join with us in praying that a Higher Being would bring peace to this turbulent earth.

But there are those who deny that there is any God at all. There are those who decry religion as a "fallacy of the people." Their leaders tell us they are sufficient within themselves. They are the masters of their own destiny.

Yet hidden in millions of these "enslaved" people's homes are secret shrines and altars where the humble folk seek the truth from one whom they know lived long before and will live long after their tyrannical totalitarian masters.

We have sympathy for those who are denied the solace and strength of worship of their God by petty tyrants. It is too bad that they should not be able to join in the world communion of peples who are sick of strife; who seek only to live in peace with their brother men.

There are those among us whose promotion of strife and unrest and evil thoughts can not be excused by ignorance of Christ's teaching. They have heard but have not heeded the words of the Apostle Paul to the Corinthians when he wrote:

"Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump? Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us: Therefore let us keep the feast, not with the old laven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth."—I Corinthians 5: 6-8.

As always, today the voices of those who, with malice and wickedness for their own selfish ends, denounce their brethren as malefactors are loud and boisterous—and the voices of those who should raise the shout in tones of sincerity and truth are still.

And yet in this troubled hour, there is still hope—the hope that comes from faith.

Jesus of Nazareth who died on the cross and was born again on the first Easter sowed the seed of a mighty temporal, as well as spiritual, movement which today is the strongest political force on earth. Out of his teachings came democracy, which, imperfect as it is, embraces His precepts more completely than any other political system yet made to work by man. Like Christianity, democracy never has been yet fully tried. Selfish people have sabotaged it, just as they have Christianity. Yet in these two, for life on earth and life in the hereafter, lies the hope of mankind.

As all good Christians, on this day of rejoicing, look forward with the hope gained from faith, so may all believers in democracy renew the strength of thir beliefs and press forward toward a better world.

In our daily life, not merely on Holy Days such as Easter, we should all strive to so live with each other that the Savior may know that he did not endure His agony in vain. Let us pray that our next Easter may be truly a more joyous day.

Scots & Soda

Unless we have any more usual Maryville weather, it looks like Spring is here. Already Baldwin Beach is cluttered (I use the term loosely) with gals seeking bronze sun tans.

I hear Jim Demer has the old Tennessee spirit of "fowl play." The last time I saw him, he was burdened with a feed sack sneaking up the back stairs of Carnegie. "Peep, peep," and "quack."

:-:-:

The question of the week over at Baldwin was, "Who threw the monkey wrench in the switch box?" or "What happened to the lights!?" Yes, I smell a rat, or should I say rats!?

:-:-:

Gone Maryville students have even revolutionized Eastern Standard Time. Helen Jackson walked sleepy-eyed into breakfast the other morning and found her unconventional birthday party. The table decided to have cake, ice cream and all the trimmings for breakfast. Very thoughtful, but not quite appropriate for early morning diet. This can be attributed to one Charlie LaRue. Need I say more?

P. S. Ed Breitbach was rather upset by the whole affair—it seems they neglected telling him of their plans and he didn't come.

I came across a rather interesting definition of housemother recently. She's a woman who keeps young grils from doing what she did when she was their age.

:-:-:

While browsing through an old colonial college rule book, I came across the following precept:

"No scholar shall take tobacco, unless permitted by the President, with the consent of his parents and guardians, and on good reason just given by a physician, and then in a sober and private manner."

And we think our rules are bad! "Nicotine slaves" really had their day!

The other day Miss Walker was discussing the Tatar races in China:

Miss Walker: "When the two opposing Tatar tribes met in battle, what was the outcome?"

Liz Enloe: "Mashed Taters!"

Ode to Hank Van Hassel:

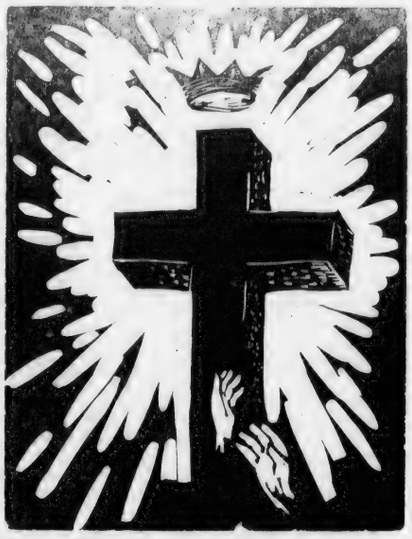
Here comes our dreamboat
Rolling down the aisle,
Higher, higher, higher, higher,
See the dishes pile.



(As sung to the tune of "Row, Row Your Boat" by Miss Ware's henchmen).

Spring in Brooklyn

Spring is sprung,
The grass is riz,
I wonder where the flowers is?
All the boids is on the wing—
My woid, how absoid!
I thought the wings was on the boid!
Oh yes,
"Here comes Peter Cottontail, Hopping down the bunny trail . . . ."
HAPPY EASTER, EVERYBODY!

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Sadie Davis

MOVIES (aaventure)

Attention all ye action-craving students, if your campus life is becoming a trifle dull try the Park Theatre's special remedy for curing boredom. The prescription is as follows: on Monday, try "Bomba and the Jungle," starring John Sheffield, or Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, try watching "The Iron Mistress" with Alan Ladd and Virginia Mayo. If the sickness still persists, you might take an added dose of "The Blazing Forrest," starring John Payne and Richard Arlen.

It seems that the Capitol is also worried about the welfare of our Western students. For it is featuring "The Naked Spur" with James Stewart, Janet Leigh, and Raplh Mecker on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

BOOKS

John Steinbeck, author of Grapes of Wrath, has returned to the literary scene with another great noval, entitled East of Eden. This American saga has its setting in the period of time between the Civil War and the first World War with the action shifting from a Collective farm to a California valley.

Did you ever stop to realize that there is one basic conflict which grips all mankind. The struggle between good and evil has always been the primary disturbing element in the life of man. This conflict is well depicted in East of Eden, through the Trask family and the individual problems and desires which confront each of its members.

Are you tired and worn out, do your muscles feel tight and tense? Well cheer up, for the solution to all your problems has finally arrived. The answer lies in a book by William H. Miller, entitled Relax and Enjoy Life.

This book contains Miller's famous "one hundred dollar course," animated by human anecdotes. It is guaranteed to develop the energy-hoarding quality, which lies dormant in each individual.

"Y" RADIO

Wedensday night's "Y" radio program is a play entitled "The Good Shepherd." The cast has not been released yet.

ECHO FORUM

To The Student Body:

At the Wednesday, April meeting of the Student Council a petition signed by 126 students was submitted asking the The Highland Echo to print the minutes of Council for the remainder of the semester.

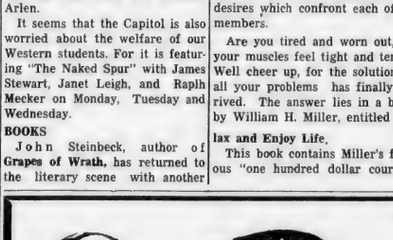
We of the Council and the Echo wholeheartedly agree with the spirit of the petition—that the students are entitled to an objective, and complete report of Council meetings. However, we would like to present some explainations and point out some of the difficulties involved in printing the minutes verbatim in the Echo.

In the way of clarification we would like to say that, contrary to popular belief, the minutes would not serve to inform students as to the individual participation and voting practices of their representatives since no such records are kept.

Space in the Echo is a very important and valuable factor. Both the wordiness and undue length of the minutes would take up much more space than a well written news story. The space required to print the minutes would occasionally mean that other Echo stories would have to be deleted.

Minutes are written according to procedure of events, not according to news value, meaning that the most important decision of council might appear in the middle or at the end of the minutes, instead of at the beginnings as good journalism demands.

Minutes naturally contain much unfinished business which it does not seem necessary to print. In past experience unfinished business which was publicized has occasionally been mistaken by students and faculty as an accomplished action, making it seem a wise policy to postpone publication until a matter has been thought through and definite action is in sight.



Considering the facts that Council minutes are not approved until the following week and that the Echo is not published every week, minutes would always be a week old and in some cases two or three weeks old before appearing in the paper.

Instead of printing the minutes verbatim, the Student Council and the Highland Echo suggest that the Echo reporters and the Council secretary be jointly responsible for the news accounts of the meetings.

This topic will again be considered at the next session of Council and all students, particularly those who signed the petition, are urged to express their views on the matter to their Student Council representatives before Wednesday.

And, again let us say that students are always invited and encouraged at attend the regular Student Council meetings on every Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Center.

Very sincerely,
Your Student Council

Sports Echoes

By Bob Coles

Did You Ever Wonder?

This is the Easter season, in fact, Easter is tomorrow, and often connected with this season of the year is music. One song I heard a few days ago, and a very beautiful song indeed, was that very moving Negro spiritual, "I Wonder as I Wander." This is not a sermon, but it did start me to wondering, not only about the things the song mentions, but from that to many others as well. I wondered about the value or sports, and its place in a Christian society. I wondered what sports was supposed to engender that made it a part of American life and Maryville life, to such an extent that one of the very finest things you can say about any person is that he is a "good sport". For some fine answers may I refer you to an article in the new Reader's Digest called "A Fielder's Glove For Chris". It has more than a few things worth thinking about in its pages.

Good Point—It makes the point that sports should begin and develop such things as physical abilities, such as strength, agility, and coordination; but even more than that it is the place that one learns practical lessons in citizenship, in living with others, in submitting willingly to necessary and proper authority for the good of all, in learning that others have rights and others have spirits; and he learns to be a part of the team. All these things are included in the positive aspects of sport participation.

Other Things

Thre are other things to wonder about closer to home and more particular in aspect, however, that came to my mind in the last few days. I imagine there are answers to my questions, but they do not appear immediately to mind, and they may be worth hunting carefully.

Letters

One thing that has been bothering me for some time is the several systems of awarding letters on the campus. May I say that I have no fault to find with any that have a letter. No one, I imagine, feels more strongly than I that anyone who has earned a letter should get one and be proud of it, but it seems at least to one who has never earned one and who never will that there is a little unfairness extent in their awarding, especially between Woman's Varsity and the Intramural System. Again I am one hundred percent behind both organizations. I think that the authorities who set them up and who keep them going deserve a medal for their far-sightedness and faithful work, for they are among the school's more beneficial programs, but here is my complaint.

Why?

Men who play varsity sports and fulfill certain qualifications earn letters, and they deserve them. The system seems about as impersonal and as fair as it can get, at least in theory. Also women who fulfill certain qualifications in the Women's Varsity program earn letters, and they too deserve them, but many men who spend a lot more effort and time than many of the girls do in Women's Varsity get nothing, not even a little red ribbon, unless they were lucky enough to get on a winning team. A lot of the fellows are probably good enough to earn varsity letters, but through lack of time, money or inclination they never go out for a varsity team, but have enough interest and time to spend two days a week playing about every Intramural sport. Why, I wonder, couldn't there be some system set up in future years under which such men could earn letters? The system would have to be more strict, as the women's system is. It would require certain attendance, certain activities and skills, work, and at least some ability. To my wondering self, however, it seems somehow unfair to refuse letter to some fellows who work hard and give them to some girls who do very little, and I know some girls who do little, although most of them work very hard. They could be given a letter distinctive in size or color or shape, as the Women's Varsity letter varies in shape from the regular Varsity letter? I have no grudge against anybody or any system now existing, I just wonder why it couldn't be extended.

Baseball

Another thing which occurred to me just yesterday on this eve of the baseball season, with so many men out this year who look like good players, but who can't possibly all play varsity ball this year, or even get in games is why can't there be a Junior Varsity team to let them play enough to develop some skill, or at least keep what skill they now have until another year. It doesn't seem as if an intra-squad game gives the pressure or competition that any game against an outside opponent gives. They wouldn't have to play much, but a few games against some of the high schools around here would keep reflexes sharpened, and give pitchers not good enough for varsity a chance to learn and experiment. Surely someone could be found to coach it on the few times it would play. Since so many men will be coaching next year anyway, it would be good experience for them as well as the players. I wonder why it wouldn't be a good idea. It wouldn't be a separate team, but it would give some boys a chance they might not otherwise get?

Tennis

Why, I wonder, and the answer is probably well established, aren't there a few more tennis courts around here in operation. Why were the ones that were here let go to waste, like the ones behind Carnegie, or the old football field. There just are not enough at the present time to fulfill demands. The tennis team has a just first call on the Memorial Courts which they exercise nearly every day, and two courts behind Baldwin just aren't enough to satisfy the demands of the entire student body, with the result that many people around the campus who would like to play the game never get a chance to play, and some who are good players never try, because they can't get a court. It is too bad, especially when there are so many evidences around that there were other courts once which are already leveled, although a little overgrown by now. I wonder why they couldn't be fixed up again so more people could enjoy the game, a very enjoyable one if you could ever get some practice.

Congratulations

We offer congratulations to Tom Bugenhagen on his election as captain of the wrestling team for next year. Tom surely deserves it, and we hope it brings him luck and that he brings it luck in next year's wrestling season. Congratulations, Tom.

Thanks

We also offer thanks to Bob Howard of Miami of Ohio who sent us a full and complete account of his school's spring sport schedule which was used for the baseball story on the other side of this page. The school has something going on nearly every day through the spring, including an eleven meet golf schedule.

Orange Team Takes 6-0 Victory In Annual Duel

By Hersch Mosier

Thursday afternoon the annual Orange and Garnet game brought to an end the spring football practice of this year. Although the teams were evenly matched, the Orange took the hard fought contest, 6-0. The scoring play was a brilliant fifty yard run by Clarence Shepard in the beginning of the second quarter. The extra point attempt was blocked, but the touchdown proved to be the margin of victory.

Garnet

After the opening kickoff the Garnet team featuring the running of Keny Shepard and Wayne Newman, moved the ball deep into Orange territory only to lose the ball on a fumble. After a few plays, Clarence Shepard was given the pigskin and he weaved his way through Garnet tacklers for a first down. On the next play Keny Shepard intercepted a long Orange deep in his own territory. Now the Garnet machine began rolling, with Keny Shepard and Sparks leading the way. After grinding out three first downs on the ground, the Garnet took to the air with a completed pass from Sparks to Keny Shepard for another first down. The first quarter ended.

Bad Luck

On the first play in the second quarter Sparks' pass was intercepted by Buford Miller. After a few plays the ball was snapped back to Clarence Shepard who streaked down the field for the touchdown. The extra point attempt was blocked. The Orange kicked off to the Garnet, who after failing to gain much yardage punted to the Orange. The Orange team fumbled, and the Garnet regained possession, Keny Shepard scampering twenty yards for a first down before the end of the half stopped the Garnet drive.

Second Half

The second half opened with the Garnet kicking off to the Orange. Clarence Shepard and Buddy White both made first downs but the Orange attack stalled, and they were forced to punt. The Garnet, starting from their own twenty-five, carried the ball to the Orange forty-five yard strip before losing it on downs. In that sequence of plays Wayne Newman made two first downs for the Garnet. Then the third period ended.

Back and Forth

Shortly after the final quarter began, the Orange drove for a first down, but four plays later they were forced to punt. The Garnet failed to get the attack going and had to punt with Sparks getting one of the longest kicks of the day—a fifty yard beauty which landed on the Orange two yard line. After a series of penalties on both sides, Clarence broke loose for a run of 20 yards and another Orange first down. Their attack was stopped by the whistle ending the contest.

The starting lineups were:

Garnet		Orange
Garren	LE	Wilson
Gooden	LT	Anderson
Hayes	LG	Irwin
Breen	C	Keny
Akers	RG	King
Godfrey	RT	Berrong
Patton	RE	Lee
Renfro	RHB	Gilbert
Newman	FB	C. Shepard
Sparks	TB	White
K. Shepard	WB	Davis

Tennis Team Drops Match

Vols Beat Scots In Netplay

The University of Tennessee Vols defeated the Maryville Scotties in a practice match on Monday. The Vols topped the Scottie courtmen, 8-1, John Anderson being the only winner for Maryville. A lot of credit goes to John, more so because the man he beat was the only Vol to win against Florida where U.T. took a 8-1 drubbing.

Captain Ed. Breitback playing in the number one position lost to Charles Worden, 6-1, 6-0. Kent Buser was beaten by Jimmy Robinson, 6-1, 6-3, and Marshall England lost to George Edis in the number three spot, 6-2, 6-0.

About Time

Kyle Testerman was surprised by John Anderson as John took a 6-1, 6-3 decision. Dick Lebold lost to Pat Hogan 6-0, 6-1. Playing number six for the first time, George Roberts gave Lewis Neyland a hard fight only to finally lose 6-1, 8-6.

Double Trouble

The Scot doubles combination of Breitbach and Buser were clobbered by Worden and Edis, 6-0, 6-0. England and Anderson did a little better as they lost to Robinson and Testerman ,6-0, 6-3. Lebold and Roberts got together to win the first set from Hogan and Neyland, but lost the next two.

Home Again

Maryville's next home game is against Lincoln Memorial University there on April 7. On April 8 Tennessee Wesleyan comes here for a match.

Summary:

Singles

Charles Worden (T) defeated Ed. Breitbach (M), 6-1, 6-0
James Robinson (T) defeated Kent Buser (M), 6-1, 6-3
George Edis (T) defeated Marshall England (M), 6-2, 6-0
John Anderson (M) defeated Kyle Testerman (T), 6-1, 6-3
Pat Hogan (T) defeated Dick Lebold (M), 6-0, 6-1
Lewis Neyland (T) defeated George Roberts (M), 6-1, 8-6

Doubles

Worden-Edis (T) defeated Breitbach-Buser (M), 6-0, 6-0
Robinson-Testerman (T) defeated EnglandAnderson, 6-0, 6-3
Hogan-Neyland (T) defeated Roberts-Lebold (M), 4-6, 6-0.

Ring-Noses Show Why

The Ring-Noses continue to show the way in the 1953 softball league, closely followed only by the Smokies, whom they have yet to play this week. The other teams have about fallen by the way by this time, although Athenian and Pre-Min can always give trouble on any day to any team. The Doobers, with the loss of their ace hurler, Bob Patterson, have fallen badly, losing to the Clowns on Tuesday in a loosely played game, 21-19, and the YMCA and the Clowns are just bringing up the rear.

Games, Games, Games

There have been a lot of games played since the last paper, too many to mention all. Pre-Min beat the YMCA on Tuesday, 15-11, despite some good pitching by Ken Hammond, and Athenian beat the same team 10-4. nine runs less than the Smokies beat them, 19-7. The Ring-Noses topped Athenian, 17-9, piling up all their runs in the last three innings, and the Pre-Min team topped the Clowns, 17-5, but the Clowns, never to be counted out, because they can score runs, if they get enough, beat Athenian, 18-15. The Doobers nearly came up with the year's upset but finally lost to the Ring-Noses, 9-8, failing to score with the bases loaded in the seventh. The Ring-Noses had less trouble with the Clowns, winning 22-4. The Smokies dropped the Doobers, 9-4, and the Pre-Min team beat them, 9-8.

Scotties Set Ten Game Slate

Head Coach Lombe S. Honaker has released the 1953 football schedule as the team ends its spring football workouts in the annual Orange-Garnet Game on Wilson field. The schedule shows two new faces, especially Newberry of South Carolina for the Homecoming game on October 24 and a still pending game with Howard University of Birmingham on November 21st.

The Schedule

Sept. 19—Hiwassee, home
Sept. 26—Jacksonville, away
Oct. 3—Centre, home
Oct. 10—East Tennessee, home
Oct. 17—Emory and Henry, away
Oct. 24—Newberry, Homecoming
Oct. 31—Georwtown, away
Nov. 7—Carson-Newman, home
Nov. 14—Tenn. Wesley., pending
Nov. 21— Howard Col., pending

Varsity Side-Pocket

By Dixie Conner

Softball has taken its rightful place in the Women's Varsity scorebook and Howies and Chillies are fighting it out again in a hand tohand battle. And again the Howies are on top and the Chillies are putting up a beautiful, but losing fight. The Howies, captained by Mary Alice Kemp, won the first two games, automatically eliminating the necessity of a third. A squad game was played Thursday in order that any one other than the first-team members might have an opporunity to play. The scores of the first two games were 13-2 and 13-4.

Wet

The second game was played in lovely duckweather and members of both teams showed up with umbrellas, raincoats, and boots and lively competition was indulged in as the she-girl athletes kept their curly locks dry. Then there are those of us who were scared away by the rain. Heh; Heh; Good game, girls?

Scotties Meet Miami Redskins In Second Game Today 2:30

By Bob Coles

Yesterday, and again this afternoon, the Scotties take on the Redskins from Miami of Ohio, who are making their annual spring trip through the south. On Tuesday they played at Vanderbilt, then Wednesday and Thursday at Tennessee Tech, which may provide some comparison for Maryville fans. (See the bottom of the page for results of these games.)

Good Record

The Redskins, under Coach Wills, who is the defense coach of the football team which boasted an 8-1 record for this last season, will bring in a top-notch team, backed by an active student body and help from the school. The school has been rising in all all sports. In football they have won two post-season games since 1947, and won two Mid-American Conference Championships, a loop which includes such teams as Bowling Green, Toledo, Cincinnati, Western Reserve, Western Michigan, baseball champs for the last four years, Kent State, and Ohio University.

All Sports

As if this were not enough, the basketball team had a 17-5 record this year, winning the conference title, and losing the NCAA championship by five points, since they lost in the first round of the tourney by two points to DePaul, which lost by two to Indiana, which won by one point in the finals over Kansas. The Ohio track team has taken the Mid-America championship for five straight years and the cross-country title five out of the last six times.

Baseball

Over the last three years the Miami of Ohio baseball team has run up a record of 43 wins as opposed to 24 losses. Last year the team posted a 13-10 record, including a 6-5 win over Maryville in near freezing weather, and an 8-1 win over Vanderbilt the day before. After their games here they return home to open on the eleventh with Dayton University.

Prospects

Pitching strength may be the key to Miami's 1953 baseball fortunes. They now have two proven veterans, two partly-seasoned sophomores with little experience, four lefthanders and two right-handers. Larry Dasch, a senior righthander, and Jim Hampton, a sophomore lefthander, each ending last season with a three-two record, are the Big Guns. Behind them is Lefty Bob Tingle, (2-0), Les Lincke, (1-0), and two junior varsity hurlers, Chuck Dorsten and Jim McNamara.

Hard to Lose

Wills, who virtually rebuilt his club last year, has few replacement problems this year, hoping that a year of experience will bring a general improvement in batting punch to replace the graduation of the team's three top hitters, Carmen Cozza, pitcher-outfielder who hit .426, and Jim Wilkinson, a catcher who hit .320, both signed by the Cleveland Indians last summer, and outfielder Jim May, who hit .328.

Good Practice

This year the Redskins will have had three weeks of outdoor practice under their belts when they start south, an unuusal amount for so northerly a team. The team that takes the field against the Scotties yesterday and today, weather permitting, could be completely composed of letterman, except behind the plate, but men up from the JVs have made that doubtful.

Team

Returning regulars include Red Mitroff at first base; Don Knodel, second; Jim Lyons, third; Don Daly at shortstop; and Dick West and Dick Stegeman, outfielders. Charlie Duette, who lettered two years ago as a pitcher, has been hitting so well that he has been converted into an outfielder. Dave Skillings, another ex-pitcher, is fitting in so well at second base that Knodel can be moved to the outfield and still make use of his left-handed hitting. Don Puls and Jim Hause, each of whom received some experience last year, will probably alternate in the tools of ignorance behind the plate. Mitroff, Knodel, Puls, Skillings, Stegeman, and Jim Warren will give the Redskins a much longer array of lefthanded hitters than one usually sees in a college team.

Pretty Good

Last year Mitroff hit .211 at first, Knodel at second had a very resepctable .278, Daly had .241, Lyons, .247, West hit .298, and Stegeman chipped in with a .254 average. Behind the plate, Puls had two for two, and Hause finished with a .353 mark.

Last Year

For the Scotties last year, in case you don't remember, Bob Shelton hit .358, Harry Robinson had .333, Lynn Sexton finished with .290, Don Alford with .250, Phil Young had only .229, but was on base more often than anyone else, Jim Campbell ended the year hitting .224, Bill Van Benthysen hit .217 and Sonny Short ended with .173. Just wh will play what for the Scotties this year will not be known for sure until after the team trots on the field, and the season gets underway.

Scores

Miami of Ohio beat Vanderbilt, 5-3, on Tuesday afternoon behind the solid six hit pitching of Larry Dasch, Miami's leading pitcher.

University of Tennessee dropped LMU Wednesday afternoon, 15-5, garnering their 15 runs on 16 hits of Don Williams.

On Tuesday afternoon, at 4:30, non-music major senior students will be presented in a recital. Listed on the program are Barbara Shoebel, senior theory major, Jeannette Whitaker, senior biology major from Knoxville, and Randal LeQuire, senior music education major from Maryville.

Sonata Recital

April 13, at 8:00 p.m., Knoxville artists, Dorothy K. Greene, violinist, and Evelyn Miller, pianist, will present a Sonata Recital. They will play sonatas by Hayden, Beethoven, and Prokifieff.

Faculty Recital

April 17, at 7:00 p.m., Katharine Davies and Dorothy Vawter will play two-piano numbers. Also, Louise Lloyd and Dorothy Horne will play sonatas for violin and piano, by Dilius.

All these events will be held in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The dates are subject to change without notice. All students and faculty are cordially invited to attend.

Maryville Fine Arts Scholarships Awarded

In the Fine Arts scholarship competition held on campus March 28, scholarships of $200 each were awarded to pianist Mary Louise Ogden and vocalist Gayle Wolfe, both of Knoxville; and one of $100 to artist Bobby Hassler of Birmingham, Ala.

These scholarships are in the form of a certificate and are to be applied toward expenses at a college or school of music or art approved by Maryville College. Honorable mention went to Natalie Richard, Louisville, Ky.; LeNelle McCalmar, Chattanooga; and Shirley Ann Leever, Oak Ridge.

Judging the twenty contestants this year were Jack Rogers, organist and choirmaster at St. John's Episcopal Church in Knoxville; Mrs. Florence Allette, M.A., Eastman; and Mrs. Ruth Rowland, M. Mus., Southwestern.

Women's Varsity . .

Lots of Fun

The squad game was the best of all as far as hilarity goes. Elizabeth Enloe and Corny Force "wept buckets" as the Howies pulled triple plays right and left. The game was stopped for a few minutes when the Chillies star, Jackie Kendall, put in an appearance about 30 minutes late and sparked the team on to a 4-point total. The Howies totaled 26 points in all. Jean Kemper starred as she slugged two beautiful drives out toward the woods for two homers. Anna Sue Combs brought some more tears as she hit a pretty bat-breaker off into the blue.

Well, 'twas a fine series of games and maybe in track the Chillies will show the Howies up—we're rooting for ya, kids.

Go To 'Mikado' Next Week

VOLUME 38 — MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, APRIL 18, 1953 — NUMBER 19

Sellick Prepares For 'Mikado' Operetta

Floyd Eaddy To Play 'Ko-Ko'

One of the best-known musicians in the city of St. Petersburg, Fla., will be playing in the combined glee clubs' production of "The Mikado" April 24 and 25.

Floyd Eaddy, father of senior voice major Conrad Eaddy, will arrive on campus Monday evening to begin rehearsal with the glee clubs for his part in the production.

Directs Light Opera

Very active musically in St. Petersburg, Mr. Eaddy is the director of the Thalian Light Opera Company there. This company produces mostly Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, and presented "The Mikado" twice last year.

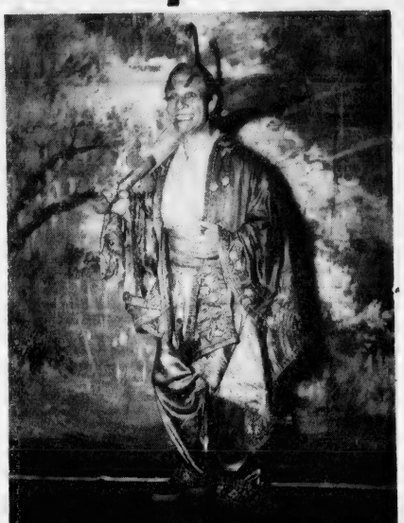
In addition to his work with light opera, Mr. Eaddy is minister of music at Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in St. Petersburg. He directs the Carreno Club Chorus, a women's musical group, and teaches voice.

He is constantly appearing in programs in the city, and directs other choral groups.

Costume Collection

The costumes used in the campus production of the operetta will come from Mr. Eaddy's stock. He has acquired his costume collection during the many years that he has been working in Gilbert and Sullivan.

The part that he will play in "The Mikado" is the one of "Ko-Ko," the "Lord High Executioner".



Tickets for the performance went on sale yesterday. Sales will continue throughout the week, and last sales will be made at the door on performance nights. Tickets are 60 cents.

This is the second year that a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta is being given as the springtime presentation by the combined glee clubs. Last year's production was the "Pirates of Penzance."

Following last year's procedure, two seperate casts will present the operetta on Friday and Saturday nights.

Lesta Merrick and Jackie Speigner, pianists, are accompanists for the production. It is being directed by Miss Edrie Sellick, director of the All Girl Choir and the Men's Glee Club.

Performances will be given Friday and Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Here Floyd Eaddy, father of senior voice major Conrad Eaddy, appears in costume for the part of "Ko-Ko" in "The Mikado." He will appear in the April 24-25 production of the operetta.

Miss Tom To Wed Hugh Jaynes May 2

Miss Eleanor Tom, Maryville College circulation and reference librarian, will be married May 2 to Hugh Jaynes, agricultural student at UT.

The wedding will take place at 4 p.m. in New Providence Presbyterian Church, with President Ralph Waldo Lloyd and the Rev. William Vogel presiding.

Miss Edrie Sellick will be maid of honor, with three classmates of the bride as bridesmaids. Conrad Eaddy will sing at the wedding, and Mrs. Conrad Eaddy will play.

Miss Tom, who is from Wahiawa, Hawaii, graduated from Tusculum College and received her M.A. degree in library science at Peabody.

Mr. Jaynes is from Greeneville and attended Tusculum before transferring to the University of Tennessee. The bride plans to continue her work in the library here.

No invitations to the wedding have been sent, but everyone is invited to attend the ceremony.

Frei Edits Echo

Joan Frei, junior English major from Manila, Philippines, is editor of this week's Echo.

Rolfe Duggar, junior political science major from St. Petersburg, Fla., edited the last issue of the Echo on April 4.

The Highland Echo staff will elect next year's editor from those trying out for this position.

Fiori Wins Oratory First Place In Debate Tourney

Jeannine Fiori, junior philosophy major from Niagara Falls, N. Y., was selected as one of the six outstanding women speakers at the Fredericksburg, Va., debate tournament, which was held April 1-4. Miss Fiori won first place in oratory at the contest.

The MC women's team, made up of Sarah Pledger and Jeanine Fiori, took first place in the women's division of the Dixie tournament, which was one of the three divisions of the tournament.

The men's team of Don Young and Kent Buser also participated in the tournament. Buser reached the semi-finals in oratory. Maryville was one of 60 schools represented at this tournament, some of which were from as far west as Oregon.

The Maryville men's and women's teams, composed of Bob Navratil and Bob Duff, and Evelyn Fields and Naomi Burgos, attended the National Convention of Pi Fields and Naomi Burgos, attended Kappa Delta in Kalamazoo, Mich., April 6-9.

Bob Duff was rated "good" in the oratory division of this tournament, which was held on the campus of Kalamazoo College.

Pre-Mins Elect Officers, To Install May 7

New officers for the Pre-Ministerial Association will be installed at a meeting on May 7. Garry Baker, junior sociology major from Butler, Pa., was chosen to head this organization for the coming year. Herb Kauhl, sophomore philosophy major from Syracuse, N. Y., and Bryan Ernst, junior English major from Ceylon, will be first and second vice-presidents, respectively. David Ramsey, sophomore history major from St. Petersburg, Fla., will be the new secretary-treasurer.

Workshop Chooses 14 New Members

At the last meeting of Writers' Workshop the following new members were elected: Abby Crosby, Kent Buser, Nancy Naylor, Carol F. Moore, Herb White, Barbara Chubb, Lynn Kiefer, Carol Ann Doll, Peggy Fisher, Joe Gilliland, Sheila Sutton, Fern Thompson, Gene Jackson, and Jeannine Fiori. The initiation of the new members and the annual picnic will be on May 4 in the woods.

The new members were invited to the meeting on April 7 at 4:30 p.m. in Dr. Hunter's classroom, at which time Nancy Ferguson and Jack Durant will read. They will be criticized by Joan Frei and Walt Elwood.

Evelyn Fields To Preside Over May Day Festivities

By Betty Ham

The annual May Day festival will be presented in the amphitheatre Friday, May 1, at 2 p.m., by the Physical Education Department in cooperation with the Fine Arts Department.

The theme of this year's show will be taken from the children's story, "The Grasshopper and the Ants," narrated on record by Don Wilson. The drama department, headed by Miss Kathleen Craven, will be in charge of the pantomime story. Mary Jim Bevan and Florence Clark, working with Miss Craven, are painting the scenery for the festival.

Dances will be presented by the modern dance class, and a special number will be contributed by members of the FTA society.

Rogers To Manage Show

Committee heads have been chosen from the women physical education majors. Barbara Rogers is the manager for the production; Virginia Sanderson is in charge of the court. Co-chairman is Shirley Axley, who is in charge of the children for the court.

Dixie Conner is publicity chairman, Natalie Prinzing, co-chairman. Helen Drinnen heads the grounds and property committee; co-chairmen are Emma Curtis, Elizabeth Murphy, and Joan Hershelman.

Barbara Gregory is in charge of flowers for the court and is to help with the music arrangements. Mary Ann Thompson is chairman for the costumes committee.

Fields to Reign

Reigning over the May Day festivities will be Queen Evelyn Fields, senior history major from Walstonburg, N. C. She will be escorted by the president of the senior class, Curt Wilbanks.

Other members of the court are Barbara Young, escorted by Howard Gress, senior representatives. Gene Jackson, escorted by Bill Dartnell, will represent the junior

Dartnell, Halstead, McWilliams Elected To Lead Campus

In elections held last Thursday and Friday, Bill Dartnell was elected president of the Student Body for the year 1953-54. A. C. McWilliams was elected vice-president, and Pat Halstead was elected Social Board Chairman.

Dartnell is a junior political science major from Dover, N.J., and served as business manager of the 1953 Chilhowean.

McWilliams is a sophomore psychology major from Northbrook, Ill., active ni YMCA, president of the sophomore class, and member of the varsity basketball squad.

Student Council

At the Wednesday, April 8, meeting of Student Council, preparations were made for the past student elections. Hank Van Hassel was appointed temporary chairman of the elections committee, and plans were made for the introduction of candidates at the past chapel student body meeting.

Discussion concerning the posting of the weekly agenda of Student Council was held; Council recommended that announcement of the agenda be made in chapel whenever there is particularly important business.

Concerning the petition asking the minutes of the Council to be printed in the Echo, Council decided that, instead, the Echo reporter and the Council secretary be responsible for the news story.

Council decided not to attend the meeting for th proposal of the Southern Student Association.

Council did not meet April 15.

College Students To Hold UN Study

The Eighth Annual Intercollegiate Institute on the United Nations, bringing college students from every section of the United States for a week's intensive study of the UN, will meet in New York City the week of June 14-20.

The Institute, known to be the oldest student leadership conference on the United Nations, is sponsored each year by the Collegiate Council for the United Nations, college affiliate of American Association for the United Nations, and will be held at Finch Junior College, East 78th Street, New York City.

UN Discussion Leaders

UN delegates, Secretariat members, and international relations experts will lead informal discussion on vital UN issues. In past years, such leading UN personalities as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt; Dr. Ralph Bunche; Dr. Frank Graham, former President of the University of North Carolina; Dr. Ales Bebler, delegate from Yogoslavia; and Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Ambassador from The Philpipines; have met with Institute delegates.

In addition to first hand study of United Nations program and progress, students will plan campus UN activities for the coming year and will formulate recommendations for United States policy in the UN. The Institute also serves as the annual CCUN conference, and new officers will be elected at its conclusion.

Open To All

The Institute is open to any college student interested in the United Nations, with preference given to students returning to college. Registration fee and room and board will amount to $42.50. Application blanks and further information may be obtained from the Collegiate Council for the United Nations, 45 East 65th Street, New York 21, New York.

Students To Dance At Coronation Ball

Gym To Become Royal Palace

By Elizabeth Frei

This year's spring dance sponsored by Bainonian and Athenian on May 2 has the Coronation Ball for its theme. The dance will start at 8 p.m., and will include eight program dances. Tickets will be $1.20 for each couple. It has been announced that no one will be permitted to attend the ball without a partner.

English Atmosphere

Guests will go through iron gates into a palace ball room. At one end of the room an English garden will be seen through large windows and at the other end the skyline of London will be silhouetted. The royal colors will be predominant throughout the decorations.

Objects of special interest will be a real patio leading off the ball room and a large chandelier lighting the center of the room.

Dance Chaperones

Chaperones for the ball will be Miss Frances Massey, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Commodore Fisher, Miss Kathleen Craven, and Mrs. Nell Strick.

Chairmen for the dance are Mary Virginia Ferguson for Bainonian and Ken Tuck for Athenian.

Cellist Silva To Play In Concert

By Lora Kinsinger

LUIGI SILVA

Luigi Silva, world-famous cellist, will present a concert program in the Alumni Gym April 27 at 8:00.

Mr. Silva, a native of Italy, has made his home in the United States since 1940. Before coming here he studied under his father, Resphigi in Rome, and Bonucci in Bologna. He was a professor at the Conservatories of Music at Venice, Padova, and Florence, and made concert tours throughout Europe with the Quartetto di Roma.

Professor And Editor

Since he has been in America, Mr. Silva has taught at Mannes Music School and at Eastman School of Music. At present he is doing mostly concert work along with being editor of cello music for Ricordi and Co. and re-editing the cello repertoire for G. Schirmer.

Accompanied by Alton O'Steen, head of the music department of the University of Alabama, Silva will play on a beautiful 258-year-old Pietro Guarnerius cello which belonged to the late Robert Maas of the Paganini Quarted.

Varied Program

The program, for which tickets will go on sale this week, will include "Toccata and Canzona," Della Ciaja-Silva; "Seven Variations on a Theme" from 'The Magic Flute' by Mozart," Beethoven; "Sonata in F Major, Op. 6 for cello and piano," Richard Strauss;

"Valses Nobles et Sentimentales," Schubert-Silva; "Hebrew Meditation," Ernest Bloch; "Blues" and "Scherzo," Burrill Phillips; and "Variations of Bravura on Themes from 'Moses' by Rossini" (to be played on one string), Paganini-Silva.

Vesper Choir Goes On Northern Tour

Last night selected members of the vesper choir left on their annual tour on which they will go through six states and cover 2,400 miles.

Director Harry Harter announced that the choir will appear on two television shows, the first to be from WICU-TV in Erie, Pa., April 21, 3:30-4 EST; then on the following day, April 22, from WEWS-TV in Cleveland, O., 1:30-1:45 EST. The choir will broadcast from WKRC in Cincinnati on April 29, 9:15-10 a.m. Another addition to the schedule is the alumni banquet to be held in Philadelphia tonight.

In Pennsylvania the choir will present concerts in Philadelphia, Latrobe, Erie, Titusville, Dubois, Pittsburgh, and Washington; in Ohio it will appear in Cleveland, St. Clairsville, Columbus, and Cincinnati, and it will also sing in Wheeling, W. Va. Going through Virginia to Philadelphia today, the choir will travel through Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, leaving Ohio Wednesday, April 19, go through Kentucky, and arrive back at the College at 9:45 that night.

YM To Hold Debate

A debate on "Discrimination in Employment" will be featured at YMCA tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 in Bartlett Auditorium.

Don Young and Kent Buser will take the negative, and Bob Navratil and Bob Duff will take the affirmative.

French Club To Meet, Elect New Members

At the regular meeting of the French Club on April 9, the date for the French Club dinner was set. It is to be on Tuesday night, May 12. Officers for the coming semester will be elected.

Plans for the next meeting, on April 23, were also made. The new members will be elected at that time. The club membership is limited to 30. Prospective members must have had at least one year of French and be interested in the club and its activities.

All members, old and new, are invited to attend the banquet.

Athenian To Give Yearly ABC Show Tonight At 7

By Wayne Brooks

"Girl of my Dreams," the fifth annual presentation of the ABC show, will be held tonight at 7 in the Alumni Gym.

Emceed by Walt Hiller, the show will feature a skit written by Jim Hunt, Joe Gilliland, Don Moffat, and Charles Cureton. The setting is in the South Sea Islands where six marooned sailors are discussing the girl of their dreams. The sailors will be played by Jim Demer, Herb White, Jim Crawford, Donald Young, Morris Taylor, and Jack Maxwell.

Following the opening festivities the ABC girls for 1953 will be formally presented. Elected earlier in the spring, the girls' names will not be revealed until tonight.

Chairman Walt Hiller stated that there will be no calendars this year due to the high cost of printing, however, pictures of the girls will be available, he said.

Athenian's first ABC show was presented in the spring semester of 1949.

At that time the society began the practice of selecting six girls for the calendar, trying to have each one represent a different season.

Last year the high cost involved in printing these calendars made production of them inadvisable this year.

ABC girls for 1953 represent six different sections of the United States.

The six winners will be titled Miss North, Miss North-East, Miss West, Miss Mid-South, Miss Mid-West, and Miss Deep South.

A group picture is planned of all the winners. Sale of these pictures will be announced later.

Woods To Lead Prayer

Janet Woods will lead prayer meeting next Thursday night April 23, at 9:30 in the Y Rooms

Bob Vandergriff was leader the past Thursday night

Faculty, Students Present Recitals

Four faculty members presented a faculty recital last night at 7:30 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The faculty members who appeared in this were Miss Dorothy Vawter, Miss Katherine Davies, Miss Louise Lloyd, and Miss Dorothy Vawter.

Miss Vawter and Miss Davies presented "Sonata for Two Pianos" by Mozart, and "Andante and Variations, Opus 46" by Schumann.

Miss Lloyd accompanied Miss Horne, violinist, in "Sonata for Piano and Violin" by Delius.

Miss Vawter and Miss Davies gave "Hungarian Dances, Numbers 4 and 7," by Brahms, and "Synthetic Waltzes" by Virgil Thompson.

On April 21, at 4:30 p.m., Joyce Linginfelter and Ann Taylor will give their joint recitals. Miss Taylor and Miss Davies will give "Sonata in D Major for Two Pianos" by Mozart, followed by Miss Linginfelter with "Fantasia in C Minor" by Bach, and "Sonata in F Major" by Mozart. Completing the program, Miss Linginfelter will play "La plus que lente" and "Jardins sous la pluie" by Debussy, and "Second Concerto, Opus 18" by Rachmaninoff. Miss Taylor will also play "Pavans" by Ravel, with Miss Davies at the second piano.

April 28 at 4:30 p.m. there will be a student recital. Students appearing will be Henry Emmans, organist; Ann Kirkpatrick, violinist; Eugene Jenkins, pianist; Doris Scott, soprano; Janice Clemens, pianist; Wayne Shelton, organist; and Marvel Vogel and Myrna Ginaven, pianists.

Fall Registration To Go On Through May 15

Registration for the fall semester is now going on. it is announced by the Personnel Office. For next year's seniors registration began April 15 and will continue through April 21. Prospective juniors will register April 23-30, and those who will be sophomores and freshmen are to register May 1-May 15.

Schedule cards must be signed by the major adviser and returned to the Personnel Office before May 15 to avoid the late registration fee of $2.50.

Students are also reminded to renew the $10 deposit at the treasurer's office by the end of this semester in order to be assured of places in classes and in the dormitories.

Luck To 'The Mikado'

Although it is a little early as yet to offer congratulations, we do want to wish the members of "The Mikado" cast good luck as they prepare to present it next week. It promises to be an even better show than "The Pirates of Penzance" was last year.

We believe it was a good break with tradition that prompted the production of two Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. The springtime serenades which the combined glee clubs used to give every year were entertaining, but the present change offers variety for the spectators and an opportunity for the glee club members to show their acting as well as their singing ability.

If Gilbert and Sullivan ever become monotonous, it is to be hoped that they too will give place to something new, rather than becoming a fixed tradition. In the meantime we are looking forward to next week's show.

On Elections

Now that student body elections are over and we have indicated our choice of officers for the coming year, it might be trite to reiterate that campaign speech slogan, "No matter who wins, let's all come back and support him."

There is some value, however, in these words that have been repeated so often they have nearly lost their meaning. Our support really is necessary for an effective student government. Only as we take an interest in its doings and express our opinions and ideas can it act for the welfare of all the students.

We have seen that Student Council has made progress in the past year, and we have also seen the increased attention it has been given by the people whom it represents. We hope that next year and in the years following there will be still more progress toward our goals, goals which are ultimately the development and self-realization of each individual to the greatest possible extent.

This matter of cooperation with the student government, no matter whether our candidate won or not, is only one aspect of the total picture, but it is a means to an end. It is a way to accomplish the results we hope for, and as such is our obligation both to ourselves and to others.

The National Game

The 1953 baseball season opened the first of this past week throughout the nation with the traditional throwing out of the first balls.

For many, this national sport will occupy the first place in their minds throughout the summer and up to the World Series next fall.

And then there are those who regard baseball as that thing which you hear on the radio during the summer while you're trying to get some favorite program which has bowed to the supremacy of sports.

Since baseball is the national game, those persons, as they do every year, will just have to put up with it until October.

ODE TO THE INDISPENSABLE ROOMMATE. . .

Who borrows all your ready cash
—Your roommate
Whose talk is senseless balderdash
—Your roommate
Who borrows all your notes and maps?
And books, to give them back—perhaps?
Who gets into the worstest scraps
—Your roommate
Who clutters up your bed with clothes?
Who never looks before she throws?
—Your roommate
Who keeps you wide awake at night?
Who never sets the alarm just right?
Who ought to go and fly a kite?
—Your roommate
Who always on your bedside camps?
Who borrows all your postage stamps?
Who breaks the furniture and lamps?
—Your roommate
But who's a constant pal to you?
Who overlooks the things you do?
Who knows and loves you through and through?
—YOUR MOTHER!

O-O-O

A CONSCIENTIOUS SENIOR'S PRE-COMPS SCHEDULE . . .

6:00 a.m.—Roll over, turn off alarm clock, go back to sleep.
6:01 a.m.—Tell roommate to stop breathing so loudly.
6:05 a.m.—Take roomie's advice to get up and see what a fine day it is.
6:05 a.m.—Open one eye and look.
6:07 a.m.—Get up, raise window, breathe deeply.
6:08 a.m.—Collapse back into bed after binding and gagging roomie and stuffing him into an overnight bag.
6:30 a.m.—Get up, release roomie, dress, head for dining hall.
7:00 a.m.—Breakfast. Make like you enjoy it. The foreign students might get the wrong idea.
7:05 a.m.—Breakfast is over. Where's that basin?
7:10 a.m.—Back to dorm to rearrange the clutter of the "lil home" (surely looks lived in, doesn't it?)
7:30 a.m.—Try to convince lazy roomie to get up and face the world (of exams?)
7:59 a.m.—Invigorating last-minute drag race (dragging roomie, of course) to Chapel. Hey ya-all, Mr. Black.
8:30-12:30—Classes. Be sure to wake up every 50 minutes to change classes. (One lecturer on this campus was so boring in one of his classes, two empty chairs got up and walked out!)
12:30 p.m.—Lunch. Go ahead and chance it. Lightning can't strike twice in the same place.
1:00 p.m.—It did!
1:30-5:30—More classes. Lousy schedule, huh?
6:00 p.m.—Dinner—indescribable.
7:00-12:00—Cut campus, play poker, or sleep, or something else educational.
12:00 midnight—End of light cut. Oh, well, nothing like a good night's sleep before an exam, all the profs say.
7:00 a.m.—Subside nervousness by eating a hearty breakfast. Ha!
8:30 a.m.—Walk confidently in to take comps.
An eternity later—Amen!

MISCELLANEOUS SUGGESTIONS

The Echo would like to take this opportunity to plug a new soap being placed on the market now: Lumbo, it's called. Doesn't lather. Doesn't bubble. Doesn't clean. Just company in the tub.

Fellows, we have just the dandy lil suggestion for your girl's belated Easter gift—an adorable fuzzy-wuzzy kitty (unhousebroken, can't have every thing, you know) Apply: Mrs. R. Robinson, front parlor, Baldwin Hall.

It's been told that instead of singing for a meal, the Y retreaters yodeled from necessity, not to mention their frequent boisterous, "Three cheers for the hired help."

TALK OF THE WEEK By Susan Cook

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Shirley Armstrong

If it just happens that you are a senior, and want to celebrate the fact that "comps" are over, or an under-classman who hasn't been campused for next week, you are probably wondering what will be on at the movies.

Well, the Park seems to be reviving some more "oldies," such as "The Apache Chief." This looks like another cowboy and Indian story, and Allen Curtis is the cowboy, or maybe he's a soldier. You can find out Monday.

The First Time

Tuesday and Wednesday will feature "The First Time," with Robert Cummings and Barbara Hale. Could be anything, but whatever it is, it's funny, so for a good comedy, try this one.

Thursday and Friday may have something you shouldn't miss. Bathing beauties, bathing beauties, and more bathing beauties, which, of course, would include Esther Williams. Appropriate title, too, namely "Million Dollar Mermaid," and if Esther sticks to the water instead of swimming around in clouds like she has been doing in her last few pictures, it ought to be "purty good." Maybe you like her better in the clouds, though!

Across The Street

Monday through Wednesday the Capitol has scheduled "Off Limits," with Mickey Rooney. This doesn't sound too new either, but that's beside the point! Don't know what they have the rest of the week so I guess we'll all just be surprised.

New Books

Another tip for those seniors who are through with "comps". Try "Little Bill" Miller's book, "Relax And Enjoy Life," which can be found over in the library—naturally.

Another interesting book I saw over there was "Yesterday Today and Forever." If you like the Trapp Family which was here last semester, you might like to read about them. In this book, Maria Augusta Trapp (the mother) tells of their religious life, and of their flights from the Nazis.

One More

And only one more! "Student Participation in College Administration" might prove very interesting to you who have been keeping up with "the main topic of discussoin" lately. Seems as if it caught the eye of the faculty, too, because, at the moment, one of them has it checked out!

Y Radio

If you'll be listening, on Wednesday (usual time, I presume), April 22, Y Radio will present "Saul of Tarsus," by William Ford Manly. This show is being directed by three of next year's directors: Sarah Pledger, Nancy Rideout, and John Graulich. Ralph Force will be the announcer, and Gordon Van Pelt will star as Saul.

Socially Speaking

By Sadie Davis

Spring seems to have brought a great many visitors, both new and old ones, to Maryville campus these past few weeks.

Cathy Holmes was visited by her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. St. Clair, and her sister, Pearl, during Easter week-end.

Pat Brooks, accompanied by Natalie Richards and Doris Goodknight, visited her sister Jo Brooks, this week.

April 10-12 witnessed the visit of Miss Evelyn Copelow and Mrs. Joe Thompson to Mrs. Thompson's daughter, Jeannine Thompson.

Lora Kinsinger was visited by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Kinsinger, during Easter week-end.

Llelanie Sutton visited her sister, Sheila, for the week of April 4-10.

The week of April 4-11 was also a big one for Nancy Walker, for she was visited by her fiance, Arden Mersier. Arden, a pre-ministerial student, attends Otterbein College in Westerville, O., where he is a member of the Alpha Lambda Epsilon fraternity.

Pattie Arterburn has been renewing old acquaintances this past week before she returns to her home in Jacksonville, Fla.

Nancy Mandeville, ex'55, was the guest of Abby Crosby for the week-end of April 4-7. Nancy is now attending Geneva College in Beaver Falls, Pa.

The week-end of April 10-13 brought visitors to three other freshman girls. Mrs. Moore of Big Cove, Ala., was the guest of her daughter, Mary Moranville. Mary Houff from Huattsville, Md., was also visited by her mother. Carol Driscoll, a student at North Fulton High School in Atlanta, Ga., visited her sister, Vera Driscoll.

Another visitor from Atlanta was Jane Force, a sophomore at North Fulton High School, who visited her sister, Corny Force, during Easter week-end.

Diana Evans and Kathy Chase were also visited by their parents April 6-8.

Easter week-end witnessed the arrival of Dee Wood's sister Marcella who is a senior at Withrow High School in Cincinnati, O. Other visitors during this week-end were Sara Waren and Mr. and Mrs. Scott, who visited their daughters, Doris and Barbara Scott.

April 4 found many of our students Atlanta bound. Among these was Carol Gramlet, who was the guest of Sue McMough. Elaine Tucker, Nancy McMillan, Dave Foskey and Carol Ann Doll visited their parents.

Other Maryvillians who spent Easter elsewhere were Ginny Ginaven, guest of Faith Nollner at her home in Carthage; Jessie McMullen, who visited her sister, Edith, in Waynesville, N.C.; Joanie Campbell, who spent the week-end

Bobby Boring, class of 1950, had a short and unsatisfactory try-out with the New York Giants in Phoenix, Arizona, this spring. Bob had to quit winter league ball (as we earlier reported ot you) before the winter was half over because of a bad ankle. Perhaps this hampered his try-out with the Giants, too.

Bob played in part of four different exhibition games all at third base according to the box scores in the Sporting News before being shipped down. During his stay at Maryville and during most of his minor league career since he has been a shortstop. He appeared at the plate nine official times this spring, collecting two hits and scoring two runs for a .222 batting average. One of those hits was a double and brought in a run. He was flawless in the field, handling five chances, four assists and one putout, without error.

Somehow Bob managed to play in the Fourteenth Annual Kiwanis Crippled Children's Benefit Game in Los Angeles early in the season. The Major All-Stars whipped the Hollywood Stars, 3-1, with Bob playing shortstop after relieving Bill Rigney of the Giants about midway through the game. The All-Stars, coach by the immortal Detroit Star, Ty Cobb, evidently was made up of volunteers from the few major teams not training in sunny Florida. Bob really showed form in this game collecting two hits in two times at bat including a double for a perfect evening at the plate. His fielding was again perfect with two assists and one putout. He participated in one double-play.

Maybe next year will be Bob's year to make the majors. Anyway we certainly hope so and wish him luck in what we hope is his last season in minor league ball.

About this time of the year someone always brings up something about swimming and track. Several have again brought up the subject, notably freshmen. Seems as if I recall correctly Maryville used to be represented in both of these sports intercollegiately. Many can still remember the Scots' last track team which crushed cinders back in the spring of 1951.

From 1912 up 'till 1951 Maryville always had a team though seldom running in more than four meets a year. Before 1912 track was an inter-class affair so evidently the cycle is now complete. It just isn't worth spending the money and effort preparing a decent team for only one or two meets. Because of our early closing date and still earlier exams we have little time during real track weather to form a suitable team and compete with other schools, and few schools near here that have teams are down in our level of competition.

Swimming is a horse of a different color. Except for 1949 Maryville hasn't dunked a team in the muddy waters (no reflection on our pool or Barbara Rogers, please) since 1942. This sport just didn't pay off either. No small school in this section of the country has a team nor is interested in the sport. It just didn't pay to swim against UT, Vandy and Berea all the time. We lost five meets in 1949 and all six in 1942 against this type of pretty stiff competition. It would be nice to have a swimming team and maybe someday in the far distant future we will again, the same with track, but at present it isn't at all feasible.

It may still be early in the season for definite trends in batting averages, but in case some are interested here are the results for the first five games (two with Miami, two with Hiwassee and one with LMU).

The averages prove that the Scots lack the long ball this season. The longest ball yet hit for the Scots has been good only for a double; therefore the necessity for speed on the base paths. The SB above is for stolen bases. It isn't hard to see how the Scots have scored their runs thus far this season, but as long as they keep their unblemished record, who cares?

Varsity Side-Pocket

By Dixie Conner

By Dixie Conner

Women's Varsity roared to a close Thursday, April 9, with the advent of the two-day track season conducted by Mrs. Queener and her major assistant, Helen Drinnen. The first day was, as per usual, a rainy one and was held in the Intramural Gym. "Teacher" Drinnen demonstrated the form for such things as the shotput, discus throw, high jump, and standing and running broad jumps. The girls were given a thorough workout in preparation for the track test to be given the following meeting of Varsity.

The last day the air was warm and balmy as the girls shuffled slowly to Varsity for the last time, tears, unchecked, flowing down their sun-tanned cheeks. Being athletes, though, they soon straightened up and played at being cheerful. The required events were: discus throw, 4 ft.; baseball throw, 75 ft.; shotput, 16 ft.; standing broad jump, 6 ft. 6 in.; running broad jump, 10 ft.; high jump, 3 ft. 8 in.; and running, 50 yds. in 9 seconds. The majority of the girls passed all the tests although some of us had to try, try again when at first we didn't succeed. The main "gripe" the following day was sore arms resulting from throwing those big old heavy things.

At the present Mrs. Largen and Mrs. Queener are adding the points of each girl, hoping for a big "M" Club membership this year. The Women's Physical Education Department is also becoming involved in its annual presentation, the May Day program. We're hoping to see you all out at May Day—it will certainly be worth your while.

Scot Netmen Down TWC, TPI; Tie C-N In Thriller

By Jim Demer

Scots Edge Tennessee Wesleyan

The Maryville Scotties edged Tennessee Wesleyan College 4-3, last Wednesday on Maryville's courts. The Scots won four of the five singles matches, but lost both doubles matches.

Kent Buser beat McKenzie in the number one position, 6-1, 6-3. John Anderson suffered the only singles loss as he was beat in three sets by Creech, 4-6, 8-6, 6-3. Also going three sets but winning was number three man Dick Lebold. Lebold beat Wilson 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. Captain Ed Breitback, who resembles a utility infielder, beat Clarke (he wasn't very straight) 6-4, 6-2. Marshall England picked up a 6-3, 6-0 win over Martinez in the number five spot.

Buser and Anderson playing number one doubles lost to McKenzie and Creech 6-4, 6-4. Roberts and England won the first set but lost the next two as they dropped a 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 decision to Wilson and Clarke.

The Summary

Buser (M) defeated McKenzie (T.W.), 6-1, 6-3
Creech (T.W.) defeated Anderson (M), 4-6, 8-6, 6-3.
Lebold (M) defeated Wilson (T), 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.
Breitback (M) defeated Clarke (T.W.), 6-4, 6-2.
England (M) defeated Martinez (T.W.), 6-3, 6-0.
McKenzie-Creech (T.W.) defeated Buser-Anderson (M), 6-4, 6-4.
Wilson-Clarke (T.W.) defeated EnglandRoberts (M), 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Rivals Tied

On April 10, the Scot Netmen journeyed to Jefferson City where they met the Carson Newman Eagles. The final score was 4-4 as the deciding match was called off because of darkness. Maryville again showed strength in the singles matches as they won 4 out of the six matches; but they failed to win in the doubles matches.

Kent Buser dropped a tough one to Bud Catlett as he lost in three sets, 1-6, 8-6, 6-2. Dick Lebold moving up to number two, also lost in three sets, 4-6, 7-5, 8-6. Ed (pick a number) Breitback got his big chance to play up and came through with a 6-4, 6-4 win over Foxx. John Anderson beat Carr 6-2, 6-3. Marshall England dropped Brooks 6-2, 6-3. George Roberts beat Bob Martil in a hard fought battle 6-1, 3-6, 8-6.

Buser and Lebold lost the number one doubles 6-2, 6-2. Breitback and Anderson dropped the second match, 1-6, 7-5, 8-6.

The Summary:

Catlett (C.N.) defeated Buser (M), 1-6, 8-6, 6-2.
Huling (C.N.) defeated Lebold (M), 4-6, 7-5, 8-6.
Breitback (M) defeated Foxx (C.N.), 8-6, 6-4.
Anderson (M) defeated Carr (C.N.), 6-3, 6-3.
England (M) defeated Brooks (C.N.), 6-2, 6-2.
Roberts (M) defeated Martil (C.N.), 6-1, 3-6, 8-6.
Catlett-Huling (C.N.) defeated Buser-Lebold (M), -62, 6-2.
Foxx-Carr (C.N.) defeated Breitback-Anderson (M), 1-6, 7-5, 8-6.

T.P.I. Falls To Scots

The Scots beat T.P.I. on Tuesday, 6-1, for their best win of the season. All the singles matches were won with only one match going more than two sets.

With the same line-up as was used against Carson-Newman, Kent Buser opened up with a 6-1, 6-1 win over Joe Dean. Dick Lebold won in the number two spot against Joe McClellan, 9-7, 6-0. Ed Breitbach beat Gene O'Hara in three sets 6-4, 1-6, 6-4. John Anderson defeated Jack Leich 6-0, 6-1. Marshall England beat James Drafer 6-2, 6-1.

Buser and Lebold won the number one doubles over Dean and Leich 6-4, 8-6. Breitback and Anderson dropped a 6-4, 6-3, decision to McClellan and O'Hara.

The Summary

Buser (M) defeated Dean (T.P.I.), 6-1, 6-1.
Lebold (M) defeated McClellan (T.P.I.), 9-7, 6-0.
Breitback (M) defeated O'Hara (T.P.I.), 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.
Anderson (M) defeated Leich (T.P.I.), 6-0, 6-1.
England (M) defeated Drfaer (T.P.I.), 6-2, 6-1.
BuserLebod (M) defeated Dean-Lecih (T.P.I.), 6-4, 8-6.
McClellan-O'Hara (T.P.I.) defeated Breitbach-Anderson (M), 6-4, 6-3.

Short, Robinson Win Two, Hill One

By Rolfe Duggar

Scots 14, Miami 11

The Scots pulled a reversal on the Miami Redskins scalping them 14-11 in the first of a two-game series. Larry Hill came in to snuff out a Miami rally in the eighth and save the victory for Sonny Short.

Short just wasn't in usual form as he walked thirteen, allowed six hits and threw three wild pitches in allowing ten runs, only four of which were earned. He struck out eight in his seven and a third innings on the mound.

The first inning saw the Redskins push across two runs due to Short's wildness; only to have the Scots collect six in retaliation, none earned, in the bottom half of the frame. The Scots scored one in the third on Don Alford's walk, an infield out and Short's double.

The Scots picked up another singleton in the fifth frame and then six more in the big seventh. Only one hit, a double by Lyn Sexton, came off Scot bats in the seventh. Five walks, a hit batsman and wild running Scots who stole nine bases brought on the Redskin's downfall.

Miami was held scoreless after their initial tallies in the first until the top of the seventh when they tallied a lone counter. In the eighth Short and the Scot infield blew up as the Redskins made the most of three hits, two walks and two errors for seven runs. Charlie Duguette put the clincher on the innings scoring and on Short's pitching with a two-run homer. Hill came in to put out the fire in the eighth but was nicked for a single tally in the ninth.

Shackled by four-hit pitching the weak-hitting Scotties made the most of their speed and skill on the base-paths, eleven walks and five errors to dump the Redskins for the second straight day, this time 9-2.

Harry Robinson showed mid-season form in letting the Miami boys down with only five hits in racking up his first triumph of the young season. Robinson struck out three and walked three and was in trouble only once; in the ninth inning when his mates committed two errors behind him to go with a hit, walk and stolen base good for one run. The first four innings Robinson was untouchable as the Redskins could muster only one walk before Red Mitroff and Dave Skillings each singled to break the ice in the fifth. Both were left stranded on the sacks.

The Scots scored once in the first, second and fourth and six in the eighth. Only three were earned, however. Another run should have been allowed to score when in the seventh Robinson was blocked and knocked down going around third by the third-sacker on a hit by Jimmy Campbell. The umpires didn't notice this little bit of interference and Robinson died on third as Earl Lawson was caught off second.

The Scots came crashing through in the eighth, scoring six runs, only one earned, on two hits. After Bobby Shelton flied out to center Bill Van Benthuysen drew a walk and took second on Chuck Dorsten's balk. Don Moore lashed a single to center, Van Benthuysen scoring. Moore took second on an error on the shortstop on an attempted pickoff. Don Alford drew a walk but was forced out at second by Bob Ramger, Moore taking third. Robinson took first thanks to catcher Don Puls who tipped his bat on a swing, thus loading the sacks. Bill Anderson and Earl Lawson drew walks scoring Moore and Ramger. Campbell hit a sharp single, his second of the afternoon, to center scoring both Robinson and Anderson, Lawson mving to third. Then using that good old Honaker play Lawson stole home to end the scoring as Shelton grounded out to end the inning.

Scots 17, Hiwassee 4

In the first of a two-game set with the Hiwassee Tigers the Scots pounded out eleven hits, all singles, and made the most of seventeen walks for a 17-4 win.

Lanky Larry Hill pitched and helped bat the Scots to the victory. Hill allowed only eight hits and didn't issue a pass in going the route to post his first win of the season. He also collected two of the Scots eleven singles and drove in two runs.

Things looked bad for Hill in the second when Rich Spurling opened the inning with a long triple over Bill Van Benthuysen's head. Catcher Jim "Pop" Davis then followed with a double between Lynn Sexton and Van Benthuysen to score Spurling. Gene Jones followed Davis with another double in about the same spot to drive in Davis. With things looking black Hill settled down and retired the next three batters.

The Scots were given two runs in the bottom of the first. Three more came across in the second on three singles, a couple of walks, a rash of stolen bases and a beautiful sacrifice by Bobby Shelton which brought in two runs.

The Scots' big inning was the sixth when they pushed across six runs on only three hits. Three walks, a hit batter and a sacrifice that the Tigers just couldn't get anyone out on plus heads up base running put the game on ice. After that it just wans't a contest.

John Reed and Sarah Lynn Kramer, children of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Kramer, alumni of Maryville College, will be crown bearer and flower girl for May Day. In addition, Margaret Ann Kramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kramer, also MC graduates, is to be flower girl. It is traditional to have in the May Day program children who are sons and daughters of former MC students, or who are in some way connected with the college.

May Day History

Last year Dr. Lloyd placed May Day in the hands of the Physical Education Department. Formerly, it had been arranged in the summertime by the YWCA. In those days the May Queen was the only queen elected during the year and was naturally the most outstanding girl on campus. May Day was an all-campus event. Music was presented by the men's and women's choirs, and before the college permitted dancing, was the main spring event.

Later, the May Day program was turned over to the Expression Department and remained in their charge until last year.

The Phys. Ed. Department has been given a costume and property room and is accumulating material from time to time to use in subsequent May Day celebrations.

Scots 4, Hiwassee 2

Sonny Short had everything that he lacked against Miami as he set the Tigers down on six hits and didn't allow a single earned run in the second meeting of the two teams. His control was near perfect, walking only one man while striking out twelve Hiwassee batters.

Both squads pushed across a tally in the first stanza. Short struck out the first two Tigers then yielded a double to Ted Belcher. Catcher Don Moore's passed ball and Rich Spurling's single scored Belcher.

The Scots scored when Jimmy Campbell was safe on a fielder's choice, Bobby Shelton walked, Campbell stole third and Bill Van Benthuysen singled.

Short struck out the side in the third, but in the fourth the Tigers chalked up another counter on Belcher's single, a walk to Spurling, a single by Jim Davis and an error by Moore on a throw to first.

As the game wore on it looked as if the Scots were going down to their first defeat until the bottom of the eighth. Then the Scotties broke the game open with three runs and the ball game. Earl Lawson started things off with his first hit of the season and then stole second. Campbell drew a walk and Shelton was hit by a pitched ball to load the bases.

Van Benthuysen walked to force in Lawson with the tying run. Moore hit a long fly to left field, Campbell scoring after the catch to give the Scots their winning run. Shelton scored after Charlie Dunn's long fly to center was caught to end the scoring.

Scots 3, LMU 1

Harry Robinson, as superb as ever, pitched the Scots to their fifth straight triumph of the young season, a 3-1 victory over the Lincoln Memorial University Railsplitters.

Robinson was as cool and collected and had as much stuff on the ball in the ninth inning as he had in the first while he racked up his second win of the season. Only in the fourth could the LMU squad muster anything that could slightly resemble a rally. A fielder's choice following Haskin's single put Crowe on first. A walk to Ross and a single by Campbell scored their lone tally.

Buddy Berry was almost as brilliant as he gave up only five hits and no earned runs to the Scotties. All the Scots' runs came in the second on an error by Berry, singles by Lynn Sexton and Jimmy Campbell, a walk, an infield out, a passed ball and five stolen bases. So far this year no one has been able to stop the Scots on the base paths, consequently five straight wins.

FAC To Offer Week Of Music Programs

MC Music Week To Begin May 5

By Joan Frei

The division of Fine Arts announces a series of varied programs beginning next week in celebration of Music Week. Recitals and concerts will be featured as the climax of the year's musical offerings. All events except the choir concert will take place in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The Vesper Chori's program will be in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Adult Beginners

An adult beginners recital will be held at 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 5.

Pianists Katherine Kerns, Barbara Clark, Sue Binnion, Jack Maxwell, Grace Harrison, Hershel Nelson, and Eloize Gazaway will appear on the program. A clarinet trio comprised of Ruth Blackburn, Mary Sue Munson, and Will Stradtman will play a theme from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony; a piano quartet of Olivia Vawter, Nancy Jones, Jean Kemper, and Kathy Homes will play Vawter's "Etude"; and the percussion quintet Terry Albert, Annette Faust, Eddie Grigsby, Margaret Potts, and Jackie Speigner will be "Drummin' 'Round the Mountain."

The Music Ed Classes Band will play Taylor's "Sunset Meditations" and "Junior Band March." Others to appear will be Richard Cave, trumpet, Ruth Sexton, trombone, and Preston Bogin, baritone.

Merrick And Eaddy

Lesta Merrick, pianist, from Harrington Park, N. J., and Conrad Eaddy, baritone, from St. Petersburg, Fla., will present their senior piano and voice recitals on Thursday, May 7 at 8 p.m. Mrs. Alice Eaddy will be the accompanist.

Eaddy will sing "Mighty Lord, and King All Glorious" by Bach, "Spe Modo Vivitur" by Parker, and Mendelssohn's "Is Not His Word Like A Fire." He will also present Brahms' "Vier ernste Gesange, Op. 121" and a group of old American songs by Aaron Copland.

Miss Merrick will play Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition," "Imprmotu in E Flat Major, Op 90" by Schubert, Nocturne in B Flat Minor, Op. 9, No. 1" by Chopin, "Rhapsody in G Minor, Op. 79, No. 22" by Brahms, and Mozart's "Concerto in A Major." Katherine Davies will be at the second piano.

Brakebill and Hoover

Another senior recital on Friday, May 8, at 8 p.m., will feature Don Brakebill, tenor, from Maryville, and Ann Hoover, pianist, from Yatesboro, Pa. Lesta Merrick is to accompany the recital.

Brakebill will give a group of songs by Purcell, "An die ferne Geliebte, Op. 98" by Beethoven, several numbers by R. Vaughan-Williams, and two spirituals arranged by H. T. Burleigh.

Miss Hoover will play "The Harmonious Blacksmith" by Handel, "Fantasia" by Mozart, a group by MacDowell, and Tschaikowsky's "Concerto No. 1 in B flat Minor, Op. 23." Miss Davies will again play the secnod piano.

Orchestra Concert

The Maryville College orchestra, under the direction of Curtis Hughes, will present its annual concert Saturday, May 9, at 8 p.m. Barbara Scott, piano major from Wilmington, N. C., will appear as pianist.

The orchestra will play Mozart's "Don Giovanni Overture," Haydn's "Symphnoy No. 101 in D Major," Strauss' "Emperor Waltzes, Opus 437," and Schumann's "Concerto In A Minor for Piano and Orchestra." Miss Scott is the soloist in the piano concerto.

Choir Concert

On Sunday, May 10, the Vesper Choir will give its yearly home concert, with the same program it gave on tour. The concert, which will take the place of Vespers, is

College To Raise '54 Student Fees

$54 Increase For Next Year

By Joe Gilliland

The Personnel Office announced this week that there will be a $27 per semester increase in student fees effective 1 September, 1953.

This is the second increase of fees within the past two years. Specific increases raise the tuition to $130, and board to $150. Tuition and board were formerly $120 and $133 respectively. The increases in costs make a total of $54 per year.

College Statement

A formal statement from the college administration reads in part as follows:

"For the last two years Maryville College by the most strenuous efforts has maintained without change the fees published in the catalogs for 1951-52 and 1952-53, and has hoped that advances could be avoided through 1953-54. In view of the fact, however, that continued rise in basic costs of operation has created operating deficits, the College finds it necessary to increase the fees for tuition and for board."

A rise in fees was announced in the spring of 1951 for the 1951-52 school year. Reasons given at that time were basically the same.

Other Costs Same

Costs of activity fee, books, and room remain the same. These fee increases were presented to Student Council at its meeting on April 22. Formal announcement came from the Personnel Office late this week.

QUEEN EVELYN FIELDS reigned over the May Day festivities yesterday, held in the college amphitheater.

Spring Formal Set For Tonight At 8

Saturday afternoon will find all Athenians and Bainonians working to turn the Alumni Gymnasium into Buckingham Palace for the spring formal Saturday at 8 p.m. The theme for dance is the Coronation Ball, which is being carried out to intricate detail.

Grand Entrance

The entrance will be through iron gates opening into the palace ball room. At one end will be the skyline of London and at the other an English garden. Throughout all these will predominate the royal colors.

Lighting

A large chandelier will be in the center of the ball room which will add even more to the English effect. There will also be a real patio leading off from the ball room.

Great Event

Being one of the main events of the year, many students are expected to attend. Mary Virginia Ferguson and Ken Tuck are the chairmen in charge.

The chaperones for the dance will be Frances Massey, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Commodore Fisher, Kathleen Craven, and Mrs. Nell Strick.

Echo Staff Members To Visit Journal Plant

Highland Echo staff members and guests will visit the Knoxville Journal newspaper plant, after dining at the S&W Cafeteria next Monday, May 4.

Editor Holland reminded all persons to congregate at the local bus station in sufficient time to catch the 6 p.m. bus to Knoxville. Cost per person will be approximately $1.75.

Dr. F. A. Griffitts, professor of chemistry and advisor to the Highland Echo, will chaperone the group.

Sigs Schedule Party

Alpha Sigma will not meet this week. An out-of-town party is scheduled for next week-end, according to Joe Bender, president.

Recognition Slated For AGS Seniors

Recognition ceremonies for the 14 seniors elected to Alpha Gamma Sigma will be held in chapel Thursday, May 7. Verton M. Queener, professor of history and chairman of the division of social sciences, will be the speaker. Officers of the Maryville College scholarship honor society are Viola M. Lightfoot, president, Louise Lloyd, vice-president; and Edwin R. Hunter, secretary.

Students

Students chosen for membership in the organization are Jean Alva Anderson, Ruth Ellen Blackburn, Sarah Heron Brown, Florence Irene Clark, Robert Alan Coles, Doris Holt de Nagy, Edwin Van Holland, Joyce Kaebnick, Karole Kapp Leech, Kenneth Maurice Rutherford, Gertrude Elizabeth Singleton, Mary Jane Spencer, Elizabeth Ellen Stiles, and Sue Ellen White.

Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Amarillo, Tex., will speak in chapel on May 13.

Student Council

At the Student Council meeting Wednesday night the possibility of forming a service committee was discussed. The committee would take over some of the old MSO duties, such as disposing of the funds from the coke machine, sending flowers, and similar services which are carried out by the house committees in the women's dormitories.

The service committee would be made up both of student council members and non-council members, and is especially recommended because there will be no MSO representation next year.

It was decided to send an exchange chapel program to Tusculum and to use the parish play.

Council discussed plans for High School Day, which will be held Wednesday, May 6.

On April 22 Student Council brought up the matter of stricter supervision of town night rules in town. Types of town night violations reported were cases of girls failing to be in groups of three or being out of bounds.

The WSGA was asked to hold meetings to warn the students about these town night violations.

House meetings were held last week in which girls were reminded that juniors and seniors taking their extra town night privileges are obligated to report any freshman and sophomore girls they may see in town.

Student council also made plans for the Athletic Board of Control elections, and for the blood drive.

Dr. Caldwell To Give Graduation Speech

Church Leader To Give Address

By Shirley Armstrong

President Frank Hill Caldwell, of the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, will be the speaker at Commencement, May 20, this year. President Caldwell was here in 1945, when he was the leader of the February Meetings.

He has received his education from various schools, colleges, and universities throughout this country, as well as from the Edinburg (Scotland) University. In America, he attended the U.S. Military Academy, the University of Mississippi, Louisville Seminary (of which he has been president since 1936), and Centre College.

Past Degrees

Dr. Caldwell received his A.B. degree from Centre College in 1926, his Ph.D. degree from Edinburg, Scotland, in 1934, a D.D. degree from Centre in 1936, and a LL.D. degree from Centre in 1937.

Dr. Caldwell has been active in church work all his life, being recognized as one of the leaders in the Presbyterian Church. He has been a member of the Permanent Committee on Cooperation and Union of the Presbyterian Assembly since 1937; he was secretary of this body in 1946.

Visited College Before

Besides appearing at Maryville for the 1945 February Meetings, he has visited here several times for meetings with Dr. Lloyd and other prominent church leaders for the work of the Permanent Committee on Cooperation and Union.

Commencement Vespers

The speaker at the Commencement Vespers will be Rev. Don A. Spencer, D.D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, Tenn. Mr. Spencer's daughter, Jay, is a senior sociology major student at Maryville.

'Antigone' Set For May 15, 19

White To Star In Leading Role

By Emily Smith

The Maryville College Playhouse will give two performances of their annual commencement play on Friday, May 15, and on Tuesday, May 19, at 8:30 p.m. on the front steps of Thaw Hall. This year's production is the "Antigone" of Sophocles. Tickets will go on sale May 11.

The translation of the play from the Greek was done by Kintchin Smith, who has made a dramatic translation rather than a poetic one. The characters and the spirit of the play remain the same. The college presentation does not aim at an accurate historical production but rather for the feeling of the play.

Audienced-Focused Play

"Antigone" is to be an audience-focused play for understanding the spirit of it. The scenery is being designed by art majors not as the Greeks did it, but as an interpretation of this spirit for the 20th century. The costumes are not the traditional ones of the ancient Greek theater but are based on the dress of the classical Greek period.

Cast

Sue White, senior sociology major from Middletown, Ohio, will star as Antigone. The supporting roles will be taken by Dorothy Crawford, junior sociology major from Monticello, N.Y., as Ismene; nad Bob Read, junior psychology major from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., as King Creon.

Preston Bogia will play Haemon; Martha Horton will be Eurydice, and Dick Morse will play Teiresias. Jimmy Shields will take part of the sentry; Ralph Force, the messenger. Art Van Alystyne will be the leader of the chorus. The women of the chorus are Garnetta Alexander, Peggy Fisher, Nancy Naylor, and Susan Cook.

Dean Allison, senior German major from Salineville, Ohio, will be house manager. Moody Bryles is stage manager.

Committees

Theta Presents "Beau And Arrows" Of 1953

At their banquet Tuesday night, Theta Epsilon Society presented their "Beau and Arrows" for this year. The banquet was decorated with an Indian theme, and the "Beau", John Glanville, sophomore biology major from Medham, N.J., made his entrance through a "teepee" which covered the door.

The Theta Arrows are Paul Merwin, senior sociology major from Rutherford, N.J., Joe Stater, from Trenton, Mich., Harold Glad, senior physical education major from Brooklyn, N.Y., and Jack Barber.

Theta will not meet this Saturday night.

Goucher Offers 20 Fellowships

Twenty fellowships for graduate study in elementary teacher training are available at Goucher College, Baltimore, Md., for 1953-54. The fellowships, in varying amounts up to $1725, are open to women graduates of liberal arts colleges who have no prior training or experience as teachers.

The new program, which has been made possible by a generous grant from the Ford Fund for the Advancement of Education, will lead to a degree of Master of Education in one year.

Practical Experience

Goucher College will work in close cooperation with the Baltimore City public schools in the graduate program. The accent of the course of studies will be on practice teaching and seminar discussions of problems met in the classroom. Purpose of the program is to provide elementary teachers equipped with a rich liberal arts background as well as fine technical training.

Deadline for applications is June 15, 1953. Address Director of Admissions, Towson, Baltimore 4, Md.

Vols To Install Officers

Installation of next year's officers will be held at Student Vols, Sunday, May 3, following Vespers in Bartlett. Mr. Black, sponsor, will give a brief talk.

This will be the last meeting of the year, and all members are urged to attend.

World Traveler Phillips Tells Of Unusual Trips

By Wayne Brooks

"Exploring Queen of Sheba Land", an account of Dr. Wendell Phillips' journey to the land of Yemen, home of the biblical queen, was presented before a capacity audience last Sunday night in the Fine Arts Center.

Dr. Phillips, president of the American Foundation for the Study of Man, narrated the thrilling account of the dangerous trek to Mareb, site of Sheba's ancient capitol. The first foreigner ever to explore the interior of this little-known country, he and his party were forced to flee for their lives late in the spring of 1951 and subsequently abandoned tons of rich archaeological treasure as well as over a quarter of a million dollars worth of equipment.

Return Trip

Asked if he was considering a return trip to Yemen he replied that the security risks were too great to attempt anything in the near future. Since that time he has recovered a portion of his equipment.

Dr. Phillips arrived at Maryville late Sunday afternoon from the West Coast and Redlands University, Redlands, Calif., where he had been awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. In addition to this he has an honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio, and one from the Imperial Philo Byzantine University of Spain.

A Fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, Dr. Phillips holds the unique position of Director of Antiquities in the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman and is Sheik of the Bel Harith Tribe of South Arabia.

Other Discoveries

Luigi Silva Finds Time To Teach, Edit, Loaf

By Roberta Hadley

"Maryville is a beautiful place," said Luigi Silva, cellist, who appeared under the sponsorship of the MC artist series on Monday night, April 27. "The Fine Arts Center is not only functional but pretty, which is not always the case with functional buildings."

Mr. Silva's program included "Chaconne," Vitali-Silva; Variations on a Theme from "The Magic Flute" by Mozart, Beethovan; "Sonata in F major, Op. 6," Richard Strauss; "Sonata in B flat major," Baccherini; "Hebrew Meditation," Bloch; "Blues and Scherzo," Phillips; Variations of Bravura on the Themes from "Moses" by Rossini (played on one string), Paganini-Silva. His encores were "Dying Fountain," Rosselini, and "Spinning Song," Popper.

His Cello Work

Mr. Silva has done a good deal of arranging of music for the cello. When questioned concerning this he stated that the cello is often considered to be a monotonous instrument. This is because its wide range is seldom used. Most cello music is written to be played on the lower four finger positions. He has rearranged much of the music he uses in order to receive the full benefit of the wide range available on the cello. At present Mr. Silva is editing the works of Baccerini.

Born In Italy

Mr. Silva was born in Italy, but contrary to the custom in the last century, Mr. Silva came, during his early years of training, to New York where he spent two years studying under Scalero. He smilingly recalled that after his first year of study in Italy he was considered hopeless and advised to give up his musical ambitions. He went on studying under Resphigi and Bonucci in Italy and after some years of study and concert work in Europe, he came to the United States in 1940.

Lest We Forget

In our editorials this year we have attempted to stimulate and reflect student opinion on world problems, local problems, and campus activities. Naturally, we do not pretend to think that we have covered all the possible topics, but we would not want to forget to reiterate our belief and faith in the purposes of Maryville College.

The first of the three historic and distinctive major policies of Maryville is "high scholarship standards." Perhaps most of us forget that the liberal arts program of our college is ranked among the top four ones in the state of Tennessee. The main reasons for the high quality of education at Maryville are its excellent faculty and the more than adequate facilities. Also, it is true that the college is very selective in its choice of students.

The second major policy is "low expense rates to students." We seriously doubt if a comparable education at such low expenses is available at any other private school in the country. Student expenses are low at Maryville because of its numerous benefactors, its reluctance to allow expensive campus activities, and its distinctive faculty. Certainly, it is no secret that our faculty members could make more money elsewhere, but they remain because they, too, believe in the work and purposes of the college.

The third major policy is "positive Christian emphasis and program." This policy is exhibited in our course work, our teachers, and our campus organizations. The opportunities to develop our Christian faith, both from an intellectual and practical viewpoint, are here if we want to take advantage of them. We hope (and think) that no one graduates from Maryville without a belief in the basic Christian ideals.

Although there is always room for improvement in any type of program, let us not forget these distinctive and praiseworthy policies of Maryville College. All of them are for our benefit and ultimately for society's benefit.

Student Interest?

It is unfortunate that a student body meeting is carried on the way one was last Thursday. Throughout the nominations and voting people were getting up and leaving, and the private conversations going on were so noisy that the chairman could hardly be heard. Granted that many students have no interest in the Athletic Board of Control, it would seem that they could at least have the courtesy not to disrupt the proceedings to such an extent.

The nominating system is long and tedious. Perhaps a method could be devised that would be a little less time-consuming and would still preserve the democratic element we prize. In any event, it is something to think about for the future.

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Susan Cook

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Faith Nollner

VOICES

For our Voice of the week, we wish to nominate Mr. Floyd Eaddy and the combined glee clubs of Maryville College who quite "gleefully" romped through two presentations of "The Mikado" on Friday and Saturday evenings, the twenty fourth and twenty-fifth of April.

If you saw it you know why we put it at the top of the list. If you didn't you missed one of the bright spots of the year.

In the Masks and Shadows department, we have, as usual the offerings of the local cinemas.

The Park has its usual brilliant selections to present. On Monday and Tuesday and Wednesday, Sterling Hayden and Richard Carlson head the cast of "Flatop". We'll make a wild guess and say its a war movie concerned with aircraft carriers. On Thursday and Friday it's "Raiders" starring Richard Conte. As to the subject matter, your guess is as good as mine.

CAPITOL PRESENTS NEW FILM

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol presents "Stars and Stripes Forever", the story of John Phillip Sousa's life. Its cast is marvelous, headed by Clifton Webb (in a new type of role, incidently), Debra Paget, and Robert Wagner. This isn't exactly a new movie, but its a good one and if you haven't seen it, now's your chance!

Now comes the surprise! On Thursday and Friday a brand new movie is showing— "The Sun Shines Bright", starring Charles Weniger, John Russell, and Arlene Whelan. This movie is to have its world premier in Nashville, Tennessee on Tuesday, May 5 at which time the stars will appear in person.

BOOKS

Do you like baseball? If you do, there's a new book in the library that's just the thing for you. It's called "The Ins and Outs of Baseball" by O. H. Vogel. If you're an aspiring young rookie or an old pro, you're sure to find it interesting.

Whoever heard of an opera star writing a mystery novel? Whether you've heard of it or not, that's just what has happened. Helen Traubel, Met. soprano, has added to her already-long list of achievements, the thrilling, chilling "Met ropolitan Opera Murders". It's just the thing to fill in that empty space just before exams!

MORE BOOKS

This seems to be theater week on the new book table, with subject matter ranging from how to produce Shakespeare to how to write a play yourself with the least possible effort. "Shakespeare on the State," in three heavy volumes, is a history of the various presentations of his dramas, with numerous illustrations. Then there is "Playwright at Work" with helpful hints on catching and holding the attention of an audience.

The library gets comparatively few new novels, but there was one that looked interesting, "Sunrise to Sunset," by Samuel Hopkins Adams. It is set in New York state in the 1830's and attempts to give, so it says, a picture of early industrial America.

Storks

Another book which promises to be in wide circulation is "The Stork Didn't Bring You." At the moment it isn't even on the new book table, since some enterprising individual checked it out the day it emerged from the cataloging department. This volume might be worth looking into when it becomes available again.

Six Band Members Receive Letters

Six members of the College Band have been awarded letters. They are: Glenn Gentry, Richard Dart, Helen Petts, Maryalice Moyer, Ann Yoakum, and Robert Young.

The letter award system was established this school year. Letters are awarded in recognition of four semesters of band work. The letter itself is an inscribed orange "M" on a garnet lyre with a white background.

Curtis Hughes conducts the Band.

Workshop To Hold Annual Picnic Monday

Writers' Workshop will hold its annual picnic in the woods and initiation of new members on Monday, May 4, at 4 p.m. All neophytes are reminded to be in proper costume.

At the regular meeting of Workshop on May 11 Jack Durant will read, and next year's governing board will be elected.

Netmen Improve Record, Win Three, Lose To Sewanee

ETS, LMU, Y-H Fall To Scots

By Jim Deemer

STATE TRIPPED

The Scottie netmen won an easy victory over East Tennessee State College on Friday, April 17. Maryville won three of the 6 singles matches but took all three doubles to insure a win.

Maryville won all 3 of the doubles matches. Buser and Lebold, playing number one doubles, beat Alley and Watts 2-6, 12-10, 7-5. Breitbach and Anderson won from Thompson and Harris 6-1, 6-4. In the number two doubles match England and Roberts beat Weir and Woodruff 6-3, 6-3.

Horse of a Different Color

Playing a new addition to the Maryville tennis schedule the Scotties tripped up Young-Harris Junior College of Georgia to a 5-0 count. Maryville won all 5 singles matches as the doubles were rained out.

A welcome change was seen in the number 5 spot as Marshall England played June Bryson. No, June is not a nickname. June is, get this, a girl. Marshall, playing this cute blond wtih the ever watchful eyes of Diana on him, defeated Miss Bryson, 6-3, 6-1. Marshall's comment after the match, "Wait until next year."

Tide Changes

Maryville's short winning streak came to an end as they lost to the University of the South 7-2. Better known as Sewanee, they have one of the better tennis teams around. Proof of this is their 5-4 loss to the University of Tennessee.

Captain Ed Breitbach found his lost form to defeat Dick Briggs in a marthon, 14-12, 2-6, 7-5. Breitbach teamed up with John Anderson to take the number two doubles 9-7, 6-4. The Scotties did very well with four of the matches going to three sets.

Shutout

The Scotties achieved their second whitewashing of the year as they defeated Lincoln Memorial University, 7-0. Maryville won easily with every match decided in two sets.

Playing one after a long vacation, Breitbach beat Art Brill, 6-2, 6-3. Kent Buser won over Les Turner, 6-2, 6-0. John Anderson beat Jack Annan, 6-3, 6-3; Marshall England over Jack Taylor, 6-4, 6-2; Roberts over Ed Taylor, 6-0, 6-4.

Varsity Side-Pocket

By Dixie Conner

Initiation comes to all societies, and so it does to the Women's "M" Club. Mrs. Largen and Mrs. Queener have worked out lists of names and points. The Varsity girls have worked since September on a points basis toward a goal of at least 400 points, which would mean "M" Club membership. Those who make 300 points are entitled to an "MC" monogram and 500 points means a letter sweater. The points are accumulated through such things as tests in all sports undertaken throughout the year—soccer, volleyball, tumbling, basketball, swimming, softball, and track; written tests; two swimming reports every month; six seven-mile loop hiking reports; one health report every week; and sportsmanship and general attitude. Girls who are selected to be on the teams, are elected captain or manager, or are on the honor roll are given extra points.

Girls who earned a sweater, chevron and large M, and M club membership are Mary Ann Thompson, Barbara Rogers, Sylvia Peresenyi, and Jay Spencer. A sweater, large M and M Club membership were earned by Helen Drinnen, Joan Herschelman, Nancy Ferguson, and Virginia Sanderson. New M Club members who earned a sweater this year are Janna Boggs, Clara Arehart, Barbara Gregory, Janet Schenck, and Cornelia Force.

A small M and M Club membership were earned by Nancy Dunn, Henrietta Laing, and Pat Laing. New members this year are Betty Lou Cutler, Shirley Axley, Jerry Moore, Hazel Robinson, Betty Watson, Sarah Carpenter, Charlotte Linde, Natalie Prinzing, and Jeannette Hurst.

Some of us could only squeeze out a monogram, though. Those girls are Emma Curtis, Dixie Conner, Jean Kemper, Peggy Williams, Dorothy Yater, Anna Sue Combs (the girl who tries to pay her "Bop Hope" Fund at the Personnel Office), Dottie Johnston, Elaine Tucker, Elizabeth Enloe, Elizabeth Murphy, and Mary Alice Kemp. Girls who made from 150-300 points and asked me not to mention their names are Jackie Kendall, Betty Harrill, and Nan Spivey.

The annual M Club Hike, at which the formal initiation will be held, will be to Montvale on May 9 and 10. Good luck, girls, you've worked for this terrible week-end.

Scots Win Four, Lose Three On Ball Diamond

Scots Dump Maryville - Alcoa Twins Twice, King And Milligan Also Added To Victim List

By Rolfe Duggar

SCOTS 4, TWINS 2

Bobby Shelton came up in the last of the seventh with two men on and drove a sharp single to left scoring two base runners to give the Scots a 4-2 win over the Maryville-Alcoa Twins in the first meeting of the two clubs. Shelton's blow came off Jim Saunders, lent to the Twins by the Scots, who had relieved Bill Haywood in the sixth.

Sunny Short started for the Scots and pitched the first four innings. He was knicked for an unearned run in the third and a homer by second baseman Bob Turner in the fourth. Harry Robinson pitched the last three frames and gave up but one hit in picking up his third win.

VOLS 6, SCOTS 3

Undoubtedly one of the most exciting games ever witnessed here on the hill took place last week when the highly taunted University of Tennessee Vols outlasted the Scotties in fourteen innings, 6-3. The Scot defense collapsed as they committed three errors in the top of the fourteenth after two were out which proved to be the difference in the three hour and forty-five minute marathon.

Harry Robinson and John Hufstetler started the game opposing each other on the mound and turned in excellent performances. Each pitched ten innings and each allowed only three hits and three runs, only one of which was earned by each team.

The Scots broke the ice early when Lyn Sexton drew a walk to open the bottom of the first. Earl Lawson laid down a nice sacrifice moving Sexton to second from where he promptly moved on to third via his ninth stolen base of the year. Jim Campbell then hit a long fly to center, after the catch Sexton scored. The Scots picked up a gift run in both the sixth and the tenth, but missed a chance to put the game away in the last of the thirteenth when they loaded the bases on three walks with only one away. Bill Anderson was called out for stepping out of the batter's box on a bunt and Don Moore struck out to throw away their big chance and leave "the ducks sitting on the pond."

The Vols scored on catcher Bill Blackstock's double and a single by Ed Given in the fourth. They picked up single unearned runs in the eighth and tenth to keep the game knotted up. In the top of the fourteenth three hits and three Scot errors handed the Vols three runs and the ball game. It was probably the biggest let-down the hill has ever seen.

SCOTS 10, KING 1

Taking a breather between the UT Vols and the Maryville-Alcoa Twins the Scots downed King College, 10-1. The Scotties put together eight hits and fourteen errors to walk away with the victory.

Larry Hill picked up his second win as he scattered six hits in the seven innings he worked on the mound. Jim Saunders worked the last two frames, and surprised all by striking out the side in the eighth.

SCOTS 6, TWINS 2

The Scotties behind the combined four hit twirling of Harry Robinson, Sunny Short, Larry Hill and Jim Saunders beat the Maryville-Alcoa Twins in their second meeting of the season. The Scot pitchers worked two innings each, the win going to Hill who scored what later proved to be the winning run himself.

The Scots scored twice in the fourth when Bill Anderson socked a double into left field following three walks to drive in two runs. In the fifth Hill singled, took second on a passed ball by Reynolds and stole third. Lyn Sexton struck out and Earl Lawson drew a walk before Jimmy Campbell hit a grounder to George Giles, the Twins' flashy Negro shortstop. Giles tossed Campbell out at first. Lee Laney, the Twins' first sacker, then saw Lawson off second and tossed him out for the third out, but not before Hill scored what proved later to be the winning run.

The Scots scored a single tally in the sixth on singles by Bobby Shelton and Charlie Partee and an error by catcher Tronbatti. Two more were added in the seventh for good measure after two were out. Lawson singled and took second on another error by Trombatti. Campbell was safe on an error by the third sacker Wrigley, Lawson moving to third. Shelton followed by rapping a double into left field scoring Lawson and Campbell.

The Lincoln Memorial Railsplitters put a damper on the hopes of the Scotties to get another win streak well on the road to equaling their previous six game streak by administering a 4-3 setback at LMU. Sunny Short went the route for the Scots but errors behind him threw his chances for a win away.

Jimmy Campbell drove in all three of the Scot runs, two in the third and one in the eighth. Lyn Sexton led off the third with a walk and Earl Lawson singled deep to short. Both runners then pulled a double steal before Campbell picked out a fat pitch which he hit into left field for a double, both runners scoring. In the eighth Sexton singled to left, stole second, took third after the catch of Lawson's long fly to left and then scored after Campbell's long fly out to center.

Short gave up an earned run in the second on four straight walks and another in the fourth on Sargent's long home run. Two unearned runs scored in the seventh on a hit, a walk and two errors plus an infield out and gave the Railsplitters the victory.

ETS 10, SCOTS 9

What looked like an almost sure victory flew out of the hands of the Scotties last Monday when the East Tennessee State Buccaneers scored eight times in the last three frames to wrap up a 10-9 thriller. Poor pitching, fielding, no hitting and the fact that there were few regulars left in the lineup all probably led to the Scot's downfall.

The Scots took an early lead off the pitching of Bill "Grinning" Estep by scoring four runs in each of the first two frames, to knock him out of the box. Everyone batted in the first as Estep gave up five walks. Jimmy Campbell laced a double out to left center to score two runners and collect the only hit of the inning.

In the second Lyn Sexton walked and Earl Lawson plastered a long hit to right field which Droke misjudged enough to give Lawson a triple. The first triple of the year for the Scots who have yet to hit a home run. Two more walks, a passed ball, a stolen base and Don Alford's single scored three more runs.

In the third Harry Robinson hit a liner to center which hit in front of Droke, took a bad bounce and Robinson ended up on third with a triple. He scored with the last run for the Scots when Lawson hit a line-drive out to right field.

The Buccaneers picked up two counters in the first on three straight singles before Robinson settled down. In the seventh with Larry Hill on the mound the Bucs collected five runs on two hits, two walks and three errors. The gap was further closed in the eighth when the Bucs again scored, this time on a single by Bob Broyles and a double by Gene Curling.

Disaster hit the Scots in the ninth after two were out. Hill walked Wells, Stiner singled, then Hill threw a wild pitch putting runners on second and third. An error on Campbell's throw after the pick-up of Hayne's grounder allowed one runner in to tie up the game. Ray's single scored Stiner with the winning run.

SCOTS 8, MILLIGAN 5

The Scotties picked up their ninth win at the expense of Milligan Tuesday at Milligan, 8-5. Jim Saunders started his first game and went the route for the win.

The Scots opened the game up with a three-run barrage in the top of the first. Singles by Lyn Sexton and Don Moore, an error, a hit-batsman, three stolen bases and two passed balls brought in the three runs. In the second the Scots were the victims of an unusual triple play due to some careless base-running. Saunders and Sexton hit back-to-back singles to open the inning. Earl Lawson then hit a grounder to the pitcher, Gillan, who ran Saunders down between third and home. Gillan then threw to second to catch Lawson trying to get in for the second out. By this time Sexton was trying for home but a peg from second to the catcher caught him for the triple play.

The Scots hit around in the fourth scoring three runners on a little of everything; Bob Ramger's single, three walks, another hit batsman, a sacrifice, five stolen bases, a wild pitch and an error. Don Moore had the unhappy experience of striking out with the sacks loaded or the Scots might still be at bat. Single runs were scored in the fifth and eighth.

Saunders was surprisingly effective but six errors behind him made the score close. A triple by Gallimore, who also had two singles, in the sixth was the only extra base blow off Saunders, but several long flies were pulled down by the men in the outer-gardens.

Scots Take On UT Nine At Hudson Field Today

Big Return Game Set For 2:00

At two o'clock this afternoon at Hudson Field in Knoxville the Scotties take on the University of Tennessee Vols in the second meeting of the year for these two clubs. The Vols won the first game 6-3 in a fourteen-inning thriller at Maryville.

It is expected that the Scots with a 9-3 record will throw either Sunny Short, with a two-two record, or Harry Robinson, with three wins and no defeats, against the powerful Vols. At this writing Don Williams looks like the best probable starter for UT. Both Bob Ridenour and John Huffstetler, UT aces, were scheduled to pitch against Georgia Tech Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Admission to Hudson Field is to be around sixty cents for today's game.

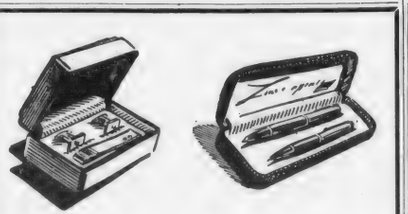
Goony Birds Take Swimming Meet

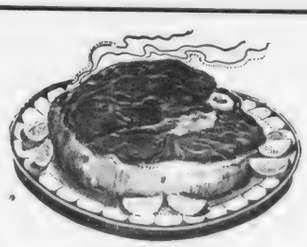
On Tuesday afternoon, two three men teams took to the water in a rather sparse but still interesting Intramural Swimming Meet, which failed to reveal any new Olympic stars, but saw the Goony Birds team, captained by Bob Weaver and supported by Paul Payne and Buford Miller, lose to the Drowned Rats, ably supported by Captain Dave Williams, Tom Bugenhagen, and Gordon Van Pelt by a 25-17 score.

Smokies In The Lead



As the softball season nears a close, the Smokies behind the hurling of Buddy Gilbert lead the league, hotly pursued by the Ring Noses who can generally beat anybody but the Smokies. At the other end there is another close race, for last place, between the Clowns and the YMCA, both of whom have won only two games while dropping nine. The other teams continue in their place in the center, the Dodgers strengthened by the return of Bob Patterson, Pre-Mins still a strong team, and Athenian, able to beat almost anybody on a given day. Since records are seldom kept too carefully it is hard to keep an account of the games or the top hitters as we try to do for basketball, but here are a few summaries of representative games.

Doobers Down YMCA



On the Golf Course field the Doobers dropped the YMCA team in a 22-17 contest. Howard Gress hurled for the winners, if you can call it that, and chipped in with three hits. Bob Nier paced the States has been one of teaching and concert tours. He gives individual concerts and plays in a trio averaging about fifty concerts per year. The rest of his time is spent teaching in New York at the Yale, David Mannes, and Juillard schools of music.

Silva has recently completed a series of records for New Records Inc. This series called "Music in Colonial America" contains the works of several eighteenth century American artists. He also records for Columbia Masterworks.

Mr. Silva's cello is considered to be the most beautiful Guarneius in the world. It is dated 1694. Previously it belonged to the cellist of the Paganini Quartet, Silva having had it for three years.

Lives In New York

New York is the present home of the Silva family. Silva's eleven year old son doesn't seem to be following in his father's footsteps. Although "he likes music he likes mathematics better."

When asked about any particularly interesting experience which he has had, Mr. Silva replied, "Just to be alive is interesting. One who is awake to the things around him and not sleepy or too busy to notice the beauty around him—as in flowers—has an interesting experience. Everyone should take some time to loaf and start enjoying life."

Mr. Silva stated that young musicians need not worry about getting a job. The United States is developing more and more along those lines, and there are plenty of places for good musicians. This steady growth in opportunities in the music field is accredited by Silva to the fact that in America the music public is made up of the young people. In Europe the older generation holds this position, and consequently the field is shrinking rather than expanding.

J. H. Laster To Speak At Vespers Tomorrow

Speaker at Vespers tomorrow night at 7 in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center will be the Reverend J. Haydn Laster, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Harriman.

He is a director of the college and a Maryville graduate of the class of 1930.

French Club To Give Annual Banquet May 13

On May 13 the French Club will hold its annual banquet. At this time the thirteen newly elected members will be introduced to the club. New officers will also be elected for the coming semester.

Dr. Lloyd Returns

Dr. Lloyd has just returned to campus after spending several days in Chicago where he attended a meeting concerning Presbyterian Church Union.

On Thursday night, while in Chicago, he also attended a gathering for Maryville Alumni.

Snedeker, Jones To Lead Prayer Next Thursday

Cathy Snedeker and Jolene Jones will lead Prayer Meeting next Thursday night in the Y rooms. This will be the last Prayer Meeting of the year.

explained, "many archaeological finds have been made through Arabian legend." He has just returned from Muscat and Oman where he now has an expedition at Salala.

The discoveries from the excavations of the first four cities which the Foundation unearthed in the southern province are now on display at the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh, Pa. With Dr. Phillips during his second season in South Arabia was archaeologist Ellis Burcaw, Maryville graduate of 1941.

Future Showings

After his brief stay at Maryville, the 31 year old explorer flew to New York before his return shortly to South Arabia. Plans are now under way to show the picture in Cairo to Egyptian premier General Mohammed Naguib, in Nairobi to Kenya governor Sir Evelyn Baring, and to the Sultan of Muscat and Oman.

Organized in 1949, the American Foundation for the Study of Man promotes scientific research on the development of man from the earliest times. Contributing valuable geographic and geological data, the Foundation under Dr. Phillips has led the largest expedition to the continent of Africa and has organized the most extensive expeditions ever to leave the United States.

He Has Written Book

In addition to the several articles he has written for scientific journals and "Collier's" magazine, Dr. Phillips will soon undertake a scholarly six volume study of his archaeological discoveries in South Arabia. He has also written a book which will appear later this spring.

"I want to express my thanks to Dr. Lloyd for extending an invitation to visit Maryville," Dr. Phillips said before leaving, "I hope to return again whenever it is possible."

MUSIC WEEK . . .

Faculty Recital

Final event of the musical celebration will be a faculty recital May 11 at 8 p.m., featuring Katherine Crews, violinist, Mrs. Alice Eaddy, pianist, and Louise Lloyd, accompanist.

Miss Crews and Miss Lloyd will give Beethoven's "Sonata in F Major for Violin and Piano, Op. 24, No. 5." Mrs. Eaddy is to play Chopni's "Sonata, Opus 58." Miss Crews will finish the program with "Au bord d'un ruisseau" by Boisdeffre, "Orientale" by Cui, and "Der Sohn der Haide" by Keler-Bola.

Last Echo

The next and last issue of The Highland Echo will be published on Saturday, May 16.

Extra issues will be available on May 20 for parents and other visitors.

Spanish Club Elects Sockwell President

Max Sockwell, Junior Spanish major from North Carolina, was elected president of the Spanish club in elections held Wednesday, April 29.

Other officers elected were Jo Brooks, vice president; Sadie Davis, secretary; Esther Lerch, treasurer; program committee, Cally Mitchell, chairman, Malcolm King, John Graves, and Mary Nichol.

Seniors To Breakfast At Lloyd's May 4, 5

Tuesday and Wednesday morning, May 4 and 5, at 7:30 at Morningside, the seniors will be the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd for their annual senior breakfast.

All seniors are cordially invited to attend, for they will be excused from chapel and their first period class. This affair begins the series of senior events.

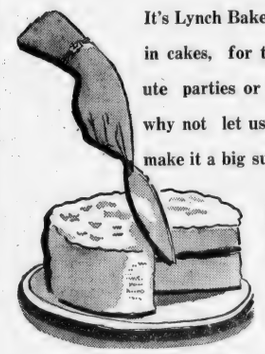
attack as he continued his good hitting, and scored five runs. Paul Merwin, Bill Davis and Doc Jennings had three hits each for the winners. The Y attack was sparked by Don Williams and Dave Gates, each of whom had home runs. Herb White was the losing pitcher.

Pre Mins Down Clowns



Behind Hugh Bowers, the Pre-Min team downed the Clowns, 14-9. Bowers, with three hits, also paced the Pre-Min attack. Sonny Shacklefrod, Ace McWilliams, and Homer Rickabaugh also helped by scoring four runs apiece by various means. Akers pitched for the Clowns, and also had three hits to lead them at the plate. Don Craig and Al Homan also helped out with a couple of hits.

Ring Noses Lose To Smokies

The Smokies took over first place from the previously unbeaten Ring Noses by administering a 20-4 shellacking. Buddy Gilbert pitched for the winners, opposed by Homer Garren of the Ring Noses. The Ring-Noses drew first blood in the second inning behind Jim Wiley's hit, scoring two runs, and added another in the third when Frank Garren hit safely and came around to score. The Smokies evened it up in the third behind hits by Keny Shepard and Bobby Berrong, and then put the game on ice in the next two innings when they scored nine runs apiece mostly through the charity of the Ring-Noses who added seven walks and a half dozen errors to the attack of the Smokies. Slug Blair had three hits for the winners, as did Jack Keny and Pat Flynn. Homer Garren led the losers with a pair of safeties.

Athenian Beats Pre-Min

Behind the pitching (?) of Dick Thom, the Athenian team, scoring nine runs in a big fifth inning beat the Pre-Mins and Hugh Bowers. Dave Ramsey led the team with two hits while Jack Maxwell contributed a home run to the cause. A. C. McWilliams added a pair for the losers while Herb Kauhl blasted a homer. In their big inning, Hiller singled, Walt Rowley walked, Ramsey doubled, Grippo was on when Jim Kesler dropped his fly in center field. McWilliams struck out, Hoyer walked, Jack Maxwell walked, and Hiller grounded out.

Echo Staff Members Visit Journal Plant

Eight members of the Echo Staff and guests visited the Knoxvlile Journal plant, Monday, May 4, after dining at the S&W Cafeteria. Those who attended were Bert Hadley, Talmer Peacock, Dick Dart, Dwight Moody, Don Layton Joe Gilliland, Joan Frei, Van Holland, and Dr. Griffitts, advisor to the Echo.

Harry Merrill, night city editor of the Journal and former MC student, conducted the group through the tour of the Journal. All who attended seemed to have found the trip both pleasant and profitable.

Faculty To Teach, Work, Rest During Summer Months

During the summer, the faculty's plans are quite varied as to what they will do with their vacation. Quite a few plan to remain at home and rest, while the traveling bug has bitten some others. Miss Crews and Miss Meiselwitz are planning a trip to Mexico, Miss Guss is heading out West, and Miss Wilkinson plans to go to New England and Canada. But the Beards are traveling fartherest—they are going to Europe!

Many plan graduate study. Miss Walker will be studying for her doctorate at the University of North Carolina. Mr. Harter will be at Union Theological Seminary, New York, N. Y. Mr. Schwam will be studying for his Ph.D. at Columbia University, N.Y. Miss Rodemann will be at Peabody College, Nashville. Two of the faculty will be at Indiana University — Herr Reber and Coach Johnson, who will be studying for his doctorate in physical education.

Conferences

Mrs. Cummings plans to teach at several summer conferences. Mr. Fisher will attend a conference at Tusculum. And Dr. Buchanan will be the business manager of Camp Sequoyah, Weaverville, N. C.

Those faculty members who will be teaching are Dr. Briggs at Western Carolina Teachers College; Mrs. Kramer at the University of North Carolina; Dr. Barker at Furman College, S.C.,; Miss Blair at Alabama College, and Mr. Hughes will be the Director of Music at the Peachtree Christian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

Student Council Helps Establish New TACSG

By Joan Frei

Maryville College is a charter member of the Tennessee Association of Collegiate Student Governments, it was reported at Council May 11 by Bill Dartnell and Pat Halstead, who attended the initial meeting at Middle Tennessee State last week.

The purpose of the Association of Student Governments is to promote the welfare of the students on the various campuses and to accomplish worthy aims that would be impossible by single endeavor.

Council Representatives

Dartnell, next year's student body president, and Miss Halstead, incoming social board chairman, participated in discussion groups on problems common to all schools, and met with the group as it formed and ratified the body's constitution.

Maryville is part of the East Tennessee Division which is to meet at Carson-Newman College in the fall. The Association is to be financed by a fee of one dollar for each delegate at each conference.

President Sally Brown reported to Student Council that the Executive Council has passed a new dance program, providing for informal dances at the discretion of the social board and for one formal dance each semester.

Senate Report

Three matters were reported on from Student-Faculty Senate. It was decided that Ed Breitbach speak to Dean McClelland and Mr. McCurry about a service committee and then present the plan to the men of Carnegie. The revision of the constitution for Inter-Club Council was passed and sent to the Executive Council. Held over until fall were the questions of an honor system, an optional town night, and an investigation of the student help system.

President Sally Brown officially closed the last meeting of the old Council and handed a peace pipe to Dartnell, who then called a meeting of the new Student Council for next year.

Dartnell Commends

Dartnell commended the work of this year's Council, saying that their main ffort has been on the question of true student government. "I think that has been the real contribution that has been made this year," he said.

He emphasized in his speech the necessity of knowing the student

Clark Wins College Oratorical Award

Barbara Clark, junior Bible and religion major of Philadelphia, Pa., was the winner of the T. T. Alexander oratorical contest, the finals of which were held recently in chapel.

Jeannine Fiori, junior philosophy major of Niagara Falls, New York, won second place in the contest.

The T. T. Alexander contest is an annual event alternating yearly between men and women students. The winner and runner up win a sixty-forty division of the interest on one thousand dollars, which was donated by an anonymous friend of the college.

Requirements

The contestants must prepare a manuscripts and present their orations before the Bible faculty, who act as judges, and the field is narrowed to two contestants. These students then present their orations in chapel where they are judged by persons chosen from outside the college.

The contestants must choose their subject from one of the following: "Justification by Faith," "The Resurrection," "The Diety of Christ," or "The Atonement". Both Miss Clark and Miss Fiori chose "Justification by Faith."

Dr. Davies, Mrs. Horace Orr, and Mrs. Lincoln Barker were this year's judges.

Maryville's Graduating Seniors Prepare For Varied Activities During Coming Year

By Emily Smith

On May 20th a new crop of Maryville graduates will begin their post college careers. They will go into many new occupations in many parts of the nation and the world. Many will go on from here to graduate school, some into the service, some into school teaching, and some into marriage.

Seminary

Among those in graduate school will be the fifteen attending seminary. At Princeton will be Bruce Miller, Charles Reid, Ken Rutherford, Carolyn Symmes, and Shirley Postlethwaite.

Louisville will receive Tim Bowman, George Carpenter, Charlie Schroeder, and possibly Charles Larue, and Bob Coles and Herschel Mosier will definitely be there. Joyce Kaebnick has also applied there.

Art Van Alstyne will attend Western; Bob Burgreen, Harvard Divinity School; Buster Haylock, Southwestern at Ft. Worth after summer study at UT; Galen Work, Lincoln; Ed Scott, Union in Richmond, Va.; Ruth Burgos and Millie Cooper, Union in New York City. Conrad Eaddy will attend the Union School of Church Music in New York City.

Others in Grad School

Dean Allison has been accepted by New York University to study World Affairs; Sally Brown has a graduate assistantship in history at UT; Jan deBakker will enter med school; Jack Durant has a graduate assistantship in English at UT; and Van Holland will continue his study of English as a part-time instructor at Indiana University.

Dick Lebold will attend Ohio State law school; Jay Spencer may teach or go to school at the University of North Carolina; Will

Church Leader To Give Address

By Wyne Brooks

The 134th annual commencement program began last night with the performance of Sophocles' "Antigone" and will climax with the graduation exercises Wednesday, May 20, for which 122 seniors are candidates for degrees. Seventy-four will receive the degree of bachelor of arts while 48 the expected to complete work for the bachelor of science degree. Ten members of the class were graduated in December and four are expected to receive their degrees this summer.

Senior Class president Curt Wilbanks presided over the opening chapel service this morning with the class report being given by Nancy Ferguson and Ed Breitbach. Music was by George Caldwell, Conrad Eaddy, and Don Brakebill.

Alumni Dinner

Five of the six living members of the class of 1903 are expected at the annual alumni dinner tonight along with the class of 1928 and 1943. The five members are Thomas G. Brown of Orlando, Fla.; Rev. Dennis W. Crawford of Knoxville; Hugh R. Crawford of Maryville; Rev. Robert O. Franklin of St. Augustine, Fla.; and Dr. Robert H. McCaslin of Orlando, Fla. Both class chairmen have announced that they expect a large reunion. Following the alumni dinner a band concert has been scheduled for 9 p.m.

"Have You Been Made Free?" is the topic of President Lloyd's baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning in the Alumni Gymnasium. At the commencement Vespers tomorrow evening Dr. Donald A. Spencer, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Chattanooga, will speak on "Christ, Our Friend."

The senior music hour at 4 p.m. Sunday afternoon will be presented in the FAC.

Drama Program

A drama program has been announced for the Monday, May 18, chapel program.

The following morning will be the chapel awards and music program conducted by the Vesper Choir and the combined Glee Clubs.

From 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, May 19, a reception has been planned for alumni, seniors, parents, faculty, and other guests by President and Mrs. Lloyd at Morningside.

'Antigone' Again

At 8:30 that night will be the last performance of "Antigone" on the steps of Thaw.

The spring meeting of the Directors of Maryville College is scheduled for 9 a.m. Wednesday, May 20.

At 10:30 a.m. Wednesday are the 134th annual commencement exercises with Dr. Frank Hill Caldwell, president of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., will deliver the commencement address.

Synods To Meet On College Campus

During the summer, several synods and conferences are planning to meet here on Maryville College campus. From June 23 to 26, the Synod of Mid-South, the Synodical of Mid-South, the Westminster Synod of Mid-South, and the Synod of Tennessee will hold a joint meeting.

The Synod of Mid-South Council of Men will be here from June 26 to 28. From June 14 to 20, the Summer School of the South will be here. It is an inter-racial leadership training group.

There will be a Junior-High Conference here from June 29 to July 4. The leader will be the Rev. James R. Smith, Graystone Presbyterian Church, Knoxville.

From then on, there will be no more meetings, and usual summer repairs will begin and continue through September

Echo Epilogue

A sense of frustration now envelops us as we suddenly realize that this is the last issue of the year. There are so many things we had planned to say in our editorials, there are so many changes in the Echo that we hoped to make—and now all is finished for this year. However, as we stated in our first editorial of the year, our primary goal has been to present all the news in an unbiased and objective manner. In our editorials we have tried to give deserved congratulations whenever they were warranted and to offer constructive criticism whenever it was needed. We have attempted to write our articles objectively, imaginatively, and interestingly. We have tried to give you an attractive, good looking newspaper. And we have tried to make improvements and needed changes whenever the opportunities presented themselves. Although we are very conscious of our shortcomings and mistakes, we hope that we have come somewhat close to attaining these goals.

Probably most editors like to think that they are indispensable to the paper, that it would fall apart if they were not editing it. This, of course is completely erroneous. Although the editor is responsible for much of the general character and appearance of the paper, in the final analysis all of the staff members, not one person, determine the worth and standards of the newspaper. This year's staff members have worked long and hard, they have produced commendable work, they have been faithful in their duties, and they have been very cooperative. To each one of them in a very personal way is extended the editor's sincerest thanks and appreciation for their generous support.

We would also like to express our gratitude to the printers of the Echo, The Maryville Enterprise. More especially we are indebted to Charlie Aytes, Homer Paul, Evla Best, Byron Hall, and Gene Thompson, all of whom were very helpful and more than cooperative during the whole year.

Our best wishes to incoming Editor Joan Frei and all the other members of next year's staff! They again will experience the numerous rewards and few headaches that come from working on a newspaper.

An American Problem

Concerning the problems and progress of the American Negro in the past decade, "Time" magazine recently published an enlightening article. Although we think that more credit for the progress of the Negro should be given to the twenty years of national social reform by the Democrats, the article was otherwise quite revealing.

The U.S.'s state of mind about the Negro problem was succinctly summed up by one man saying, "'The ordinary American is the opposite of a cynic. He is on the average more of a believer and a defender of the faith in humanity than the rest of the Occidentals. . . He investigates his faults, puts them on record, and shouts them from the housetops. . . America's handling of the Negro problem has been criticized most emphatically by white Americans. . . and the criticism. . . will not stop until America has completely reformed itself. . . Mankind is sick of fear and disbelief. . . If America in actual practice could show the world the Negro became finally integrated into modern democracy, all mankind would be given faith again. . . and America would have spiritual power many times stronger than all her financial and military resources—the power of the trust and support of all good people on earth. America is free to choose whether the Negro shall remain her liability or become her opportunity.' "

Scots & Soda

By Shirley Armstrong

OK, typewriter, I'm here. . . let's begin. We've got to do Scots and Soda tonight, and this has gotta be sorta funny and witty, but. . . since you ain't no magic machine and I ain't so witty, myself, ye gads. . . what're we gonna do? Oh, well. . .

Just a few more days. . . shall we send up a little "thanks" for the great event which is to take place? It's just dawned on me why all the seniors are going around with sad faces. . . they're leaving this hallowed ground. And, two or three lowerclassmen have had their trunks packed practically since Christmas. Not that they don't love the place!

* * * * *

Being a lowly freshman, I haven't had the pleasure of experiencing a MC graduation exercise yet, but from what I've heard, they really go wild. They say that if you get up early enough, you can see Dean McClelland doing thirty laps around Circle Drive the week before. . . just getting in shape, you know. And Miss Jackson stands on her head for twenty minutes each morning before breakfast, instead of the usual ten. And, the other members of the faculty can be seen vainly trying to fit themselves into their robes, and after primping with their mortar-boards for hours on end, they finally drag themselves out at dawn on graduation day. . . breate a sigh of relief. . . and put on their "alumni" smiles for the event.

Of course, when that hour arrives, Dr. Hunter and Miss Heron have somehow exchanged robes, and after they have found her again, Miss Heron quickly pins a few tucks and darts here and there (instead of bothering Dr. Hunter, you know) and takes off down the aisle. . . then she sits there squirming in her seat and trying not to jump whenever she gets stuck.

And there goes Dr. Griffitts. . . or "Hyro," as he used to be known. . . looking around for any alumni whom he might remember. (How could they forget!) He may not know it, but those alumni tell some pretty good tales about him. Like the day he received a COD package. . . and being his natural self, he paid for it. The next morning this announcement was read in chapel: "The new track suits have arrived! See "Hyro" Griffitts sometime today." Of course, whoever read that announcement didn't know that the so-called track suits were pink. . . (need I say more?) Like I said before, I'm glad it's almost over.

And let us not forget our Preisdent on this longed-for day. Here he comes, beaming from ear to ear, and trying to remember what it was about India that he was going to say. Oh well, he can always add ten or twenty minutes about the new "chopel." (On second thought, maybe I'd better transfer.)

* * * * *

And turning to the finer side of life. . . (not the Reader's Digest) I find this little definition:

A Double Petunia

Petunia is a flower like begonia
Begonia is meat like sausage
Sausage and battery is a crime
Monkeys crime trees
Trees a crowd
A rooster crow'd and made noise
The noise is on your face; like eyes
The eyes is opposite the nays
A horse nays
A horse has a colt
You catch a colt and go to bed and wake up double petunia.
Ah, go on and laugh. . . it won't kill you.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Edna Stout

Having heard "Antigone" from Pearsons for the last few nights, I can tell you that it "sounds" very good. The voice projection and tone quality is excellent. Now I am quite anxious to see it, too, as everyone is.

MOVIES

As for the (s h a l l we be cultured?) cinema, there is one especially good offering at the Park Theater Tuesday and Wednesday —"My Cousin Rachel", taken from Daphne Du Maurier's novel. Starring Olivia DeHaviland and Richard Burton, this Old World Mystery is liberally flavored with romance, tragedy, intrigue, and suspense. With beautiful settings, literate dialogue, elegant costumes, "flawless directing", and "distinguished photography," what more could you ask for? Three dimensions?

If you have already seen "Rachel", "I Don't Care Girl," starring Mitzi Gaynor, will be showing at the Capitol Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. Top-heavy with exotic costumes and elaborate dance sequences, this technicolor musical does little to justify a story about Eva Tanguay, f o r if there were events of interest in her life, they are not shown. However, perhaps Mitzi's vivaciousness, Oscar Levant's piano c a p e r s, and Bob Graham's baritone voice will make up for the lack of story.

Playing Monday at the Park will be "Confessions of a Model", which doesn't sound like something to take your folks to, although I may be mistaken.

BOOKS

For your vacation reading (you can check out books for the whole summer), the library has several new additions. Drama enthusiasts will especially like "Prince of Players," the story of Edwin Booth, "the greatest genius the American stage has ever known," and brother of the ill-famed John Wilkes Booth.

Our many engagees might find "The Meaning of Marriage," by Sidney Goldstein interesting. Also new, is "Crime In America," by Tennessee's recent aspirant to the presidency, Estes Kefauver.

MC Vesper Choir Work, Play, Eat During Past Tour

"Promptly at 7 p.m., April 17, the 1953 choir tour was under way, and forty-two excited choir members were prepared to spend the next twenty hours between M.C. and Philadelphia in peaceful slumber."

So begins the Choir Tour Log, compiled by historians Pat Lewis and Carolyn Symmes, and read at the annual Vesper Choir Banquet, May 5.

"Their smiles soon changed to frowns when the bus started coughing and acting up again, but Cecil pulled them through, even though they did have to be pushed by a Chevrolet pick-up truck for miles and miles.

"That was choir tour, but things they will long remember are such as these: the telegrams and letters from those at home, the 'urp' section in the bus from Erie to Columbus, Doc's flirting with all the girls—on bus and at the churches, 'tweaking' parties and politics on the bus, giving Cecil his gift in Renfro Valley, and the enthusiasm with which they were received everywhere."

It was a tired, but grateful choir that rolled onto campus late Tuesday night, April 29. After a prayer and the singing of the benediction, the group was glad to be greeted by friends there and in the dorms. "All agreed that choir tour is a wonderful experience but it's alway Great To Be Back."

Class Reunions Slated For Today, Dinner At 7

Class reunions will be held on campus all day today and will be climaxed by a dinner in Pearsons Hall at 7:00 p.m. tonight.

The '50, '40, '25, '10, and '05 year classes will be represented. Various forms of entertainment have been arranged through the President's Office.

Tickets for the dinner are on sale in the Alumni Office and on campus all day today.

Sports Echoes

By Bob Coles

More Room to Play

About once every year at this time, whoever happens to be a Senior sports editor seems to feel called upon to write some sort of reminiscences and thank yous to all those who have helped through four long years, or better, four short years, because looking back, they really are very short. There have been a lot of things happening in four years here but one of the best of them,, and one coming too late to do me any good, or any other senior(, happened just a few days ago at a Senior class meeting in Alumni Gym.

Tennis Courts

As the annual class gift, the Senior class voted to donate to the school a hard surfaced tennis court, which may be constructed just below the present courts at Memorial. Such a court will make it possible to play tennis at all times, in all kinds of weather. It was passed by a very close vote and after some argument, but tennis courts it is, and at least in one opinion, a very good choice as something we would wait a long time to get otherwise, and something that will prove very useful in the future.

As a Year

What kind of a year has this been in sports at Maryville College? Generally speaking, a good one. In football, the last even decent year .was four years ago, when we split ten games. This year we had a 4-4-1 record and left quite a bit of promise for the years to come, when, if the influx of talent is anything like it was this year, the football records of the school should take a long awaited swing back up into the winning column. Not to be forgotten was the addition of the new scoreboard and electric clock this year to make the games more enjoyable. At the same time cross country was, as usual, running up its usual good showing, and most likely will continue to do so for the next few years.

Basketball

The basketball team did not fare so well, but they too may improve next year, being strengthened by a little experience. At the same time wrestling was improving over last year's losing record. That team should be very strong next year if a heavyweight can be found to take George Kipp's place. The new men this year gave a good account of themselves, and now, having gained that invaluable experience, should make a better than average team.

In The Spring

The spring sports this year are better than average, at least for the last four years. The baseball team has turned out surprisingly well and so far has lost only four games, two of which they could have won with only a little luck. With most of the team back next year, and adding that new talent which Coach Honaker always seems to find somewhere for the baseball team, they should make a very powerful squad next year. The tennis team will be harder hit, losing three players, and unless Coach Johnson has a few aces up his sleeve, the team will probably have a hard time for a few seasons.

All In All

It looks as if sports minded seniors are leaving just a little bit too soon. Having lived through the dark ages, we can now begin to see the light, only to leave. So good luck to all those in any way connected with Maryville Sports.

Scotties Drop Game To UT

Wildness and lack of batting punch brought on the downfall of the Scotties against the University of Tennessee Vols in the second game of the year between the two schools. It was one of those rare bad days for the Scot moundsmen. The Vols scored six times in the bottom of the fourth and went on to take a 9-1 victory.

Sunny Short started for the Scots but was knocked out in the big fourth after walking four and giving up two triples to John Huffstetler and B. B. Hopkins. Harry Robinson came in to put out the fire, but he, too, had little luck in shackling the powerful Vols.

Got One Anyway

The Scots only score came in the top of the first when Earl Lawson singled, took second on Jimmy Campbell's single and then stole both third and home. Huffstetler then settled down to give up only two hits in the next eight innings to the hapless Scots.

INTRAMURAL INFO

Intramural Track Meet

By Ken Wilkinson

The scanty-clads of Maryville College gathered Monday afternoon at the football stadium for the annual intramural track meet. Some twenty-five men entered the fifteen different competitive events. It was one of the finest Intramural programs put on at Maryville in the last two years. The efficiency with which the events were run off and the fine spirit shown by the athletes gave renewed hope to those who sometimes get discouraged with the attitude of Intramural sports. Coach Johnson and Dick Kerr deserve a vote of thanks for their efforts in this program.

Field Events

At 4:00 the shouts of Kerr and Wilkinson for last call in the first event of the field events could be heard. To start the action Tom Fairhurst took a first place in the javelin throw with a respectable 147'8". A. C. McWilliams led the milers with a 5:06. This was the first of three first places that A. C. took. He followed with wins in the two-mile run at a 13:37 clip and out-lasted Bob Patterson with a 19'1" run-off in the broad jump. Previously he and Patterson had tied at 19'7".

More Events

The rest of the field events went as follows. Dave Williams earned the number one spot in the pole-vault with 7'6". The high jump was taken in by Dick Erickson. His winning height was 5'6". Dick Patton led the strong men by tossing the shot 35'1". The discus was thrown 113'8" by George Kipp for that event.

Track

Moving over to the track events, we find Paul Merwin chewing up the cinders for a six second win in the 50-yard dash. Clarence Shepard sped to a 10:08 victory in the 100-yard dash. Don Thorn took over in both the low and high hurdles with times of 17:05 and 19:00 respectively. Buddy Gilbert, who turned in a fine record for the afternoon, won the 220 yard dash in 28:07. Herb Catlin took the 440 and 880 yard dashes in 1:00 and 2:12 respectively.

Points

First place in each event was worth five points, second was valued at three and third was worth one. High point men for the day were A. C. McWilliams, 15; Buddy Gilbert, 15; Paul Merwin, 14; and Herb Catlin, 10. There were four teams entered as well as the independents. Pre-Mins took first place with 38 points. They were followed by Alpha Sigma with 37 points, and the Smokies, who totaled 32 points. The last place went to the Bartletteers, who had twelve points.

Individual Events Scoring

Listed below are all of the events and first place winners of each:

Scots Drop Carson-Newman

Victory Over C-N

The Scotties added another victory to their string on the 11th when they traveled to Carson-Newman and came home with a 6-4 win under their belts. Harry Robinson was the winning pitcher again, giving up four runs and six hits, being touched for two home runs in the game. The men of Maryville played errorless ball, rather unusual in this season.

Good Start

The Scotties got off to a flying start, scoring in the first inning as Sexton walked, went to second on an error, to third on Campbell's hit and scored on Shelton's ground ball to the first baseman. The Eagles went ahead in the third when Conner homered, Holt walked, Ashe singled, and the next two men grounded out, scoring Holt.

Still Trying

The Scotties came right back to score three times. Shelton grounded out to open the inning, but Van Benthysen singled, Dunn struck out, and Alford and Ramger walked. One run came when the catcher interfered with Robinson, and two more scored when Holt misplayed Sexton's ground ball. The Bucs tied it in the fifth on Taruin's base hit, followed by Dalton's home run with two out.

Winning Runs

The Scots scored in the seventh when Campbell was hit by a pitch, moved up on Shelton's hit, and scored on the shortstop's error. In the ninth, Lawson singled, and scored on Shelton's single for the final score of the game.

Tennis Team Ends Good Year With 9-3 Record

Last week end the Maryville College tennis team participated in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Memphis State College. The Highland doubles team of Kent Buser and Marshall England reached the semi-final round by whipping Ed Young and Coleman of Union College. The Tate-Dunavant duo of Memphis State defeated the Highland doubles team in the semi-final round. In singles play Kent Buser of the Highlanders defeated Donald Gold of Memphis State but lost to White of Sewannee in the semi-final round.

Down ETSTC

On Monday afternoon, the Scottie tennis neared the end of a very good season by downing East Tennessee State Teachers College, 6-3. The Scots dropped the first doubles match, as Marshall England and Ed Breitbach lost their singles matches, but Kent Buser dropped a strong left hander, and was backed up by wins by John Anderson, George Roberts and the returning Dick Leblod, and went on to take the other two doubles matches, Anderson and England and Lebold and Roberts teaming up for the victories. This was the eighth win of the season for the Scotties.

Good End

The following day the tennis team wound up the season on a successful note by downing a strong Carson-Newman team, 7-2. The only losses came in the doubles division where number one and three doubles teams dropped decisions to Carson-Newman.

Good Year

The tennis team had one of its better years in the midst of many good ones. They ended up with a 9-3 record, dropping matches only to the University of Tennessee twice and to Sewannee, one of the strongest teams in the South.

Baseball Team Ends Year Wins Three Straight Games

Revenge

After going down to a humiliating 10-9 defeat to East Tennessee State, the Scotties went to the Buccaneers home stadium to administer a 6-4 beating two weeks ago. Harry Robinson went all the way to pick up his fourth win, limiting the Bucs to only four hits, although backed by very poor support, his teammates committing seven errors in the field.

Scores

The Highlanders jumped off to a one run lead in the third inning when Sexton singled, went to second on Earl Lawson's infield out, stole third, and came in on the third baseman's error on Bob Shelton's ground ball. They added two more in the fourth when Don Alford and Bob Ramger opened with singles and loaded the bases when Harry Robinson walked. One run scored on Sexton's fielders choice and the second on the shortstop's error.

Catching Up

The Bucs also tallied one in the fourth to make it 3-1. Broyles walked, stayed there when Woy skied to Ramger and was forced at second by Haren, but the try for a double play went awry when Lawson threw the ball away, letting Haren go to third where the throw got away from Shelton and Haren came all the way in to score. Not to be outdone the Scotties added another run in the fifth when Van Benthysen singled, advanced on Moore's single, and scored on an infield out, but the Bucs tied the game in their half of the inning on three errors and one hit. Hamilton was safe on Shelton's error, Haines singled, Stiner walked, Wiles sent two runs in when his drive to Shelton got through, but was thrown out by Sexton trying to make second. Howell got the third run in on Robinson's miscue, and two flies finally ended the inning.

Winning Runs

A single run in the seventh and one in the eighth won the game for the Scotties. In the seventh after two were out, Alford was safe on an error and scored after singles by Ramger and Robinson. The last run was scored when Sexton singled, went to second on an infield out, stole third, and scored on Campbell's long fly.

Two Scottie Hurlers Just Miss Perfect Game

On Wednesday afternoon Larry Hill and Kyle Petree, making his first appearance in a Scottie game, just missed hurling a perfect game against Milligan College when Milligan's third baseman, Miller, opened the seventh with a double to left. That was a day for Hill, and Petree came on in relief, striking out the side in the ninth, and fanning five of the nine men to face him.

Big Inning

The Highlanders opened in the first inning with eight big runs, more than enuogh to sew up the game. Lynn Sexton opened with a walk, and Earl Lawson, followed suit. Then Jim Campbell was called out on strikes, and Bob Shelton walked to load the bases. Two runs scored on Bill Anderson's bunt single, and two more on Chuck Dunn's line drive to left which nearly tore the third baseman's hand off. Don Alford was safe on an error, Ramger singled, beating out a bunt, Larry Hill was safe when his third strike got away from the catcher, Sexton grounded out, but Lawson was safe on another error and Campbell singled, before Shelton finally grounded out to end the inning.

More and More

Things were quiet for the next few innings until the fourth and fifth when the Scotties added seven more runs. In the fourth, Campbell walked, Shelton grounded out, but Bill Anderson doubled to left, the ball bouncing over the fence on the first hop. Then Dunn singled, and Alford was safe on an error before Ramger and Hill went out. In the fifth, Sexton grounded out, but Lawson walked, Campbell singled, and after Shelton skied to right, Anderson drove the last of his total of five runs with his third straight hit. Dunn was safe on the shortstop's error, Alford singled, Ramger was safe on an error, and Hill struck out but not before four runs came across the plate.

The Dressing

Just to top off the afternoon, the Scotties added three more in the eighth when Raulerson walked as did Petree. Van Benthysen grounded out, but Matthews walked, and Campbell doubled and Shelton singled to drive in the final scores of the game.

Only Once

Milligan's only threat, and only base runner, came in the seventh when Miller doubled to open the inning and went to third on a passed ball, but Petree kept him there on two easy ground balls and a pop-up.

Playhouse To Give 'Antigone' Again Tuesday Night

Maryville College Playhouse's first performance of the commencement play, Sophocles's "Antigone", last night was in a way Playhouse's attempt to reproduce as much as possible a Greek theater here on campus.

Thaw Hall, usually known as the home of the library, became an outdoor theater. Besides having its front steps and porch used as a stage, the building also provided electricity and was used for rehearsals for the past seve... days.

Rehearsals were held on the northside of the building with the Echo office being used as power plant, dressing room, and just as a place for actors' study (if possible).

Preparations

For many days drama instructor Jack Kemp and Playhouse members have been working on flats and light poles. For those of you who were not present at last night's performance or have not noticed them, light is being provided by two large light poles set up on each corner of the cement apron in front of the building.

Power for these lights comes from a cord stretched across the library floor from the light switch board to another switch just outside the window behind the reserve book table. Electric power lines stretch across the apron in front of the audience.

These light poles and the flats which have been standing in the lobby to the library have combined to give Thaw Hall quite a different look during the past week or so.

Players

Starring in the outdoor presentation is Sue White, in the role of Antigone; Dorothy Crawford as Ismene; Bob Read playing Creon; Preston Bogia playing Haemon; and Martha Horton as Eurydice.

The translation of the play is by F. Kinchin Smith. Music used is Brahms' "Symphony Number 4," "Gymnopedie," by Debussy, and Schoenberg's "Verklaerte Nacht."

Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama and speech, is the director. The second performance is scheduled for this Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Margaret Hanna Elected Next Year's IRC Prexy

Margaret Hanna, rising sophomore sociology major from Jeffersontown, Ky. was elected president of the International Relations Club last week. Chosen as vice president was Donald Layton. Maryel Vogel was selected secretary, and Naomi Burgos was elected treasurer.

Miss Hanna will replace Van Holland as president of the organization. Other officers during 1952-53 were: Evelyn Fields, secretary; Charles LaRue, treasurer; and Ken Rutherford, program chairman.

During the following year Arda Walker, assistant professor of ..story, will serve as the advisor. Commodore Fisher, associate professor of history, served in that capacity this year.

Band Concert Set At FAC Tonight

The Maryville College Concert Band, under the directorship of W. Curtis Hughes, assistant professor of music, will present a music program on Saturday, May 16, at 9 p.m. in the FAC amphitheater.

Ann Hoover, will be featured as solo pianist for the evening, playing Grundman's "Blue Tail Fly" and "American Folk Rhapsody."

Band selections of the night will include tthe following: "Military March," by Beethoven; "Pomp and Circumstance," by Elgar; "Rhapsody in Blue," by Gershwin, and others.

Soph. Class Gives Senior Send-Off

Maryville's first Senior Send-Off program was launched on the evening of May 12, on Honaker Field and in the Alumni Gymnasium.

The three undergraduate classes co-operated in the farewell program honoring the class of 1953. The event itself was sponsored by the sophomore class. Liz Murphy served as general chairman with Ken Wilkinson acting as emcee.

The festivities began with the serving of the evening meal on the football field. This was followed by group singing led by Charles Schroeder. Two lively songs were rendered by the "gray-haired trio"—Miss Johnson, Miss Miles, and Mrs. Cummings. Coach Honaker, Miss Heron, and Dr. Lloyd were featured individually later in the evening.

Class Skits

Each class presented a skit as part of the festivities. The junior class did impersonations of seven seniors. The sophomores took their audience to the French Quarters in New Orleans. The days of chivalrous knights and fair ladies served as the freshman theme.

These acts were concluded by square dancing in the gymnasium and a bonfire on the football field.

Since the first Senior Send-Off was greeted with such an unusual amount of enthusiasm, many students expressed the desire that Send-Off should become one of the regular activities on campus.

Carol Moore Names Editors Of 'Chilhowean'

Carol Moore, editor of the 1954 Chilhowean announced this week that Peggy Fisher, Carol Ann Doll, Kathy Chase, and Wayne Brooks have been appointed to the editorial staff.

They will fill the positions of copy editor, index editor, class editor, and sports editor, respectively.

College Announces Total MC Enrollment At 676

Large Freshman Class Enters

By Kathy Chase

Enrollment figures for this year, ist released by the Personnel Office, show the total number of students here now to be 676. Of these, 71 are freshmen, 170 are sophomores, 120 are juniors, 113 are seniors and 2 are part-time students. There are actually 255 new freshmen, but the other 19, making the total of 271, are those who came here in January last semester and are still classified as freshmen. There are 28 transfers. These figures are accurate as of September 7 but since that time, more students may have returned or some may have left, and thus there may be some slight changes.

The reason for the low number of students in the upper classes is that after the war, the enrollment increased in the upper classes and the lower classes had to be cut because of overcrowdedness in the dormitories. Now those lower classes are the upper classes.

Enrollment Shows Gain

The enrollment total of 676 shows a gain of six students over last year. The freshman class, with 271 members, has 40 more than last year's freshman class.

These figures do not include part-time students enrolled for such subjects as music and art.

Ath-Bain To Rush Frosh Next Week With Formal Show

Wednesday morning is the official opening of the Athenian-Bainonian Rush Week, according to announcement made by chairmen Barbara Chubb, Peg Fisher, Charles Rogers, and Don Moffett. Mary Virginia Ferguson and Walt Hiller are presidents of these two organizations.

Wednesday evening the new students will be entertained at a square dance, in charge of Corny Force and Sonny Shackelford, and Thursday afternoon all Bainonians and new students are to be entertained at a tea. Callie Mitchell, Joanne Edwards, and Jessie McMullen are chairmen of this tea. Dave Gates is to be master of ceremonies for the event. Friday night is the annual formal show climaxing the week of activities.

The script for the Friday night show was written by Carolyn Beatty and is being directed by George Caldwell. The show stars Esther Lerch, Sheila Sutton, John Barrows, Bill Howell, Jim Darroch, Joanne Edwards, and Marcia Williams. The chorus is made up of Dee Woods, Lynn Keifer, Dot Wells, Carolyn Beatty, Dave Gates, Sonny Shackelford, Rod McMillan, and Floyd Hickman, and is under the direction of Carolyn Beatty. The pianists for the show are Jim Kesler, Nita Baylor, and Jackie Speigner.

The decorations for the formal and the set were designed and built by Nancy Rideout and Jim Crawford. Walt Hiller is chairman of the stage committee. Marcia Williams is in charge of the costume committee and Nancy Rideout and Anne Buckley are in charge of make-up. Carol Moore is chairman of the refreshment committee, and Nancy Rideout is in charge of training the usherettes and waitresses Bill Stein arranged the dances.

Throughout the week, the favors will be taken care of by Carolyn Lame, and the campus committee is made up of Millie Mowery, Joan Douglas, Ralph Force, and Jim Demer, Abby Crosby, Sadie Davis, and Betty Messer.

Eakin To Lead Prayer

Janice Eakin will lead all-campus prayer meeting Thursday at 9:30 p.m. at the side of Thaw.

Last Thursday members of the all campus devotions committee were in charge of the evening. Peggy Evans and Harry Robinson spoke and Eddie Griegsby gave a trumpet solo.

MC Adds New Faculty, Staff

By Shirley Armstrong and Kathy Chase

New appointments and changes in the Maryville faculty and staff are many. These listed have been announced by President Ralph W. Lloyd:

Virginia Turrentine, B.A., M.A. L.S., of Nashville, Librarian. Her degrees are from the University of Tennessee and George Peabody College for Teachers, and for the last eight years she has been on the library staff of Florida State University.

Amelia Jo Weir, B.A., M.A., from Birmingham Southern College and the University of Alabama. She is an Assistant Professor of English.

Ruth E. Blackburn, B.S., Maryville College, instructor in biology. She did graduate work in Chicago this past summer.

E. Newell Witherspoon, B.A., Maryville College and a graduate student of Vanderbilt University, Instructor in business administration.

Mrs. Louie E. Sperry, B.S., Southeast Missouri State College. Instructor in home economics.

Anna C. McMillan, B.A., Georgia State College for Women and a student at Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York. She is an Instructor in piano.

Ralph Moore, B.S. and M.A. from Western Reserve University, Instructor in band and wind instruments.

James A. Bloy, B.A., M.B., M.M. from North Central College, Illinois, and Eastman School of Music. He is an Instructor in music, namely piano, organ and music literature.

Jane I. Johnson, B.A., M.M., Instructor in music (piano and special studies). Her degrees are from Carleton College, Minnesota and Eastman School of Music.

Carolyn V. Symmes, B.A., Maryville College, Editorial Supervisor of Special Studies and Library Assistant.

Mrs. John A. Davis, Maryville, Assisiant in the Personnel Office.

Mrs. F. A. Griffitts, Maryville, Assistant in the Alumni Office.

Mrs. Tom Purnell, Nashville. Assistant to the Head of Pearsons Hall.

Mrs. J. E. Spears, Morristown. Assistant to the Head of Baldwin Hall.

Paul J. Cooper, Ph.D., returns from leave of absence to be Associate Professor of French.

Arthur S. Bushing, M.A., Assistant Professor of English, returns from leave of absence.

Carolyn L. Blair, M.A., Assistant Professor of English, and Mrs. Robert Stepp, B.S., Instructor in Home Economics, will be on leave of absence to do graduate study.

Mrs. Doak Moore, former Assistant to the Head of Baldwin Hall, is now housemother at a sorority house at Washington State University.

If we could have followed the staff and faculty of MC this summer, we would certainly have been on the go—all over the United States and Europe. Nearly everyone was either teaching, studying, or just vacationing.

First, President Lloyd took off for Northern Europe to a meeting of the Executive Committee of the World Presbyterian Alliance in Holland, visiting a number of other countries: and flying all the way.

Then Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Beard crossed the Atlatnic, visiting various art centers in Great Britain and Europe.

Katherine Davies, Gertrude Meiselwitz, and Katherine Crews went down to Mexico, and Mrs. V. M. Queener went to New Mexico.

Viola Lightfoot, Nancy Hunter, Elizabeth H. Jackson, and Clemmie Henry spent part of June on the island of Jamaica. They drove to Miami, Fla., and flew from there to Kingston.

Then there were those who were still at "the old grind." James H. Schwam studied at Columbia University, Ingeborg Rodemann, at Peabody College in Nashville, Harry Harter at Union Theological Seminary in New York City, A. F. Pieper at the University of North Carolina and David H. Briggs at Western Carolina College.

H. S. Reber received his M.A. degree from Indiana University.

Ralph T. Case traveled to Yellowstone and Teton National Parks, the Black Hills, and the South and North Dakota Badlands.

Evelyn Guss went to California, and Miss Catherine Wilkinson took a trip through New England, Canada, and back through Niagara Falls.

Frank D. McClelland went to Washington, D. C., and Ohio.

F. A. Griffitts and Mrs. Thelma Kramer taught at the University of Tennessee, and Commodore Fisher taught a Foreign Missions class at the Senior Conference at Tusculum College.

Student Council Has First Session

Studen Council elected five members to the Student-Faculty Senate at its first meeting of the school year, held Wednesday, September 9, in the student center. These were Hank Van Hassel, Naomi Burgos, Herb White, Bill Davis, and Jim Kesler. Already on the Senate are Student Body President Bill Dartnell, Social Board Chairman Pat Halstead, and WSGA President Mary Jim Bevan.

Committees Appointed

In addition to the steering committee and the publicity committee, which were appointed last spring, Dartnell named the following committees for this year:

Elections, A. C. McWilliams, chairman, Jack Maxwell, Herb White, Tom Bugenhagen, Naomi Burgos, Ginny Smith, and Sonny Shackleford;

Finance, Jim Hunt, chairman, Jim Kesler, and Bob Jackson;

Student programs, Sue Binnion, Hank Van Hassel, and Jack Maxwell.

Members of the publicity committee are Herb White, chairman, Joan Frei, Peggy Fisher, and Judy Burgos.

The steering committee is made up of Bill Dartnell, A. C. McWilliams, Pat Halstead, Carol Moore, Hank Van Hassel, and Sonny Shackleford.

Council discussed the problem of the Carnegie coke machine, and Jim Hunt was appointed to look into the matter, since there is no MSO to take care of the machine and the proceeds from it.

Dartnell brought up the fact that the College Hill Grill is still within bounds on Town Night, and appointed Carol Demler to find out whether it is to be open on Tuesday nights in the future.

No Town Night violations were reported to Council.

Classes to Have Elections

It was reported that the senior class needs to hold elections for vice-president and treasurer, since those officers did not return to school. Council voted to authorize Dartnell to call a student body meeting for the purpose of ratifying the Town Night agreement and for holding senior and freshman class elections.

Dartnell called the student body meeting for Thursday, September 17, after chapel.

Playhouse To Give 'Bell, Book, And Candle' This Fall

"Bell, Book, and Candle" is the play that has been selected for the fall production by the MC Playhouse. Written by Van Druten, "Bell, Book, and Candle" is a sophisticated comedy about modern day witches.

If the Chapel is available for the spring presentation, two plays, George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion" and Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie," will be given. Otherwise the Playhouse will present "Detective Story." There is a possibility that the Commencement Play will be "Harvey" by Mary Chase.

Playhouse Officers

Officers of Playhouse, elected last spring, are president, George Caldwell, senior drama major from Seattle, Wash.; vice president, David Gates, senior physics major from Fulton, Mo.; and secretary, Anne Buckley, junior drama major from Clifton, Va. A treasurer is to be elected to replace Carol Ann Doll, who did not return to MC this year.

Staff Positions Open On Echo

Positions on the Highland Echo editorial staff are still open to freshmen, it is announced by Echo Editor, Joan Frei. Those interested in trying out are to meet with the staff at 7:30 Monday night in the Echo office.

Anyone wishing to work on the business staff is to see Business Manager Bob Read.

Subscriptions to the Echo are available at the rate of one dollar a year or 50 cents a semester from the Editor or the Business Manager.

Theta-Sig To Close Week With 'Mardi Gras' Musical

Vick To Speak Here Thursday

By Lora Kinsinger

Dr. George H. Vick, minister of First Presbyterian Church, Charleston, W.V., will speak here at chapel on Thursday, September 17. He will be in Maryville in connection with a series of meetings to be held at New Providence Presbyterian Church.

Born in North Carolina, Dr. Vick received his A.B. degree from Maryville College and his B.D. at Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. He was a student under the Fielding Lewis-Walker Fellowship, Univiersty of Edinburgh, Scotland, and completed his Resident requirements for Doctor of Theology at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

DR. GEORGE VICK

Beginning his ministry in 1937 at Owensboro, Ky., Dr. Vick remained there until 1942 when he accepted a call to St. Joseph, Mo., where he stayed until 1945.

Pastor of Large Church

At the age of thirty-three Dr. Vick began his ministry at the Charleston church, which is the second largest Presbyterian church in America. For a membership of more than 3,000 it is necessary to have two services each Sunday morning and three on Easter Sunday. During the seven years Dr. Vick has been there, more than 1900 new members have been received, four new churches have been formed, and seven young people have given themselves to church-related vocations.

After-Supper Dancing Begins This Week

Social after-supper dancing in the Intramural Gymnasium began this week for al lstudents. The first dance was held Wednesday night.

Director of the Student Center, Mrs. Nell Strick, said dancing would be held each evening, Monday through Friday, from 6:30 to 7:15. Mrs. Strick is chaperone for the dances.

Willard House Reopened, Women Students to Call

Willard House, the former home of the college president, is open again this year as a center for women students. Vacant since 1951, the house is occupied by Frances Massey, Dean of Women, Neil Strick, Student Center director, and Anna McMillan and Jane Johnson of the music faculty.

Miss Massey has an apartment on the first floor, and the others live on the second floor, where two guest rooms are also available. The parlor and library will remain as they are.

Miss Massey at Home

On Sunday, September 13, Miss Massey and the other occupants of the house will be at home to junior and senior women. They are invited to call between 3 and 5 p.m. to meet in an informal atmosphere.

Societies To Hold Annual Formal

By Abby Crosby

The formal musical show to be presented tonight at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gym will be the climax of three days of rushing activities prepared for the new students by societies Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma.

Their general theme for the week has been "The Mardi Gras" and the particular theme for tonight's entertainment will be "Mask-Time at the Mardi Gras," according to announcement made by Jack Barber, Stan Ray, and Jackie Kendall. The script for tonight's production was written by Naomi Burgos and Eddie Breitbach. It is being directed by Carol Moore and stars Harry McCall, Ruth Orr, Bob Patterson, Doris Scott, Bob Ramger, Liz Murphy, Cary Valentine, Judy Burgos, Libby Parrish, Dock Jennings, Joe Lowry, Liz Enloe, Morgan Biggs, Charlie Greathouse, and Ethelyn Cathey. Bob Lorenz and Henry Emmons are to be the pianists for the evening. The chorus is composed of Sally Butts, Jinny Smith, Ann Taylor, Jean Maxwell, Cary Valentine, Jim Laster, John Borter, and Bob Jackson.

Thursday night the new students were entertained with the traditional Theta Splash Party, which was in charge of Doris Glad, Martha Jackson, and Ethelyn Cathey. The cast of the show consisted of Nancy McMillan, Pat Halstead, Mary Jim Bevan, Carol Moore, Sandra Miller, Doris Glad, Ann Daniel, Shirley Armstrong, Sarah Carpenter, Betts McKenney, Nan Spivy, Corny Force, Trudy Furman, Betty Harrill, and Bob Ramger.

Yesterday afternoon Theta presented the new girls with a fashion show headed by Jo Brooks, Libby Ann Parrish, and Charlotte Linde.

Chairman of the Big-Little Sister Committee was Sarah Carpenter, Willie Sutton, Connie Howell, and Nillah Grinstead had charge of the invitations, and dates were arranged by Tom Bugenhagen, Pat Halstead, Paul Payne, Mary Nichol, Bob Ramger, and Jo Brooks. Grace Harrison and Judy Burgos were chairmen of the favors committee.

The set for tonight's production was designed by Bob Brand and was built by Madlon Travis, Betts McKenney, Mary Jim Bevan, Cary Valentine, Alice Rowe, Tom Bugenhagen, Harry McCall, and Bill Dais. The refreshments have been arranged by Bets McKenney, Jim Laster, and Helen Seay. The costumes were done by Martha Horton and Garnetta Alexander, and Doug Stubblefield is to be in charge of lighting. The publicity for the week was taken care of by John Barter, Liz Enloe, Sue Cook, and Willie Sutton.

FAC Faculty To Picnic

The annual opening picnic of the FAC faculty will be held this afternoon beginning at 1 p.m. They will go to the Smoky Mountains for this outing honoring the new faculty of the FAC. The new faculty members are Jane Johnson, Anna McMillan, James Bloy, Ralph Moore, and Mrs. Moore.

Writers' Workshop To Hold First Meeting

Writers' Workshop will hold its first meeting of the year at 4:30 p.m. Monday in Dr. Hunter's classroom. On the program will be a reading of the constitution, drawing for reading dates, and election of new members to fill vacancies.

Members of the governing board this year are Walter Elwood, chairman for the first semester, George Caldwell, chairman during the second semester, Joan Frei, secretary, and Assistant Professor Arthur S. Bushing.

Summer Sees Weddings Among Students, Grads

By Abby Crosby

Judging from the number of bulletin board announcements, newspaper clippings, and reports of students and graduates, ministers all over the country were kept busy performing wedding ceremonies for Maryville College graduates this summer.

SHORT-MORRISON

In Trenton, Ga., on June 28, Kathy Morrison, ex '55, and Sonny Short, '53, were married by the bride's grandfatehr. The only Maryville witness at the ceremony was Carolyn Lime '55, who served at the reception. Kathy and Sonny are at home in the Emory University apartments where Sonny is enrolled in medical school.

BRAHAMS-BAYLOR

Another early summer wedding, June 20, in Sturgis, Mich., was that of La Donna Baylor, '53, and Hap Brahams, '50. Nita Baylor, '56, was her sister's maid of honor, and Mary Ann Hicks, '53, served as one of the bridesmaids. Joe Stater, ex '54, was an usher. Hap and La Donna are now living in Yakima, Wash., where Hap is associate pastor of the First Presbyteriann Church.

SHEAR-KINGSTON

On The Echo

As we come to the beginning of a new college year, it may be well to consider the place that our newspaper has in our school life. It can be unread and useless, with no part in what is going on, or it can be an informative and at times entertaining paper that fills a definite purpose. Examples of both types of school paper are not hard to find.

The Echo seeks to present the news objectively and accurately, informing the students of campus events and presenting questions in an unbiased manner.

To accomplish this aim the Echo staff appreciates the help you can give by means of suggestions and constructive criticism. This is your newspaper and we want you to have a hand in it.

Welcome, Freshmen

In these first few weeks of the school year freshmen are going through a process of being welcomed and introduced to college that may easily leave them somewhat bewildered. We would, though, like to add our own words of greeting to the newcomers on campus.

You may often hear the words, "We did that last year, so that's what we'll do this year," and receive the impression that things at Maryville are unchanging. The fact is that rules and customs do change. A glance at the old "M" books in the library should confirm that statement. As an example, the time was when Maryville boys and girls could see each other every day from 12:50 to 1:10 in the afternoon. Times are certainly different now.

When speaking of the desirability of change, however, we should not lead ourselves to believe that it is merely an end in itself. While recognizing the importance of keeping an open mind toward new things, we should not ignore the value that does lie in tradition.

The main thing is to judge matters on their own merits rather than on whether or not they agree with preconceived opinions we may have formed in different situations.

To you freshmen, especially, this is addressed because you will be the college leaders in the next few years to come. For all of us, though, it is important to start the school year with an unbiased mind and a willingness to consider all sides of a situation.

The Loose Week-end

"Plague—A scourge; an evil. 2. Pestilence; specif., an acute, malignant, contagious fever prevalent in Asia (and Maryville) and elsewhere."

To All New Students: The above is just what Mr. Webster calls it—mostly. Here at this institution, we use the term to apply to the type of affliction which struck Monday anywhere between midnight and 7 a.m. But, it was not an initiation for freshmen—everybody was included in this one.

Generally the plague comes along somewhat later—probably arranged to relieve the boredom from the steady, routine, heavy and studious college life. An invention of the Phys. Ed. department maybe??????

The Men Without A Table

Miss Ware was still insisting early this week that certain persons "please find themselves a permanent place" in the dining hall. Wanderers have been roaming, apparently, since school began. Meanwhile they eat at the guest table. Gad, maybe Dr. Lloyd, Miss Massey, and company get left out until those guys find a place to eat.

So That's What They're For

As usual the music department had to get all the unfortunates who take "applied music" down to the FAC on Tuesday afternoon even if there wasn't a recital scheduled. Glenn Gentry, a fixture around the music hall, was at the door handing out enormous sheets containing the infinite rules for music students.

As Miss Davies was in the midst of her explanation about these huge forms, one discontented music major was heard to say, "I've been blotting my lipstick on these things for two years."

Our English Department!

Junior English majors, comparatively new to the sights in Dr. Hunter's classroom, may be wondering about the function of the small cubicle (I guess that's as good a name as any) in one corner. Seniors, who should know, report that it leads to Miss Heron's classroom, and that it has doors at both entrances. R-r-r-r-r-r-r.

° ° ° ° °

By this time, choir tryouts should be finished and posted. So, some few lucky new students are now part of the Vesper Choir "which has just returned from vacation." When Dr. Lloyd made this observation Sunday night at Vespers, one small non-choir voice squeaked, "So have we!" (No, it wans't a glee club member).

° ° ° ° °

The Chopel

We're just about to forget the new chapel under construction in Carnegie's side yard. You know, that area has been the location of several new buildings in recent years.

There's Dr. Queener's icehouse, known more familiarly as the Fine Arts Center, the Aztec Ruins behind Carnegie, the Lloyd Memorial, and our new Chapel.

In his convocation address, Dr. Lloyd discussed the construction at some length. He made reference to the little "bloops" on the Carnegie-most side of the building. One of our expert architectural critics (student body member) said it looked like an airplane hanger. Oh well, icehouse on one side of the road and a hanger on the other.

Maybe we'd rather do without, critics??????

We Really Mean This

We certainly hope all new students feel that they are welcome at Maryville by this itme. This is a little late, but nevertheless—Welcome! Glad to have you with us.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Maryville College students are concerned is one called "Effective Evangelism" by Dr. George E. Sweazy. Upper classmen will remember Dr. Sweazy as the leader of our 1952 February Meetings. Dr. Sweazy, who is Secretary for Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., is connected with Maryville also because he is the brother of Mrs. Lincoln Barker, wife of Professor Barker of our faculty.

In his latest book Dr. Sweazy discusses every phase of evangelism, spiritual preparation, church organization, contacts, cultivation, commitment, and conversion. "Effective Evangelism" is a book that I'm sure will be warmly received at Maryville College not only for its subject matter but because of our high esteem for the author.

Also in the library this week is an interesting display called Maryville College Past and Present. Included in it are old "M" books and Chilhoweans, a copy of an old diploma dating back to 1849, and many interesting pictures of the campus including the floor plans of the new chapel which might be termed Maryville College in the future.

PLAYS

Over the footlights from Playhouse comes a brief preview of the fall play, "Bell Book and Candle," by John Van Druten, author of "I Remember Mamma". The plot centers around modern day witchcraft and a beautiful witch who is incapable of falling in love. Just for fun she makes the hero fall in love with her. Here the story becomes entangled but in the end love conquers all. Judging by past performances we can all look forward to a most entertaining evening sometime in November.

Also in the future but well worth waiting for is the 1953 Artist Series featuring this year readings by Charles Laughton. You better buy your tickets early this year, it's bound to be a sell out.

Getting back to the present, Rush Weeks are upon us this week and next. Tonight Theata will present her Mardi Gras and next week Balnonian will take us to her formal. Here's wishing them both loads of good luck.

MOVIES

Around the popcorn circuit this coming town night are two flicks that should be enough to make you forget special studies and the like. At the Capital is "All I Desire" starring Barbara Stanwick. Across the street at the Park is "The Lusty Men" with Robert Mitchum and Susan Hayward.

Here's wishing you all a good week of good reading and good viewing.

BOOKS

The new book table in the library contains a wealth of reading material this week to suit almost any taste. It looks as if the library staff had plenty to keep them busy while the rest of us were enjoying our summer vacations.

The new book list ranges from "The Natural History of a Delinquent Career" by Clifford R. Shaw and Maurice E. Moore, a collection of case studies dealing with the problem of juvenile delinquency, to "Presidential Cookbook" by Henrietta Nesbitt, housekeeper for the Roosevelts. Somewhere in the middle you will find a book entitled "A Treasury of Early American Homes" by Richard Pratt. Treasury is an apt word to describe this beautiful olume. It is a masterpiece of color photography including over 250 color plates of famous old American homes. The homes range from Cape Cod cottages to great plantation houses of the old south. Along with the pictures is a running commentary explaining many interesting features of early American homemaking. I highly recommend this pictorial collection for its interest, its beauty, and its educational value.

Sports Echoes

By Malcolm King

Maryville College football enthusiasts should be happy of the fact that the two-platoon system is now stashed away in the record books, and the "old" style system is now back in swing. From the looks of all pro and cons of the now extinct system, the Scots should prosper under the single platoon.

Large colleges such as Michigan State, Maryland, Georgia Tech, California, Tennessee and others dominated the gridiron picture under the two-platoon while the smaller schools took a back seat, getting slaughtered in the process. Now with the "evil" of football out, small schools, such as Maryville, have a chance to field teams which will measure up a little more favorably with the larger colleges.

Maryville has never been financially able, and it has never been the policy of the administration, to offer grants-in-aid to athletes in order to build a powerful football team. Even so, while playing schools that have scholarship boys, the Highlanders have held their own in most seasons of competition. This year the Scots will face their opponents with more equalized manpower.

The changing of the substitution rule by the NCAA last year caused much controversy in sports' circles, and much of it is brought back in mind when coaches begin to speculate on this year's possibilities.

Small schools are apt to receive more benefits from the change because of their inability to "buy" football material on a large scale like the universities and highly-toted private institutions. In Maryville's case, no talent can be purchased.

As far as the game is concerned, the single platoon will give the spectator a better brand of football. Doing away with the "specialist", boys with all-around skill—pass, kick, run, and play defense—will once again steal the headlines. The mass movement of players every time the team changes from offense to defense, or vice-versa will not be present. Players will have to strutt their best to maintain a starting berth.

Grid fans favoring the two-platoon system deliver the complain that less boys will be able to participate in collegiate competition, thus, canning the original idea of college football—a builder of a better man and to give as many as possible active service. Yet, the original purpose was lost in the mad rush years back when colleges and universities turned the game of football into a publicity agent for the school. Colleges with top football teams drew the largest enrollment.

Some people say that giving the two platoon the ouster will ruin the attendance at the games. Georgia Tech's Coach Bobby Dodd, a Tennessee product, has been issuing statements that the loss of the system will cause the modern-day fan to lose much of the interest which has been built to an all-time high in the past few years. The University of Tennessee's famed mentor General Bob Neyland (now retired) praises the action of the NCAA for abolishing the specialized game. It should be noted that his best teams came under the single platoon.

Possibilities have it that the change may break down the "big business" colleges and universities have made of football and slow down some of the mechanized grid systems of larger schools. Bob Mathias, twice Olympic champ in the Decathlon and twice named Athlete of the Year, blasted college football this summer for leading away from the sport itself. He mentioned that the development of good sportsmanship and good game tactics is being neglected as schools drive for the top ten ranking in the football polls. Such comments may never be heard again now that the two-platoon is on the sidelines.

In the last few seasons, Maryville has had ample talent to produce a winning team, and the fans and students have supported them through the good and the bad, but most of their competition had much better bench teams than the Highlanders.

Though boasting a large squad last year, the Scots did not have the necessary depth of primed talent. Big and well-trained boys with excellent prospective characteristics from the local area, such as Buddy White, Jim Hutsel, Charlie Headrick, and John Anderson along with towering material from down Florida way, will bolster Coach John Davis' hopes for a superior front wall, hit fairly hard by graduation.

Should the large surplus of returning lettermen pan out as 60-minute men, as well as the much-promising freshmen, Coach Lombe Honaker and Davis will have a top-notch team with sights set on besting the records of Maryville teams back as far as the Tangerine Bowl squad of '47.

The problem of getting and keeping the team in top condition may arise in the Scottie training camp after the first game. With substitution very limited this year, the boys will have a much harder time bowling over the opposition for larger periods of time because the fresher man can not replace the fgaged one at will.

Capable leadership wli lnot be lacking as seniors Ken Shepard and Jerry King are captain and alternate captain respectively.

Two Floridians named Bill—Letterman Bill Wheatly and mid-semester freshman Bill Strickland may get a chance once again to be running mates at the tackle slot on the gridiron. In high school, the two Bills were tackle twins for two years.

Should Wheatley gain a starting berth over Charles Headrick and John Anderson while Strickland competes with Ted Godfrey and Leroy Gooden, the 190-pound speedster and the 220-pound bruiser will again throw blocks together.

Former Scotties hang up cleats for good—Three former Maryville gridders hung up their cleats for good last month when they took the vows of wedlock. Homer Garren, '52 captain and center, tied the knot in Louisville, Ky., and Harold Glad, crack fullback of the '52 team, went to the altar in New York. Tom "Tiger" Jones, '51 tackle, checked in at Louisville, too.

Kilts have not arrived—Maryville fans will have to wait several weeks before they can witness the kilt-garbed band members parade at pre-game and half-time. Though the musicians will perform, they will be minus the Scottish uniforms which have yet to arrive on campus.

Gridders Prep For Season Opener

Matmen, Baseballers Leading '53 Performers

By Jim Demer

At the beginning of the 1952-53 wrestling season, Coach J. D. Davis really had a problem. How was he going to have a winning team with only two lettermen back from the previous season? And to make things worse, it would be Maryville's first losing season since 1935-36.

The moans from Coach Davis eased when, led by SEC champ and Captain Bill Morse, the matmen breezed past the Knoxville YMCA, 21-9. Hopes fell again as the Maryville team lost a close one to Middle Tennessee State, 17-15. This was the Scot's first home match and marked the debut of Tom "Tiger" Bugenhagen, who, along with Morse, was to provide the fans with plenty of thrills.

Maryville rebounded from their loss and beat the University of Chattanooga, 18-12, tied MTS, 15-15, but once again fell by the wayside as Vanderbilt University beat them handily, 22-8. A two-match win streak was put together as Maryville beat Emory of Atlanta and Vanderbilt in close decisions. Then "Awful" Auburn invaded the campus. The Tigers have dominated the SEC conference for the last several years and showed the reason why as they trimmed the Scotties. In the last match of the season, Maryville showed that they still had the stuff by romping over the Knoxville "Y", 31-3.

Next came the SEC tournament where Maryville tied for fourth place. The Scots failed to take any first places, but Morse, Bugenhagen and heavyweight George Kipp came in second in their respective weight divisions. Coach Davis then lifted up his head proudly and Maryville finished with a 6 won, 1 tied and 3 lost record.

BASKETBALL

The 1952-'53 Scottie hoopsters finished their worst cage season since the '41-'42 campaign, ending up with a 7-15 record. Not since 1941 have the Scots done so poorly percentage-wise. Fifteen is also the largest number of defeats ever suffered by a Highlander squad.

A sunny side-light to the season is the fact that the Scots scored more points in the '53 campaign than any other team in the history of this school—racking up the total of 1951 points.

Dick "Rabbit" Abbott led the Scot regulars with a 16.86 average per game. Big center Jack Keny, hook shot artist, followed with a 14.45 mark.

This year the Lombe Honaker quintet should better the 7-15 record with all lettermen returning except Jimmy Campbell, the only senior on last year's tsquad. Also not returning is junior Jim Wiley who played some excellent ball last season but failed to letter.

Coach Ken Johnsno's "B" squad had several promising performers, and with this talent moving up plus several new boys, the '53-'54 squad should do well.

BASEBALL

The diamond men of Coach Lombe S. Honaker put the Scots back on the winning road as they chalked up a fine seasonal record of 13 wins and 4 losses, one game a 14 inning thriller with the University of Tennessee.

The Scots started the season off at a fast pace by winning their first six games. The string was soon broken as the highly favored University of Tennessee Vols outlasted the Scotties in 14 innings, 6 to 3.

Once again a winning streak was put together, but this was broken at two games as the Scotties lost two in a row.

Both games saw Maryville come out at the short end of a one-run game. L.M.U. won 4 to 3 in a tight game. Then what seemed like a sure victory was lost as East Tennessee State scored 8 times in the last three innings to wrap up a 10 to 9 thriller.

Another winning streak was stopped at two games as the University of Tennessee again beat Maryville, this time 9-1. Maryville picked up momentum to sweep the last four games and end up with the 13-4 record.

Though it seems strange considering the Scots' fine record, not one regular hit over .300. Third baseman Bob Shelton had 14 hits in 48 times at bat for a .295 average. This is the second straight year that Bob has led the Scots at bat, posting a lusty .358 mark in

Women's Varsity Cheer Girls Begin

By Dixie Conner

Women's sports have gotten off to a glorious start this year, what with Women's Varsity and cheerleading tryouts coming up this Monday evening at the Alumni Gym. This week Mrs. Queener, director of women's sports, called a meeting of all girls interested in said Varsity From all reports, a number of eager-beaver freshman girls showed up at said meeting and are planning on taking a piece out of the Women's "M" Club for their very own. Good luck, gals, all you have to do is exercise an hour a day; hike the seven-mile loop six times a semester, totaling 42 miles; observe all health rules, such as brushing your teeth once or twice a day, not eating between meals except fruit or fruit drinks (fruit juice costs one thin dime at yon Student Centernot much more than a tall bottle of Mountain Dew); bathe once or twice a week (shower will do if no bathtub); wash hands before meals; eat three times a day (Hah!); drink; and catch no colds; play tennis; play in aerial dart tournament; do all kinds of stunts; be a track star; swim; and always come to Varsity—dressed.

Actually, it's not as bad as it sounds, though, as long as you have some other exercise faddist to share your misery. Some of the greatest of these exercise faddists are to be found here and there on the campus, usually hiking out through the College Woods at 6:30 in the A.M. or digging into their jeans for a dime for a wee can of orange-grapefruit juice (fruit drink). Any one of them would be glad to accompany some earnest young athlete to either of the above places.

Let me enlarge on these older athlete, better known hereabouts as "M" Club members. They are Mary Ann Thompson, Helen Drinnen, Joan Herschelman, Barbara June Gregoyr, Cornelia Force, Betty Lou Cutler, Nancy Dunn, Henry (Bevo) Laing, Shirley Axley, Betty Watson, Sarah Carpenter, Pat Laing, Charlotte Lind, Natalie Prinzing, Emma Curright swell co-eds).

Cheerleader aspirants are really showing their stuff in hopes that it will pay off Monday night. At the time of this writing little could be determined as to the outcome of those elections, but I can say that they all look good and have great possibilities—if they stick with it and don't let anything discourage them.

Cross-Country Squad In Daily Workouts

Coach Ken Johnson's cross-country team has started its daily workouts in preparation for the coming season which starts Oct. 2 with a contest against Maryville's next-door neighbor, the University of Tennessee.

This year's squad will be led by Homer Rickabaugh who was elected captain by the returning lettermen. Letter winners backing up their captain are A. C. McWilliams and Rod McMillan. A big blow to Coach Johnson and his hopes for this year was the news that Jon Hale, last year's top man and one of the best in the South, is not returning but will attend TPI.

Herb Catlin and Paul Payne are expected to bolster the squad with the experience they picked up in competition last year. Others out for the team are: Tom Fairhurst, Dick Ebright, John Schwegler, Allen Grippo, John Drum, Charlie Partee, Ray Sammons, and Ken Dean.

The Scottie runners have chalked up 13 straight wins over their yearly opponent Sewanee and have always managed to outrun the competition from W. J. Bryan.

Coach Johnson has a system worked out for the training of his boys which has proved very beneficial in competition. By following his pattern each day, the runners are well primed for the stiffest of teams.

This year's scheduie is:

Oct. 2	U. of Tenn. (Pending)	Away
Oct. 9	Davidson	Away
Oct. 17	U. of Tenn. (Pending)	Home
Oct. 24	W. J. Bryan (Homecoming)	Home

Nov. 14	W. J. Bryan	Away
Nov. 20	Sewanee	Home

Banquet To Honor Scotties Thursday

Maryville College's Scotties will be honored at a football banquet Thursday evening, September 17, just two days before the season's first football game. Pearsons Hall again will be the site of the banquet. Given by Maryville alumni and "town boosters," the evening's festivities will have as their purpose to create as much pre-season enthusiasm as possible.

Earl Blazer, Maryville businessman, is in charge of the banquet. Rather unusual in that it is held before the season, the banquet was such a success when held at this time last year that it was decided to repeat the time, according to Dean McClelland.

The practice is for each alumnus or local businessman to purchase a ticket for himself and one

Eight Teams Enter Intramural Grid League

By Bob Jackson

This past Thursday marked the opening of the intramural touch-football league. With eight teams participating, the loop seems to be one of the strongest and most evenly balanced that has been organized in the past few years.

Last year's Champs, the Rebels, will have to play topnotch ball if they wish to repeat their winning performance. Alpha Sigma's Scotties, the Y's Bombers, and a big, fast Carnegie Frosh team are expected to cause the Rebels the most trouble.

Other teams that could easily slip through and win are the Pre-Min, the Alpha Sigma Highlanders under the direction of Amos Alonzo Stagg Wilkinson, the Y's Fleet Feet and the tricky Athenian team.

Each team will play twice a week during the regular season, which will be followed by a tournament to determine the league champion. The games will consist of four 8-minute quarters; each team will have nine players—five on the line and four in the backfield.

Coach Johnson announced the names of the head intramural manager and his assistants, and added that there is a real need for boys who sincerely wish to serve. This year's head manager will be Max Sockwell and his assistants are Charles Cureton, Charles Rogers, Jim Crawford, and Charles McFarland.

Tennis

A large turnout of participants is expected for the annual intramural tennis tourney which starts Monday. Those wishing to compete are urged to sign up by Monday morning for the first matches are

As the opening of the 1953 football season draws near, the thoughts of everyone turn to the prospects of the Maryville squad for this year. The squad has been practicing since Aug. 31, and the team is beginning to shape up.

The workouts have been hampered by the oppressive heat, and to this date there have been few scrimmage sessions. Because of this, the coaches have had little opportunity to obsreve the players in action, but to this observer the team looks like it will better last season's record of four wins, four losses and one tie.

The 49-man squad is well balanced, having 20 freshmen and 20 returning lettermen. The returning letermen are: backs Jimmy Harris, Earl Lawson, Ken Shepard, Wayne Newman, Bob DeLozier, Buddy Gilbert, Clarence Shepard, and Bob Shelton; lineman—Roy Hayes, Bob Berrong, Don Moore, Bill Wheatley, Theodore Godfrey, Jerry King, Chuck Dunn, Jim Saunders, Jimmy Cox, Harrell Akers, Clifford Irwin and Frank Garren. These old players are going to make it hard for anyone to move into a starting post unless he has exceptional qualities. This spirit of competition will keep the players on their toes at all times since some of the new men have looked good during workouts.

Coaches Lombe Honaker and J. D. Davis do not believe that the team will be hindered by the abolition of free substitution. They believe that one platoon football may actually prove to be a benefit to this year's team. With lettermen returning at almost every position, this may prove to be quite true.

The only opsition which seems to be wide open is the center slot and the post should not be hard to fill. Bill Breen, the scrappy veteran, will try to hold down this position against the opposition of Jack Keny, Bob Bivens, and Tommy Pangle. The team seems to have a combination of size and speed which will provide them a winning season.

The captain of this year's team is Ken Shepard, and Jerry King will act as alternate captain. Under the leadership of these two fiery players and the coaching staff, the team has been working hard toward a fine season. Let's all get out and support the team to a winning season.

MC Greets Frosh With Week's Doings

By Sadie Davis

Our first week back on campus really got off to a terrific start, with all its traditional welcoming activities. In the typical Maryvillian spirit, the old and new members of the Scottie tribe combined forces to create the harmonious sounds which issued from our first gathering on Wednesday night, September 2, known as "The Sing." On the terrace of the Fine Arts Center, everyone joined in singing his favorite songs under the able leadership of Harry McCall, Jim Kesler, Liz Murphy, Lynn Keifer and Betty Hammers, an alumna of '53. Also, during the song fest, A. C. McWilliams, vice-president of the Student Body, and Pat Halstead, Social Board chairman, paid their welcome tributes to all newcomers on "The Hill".

Student Mixer

Thursday night found the student body situated on the baseball field, indulging in their favorite occupation of eating Miss Ware's renowned slushburgers. Following supper, with Ken Wilkinson as master of ceremonies, the group divided up into twelve smaller groups, according to individual birthday months. These groups were then led in a variety of games by those talented instructors, Walt Elwood, Evelyn Boughton, Callie Mitchell, Tom Bugenhagen, Jimmy Cummings, Ginny Smith, Barbara Chubb, Trudy Furman, Mary Ann Thompson, Helen Drinnen, A. C. McWilliams.

Faculty Reception

Monday night, September 7, the library played host to studenst and faculty at the annual student-faculty reception, while the walls resounded with more words of welcome, which provided a fitting climax to 53's welcome week.

Music Ed Club To Meet

The Maryville Chapter of the Music Education Club is one of the 300 located in colleges throughout this country. Their purpose is to promote interest in music teaching. They are all a part of the Music Educators National Conference.

All who are interested in teaching any kind of music are cordially invited to attend the first meeting September 17 in the FAC Lounge at 6:45. The club meets on the first and third Thursdays of every month with Miss Katherine Crews as their sponsor, and the following officers: president, Jackie Speigner vice-president, Annette Faust, secretary-treasurer, Maryel Vogel, and program chairman, Margaret Potts.

Pre-Meds To See Movie

MC Pre-Med Club members will see a movie on Polio at the club's first meeting September 24, program chairman Nancy Dunn said this week.

The meeting will be held in the chemistry lecture room in Fayerweather Hall. All students are invited, especially those interested in such fields as medicine, physical therapy, or nursing, Miss Dunn said.

Following the movies, refreshments will be served.

Pre-med officers this year include Richard Ericson, president; Allan Grippo, vice president; Libby Parrish, secretary; and Nancy Dunn, program chairman.

Freshmen To Meet For Discussion Groups

Freshman discussions have developed out of years of experimenting. The administration has found that small discussion groups meeting over a period of weeks are many times more effective than a large group meeting all at one time.

The faculty and student leaders of the discussions this year will be the following: A, Archibald Pieper, James Hunt, Henry Van Hassel; B I, Paul Cooper, Jack Maxwell, Emilie Lathrop; B II, Edith Largen, David Gates, Mildred Mowery, C I, Ralph Case, Hal Black, Mary James Bevan; C II, Frances Massey, Carol Demler; D I, John Davis, Adolph Kunen, Homer Rickabaugh; D II, Evelyn Guss, Gordon Van Pelt, Sarah Pledger; E I, Arthur Bushing, A. C. McWilliams, Jean Morgan; E II, Margaret Cummings, Kenneth Tuck, Barbara Chubb; F I, Frank McClelland, Edward Breitbach, Sue Binnion; F II, Mary Miles, Jeannine Fiori, Sally Butts.

Soccer

Coach Johnson plans to begin the intramural soccer program immediately after the final football contests. Those planning to enter a team are asked to have their team rosters in mind during the next few weeks.

Head manager Sockwell stressed the fact that the penalty for abusive language will be rigidly enforced this year during the football games. Last year the problem got of hand many times, and team punishment will be issued on the spot to keep the problem under control.

his initial year as a Scottie. The big bat of shortstop Jimmy Campbell rapped out a .293 mark for number 2 spot while fancy-fielding Lynn Sexton and first-sacker Don Alford rounded out the top four.

TENNIS

To put the finish to a good season on the College tennis team participated in the Tennessee Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Memphis State College. The Highland doubles team of Kent Buser and Marshall England reached the semi-final round only to be defeated by a good Memphis State duo. In the singles play Kent Buser of the Highlanders adanced as far as the semifinals. As a team, the Scots finished the tournament in fourth place.

Prior to tournament play, the Highlanders wound up their season's play with decisive victories over East Tennessee State College and Carson-Newman by scores of 6-3, 7-2 respectively.

The tennis team had one of its better years in the midst of many good ones. Ending up with a 9-3 record, they dropped matches only to the Uniersity of Tennessee twice and to Sewanee, one of the strongest teams in the South.

Scots Engage Hiwassee In Season Opener

Band Elects Sue Binnion 1953 Season's Sponsor

By Mary Moranville

Sue Binnion, senior Bible and religion major from Wichita Falls, Texas, is band sponsor for the 1953 football season.

She was elected by band members Wednesday, after having been nominated as the choice of Athenian Society.

Miss Binnion is a member of Bainonian.

Other new selections in the band this week include Maryalice Moyer as drum major, and five new majorettes. They are: Kay Byche, Esther Lerch, Nancy Halliburton, Diana Bowman, and Ann Henderson.

These new majorettes will perform tonight with Faith Nollner and Ruth Orr, who were majorettes last season.

Majorette tryouts were held last week, and results announced this week.

Ralph Moore is band director.

Here is the list of band members this year:

Trumpets—Eddie Grigsby, William Van Zant, Kent Toomey, Tom Hord, Al Homan, Tony Clark;

Horns—J. B. Adams;

Trombones—Jim Fisher, Luther Jones, Morgan Biggs;

Baritones—Bruce Ingles, Mary Brasfield;

Tubas—Henry Emmans, Kenneth Wadgrin;

Flutes—Helen Jackson, Nancy Dunn, Pat Brendle, Lora Rainwater, Sylvia Ann Liles, Alice Blackburn, Richard Morse, Margie Wilkinson;

Clarinets— Bernice McCullough, Alice Buchanan, Carol Dumoulin, Walter Hiller, Barbara Stone, Emma Lou Arnold, Eugene LenRuis, Lois Speaker, Webb Gentry, Virginia Marshall;

Saxophones—Rick McNeal; Fred Wyman, Preston Bogia, Martha Horton;

Drums—Don Ford, Bill Wolf, Mary Thompson, Ann Yoakum, Robert Young, Sidney Tedford, Darold Johnsonbaugh;

Bells—Ruth Sexton and Jane Hussey.

New instruments are needed, Mr. Moore says, but they cannot be bought this year. However, two snare drums have been ordered and should arrive in a few weeks. The French horn has been overhauled and put in good condition this summer. It was dropped last spring and had not been playing well. There will also be two tubas and two baritones this year.

The uniforms have been ordered but will not arrive before the first game. The original order was misplaced last spring and new measurements had to be taken. This was done at the third band rehearsal last Wednesday. It is hoped that there will be a uniform sample very soon so that all may see what they will be like.

Five New Cheerleaders To Appear Tonight

Five new cheerleaders—four of them freshmen—will appear before the student section at the Hiwassee game tonight.

They are: Rita Rosenbalm, Nants Harvard, Sandy Chilcoat, Ronny Pearsons and Cary Valentine. Valentine is a sophomore and the others are freshmen.

They were selected at cheerleader tryouts in the Alumni Gymnasium last Monday night.

The college pep committee, headed by Dixie Conner, has not yet completed plans for fall pep activities. Announcement will be made later.

YW To Consecrate

YWCA will hold its annual consecration service tomorrow afternoon at 1:45 in the amphitheater of the college woods. The service will be tied in with the all-campus religious theme of "In His Steps."

All women students and faculty members are invited to attend the meeting.

Student Help Jobs Employ 235

Students engaged in student help jobs this year have dropped in number from last year's total of 250 to 235 employees. However, there has been an increase in the number of loans granted, for last year loans totaling $21,000 were made to 112 students while this year loans were granted to 140 students, covering the amount of about $24,000.

Student help jobs are designed to serve a wide variety of needs and capabilities, as is evidenced in the many different types of jobs, such as assistants in various departments, library work, Student Center hostess, work in the book store, janitors in class room buildings and dorms, bell ringers, stoker for the boiler room furnaces, life guard at the pool, college maid shop work, clerical jobs in offices, art models, and waitresses and waiters in the dining hall.

Art Department Offers Classes To Community

The Fine Arts Center is endeavoring to open its art facilities to the community. There are classes for adults, high school students, and young children. In these classes the pupil may do any kind of art he chooses for ten dollars a semester.

Adult classes are on Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. with an enrollment of 15 to date. Colored adult classes are Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. Pre-school children from 5 to 12 meet from 3:30 till 5:30 on Friday afternoon. In this class the youngsters are given every opportunity possible to develop their skills. Linoleum prints, clay work, painting and sculpturing are offered. The high school age group meets on Saturday morning from 10:30 until 12:30.

The art department is advertising for models for art classes. Any one interested should see Mr. Beard.

Students Ratify Town Night

Student Council at its meeting Wednesday night ratified the Town Night agreement, which must be approved every year by the Student Council and the student body. The agreement of the students was secured when they ratified it at a student body meeting Thursday.

Bill Dartnell, president of Council, appointed a temporary committee of four to examine the existing Town Night situation and to looks into any new solutions. It is made up of Mary Jim Bevan, Peg Fisher, Hal Black, and Carol Moore.

No Town Night violations were reported.

Dartnell appointed Sue Binnion, Naomi Burgos, and Bob Jackson to work with Jim Hunt on the matter of coke machines.

Carol Demler reported that the College Hill Grill may be open on Tuesday nights in the future, so any action was delayed until definite information is available from the Grill.

Pre-Mins To Hear Lloyd

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd will address the Pre-Ministerial Association at its next meeting to be held in the Y Rooms on Thursday, September 24, at 6:45 p.m.

Pritchard To Preach At Vespers Tomorrow

Speaker at vespers tomorrow night will be Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of the New Providence Presbyterian Church. His topic will be, "Doing What Comes Naturally."

'Heavenly' Musical Ends Rush Week

Wednesday morning, headed by chairmen Barbara Chubb, Peg Fisher, Charles Rogers and Don Moffett, Bainonian-Athenian societies began their annual rush week activities. Mary Virginia Ferguson and Walt Hiller are presidents of these two organizations.

The central theme for the three days of rushing activities was "Hop to Heaven," and the campus was decorated to give the impression of heaven and the last stopping places on the trip to the divine regions. Pearsons Hall was changed into Cherub's Chow, which is located just inside the big dipper and is reached by traveling on the stars of Paradise Parkway. Stars, clouds and cherubs adorned the entire campus, and each of the main walk ways and all the dorms were tagged with celestial names. The campus committee in charge of these decorations was composed of Millie Mowery, Joan Douglas, Ralph Force, and Jim Demer. Dorm decorations and favors were taken care of by Carolyn Lime, Abby Crosby, Sadie Davis and Betty Messer.

"Stairway To Paradise"

Last night was the climax of the rush week activities when the societies presented a formal show, entitled "Stairway to Paradise." The script for the "heavenly" musical was written by Carolyn Beatty and was directed by George Caldwell. The show starred Esther Lerch, Sheila Sutton, John Barrows, Bill Howell, Jim Darroch, Joanne Edwards, and Marcia Williams. The chorus was made up of Dee Woods, Lynn Kiefer, Dot Wells, Carolyn Beatty, Dave Gates, Sonny Shackelford, Rod McMillan and Floyd Hickman.

The decorations for the formal and the set were designed and built by Nancy Rideout and Jim Crawford. Walt Hiller was chairman of the stage committee. Marcia Williams was in charge of the costume committee and Nancy Rideout and Anne Buckley were in charge of make-up. Carol Moore was chairman of the refreshment committee, and Nancy Rideout was in charge of training in the usherettes and waitresses.

Wednesday evening the new students were entertained at a square dance, in charge of Corny Foree and Sonny Shackelford, and Thursday afternoon all Bainonians and new students were entertained at a tea. Callie Mitchell, Joanne Edwards, and Jessie McMullen were chairmen of this tea. Dave Gates was master of ceremonies for the event.

Highlanders Heavy Favorite In Initial '53 Grid Battle

By Jim Demer

Highlanders Out To Trim Tigers

Maryville's 1953 football season will get under way tonight at 8 o'clock on Honaker Field with the familiar Tigers from Hiwassee furnishing the opposition.

The squad has been practicing since August 31 under the able direction of Coach Lombe S. Honaker. This year the two platoon system was abolished by the N.C.A.A. rules committee. Talk has been heard of how this rule change will aid small schools like Maryville and tonight will be the first test.

Victory

Last year a highly inspired Scottie eleven booted the Tigers all over the field in the season's opener. The Scots walked off with a 39-0 victory. That was Maryville's first win after 20 straight losses over 2½ seasons.

Hold That Line

At right end will probably be big Don Moore. Jim Cox, who lettered here his freshmen year and is now back at Mayrville after a two-year lapse and Jim Saunders will see plenty of action at end. Bill Wheatley will probably hold down the right tackle spot but will have help from Charlie Headrick and John Anderson. Co-captain Jerry King is the starting guard on the right side. Hutsell will spell King.

The starting center is the smallest man on the line but one of the scrappiest. "Daddy" Breen will be seen at starting center. He will be backed by Jack Keny. Tom Bass and Bob Bevins will also see action at center.

They Shall Not Pass

Bob Berrong, who seems to get bigger and better every year, will get the nod at left guard. Bobby has two good men behind him in Roy Hayes and Harrell Akers. T. Godfrey will start at left tackle. Ted has to really fight for his position as Bill Strickland and Leroy Gooden will be out there looking for that starting spot. At left end will be Frank Garren. Chuck Dunn and Lee will provide support for Frank.

Gold Mine

For the second year in a row Coach Honaker has a wealth in the backfield. The starting fullback will be Wayne Newman. Newman led the Scots with three touchdowns in last year's opener. White, Sparks, and Hammond are all big boys who can really hit that line. At tailback Coach Honake has three good men to choose from. Clarence Shepard will start at tailback, backed up by "Flash" Harris and Earl Lawson. Captain Kenny Shepard will start at wingback with "Count" Ramger and DeLozier as capable reserves. Quarteback will find Buddy Gilbert in the starting spot. Bob Shelton will see plenty of action aided by "Crow" Renfro.

Student Support

It seems a sure bet that the Scots are going to have a good season. But Maryville wants to see another of the great teams of the 1945-46-47 era. The players are there, all that is lacking is the students' support. To quote Coach Honaker, "A good team can become a great one with the help of a student body with the right spirit." So as we start a new year of football let's all go out and back the Scots to the limit and see them have a successful season. Let's trim the Tigers.

Writers' Workshop Elects Chubb Editor Of 'Chips'

Writers' Workshop will meet Monday afternoon at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Reading will be Hank Van Hassel, criticized by Joanne Edwards, and Lora Kinsinger, criticized by Van Hassel.

At Workshop's last meeting Barbara Chubb was elected editor of "Chips," the organization's annual literary publication.

The group elected to membership Sarah Pledger, Jim Kesler, and Bob Lorenz.

Moore Sets Orchestra Tryouts For Next Week

Ralph Moore, new band and orchestra instructor at Maryville College, has announced that tryouts for the orchestra are scheduled for Thursday, September 24. There are openings for strings, oboe, trumpet, trombone, drummers and particularly a timpani player.

Tentative plans for the '53-'54 season were announced and include the annual fall and spring concerts and a special emphasis on the December 6 annual presentation of the "Messiah." At this time Maryville townspeople and also college students who wish to play in the orchestra but have schedule conflicts will be invited to participate. They will rehearse with the full orchestra on a few Monday nights preceding the concert.

Clarinet Concerto

During the winter the orchestra will also present John Schwegler, freshman from Cincinnati, Ohio, in Mozart's Concerto for Clarinet. Schewgler has played with the Cincinnati School of Music Band, the Cincinnati Symphony and the All Country Band and Orchestra.

Present orchestra enrollment is twenty.

French Club To Meet

French Club will hold its first meeting of the year Thursday, September 24, in Miss Wilkinson's classroom, according to an announcement made by president David Gates.

There will be a short business meeting, followed by a program which has not been announced.

Moore Announces Days For Chilhowean Pictures

Pictures for the Chilhowean will be taken next week, announces editor Carol Moore. On Tuesday freshman pictures will be taken, on Wednesday sophomores, on Thursday, juniors, and Friday, seniors. The hours will be from nine a.m. to five p.m. The place will be announced in chapel. All new faculty members are asked to have a picture taken.

Work has been done on the Chilhowean over the summer and the first dummy has been sent in.

Chapel Construction Job Is Stressed On South End

By Joe Gilliland

Workmen are presently concentrating on finishing the main chapel unit of the new Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, construction superintendent, C. C. Mayes said this week.

Mayes added that the college wanted use of the chapel proper first, and that they were trying to finish that part first. The new chapel unit is on the side nearest Carnegie Hall.

Superintendent Mayes would not comment on expected time for completing the entire job, which began early this year.

"I'd rather wait until that time gets nearer and I can look over the hump and see us finishing before I say anything about that," he said.

Mayes, in addition to working on the new chapel job, helped lay out the job on the Fine Arts Center, across the street.

New Type Floor

This week, crews are laying the special type of floor for the chapel or auditorium. It is called an F & A floor system.

This system consists of a reinforced concrete beam as the beginning unit. These beams are laid parallel across the floor area on supports. They have a lip on the bottom where the workmen will place a pre cast concrete shell which they will fill with cinder block.

On top of the block, there will then be poured two inches of concrete to complete the construction beam. This process will form a continuous floor.

Chapel 290 Feet Long

In the aisles of the new auditorium, Superintendent Mayes said, the floors will be cork. Dimensions of the chapel are 75 by 90 feet. Length of the entire building is 290 feet.

Those arches on the south part of the building are for design and acoustical purposes, Mayes said. They are made from a special lightweight reinforced concrete with a greater strength than the ordinary type.

The arches are self supporting to within four feet of the top, due to a steel beam inside the concrete.

The small openings on the ends of the arches are also part of the design. But, they are not open—they contain special glass and are completely weatherproof.

Unusual Design

"I've never seen any design like it," the superintendent commented.

The tall steel beam structure at the Fine Arts Center end of the job will be the stage part of the theater. Being built into the stage unit is a slot where stage crew may hang painted canvas below the surface of the floor.

On the theater part of the job,

On Right Attitudes

Now that things are finally settling down around here and most of you have gotten in the routine of studying again, it's time you thought about attitudes for the coming year. What you get from college depends largely on your attitudes.

If you begin the year with a half-cocked, "Sure, I'll get by," attitude, you will do just that—just get by. All too often, over-confidence has proven to be man's greatest downfall. "Pride goeth before a fall" —and it could happen to you.

Or there's the attitude that you simply must "have a finger in every pie" and life at college can't go on without you. But everything suffers under that attitude, from the activities themselves, for if you are in too many none of them get your best effort, to homework and grades. And your life becmes one big helter-skelter maze.

"I don't care. I'm here for a good time and I mean to have one!" is perhaps one of the worst attitudes one could have as he starts college. Yet those good times may not live up to your expectations when the realization hits you (usually about 11:00 p.m.) that you have a theme due in English tomorrow, or there's that history test you have to take since it can't be made up, or those six pages of French aren't translated yet. Again, grades fall and perhaps you flunk.

The attitude that you have to work all the time to make the grades is just as faulty as the others. For too much work, with little or no social life, can "make Jack a dull boy" until your life becomes a meaningless drudge, and in many cases, health faliures are a serious result.

Cooperation is the best word available to describe the best attitude you should have for college. Cooperation with your professors and your fellw-students in class; cooperation with your roommate, your housemother, and in all phases of dormlife; cooperation with your associates in your social life;—these are the basis for a successful college career. ....

Through cooperation with all those around you, you find your life falling into a clear-cut pattern, so easily followed that everything works out. Your life is a joy to yourself and others. There is enough time to get everything done and still have time to relax, and you have the assurance and satisfaction of a job well-done.

Try cooperation in your life and see how much better and more meaningful that life can become.

Scots & Soda

It seems that no sooner do we get here than already there are long faces on the prowl about campus—Faces so long that their wearers go around kicking themselves in the chins. This can be attributed most to first tests.

A bird of some sort managed to get into Dr. Queener's classroom the other morning and spent a fair portion of the hour flying around the classroom in circles, swooping and diving, and creating a mild panic. Avoiding the frenzied swats of some of the males in the class, the bird finally left through a window. . . but not nearly soon enough for Carol Moore.

Bob Shelton inquired as he came into the room and saw the action, "Another history major, Dr. Queener?"

Steady Eddie Breitback came into the dining hall one morning with a small band-aid over one eyebrow. Sang out his roomie, one J. Demer, across the hall, "Been shaving again, Junior?"

Sunday past at dinner, a curious frosh wanted to know if the Student Center is open on Sundays. Smiley Ericson fairly rose in his chair in shock and indignation. Finally, he managed to say in an authorative tone, "Student Center, indeed! Why, when they had a coke machine in Carnegie, it always had a lock on it on Sundays!"

Who knows how it goes in the girls' dorms, but in Carnegie several guys have expressed best wishes that some of their brethren shower-singers make Vesper Choir or Glee Club. In reply to the usual "Thanks, but why?" most of the time comes a thundering roar, "So you can practice in the Fine Arts Center and not here!"

Join A Society

Now that the rush weeks of the four societies are over it is time for new students to choose the one that they want to join. No matter which you choose, you will find something of value in it. In a society you wil lhave a chance to take part in a varied assortment of activities. Whether your interests are athletic, literary, artistic, social, or anything else, the societies have a palce for you.

The societies— Bainonian, Theta Epsilon, Athenian, and Alpha Sigma—offer you an opportunity to become acquainted with people and to have a wider circle of friends than you would otherwise know.

So for your own sake we urge each of you to join the society of your choice.

BOOKS

Browsing through the "New Books" at the library, I noticed a couple or so that you might enjoy. Perhaps one of those that you've been meaning to read, but didn't get around to this summer is The Silver Chalice, by Thomas B. Costain. I don't believe it needs any elaboration, since it is so well known.

Did you read "Immortal Wife", or any others by Irving Stone? Well, his latest is "The President's Lady", the story of Andrew and Rachael Jackson. Even if you've seen the movie, do read the book . . . it's marvelous, to say the least. (One gal's opinion.)

And one more that you'll enjoy —"The Caine Mutiny", by Herman Wouk. The movie is now "in the making," and will be out sometime this year, so read the book first! It is a sea yarn plus . . . (so the cover says) Surprisingly (to me, anyhow,) it is a story of World War II, and of mutiny aboard one of our country's big mine-destroyers, the "Caine". Sounds like a thriller!

MOVIES

And, in case you can afford a movie Tuesday night, here's what's showing at the local theatres. At the Park, cast thine eyes on the . . . on Virginia Mayo . . . who is starring with Bert Lancaster in "South Sea Woman." Need I say more?

At the other one, "Fair Winds to Java" stars Fred McMurry and Vera Raulston. Never heard of that one, so no comment.

If you have nothing to do Thursday or Friday, run down to the Capitol to see "Robin Hood" with Richard Todd. Walt Disney produced it, or whatever he does, so it should be ok. Disney usually is. Donald O'Conner and Debbie Reynolds are in "I Love Melvin" at the Park, those same days.

Echo Forum

Dear Editor:

In leafing through several old issues of the Echo, I found a series in which there were several letters to the editor which tended in my mind to make the paper more than a weekly edition but a clearing house for general thought on the campus.

Now, what I'd like to know is, what happened? Doesn't anyone have complaints anymore? Does not anyone have anything good to say that he thinks everyone should know?

Another thing—Why isn't there a place for "lost and found" and "for sale and wanted" in the Echo? Personally, I believe that our paper can and should be the most vital publication on campus, a stethoscope magnifying the heartbeat of the campus. But unless it has the support of the whole student body, it's nothing more than a list of people and events.

Thank you for your help.

(Name witheld upon request)

Ed. Note. The Highland Echo will publish letters from students that relate to campus life in the Echo Forum. Anyone with an idea to express is welcome to write a letter to the editor.

Germans Not To Meet

German Club will not meet next Monday night as scheduled, Don Willaims, president, has announced. The program committee is making tentative plans for future meetings, one of which will feature a movie, "The Rise of Hitlerism." Herr Reber is faculty advisor.

Sports Spotlights

By Malcolm King

Coaches Lombe Honaker, J. D. Davis, and Scott Honaker had a good preview of what to expect under the Honaker Field lights tonight against Hiwassee as they surveyed the Scots in the Orange and Garnet classic last Saturday afternoon on Wilson Field.

The Orange, combination of probable second and fourth stringers, tallied two touchdowns on an aerial from tailback Earl Lawson to blocking-back Bob Shelton and an off-tackle plunge by Ernie Raulerson to win the contest, 12-8. Gordon Sparks scored the lone Garnet touchdown on a plunge through the middle with the safety coming when Raulerson fell on the ball in the end zone after a series of fumbles.

Taking a critical viewpoint of the performance, this fan picks the line as the strong point of this year's squad. Long gains were very scarce which points to the fact that the Scots might be considerably stronger on defense. All forward walls were tough to crack.

Captain Ken Shepard and Alternate Captain Jerry King led the Garnet team composed of all lettermen save center Bill Breen. In the Number one line were ends Don Moore and Frank Garren, tackles Bill Wheatley and Ted Godfrey, guards King and Bob Berrong, and center Breen. This powerhouse of veterans found it difficult to open the holes for their runners, but held firm on defense.

In the Orange line, the big boys—Jack Keny, Jim Hutsell, Jim Cox, Bill Strickland, Roy Hayes, Chuck Dunn, Charles Headrick—kept discouraging the attempts of the Garnet squad with their unfaltering durability and consistent spoiling of plays. Ends Cox and Dunn especially stood out as they continually banished any hopes of wide runs by the first stringers.

Captain Shepard and running mates—Buddy Gilbert, Brother Clarence, Wayne Newman—failed to get their timing and lacked the protection for a possible scoring threat in any part of the contest. The ability is there, in front and in back, but it needs plenty of sharpening to deliver the touchdown threat.

On offense, the Orange displayed a little more effectiveness, getting excellent interference from the front men. Lettermen Lawson came up with the only accurate arm of the afternoon as he connected for several good pass gains, one for a TD. The versatile tailback looked commendable on several running plays, but occasionally lacked the power drive.

Fleet-footed Bob Ramger delivered with some fine break-away jaunts, keeping his speed in harness with more primed running skill than last year. Though quick and swift, the "Wild Hare" lacks the line-busting punch which is valuable in many cases and also is rumored to need polishing up on his blocking to serve threat to Capt. Shepard.

Clarence Shepard got away numerous excellent punts to take booting honors. His running was good, but lacked blocking support. Brother Keny displayed his usual keen skill as a blocker at the wing back post. Newman, a very formidable line-buster last year, failed to do damage to the Orange line.

Jimmy "Flash" Harris, another speedster and returning letterman, produced the finest run of the game when he shook loose along the sidelines, but was dropped yards from the final white strip. Several other times, Flash powered his way for big chunks of yardage.

Others showing promising pre-season form were Harrell Akers, Leroy Gooden, John Anderson, and Enie Raulerson. Linemen Gooden, Akers and Anderson looked good on offense and even more so on defense. Raulerson, off to a bad start with a case of "fumbleitis", came back in his team's second tussle and connected with several passes plus ground gains to put the Orange in the lead.

A combination of continuous hustle on the players' part and careful substitution by the coaches should enable the Scotties to hold their own against all competition this year. The backfield should get considerable protection for their passing and running plays, and, once they gain timing, they should click for excess yardage.

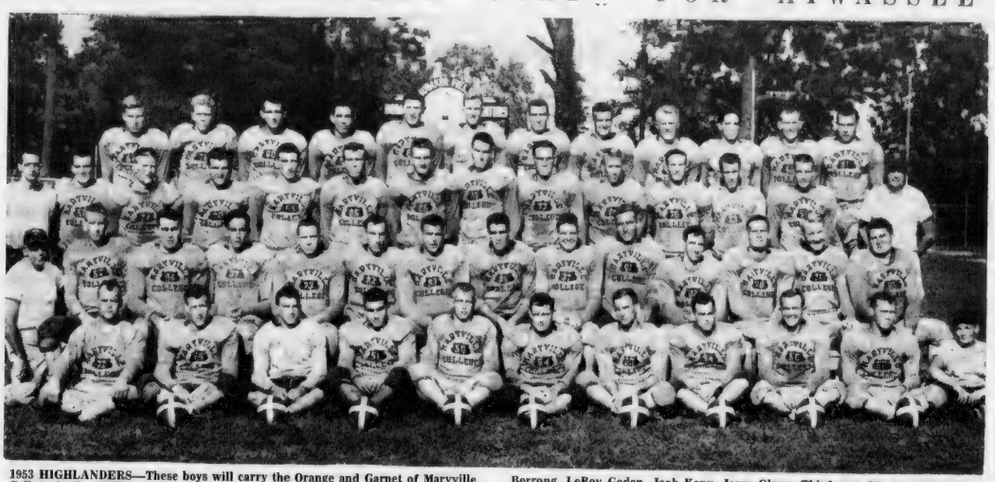
Opposition to be tough—Comments are going around that the Highlanders should really roll this year, but have the fans considered the opposition? East Tennessee State, Emory & Henry, and Newberry will probably be toting first string line-ups of all full-scholarship boys. True—Maryville has been strengthened, using the single platoon with strong line talent as far down a sthe fourth string, but other schools will be strengthened all the more also.

Even Centre, Jacksonville State, and possibly Concord State pack a full house of "paid men". So, fans, rest your minds with this information for awhile and then predict.

This viewer will take the first stab by predicting an easy win tonight, but the Orange and Garnet boys will have to play their best capable football all the time to better lats year's record of 4 wins, 4 losses and 1 tie. The best record in my opinion will be 5 wins and 3 losses. Reason: a tougher schedule with the Scots strong in the line but lacking the strength in the backfield.

Spirit high at rally—The Maryville lung support was in fine shape Monday night at the cheerleader's tryouts. One of the largest turn-outs of several years past chimed in with their vocal talent as the candidates gave their various cheers (It appeared that Hamburger, the campus mascot, drew the biggest applause).

Honoring the spectators with his speaking ability was Coach Honaker with the traditional "little stories" of Honaker fame. He also stressed the importance of student support, saying that it can make the difference between a good and a bad season.



Let's show Coach Honaker that we want a winning team more than ever this season by backing the team to the fullest—freshmen and all upper classmen alike. With Dixie Conner leading the Pep Committee this year and Doris Glad and Jack Maxwell leading the cheers, the Scots are bound to get plenty of support.

Major football picture—In the National Football review, the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame are on top in the pre-season sports-writers' poll. The Irish, not a real power since '49, got the nod over Michigan State and Georgia Tech, second and third rankers who battled it out for top honors most of the '52 season.

Rounding out the top ten are UCLA, Alabama, Oklahoma, Ohio State, Southern California, Maryland, and Duke. The University of Tennessee, finishing eighth last year, took a 17-place vote.

Baseball—This week the New York Yankees clinched the American League Pennant for the record-breaking fifth straight year, and will cross bats with their National League neighbors, the Brooklyn Dodgers, for the World Series crown next month. The bookies in New York are giving 6-5 odds on the Yanks. It should be one of the best Series in many years with both teams stacked up as evenly as possible.

1953 HIGHLANDERS READY FOR HIWASSEE

By Tom Paton

The eight teams entered in the intramural touch football league have begun their schedules, and the games to date indicate that there will be a lot of close competition for the league title. The Rebels, last year's playoff winners, have won their first three games, and the Alpha Sig Scotties have won two straight. These two appear to be the teams to beat, but they could be upset since a few of the other teams have shown good strength.

Thursday, Sept. 10, marked the opening of the season with two games being played. In the first game, the Rebels beat Athenian, 20-0, with Bob Matthews and Lynn Sexton sparking the attack. In the second game, the Y.M.C.A. Fleet-Feet beat the Alpha Sig Highlanders, 2-0, but the game was finished under protest and will be replayed at a later date. On Friday, the Y-Bombers handed the Carnegie Frosh a 6-0 defeat under the able leadership of Bill Van Benthuysen. The second game saw the Alpha Sig Scotties beat the Pre-Mins, 6-0, on a touchdown pass to Bob Neir.

The Rebels took another victory on Monday, beating the Y-bombers 6-0, and the Scotties continued their winning ways with a 24-0 decision over Athenian. The Bombers were able to hold the powerful Rebel attack and continually threatened. Bob Johnston and Tom Paton led the Scotties attack with two touchdowns apiece. Tuesday's games showed the really tough competition in the league as the Pre-Mins and Highlanders played a scoreless tie, and a strong Frosh team upset the Fleet-Feet 13-6. The Frosh were sparked by the touchdown passes of Dale Newton, and "Shotgun" Patterson made the lone tally for the losers.

Another upset marked Wednesday's first game as the Fleet-Feet defeated the Bombers, 7-6. Patterson again come through, scoring a touchdown and an extra point to overcome the Bombers 6-0 lead provided by Van Benthuysen's first period touchdown. In the second fray, the Rebels picked up another win, beating the Highlanders 19-7. Again the Rebel passing attack proved to be too much for their opponents, and the Highlanders last period touchdown was too late to do any damage.

Shepard, King Lead '53 Scots

Tonight marks the opening of the 1953 Maryville College football season. The coaches have worked hard getting the squad in shape for the coming gridiron wars, and the team is in high spirits and ready to go. But, when the going gets tough and the team is hard-pressed, there are two players to whom the others can look to for inspirition. They are Captain Kenneth E. Shepard and Alternate Captain Jerome (Jerry) C. King.

These two veterans, who are playing their final season for the Orange and Garnet, have proven their ability and value to the team beyond any doubt.

Captain Shepard is a 22-year-old local boy, who starred for the Red Rebels of Maryville High before seeking higher education at "Scottie Hill." He first lettered in 1949, but the following year entered the Army when his unit of the Tennessee National Guard was activated. After two years service, during which time he saw action in Korea, Ken returned home and reentered school last fall.

Standing only 5 feet 6 inches and never weighing more than 150 pounds, this year's grid captain is an example of the proverb: "It is not the size of the dog in the fight; it is the size of the fight in the dog."

Ken's athletic ability is not limited to football because in high school he captained the basketball team, and last year earned a letter as a member of the Scot's wrestling team.

Jerry King, the alternate captain, is a senior physical education major, who like Shepard played his high school ball for Maryville. One of the mainstays of the Scot forward wall for the past two seasons, Jerry displayed his versatility in 1950, and 1951 he maned the quarterback slot in both the single wing and the "T" formations.

One of the hardest charging and roughest guards in small college play, King usually plays half the game in the opposition's backfield.

King, always a popular figure on the campus, especially with the coeds, is a sturdy 5 foot 9 nine, 180-pound boy, who lives up to the name of the "meanest" player on the team.

With boys like Shepard, King and the rest of the squad, the team should go places this year, so let's everyone get out and support them to a victorious season.

To date there have been few arguments between players and officials, and we will all enjoy the games more if we can continue to avoid these arguments. Let's all display our best sportsman's like conduct and concentrate on playing clean, as well as playing to win.

The Scotch Lassie

By Dixie Conner

Monday night the Alumni Gym resounded with more and louder cheering than the old place has seen in many a day. The cheerleader tryouts were being conducted, along with the introduction of Coach Lombe Honaker, Rafty Moore (band director), and the team.

For those of you who missed it, it was a terrific display of gorgeous hunk of male designed to tempt innumerable freshman (freshman? hah!) girls to abandon their studies and concentrate on the finer things of life. It did. The results were close and showed good taste on the part of those who voted, although I might add that all of the tryouters were in good form and made a good impression on the spirited M. C. students.

Women's Varsity has finally started rolling and charts made to indicate the activities of the entire semester, Mrs. V. M. Queener, women's physical education affair and major assistants work together to help out in each sport.

Those assigned are tennis—Helen Drinnen and Barbara June Gregory; stunts—Natalie Prinzing and Mary Ann Thompson; volley ball—Shirley Axley and Joan Herschelman; basketball—Emma Curtis and Betty Watson.

At the moment, the girls are working (ah, those aching muscles) on the stunts, preparing for a skill test Tuesday. Stunts for which points are given are head stand, free stand, knee dip, 3; broad jumps, 3; forward rolls, novelty walk, duck walk, chicken walk, heel click 2, and the one-leg walk.

Points are given for entering a tennis tournament and a specified number for each bracket advanced. At the time of this wriitng, only a few girls had played through the first bracket. Winners thus far are "Junior" Davis, Liz Enloe, Lila Crane, and Jane Kirkpatrick. All girls must have the first round played off by Saturday, September 19.

Margaret Flory To Speak Friday Launching Fred Hope Fund Drive

The Fred Hope Fund drive for 1953-1954 will be presented at chapel next Friday morning, October 2.

Guest speaker is Margaret Flory, Secretary for Student Work of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Other participants are four members of the Maryville College Fred Hope Fund Board. They are the presidents of four campus organizations, Carol Demler, president of YWCA, Homer Rickabaugh, president of the Student Volunteers, Hal Black, president of YMCA, and Bill Dartnell, president of the Student Council.

Historic Fund

The Fred Hope Fund is historic at Maryville College. It was started by Fred Hope when he was a student almost 50 years ago. Later when he went as a missionary to Africa the students and faculty of the college continued to subscribe to the fund each year, and it was sent to him for his use in his work in Africa.

After his retirement and after consultation with him it was decided to send the fund for a number of years to China where it had gone originally during his student days. Last year it was sent to India for the use of one of MC's graduates, Dr. Dorothy L. Ferris, who is head of the Frances Newton Hospital in Ferozepore, Punjab, India.

Dr. Dorothy Ferris

The Fred Hope Board has again designated the fund for Dr. Ferris' use, and in the program on October 2 they will present various facts about her and about the uses to be made of the fund.

The chapel service will provide an opportunity for subscriptions to the fund, and thus all will be able to participate in this historic service carried on by both students and faculty of the college.

Margaret Flory

Miss Margaret Flory of New York, Secretary for Student Work of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, is a graduate of Ohio University at Athens, Ohio, and has had a varied and valuable experience both in the field of higher education and foreign missions. She was for a time a teacher of drama at Alabama State College, Montevallo, Alabama. From there she was invited to be head of the Presbyaterian Westminster Foundation on the campus of her Alma Mater, Ohio University. Due to her outstanding work there she was appointed as Foreign Missions Secretary for the eastern area of the United States with offices in New York City. And when the position of Secretary for Student Work was created about two years ago she was appointed to that office.

Around The World

Miss Flory has made two trips around the world since World War II. On the first one she taught for several months in the Tokyo Women's Christian College and for a period in Silliman University in the Philippines. Also she visited college campus in Thailand, India, and other countries. During the past year she made another trip of several months around the world speaking at various Christian colleges and serving as a leader in youth conferences. On this trip she visited Dr. Dorothy Ferris at Ferozepore, India, and held meetings in the city. On part of her trip, including that through India, she was accompanied by Mrs. Rosa Page Welch, noted Negro singer who took part in the service and gave special programs. Mrs. Welch sang at Maryville College in 1949.

Faculty To Meet

Faculty club will meet Monday October 3. Dr. Orr will preside at this meeting. The program has not been announced.

Murray To Lead Vespers; Groves To Speak Oct. 14

The Reverend Carl C. Murray, newly installed pastor of the Norwood Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, is guest spppeaker for the college vesper service Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

A 1948 graduate of Maryville, Murray served as minister of churches in Arkansas before accepting a call to the recently organized Norwood Church.

Murray is the grandson of Samuel Tyndale Wilson, president of Maryville from 1910 to 1930, for whom the new chapel is named.

Centre College President

For vespers on Sunday, October 4, the speaker will be the Reverend Walter A. Groves, president of Centre College of Kentucky.

President and Mrs. Groves have accepted an invitation from President and Mrs. Lloyd to be their guests for the Centre College football game here on Saturday evening, October 3, and over that week end.

Groves has been president of Centre College since 1947. Prior to that time he was for four years on the faculty of Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary. But his longest service, which was terminated at the outbreak of World War II, was in Iran, where he was a missionary. He was also professor of philosophy and religion and dean of Alborz College of Teheran.

Dr. Groves is a graduate of Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania, and of Princeton Theological Seminary. He holds a Master's Degree from Princeton University and a Ph.D. Degree from the University of Pennsylvania.

Music Ed's Project Is Community Singing

An informal meeting of the Music Ed Club was held Thursday, September 17, in the F.A.C. lounge. Jackie Speigner, president, explained the purpose of the club to the new future teachers. Margaret Potts, program chairman, discussed the '53-'54 program prospects which include movies, lectures from outside music teachers, and one program on musical therapy.

Musci Ed students picked community singing as their new project for the year in order to create and maintain more campus group singing.

The next meeting is October 1, and the place will be announced later.

French Club Sees Movies

French club met Thursday night in Catherine Wilkinson's classroom. After a short business meeting Miss Wilkinson showed movies of her trip to Canada this summer.

The next scheduled meeting will be October 8.

Lloyd Attends Church Meetings

President Lloyd spent a busy week in New York City recently attending several meetings dealing with church problems.

On September 15, Dr. Lloyd was one of the Presbyterian U. S.A., members on the executive committee of the United States Conference of The World Council of Churches. Dr. Mackay of Princeton Seminary was the other Presbyterian member.

The meeting, presided over by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, was held in the Gramercy Park Hotel. The purpose of the meeting was to lay the ground work for the meeting of the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches to be held in Illinois next September.

National Council of Churches

On the same day President Lloyd attended the meeting of the Committee on Constitution and By-laws of the National Council of Churches in America. This meeting was presided over by Dr. Weigle, Dean Emeritus of Yale Divinity School. It is the duty of this Committee to study and recommend amendments to the Constitution of The National Council and to pass on the constitutionality of the by-laws and constitutions of the various departments of the National Council.

On the next day Dr. Lloyd attended a meeting of the General Board of the National Council of Churches.

There were over a hundred representatives at this meeting representing 31 denominations. This board serves as the executive committee between the bi-annual meetings of the Council. The next meeting of the Council will be held in Denver during December, 1953. There are six Presbyterian U.S.A. members on the General Board.

Presbyterian Alliance

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd spoke in chapel last Thursday on his travels in Europe this summer. The main purpose of his trip was to attend a meeting of the World Presbyterian Alliance in Holland. This met to plan the large conference which will be held at Princeton next summer.

In addition, President Lloyd described his trip through Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, and Germany, describing the impressions he had received of these lands. He discussed the land and people of the countries he visited as well as mentioning the religious situations he found in each place.

Lloyd pointed out that the meeting of the World Presbyterian Alliance will take place shortly before the World Council of Churches meets in Evanston, Ill. The Presbyterian Alliance is made up

Student Council Hears Committees

At Student Council meeting this week, first on the program were committee reports. Social Board Chariman Pat Halstead announced that a treasure hunt would be held Saturday night.

Jim Hunt recommended that Student Council assess each class 10 per cent per class member each semester, as was done last year. Council voted to do this.

Joanne Edwards, newly elected chairman of Inter-Club Council, reported that ICC proposes to control th ematter of club initiations.

Appointed chairman of the Town Night committee was Peggy Fisher.

The coke committee reported, and it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the committee for one more week.

Council authorized A. C. McWilliams to call a meeting of the freshman class for the purpose of electing class officers sometime next week at his discretion.

Since the College Hill Grill will be open on Tuesday nights in the future, it was not necessary to take any action on it.

The Y Store and Student Center agreements, which must be ratified every year, were postponed until further inquiry could be made into them.

No Town Night violations were reported.

It was announced that comps will be on April 21 and 22 instead of April 15 as stated in the catalog.

President Bill Dartnell made a report on the meeting of the Student-Faculty Senate. They recommend that a blood drive be held this fall rather than next semester. It was pointed out that although fighting is over the blood is still needed for veterans and for national defense.

At the end of the meeting Dartnell discussed student government and the place it should have in college life.

FAC To Exhibit Japanese Art

Japanese art will be on exhibit in January in the FAC art gallery. The pictures that will be shown are reproductions of paintings from the Horji Temple in Japan.

They are part of a portfolio given by over 100 colleges and universities in Japan in appreciation for the aid they received after the war in rebuilding their educational system.

Maryville is one of the 240 schools to receive Japanese pictures.

During September the FAC is exhibiting reproductions of the works of old masters.

In October Richard E. Beard, instructor in art, will exhibit the water colors and pencil and ink drawings that he did while in Europe this summer.

Nelson Gives FAC Rare Concerto

Frank Nelson, retired organist of the St. John's Episcopal Church in Knoxville, has recently given to Maryville College the complete orchestra score for Robert Schumann's "A Minor Concerto," as printed by Verlag Breitkop and Von Hartel.

According to Katherine Davies, this music is one of the finest gifts to the music library in many years and is invaluable because the plates for printing it were destroyed during the last war. Foreign editions of this sort are the closest possible to the "urtext" or originals.

Nelson, who did graduate study in Leipzig and was dean of Knoxville musicians many years, performed this concerto as piano soloist with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra and other leading symphonies. The concerto will be kept in a special section of the music library of the Fine Arts Center.

New Chapel Indicates Constuction Progress

Both the MC president's office and construction superintendent C. C. Mayes said this week that every effort would be made to have the college's new chapel in use by the second semester.

By this statement, officials mean the auditorium unit of the new structure. Students have been assembling for daily chapel in the Alumni Gymnasium since the old Voorhees Chapel building burned in 1947.

Floor plans for the auditorium are on the way, President Ralph W. Lloyd said. When these plans arrive, they will tell the exact number of seats to be used.

At present, the president's office has a sample auditorium chair similar to the type to be used.

This specially designed chair has no curved back or any curved feature of any kind—all lines are straight, in keeping with the functional design of the building itself.

On the construction site, workmen will begin erecting three more trusses over the theater unit area when necessary steel erection personnel arrive. A crane operator could not be obtained and the work was delayed this week.

Superintendent Mayes said pouring of the concrete auditorium floor would begin in about a week. Laying of beams still has to be done for the chapel stage.

Cinder block filler material arrived Wednesday of this week. The truck of cinder block was unloaded Wednesday afternoon.

The two large blower fans for the air circulation system also arrived Wednesday. One is for intake and the other for exhaust. Metal circulation ducts to tie in with this system are in the installation proces.

A complete F&A floor system construction beam is lying just inside the forward wall of the chapel area. This beam gives an indication of how the completed floor will look.

The chapel is scheduled for first completion. The center court and the theater are slated for finishing later in the semester. MC Playhouse now has tentative plans for producing a commencement play in the new theater.

Workmen this week did some steel work on the stagehouse frame, laying some roof steel on a high level. "That should give some idea how the thing will look," said Mayes in reference to the added steel.

Mayes is not certain of completion by January. "We're going to try to do it by then," he declared. "At this stage of a job, I don't like to predict too much," he said.

With everything going according to plan, work should begin this week on the aditional steel for the stagehouse.

ECHO SCHEDULE

For financial reasons the Highland Echo will again omit several isues this semester. The schedule sets papers for the following dates: October 10, October 24, October 31, November 7, November 21, November 28, December 5, and December 12. The Echo will not appear on these dates: October 3, October 17, and November 14.

Faculty Members Receive Degrees

According to Nancy Hunter, President Ralph Waldo Lloyd's secretary, three members of the MC faculty received advanced degrees this summer.

Paul Joel Cooper, who received his B.A. at Maryville and his M.A. at Columbia University in 1945, returned to Columbia to earn his Ph.D. degree this last year. He is an assistant professor of French.

Another language teacher, Harvey Samuel Reber, more commonly known as Herr Reber to his students, received his M.A. degree from Indiana University this summer.

Doctor of Laws

On June 8, the University of Chattanooga awarded President Lloyd the honorary Doctor of Laws degree. He was called the "dean of Tennessee college executives" because there is no other person now serving as President of a Tennessee College or University who was serving in 1930 when Dr. Lloyd became President here at Maryville College. In 1941 he received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Centre College in Kentucky.

Edwards Elected Chairman Of ICC

At the first meeting of the Inter-Club Council Monday night the following officers were elected: chairman, Joanne Edwards; vice-chairman, Dock Jennings; secretary, Dean Styles.

Members present drew up a proposal to regulate campus initiations by which all organizations are to submit initiation plans to ICC for approval. The committee met last night to take action on these plans.

According to Miss Edwards, the stress this year is to be on making ICC a more powerful central organization to which all clubs can turn with problems and suggestions, a program which will require perfect attendance of all members.

Tommy Tom From Hawaii Says It Rains There, Too

By Shirley Armstrong

You may be homesick for Florida, Georgia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, or New York, but there is only one fellow on campus who is homesick for Hawaii, and that is Tommy Tom.

Tommy, who is a freshman, is the brother of Mrs. Hugh Jaynes, Maryville College librarian, and lives with her and Mr. Jaynes on Waller Avenue in Maryville.

He graduated from the Leilehna High School in Hawaii last spring, landed in San Francisco the first of September, and then came to Maryville. Tommy says he is not "specializing" in anything right now, but that he hopes to go to medical school and become an optometrist. As to the biggest difference between Hawaii and Tennessee, he says, "the weather!"

Damp Weather

Tommy's differentiation of the weather is that in Hawaii where he lives the climate is damper because of the high altitude.

Here in Tennessee it's a little easier on him even if it does get cold, which never happens in the Islands. He is seen constantly around the campus wearing his bright aloha shirts.

Back at his home, they go barefoot—even more than in Tennessee. He has trouble remembering to wear shoes and a coat, and may be seen with sandals when everyone else here is shivering.

Maryville Mixup

Tommy had a little mixup in getting to Maryville. His sister, Mrs. Jaynes, had received no specific

On Student Council

At the beginning of the school year it is well to take stock as it were, of the various aspects of our campus and the organizations that add so much to college living. Maryville like most schools has a great number of organizations meeting the great variety of student interests.

One of the most important organizations on campus is Student Council. To it falls the task of coordinating campus activities and setting the general tone of campus living.

Through its various agencies, such as social board and inter-club council, it directs our social activities, regulates initiations, etc.

Because Student Council was willing to take the responsibility on itself the town night privileges were granted. Many of the activities that we take for granted are a direct result of council's work and can only be continued because council stands behind them.

Over and above all that, however, council has the tremendous job of expressing student feeling and opinion to the faculty and administration and in turn of expressing faculty and administration feeling and opinion to the students.

Council acts as a sounding board where all the elements that make up a college may be heard. It seeks in this way to bring about understanding and cooperation, thus promoting the general good of the college.

If we as a student body want an active, strong, and progressive council we must be ready and willing to stand behind it and lend it our support. Council speaks and acts for each of us, but it can be truly representative only if we as a student body express our ideas to our council representatives or directly at a Wednesday night meeting.

It is easy to sit back and be critical or scoff at the efforts of others without ever being willing to pitch in ourselves. The kind of a council we have is up to us. What do you say?

WITH THREE WEEKS GONE in the new year, one might think that there'd be some hot column copy floating around loose somewhere, but this writer, having tried for three years to get kicked off the Echo staff, just simply hasn't the nose for news—so we'll kinda make up as we go along.

HEARING THE FAMILIAR PLAINTS of the sophomores, I try valiantly to summon up an answer when they approach me pathetically with their wails, "You're an English major—what's The Oddessey all about?" And another familiar cry frequently reaches my ears—"Why don't they put The Aenead into Classic Comics like they did with The Iliad and The Oddessey?" So now the lit teachers are scraping the backs of their brains to think up questions to separate the DARS from the knuckleheads.

WITH THE FRESHMAN FOOT RACE over, the football season is opened officially and is now in full swing. And to the privileged frosh, remember this: the seniors were here for two years before they head the tower bell ring after a game.

NOW THAT THE RUSH WEEKS are all rushed out, a problem rears its ugly head—what to do with all those souvenirs. One roommate combination, not wanting to hurt anyone's feleings, pinned up a stolen cherubic harp player wearing a mask and waving a Mardi Gras streamer.

JUST WOND'RING what the dining hall would be like without that noisy noisy table that sings consantly "Honey Bun," "Temptation," and a badly off-key "Happy-Birthday," whether it's anyone's birthday or not are just a few of their extensive repertoire.

JUDGING FROM THE NUMBER of Do Not Disturb signs plastered on people's doors, one might jump to the conclusion that there are a lot of tests coming up. Or are we all just trying to get caught up on our sleep? (My money says it's tests!)

Campus Courtesy

We're always in a hurry. When the bell rings we slam our books shut and shuffle our feet hoping the professor will take the hint and dismiss class.

After class is over we make a rush for the door. In entrance passage-ways, we try to beat each other through the door.

So far today we make two enemies—and the day is only half over. At this rate, we'll probably have made five or six at the end of the day. We intended to make friends when we came to college, but it doesn't look as if we're doing so well.

Isn't there some way we can stop making enemies and start making friends? Yes, matter of fact, there is. It's called the Golden Rule. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." That's all there is to it.

Also, we can drop a kind word here and there around campus to let people know we're thinking about them. A cheerful "good morning" and a smile will help.

It doesn't matter whether we're football players, chess champions, poker players, or just plain college students, the application of the Golden Rule will help us in our quest for friends.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Kathie Chase

CAPITOL COMINGS

"Fort Ti" starring George Montgomery will be playing at the Capitol next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is a "fabulous" 3-D epic of Roger's Rangers and their fight to drive the French from Fort Ticonderoga in pre-Revolutionary days. It shows every sign of hasty construction from its unsubstantial script to obviously painted backdrops. It places more emphasis on the throwing of barrels and hatchets at the audience than on a real story.

Thursday and Friday will see Audie Murphy in "Gunsmoke," another run-of-the-mill western. Its ingredients include a ruthless but seemingly respectable citizen who seeks to acquire all the ranches in his area by fair means or foul, preferably foul; a gang of hired ruffians and killers; a kindly rancher who tenaciously holds onto his property at all costs; his beautiful daughter (portrayed by Susan Cabot) nimblest when dressed like Buffalo Bill; and a youthful gunman who reforms to become the hero of the tale.

PARK PREVUES

"Nevr Wave at a WAC," to be shown at the Park Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is a lively farce about the Women's Army Corp, starring Rosalind Russell in one of her most laugh-provoking roles. The picture was filmed with the cooperation of the Department of Defense at Fort Lee, Virginia, and includes a sequence in which General Omar Bradley plays himself. A recently divorced and badly spoiled senator's daughter (Miss Russell) is persuaded to join the WAC by a wily father. She enters the corps, breezily arrogant and so very patient with the misguided WAC officers who fail to recognize her unquestionable superiority. Marie Wilson as "Miss Coffee Bean 1949-50," does her best to instil espirit de corps into our heroine and adds a great deal of fun to the film. Paul Douglas also stars, although I was unable to learn just what part he has.

Playing for the rest of the week will be "The Hitch-Hiker". This is a crisp little thriller inspired by the real-life story of Billy Cook, who in 1951 killed six people on a transcontinental murder spree. The picture opens with a couple of Mexico-bound vacationing fishermen (Edmund O'Brien and Frank Lovejoy) picking up a hitchhiker (William Talman) who turns out to be an escaped convict and murderer. It ends with the Mexican police closing in on the killer and his intended victims just in the nick of time. The picture's outcome is fairly predictable and the drama itself is confined to one basic situation: captives at the gunpoint mercy of a trigger-happy killer. But by playing this conflict for all it is worth, the movie works up a lot of sweaty suspense without using false theatrics.

With effective characters, played against harsh and unrelieved barren Mexican settings, the movie rates high on the list of man-hunt fanciers.

BROWSING WITH THE BOOKS

For you budding psychologists, there's a new book in the library by Dr. George W. Hartmann. It's called Gestalt Psychology, A Survey of Facts and Principles. It is a sympathetic picture of the Gestalt System from the standpoint of a non-configurationist.

Two brand new historical novels for you history students are F. Van Wyck Mason's Golden Admiral and The Velvet Doublet by James Street. Mason's book concerns the impetuous red-haired Harry Wyatt who joined Sir Francis Drake in the crusade against Spain while his beauteous Kate remained to comit a wife's deadliest mistake. Street's book is the tale of Juan Roderigo who risked his life to sail with Columbus "over the edge of the world." Yet he returned, not as a hero, but as a hunted man, betrayed by the golden-haired, blue-eyed girl he loved.

POETICALLY SPEAKING ADVICE TO GIRLS

—from a 1918 Chilhowean

Now, girls, don't you see,
Cooperation there must be!
Do not stand at the door—
"Good-night" once, but no more.
At five o'clock the boys must go,
Even though you hate it so.
Parlor doors leave ajar,
Lest your character you mar.
Don't complain at the feed—
You get all you really need.
If for mail you wait a week—
Smile, be patient, and be meek!
At the movies don't be seen—
They show wicked things on the screen.
During study hours quiet be—
Miss Marshall wants to sleep you see.
Be dignified when to town you walk—
The men down there are bound to talk.
To Church and Sabbath School do go—
It helps your reputation so;
Girls, be modest in your dress—
Then the boys will stare much less.
Be respectful; grateful, too—
Remember what is done for you!

YANKEES OR DODGERS?

Gridirons in all corners of the country are rolling out their finest football pageantry for the '53 wars, but, come the first week in October, sports' top crowd-gatherer will take a back seat to make room for baseball's Fall Classic, the World Series.

Greeting each other for the fifth time on the Series battleground will be the New York Kankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers, American and National League champions respectively. The Yanks will be gunning for their fifth straight World Title while the Dodgers seek their initial Series victory, having had six previous tries. The Bronx Bombers have run their total to 15 wins in 19 outings which isn't too bad.

Experts of all phases are echoing the fact that, if the Bums ever plan to capture the World Crown, this is the year to do it. The odds makers have a tendency to put the Yanks as 13-10 favorites while top baseball men like the Dodgers, saying they should be "kicked in the seat" if they blow this chance. It seems everyone likes to remember past performances of the two teams meetings with the American League champs always winning. Remember, though, that the Bums came closer to winning last year than any other time, and they are stronger this year while the Yanks are weaker.

A big deciding factor in the Series will be the managerial picture, presenting Ol' Case Stengal in one dugout with Chuck Dressen in the other. Ol' Case has possibly built himself up as one of the top managers in baseball history with his astounding team and field wizardry in the last five years. On the other side, Chuck has been ridiculed severely several times in the past few years for occasional blunders. To date, the Bronx Bombers' mentor has yet to relinquish the World Crown to his opposing Series manager.

Another Yankee asset to consider is the consistent clutch winning of the Empire crew. Week after week of this year's season, the Yanks delivered a late-inning rally or an extra-frame outburst to win. Not only have they done it this year, but in past seasons and in World Series competition to boot. Playing the major role of many of these timely explosions was "Big Jawn" Mize, easily one of the best pinch-hitters of all time. So well was Mize's performance last year in the early stages of the World Series that he broke into the starting line-up despite his age handicap. Bums beware of Georgia's "Big Cat" for he still swings a mean bat.

But, Yanks beware! Filling in the Dodgers' batting order is what has been termed as the modern "Murderer's Row"—Pee Wee Reese, Junior Gilliam, Jackie Robinson, Carl Furillo, Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Billy Cox—who could ask for a more power-packed combination? This crew of sluggers have among them around 185 home runs, paced by Snider and Campanella who are both in the forty bracket.

Five of the Bums first eight regulars are batting in the .300 division. Leading the Brooks as well as the National League is Carl Furillo, out the last few weeks with a fractured bone in his hand but expected back this week, boasting a .344 mark. Second is Snider, pressing teammate Carl for the batting crown with .339 and who has also clouted 41 round-trippers. Not only are "The Duke" and Furillo two of the top batters in the Senior Loop, but they are credited with being two of the best defensive outfielders.

In the Yankee line-up, there are only three .300 hitters. Gene Woodling, an excellent fielding left-fielder, is leading the Stengal men with a .309 average with Hank Bauer and Micky Mantle following, with a .309 aevrage with Hank Bauer and Mickey Mantle following, starred in last year's Series, has been plagued with injuries all season, and has had only a fair-to-middling year despite his several 500-foot homers.

Man to man it is fairly even when considering the fielding and experience aspects in the figuring. Hodges and Campanella are the only ones figured to dominate their individual positions over the Yanks in the infield. In the outfield, it is all Brooklyn with the Yanks having one advantage—Woodling is better defensively than Robinson in left.

Pitching is liable to spell the difference in this year's Series with both pitching parallel in every phase. Brooklyn has the only 20-game winner in Carl Erskine while Eddie "Whitey" Ford of New York has 18 victories. Following up will be Preacher Roe (11-3) and Russ Meyer (15-5) of the Bums and Ed Lopat (15-4) and Vic Raschi (13-5) of the Yanks. The top three of Brooklyn have 46 wins and 14 losses while those of New York have 46 wins and 14 losses—fairly even?

Prediction: Though a Yank fan, this corner picks the Dodgers in seven.

CUTS AND BRUISES

Coach Lombe Honaker's forces looked good as they rolled up the impressive 55-6 win over the hapless Hiwassee Tigers Monday night, but the boys knew they had been in a fight (literally). Tackles Bill Wheatley and John Anderson now wear pug noses, Jack Keny, Bill Strickland, Jerry King and the majority of the others have their facial features adorned with cuts and bruises. Charlie Headrick was carried from the field for temporary reasons. All in all, many of the boys are commenting that it was one of the dirtiest and roughest games in which they have ever played.

The Scots real test comes tonight when they tangle with Jacksonville State of Alabama. It's a cinch the coaches won't be able to unload the bench tonight, but they should be a slight favorite, considering last year's Scottie win.

Here's hoping that the Highlander fans don't start predicting an unbeaten season because of the showing Monday night. As far as this fan is concerned, the game didn't prove a thing in the way that the Scots will fare in future games because Hiwassee didn't furnish any real competition. From here on in, the Orange and Garnet will have to really scrap for that gridiron victory. Considering a team who had a coach for only one week before the first game and who had a roster of about 27 men, one cannot call that kind of competition a determining factor to judge this year's outcome.

Scots Invade Jax State Tonight

Wee Scotch Lass

By Dixie Conner

Aerial darts is the main topic of squealing in Women's Varsity for the time being, as the girls prepare for the tournament coming up next week. Mary Ann Thompson and Natalie Prinzing are doing a nice job teaching the game, a sort of variation of badminton, while Mrs. V. Queener sits and thinks up ways to get the College station wagon keys so no one else can take it this week-end. The Women's "M" Club, presided over by Helen Drinnen, is planning a week-end "hike", to and from which they will ride, at Tuckaleechee Village. The girls, about eighteen of them, plan on leaving after lunch on Saturday, having a cookout Saturday night, and concluding the day with square dancing at the local Village Barn. That afternoon an important business meeting will be held, mainly to discuss the club's project for this year—fixing the amphitheatre so as to make it more practical for general usage. There's a lot to be done down there and it can only be done with the cooperation of all students interested in seeing improvements on our campus.

The swimming pool is, as always, a fast-moving, wet place these afternoons. Freshman girls are required to take a swimming test to place them in a particular category. These tests can be taken any afternoon but Sunday, and Tuesday night. Tuesday is always a good time because there are fewer people there. "Junior" Davis took advantage of it this week and practiced all kinds of odd dives, of which 80% were supposed to be a jacknife. After smashing her face and almost losing a couple of legs, she proved that she had guts and finally learned how. And to think someone said a jacknife was easier than a plain straight dive! Jim Cummings looks cute in his soaking wet sweatshirt, which is worn with the purpose of breaking the fall, as he attempts to execute some pretty weird dives. But after all, when one's girlfriend is a champion diver, one must not let her prove herself superior to oneself, must one, Jimmy?

The women's tennis tournament, which was begun last week, has been played through the first bracket. So far only a few have played through the second bracket, which must be played out today. Winners thus far are Mary Ann Thompson, Margaret McClure, Shirley Armstrong, Jane Kirkpatrick, and Liz Murphy.

The tumbling skill test was given last Tuesday. Out of forty people and a possible thirty-six, seventeen made the thirty-six. Seven failed to make the passing twenty five points.

For these people who have questioned al lthe od-colored lines on the back wall of the Intramural Gym, this column is written for the purpose of enlightenment. According to Mrs. Queener, they are for the purpose of giving tests in all different sports— basketball, baseball, etc. Next week I'll find out just how they work.

This business of exercise for Varsity just goes too far sometimes, as Ann Yuell, who came here purely for the purpose of study, could prove. Friend (or should I say "Fiend") and roommate, Betty Watson, has a quaint habit of finishing off an eye-opening cup of coffee at the Grill with, "Who wants to come play ping-pong with me?" There's proof, Mrs. Queener, that said Watson takes daily exercise; besides, it's a pretty long walk out to the Grill, and at 8:30 a.m., it's even longer.

Right now I'd like to switch from the wee Scotch lass to a wee Scotch lad. He's Eddie Green, young manager of the Maryville College football squad, and lovable

Meet Your Coaches

By Jim Demer

On Novembers 8, 1952, Honaker Field was dedicated for Lombe S. Honaker. Coach Honaker was no new face to those who have been in and around Maryville for the past 34 years. He is a man who has fostered and developed "the Highlander Spirit" for over 33 years. Honaker Field was dedicated to recognize this fact and to show the appreciation of everyone concerned.

Coach Honaker graduated from Roanoke College, Virginia, in 1912. After his graduation, he served as a coach at Lincoln College, Illinois, for three years. In 1921, he was appointed Director of Athletics and head coach at Maryville College. Coach Honaker started out as and, still is, head coach in football, basketball, and baseball.

Lombe's teams have won more than their share during his 33 years here. If the football team comes up with a poor record, the basketball team goes out and more than reverses it, or vice-versa.

As far as baseball is concerned, Coach Honaker is recognized as one of the leading baseball coaches in the South, if not in the entire country. From 1920 to 1940 Maryville was a member of the Smoky Mountain Conference. Through the 20 years in the conference, the Scotties were champions 18 out of the 20 years, a record that cannot be matched by very many schools anywhere in the country in any sport.

From the looks of our first football game, Maryville is out for a winning season in another sport. Let's hope that Coach Honaker will go on producing winning teams for the next 33 years.

Coach Davis

"J. D.", as he is known around the campus has been associated with Maryville since 1940. Coach John A. Davis started coaching at Maryville in 1940. He stayed at Maryville for two years and then entered the army in 1942. He served in the army in 1942-43. During 1944-45, J. D. was athletic director and coach at Central High School in Knoxville. He returned to Maryville as Associate Professor of Physical Education in 1946.

Coach Davis was graduated from Maryville College and received his Master's from Columbia University, New York City.

J. D. guides the efforts of the line during football season and was track coach while the sport was followed at Maryville But what J. D. is realy known for is the guidance of the wrestling team.

Wrestling history at Maryville is good. In 1940 the wrestling team, under Coach Davis, went the entire season undefeated to capture the Southern Championship. This team, according to Coach Davis, was the best in the Highlander's history. Up to 1947, Coach Davis' teams lost only three matches. Wrestling has a fine record here and with Coach Davis on hand, the indications are that the future will be equally as good for wrestling as will all other sports he coaches.

Coach Davis' Wrestling matches provide entertainment after games durnig basketball season. Like other coaches, J. D. works yearround on some type of sport.

Maryville Wins, 55-6 Over Hapless Hiwassee

By Bob Jackson

Victorious in a big way in their first encounter, the Maryville College Highlanders take on the Jacksonville State squad of Alabama in the role of visitors and also as favorites ,considering the fact that the Scotties won over the State Gamecocks last year and with the Maryvillians stronger this year.

Tonight's contest should show what the Honaker footballers are made of as they meet their first real competition of this young '53 season. The same starting lineup is probable in tonight's game with the exception of Bob Shelton, replacing Buddy Gilbert at blocking back, who is not making the trip because of the extraction of a rib yesterday.

Coaches Lombe Honaker and J. D. Davis are out to make it two straight for the powerful Scotties, seeking to more than duplicate last year's win.

SCOTS WIN, 55-6

Last Monday evening the Maryville College Scotties easily triumphed over an out-gunned, out charged, and totally out-classed Hiwassee eleven, by a score of 55-6.

Scoring almost at will, the boys from the Hill had run up their total number of points before the "Tiger" squad could break into the scoring column.

The scoring parade was led by Clarence Shepard and Jim Harris, who scored three touchdowns each. Other tallies by Wayne Newman and Earl Lawson, plus all but one extra point, added up to the total score.

Much of the credit for the victory must be given to the Orange and Garnet line, which tore gaping holes in the opponent's forward wall to spring the Scot backs free for long gains.

The play of alternate captain Jerry King, who gave the Tigers' quarterback a very rough evening, deserves special mention, along with that of Bill Breen who did an outstanding job at center in his first starting assignment.

The game was only about a minute old when Captain Kenny Shepard fell on a loose pigskin deep in Tiger territory. On the first play from scrimmage, brother Clarence turned right end for the opening score. Kenny converted and the "Scots" led 7 to 0.

Quickly taking possession again after the following kickoff, the Highlanders moved in only six plays for another score. Wayne Newman, along with the Shepards, brought the ball to the four yard line where Newman cracked the center of the line for the score. The conversion was again made by the Scots' Captain. With the second score, the first stringers retired to the bench for the remainder of the half.

The Hiwassee team could do little after taking the kick-off because of the outstanding defensive work of lineman Roy Hayes and Bill Strickland and backer-up Jack Keny. After an exchange of kicks, Maryville started to move. Keny snagged a loose ball, the Scotties drove for another TD when Jim "Flash" Harris scampered nineteen yards to score standing up. This time Gordon Sparks plunged over for the extra point.

Lightning struck again a few minutes later, when the same Mr. Harris scored again after Jack Renfro had recovered a fumble on the visitors' twenty. Sparks converted and the half ended with Maryville pulling away, 28 to 0.

In the second half, the Scots continued to show the way as they tallied on Clarence Shepard's twenty-six yard run. This drive, which covered sixty-four yards, was featured by the younger Shepard's pinpoint passing to Frank Garren. Clarence hung up six more points a little later on a drive started when Herrell Akers fell on one of the numerous Hiwassee fumbles. Ken Shepard's kick was off to one side.

There was no stopping the Highlanders that night as a short time later Buddy White and Harris moved the ball down to pay dirt, with Harris finally going over. This drive saw freshman White plunge for several substantial gains besides kicking the extra point.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Tom Bass grabbed a stray Tiger pass to set up the Scots' final touchdown, scored Earl Lawson. The extra point was kicked by Jim Saunders.

The lone Tiger touchdown came on a pass from Wolf to Jackson. The conversion try was blocked.

Buddy Gilbert and Chuck Dunn are out of tonight's game due to injuries. Gilbert had a rib operation and Dunn is suffering from an injured knee, being hurt earlier this week. Gilbert is out indefinately while Dunn should return soon.

Intramurals....

By Tom Paton

As the end of the first round of the intramural football season draws near, the games become more interesting and the race for the title becomes close. At this time two teams, the Rebels and the Alpha Sig Scotties, are tied for first place. With three wins, no losses, and one tie each. They are followed by the Y. M. C. A. Bombers, Y.M.C.A. Fleet-Feet, Carnegie Frosh, Alpha Sig Highlander, Pre-Mins and Athenian, in that order.

On Thursday of last week, the Scotties beat the Frosh, 6-0, with a Paton-to-Johnston touchdown pass on the first play of the game. The Frosh threatened continually throughout the remainder of the game, helped by heavy penalties against the Scotties, but were not able to overcome their deficit. On Monday the Bombers met the Pre-Mins and the Y team won, 13-0. Wednesday saw the two league leaders meet in a game that ended in a scoreless tie. The Rebels, led by Bob Mathews, threatened several times but the Scottie's defense was able to hold down the attack. The Scotties were again plagued by penalties as the officials called back two touchdowns. The Scotties were sparked by the fine play of Smiley Erickson, who provided most of the offensive punch. The Fleet-Feet gained a forfeit victory over Athenian.

The teams will play each other twice to decide the league title, and this will be followed by a playoff. From here on out the competition will be keen to see who will be this year's champs, but let's all hope that this spirit of competition will not interfere with the spirit of good sportsmanship.

Thursday afternoon featured the biggest upset to date in the Intramural picture as the YMCA Bombers nipped the Alpha Sig Scotties, 6-0. Captain Bill Van Benthuysen flipped a pass to End

Its purpose is to bring together in one place the news of their meetings which regularly appears in the Echo, and in addition to provide a weekly meditation on some religious topic.

British Government To Grant Scholarships

Beginning in the academic year 1954-55, Marshall Scholarships will be available for 12 American graduate students wishing to study at British universities.

The scholarships were established by the British government in gratitude for America's program for European recovery.

Annual Scholarships

The 12 scholarships will be awarded annually, each for a two year period which may be extended to three. Eligible for competition are American citizens, men or women, who are under the age of 28 and are graduates of accredited colleges or universities.

Each grant will consist of $1540 a year, with transportation provided to and from the British university.

Qualifications

Qualifications for the awards are distinction of intellect and character, as shown by scholastic achievements and other activities. Preference will be given to candidates who combine high academic ability with the capaciy to play an active part at the university of their choice.

The closing date for applications for 1954-1955 Marshall Scholarships is November 1, 1953.

Symmes Announces Special Studies Hours

Carolyn V. Symmes, editor of special studies, will be in the library five days a week for consultation with seniors who are completing their special studies. She will meet with them in the library workroom at the following hours: Tuesday, 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., Thursday, 10:30 to 12:30, Friday, 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., and Saturday, 1 to 3 p.m.

Miss Symmes will have available soon a mimeographed booklet on the proper form for special studies.

Seniors are urged to consult with her as soon as possible in order to avoid a rush before the dead line.

Music Department Forms New String Ensemble

One of the newest additions to the Maryville College music department is the initiation of a string ensemble. Katherine Crews instructor in music, is director of the group which will meet each Thursday at 4:30 in Room 105 of the F.A.C. All string players are invited to play and membership is still open.

At present the ensemble has two engagements. They will make their debut at a local mens' club dinner in Maryville and will also play for a Parent-Teacher Association program at one of Maryville's schools.

Present membership is eight and includes violins, John Graulich, Margaret James, Esther Lerch, Virginia Lee Burk; viola, Sydney Tedfoul; cello, Wayne Shelton, Marilyn Baumgartner; and piano, Joyce Linginfelter.

College Sets Meetings Dates February 10-18

February Meetings this year will be from February 10 to 18, 1954, it was announced this week by President Ralph W. Lloyd..

These dates are one week later than those printed in the college catalog, and therefore this announcement is made now as a guide in scheduling other events.

February Meetings always have precedence over any other activities on campus during the week they are scheduled.

Davies, Martin Journey To AAUW Meeting

Convocation Speaker

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd was the principal speaker for the annual Convocation service held Friday, September 4. After the reading of the Scripture by Dean Edwin Hunter and the singing of "Create in Me" by the Vesper Choir, President Lloyd preached on the topic, "Design for College."

According to definition, said the speaker, "A design is a plan, formed in the mind, of something to be done or produced." During the past six years, as the Fine Arts Center and the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel have been developed, design in architecture has taken on important meaning for us. It also has an important meaning for college.

The following elements are essential alike to Design for Building and Design for College: plans, function, materials, structure, and symmetry. Beyond, beneath, and above all our plans is the design of God. Our design for college must fit into it, for it is Design for Eternity.

word about the plane he would be on.

But just taking a chance, she went out to the airport Monday of the first school week to meet a plane from San Francisco.

Five minutes before the plane arrived—it was late—she got a delayed telegram saying Tommy would be coming on the plane.

Mrs. Jaynes was practically reading the wire as her brother was getting off the plane.

When Tommy sent the wire from San Francisco, he did not think it would be necessary to include Mrs. Jaynes' street address, and merely sent it to Maryville, Tenn.

That was why the wire was delayed. "I don't know how they ever found me," Mrs. Jaynes said.

Back In Hawaii

Tommy has two more brothers and a sister back in Hawaii still going to school. Five other sisters, including Mrs. Jaynes, are married, and one is teaching in Hawaii.

He learned about Maryville after Mrs. Jaynes, then Miss Eleanor Tom, came to MC as circulation librarian last fall.

Tommy decided late in August that he was coming here to college. Mrs. Jaynes is a Tusculum graduate, but thought her brother would enjoy it here.

"And I think he does," she said.

Tommy has already celebrated one event since being at cshool—his 19th birthday was last Sunday.

Buddy Gilbert's wee brother. No one ever enjoyed mopping up a mess of dirty, sweaty faces as much as Eddie does. Rather than miss one face he'll go all the way down the line and mop them all. I guess most of us know that "Gilly" is in the hospital now and by now has had an operation on his ribs. Not only the team will miss his many attributes, but we all will, and not to drop a hint, or anything, but "Gilly" loves us all and would certainly like to hear from anyone who can squeeze out a minute from studying. Maybe we can't change the world, but we sure can make one of our "Buddies" a little happier by just giving up a minute or two of our own time and one wee three-cent stamp.

Speaking of Buddy and Eddie and the team, I really must congratulate all of you for keeping up the noise Monday night at the game. It did get dull after the first five or six touchdowns, but the cheerleaders still have to keep cheering and the team has to keep playing, so the least we can do is keep yelling. After all, they're scarring their races, giving up smoking, and losing teeth just so we can say, "Oh, yes, we won all our games this year and next year we're taking on UT, Harvard, and Yale!", so we surely don't want them to say that they didn't have the support of their school. Do you dig me? Thanks lots for the support you've given us, and I hope it will continue.

Williams, Kemp Head Cast Of 'Bell, Book and Candle'

Kathleen Craven Directs Drama

The Maryville College Playhouse production of "Bell, Book and Candle" on November 20 and 21 will feature Marcia Williams and Jack Kemp in the leading roles of Gillian and Shepherd, Kathleen Craven, director, announced Thursday.

Miss Willlams is a sophomore drama major from Peekskill, N. Y., and Kemp is an instructor in drama and speech. The other actors will be Garnetta Alexander as Miss Holroyd, Walter Elwood as Sidney Redlitch, and Bill Stein as Nicky Holroyd.

Modern Witchcraft

"Bell, Book and Candle," a comedy in three acts by John van Druten, has to do with present day witches. John Gassner included the play in his recent collection of the 15 best plays since 1945, and it is considered the most popular play with university and summer theater groups this year.

Lilly Palmer and Rex Harrison held the leading roles in the Broadway production.

Rehearsals for the play began this week and committees will be assigned next week.

"Sleep of Prisoners"

The first Experimental Theater production of the year will be presented Friday, October 30, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The play is Christopher Fry's "A Sleep of Prisoners."

The part of Peter Abel will be played by Bill Deerfield, a freshman English major from Bloomfield, N. J. David King is taken by Herb Catlin, junior German major from Ogdensburg, N.Y. The part of Tim Meadows is portrayed by Arthur Fryer, a sophomore English major from Ridgeville, Pa.; and Corporal Joseph Adams will be taken by George Hall, a freshman from Jacksonville, Fla. The play is directed by George Caldwell, a senior drama major from Seattle, Wash.

"A Sleep of Prisoners" is a highly imaginative drama about four prisoners of war locked up in a church in enemy territory. Being so confined, their problems are magnified as they struggle to understand themselves and the world.

IRC Panel To Discuss 'Trade Not Aid'

"Trade, Not Aid" will be the topic for a panel discussion led by Newell Witherspoon at the next meeting of International Relations Club. All students interested in current affairs and international relations are invited to attend the meeting, which will be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in Thaw Hall.

IRC held its first meeting on Thursday, October 4, with Margaret Hanna, president, and Maryel Vogel, secretary, in charge. Arda Walker, assistant professor of economics, led a discussion on why one should have an interest in international relations. She asked a series of questions for thought on several aspects of current world affairs.

The members discussed plans for activities and programs pertaining to US foreign policy this fall. They plan to attend a lecture by Trygve Lie in Oak Ridge on October 28. The foreign students on campus were recognized and refreshments were served to conclude the meeting.

French Club Hears Music

French Club held a meeting on Thursday evening in the Fine Arts Center. A program featuring recordings of French music was presented by Sheila Sutton and Ruth Orr.

Germans To Have Party

German Club will hold a party in the Y-rooms on October 19, at 7:30 p.m. The party is for the benefit of the new members.

Debaters Plan Year's Activities

Approximately 15 new students have come out for debate this year in addition to the seven returning debaters, Sarah Pledger, varsity debater, said this week.

These debaters are being assisted by faculty advisors A. F. Pieper, Arda Walker, and Newell Witherspoon. Meetings are held on Monday afternoons at 1:30 and on Thursday at 3:30 p.m.

Miss Pledger said the group hopes to represent MC at a debate meet "sometime before Christmas." Next semester, she said, the group plans to attend three or four meets including the state tournament and the Pi Kappa Delta regionals in Kentucky.

The group is debating this year the national college topic, "Resolved: That the United States Should Adopt a Policy of Free Trade." Debaters are now studying materials and sources for this topic in the debate room on the south end of the library.

Crago Speaks To Faculty

Captain Ralph D. Crago spoke at the faculty club meeting last Monday night.

Captain Crago, who is a senior at Maryville and stationed at the McGhee-Tyson Air Base spoke on meterorology, which is the science of the atmosphere and its various changes of heat and moisture.

Also at this time Miss Meiselwitz was recognized as the newest member of the "twenty-five year club".

The faculty will hold their next club meeting Monday, November 2.

Echo Staff Adds 8 New Members

The Echo editorial staff has eight new members as a result of the Student-Faculty Publications Committee meeting on Thursday.

Seniors added to the staff were Lora Kinsinger, English major from Burlington, N. C., and Walter Elwood, history major from Paterson, N. J. Both have worked on the Echo staff before, Elwood for two years and Miss Kinsinger for three. Echo Editor Joan Frei appointed Miss Kinsinger as Managing Editor and Elwood as Senior Staff Editor.

Staff Vacancies Filled

The junior elected to the staff was Dixie Conner, from New Brunswick, N. J., who writes the women's sports column.

Malcolm King, sophomore political science major from St. Petersburg, Fla., was added to the sports staff to fill the sophomore vacancy.

Freshmen elected to the Echo staff were Peggy Packard, Barbara Wilkie, Pat Brendle, and Ray Sammons. They tried out by writing for the Echo fo rseveral weeks. There are still vacancies for freshman reporters.

Publications Committee

The Publications Committee is made up of the senior editors of the Echo, represented at the meeting only by Miss Frei; the Student Council publicity committee, made up of Herb White, chairman, Judy Burgos, Peggy Fisher, and Joan Frei; and the faculty publications committee, comprised of Assistant Professor Elizabeth Hope

Council Slates New Blood Drive

At its regular meeting last Wednesday Student Council voted to hold the blood drive it is sponsoring on November 6. President Bill Dartnell appointed Bill Davis chairman of the committee in charge of it, with Jack Maxwell and Tom Bugenhagen helping him.

Social Board chairman Pat Halstead reported that there will be a dance after the Homecoming game on September 24. The Fall Dance will be on December 4 and the Spring Formal on April 10.

Freshman Officers

Edgar Drum, newly elected president of the freshman class, introduced the other freshman class officers and representatives, who attended the meeting with him.

The steering committee recommended that Student Council hold an informal get-together with either the faculty or the executive council of the faculty sometime in the near future. Council voted in favor of the plan, which would provide an opportunity for the two groups to meet in a friendly atmosphere and without any specific problems to discuss.

More Committees

Two other new committees were formed by Dartnell, one to be on Student Council law and procedure. Made up of Council secretary Barbara Chubb, Ginny Smith, and Naomi Burgos, it will gather into one place all the constitutions pertaining to the student body.

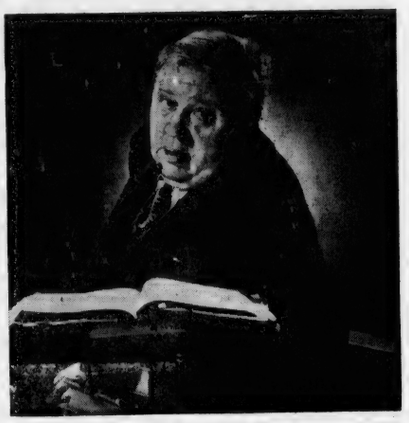
The second committee is designed to investigate the entire concept of the Athletic Board of Control. Led by Walter Elwood, it is made up of Bill Van Benthuysen, Horace Beckwith, and Judy Burgos. This committee is made up both of Student Council members and non-members.

Written Reports

President Dartnell recommended that all committees and organizations represented in Student Council or of Student Council present written reports at the end of each semester. Council voted to adopt this plan, which will enable the members to become better acquainted with all other activities connected with it. In addition, it will provide a record that may be referred to by future officers and Council members.

No Town Night violations were reported.

In regard to the coke machine situation, Council rejected a committee proposal which recommended that last year's proposal be accepted. Dartnell was asked to appoint a new committee to bring a new recommendation to Council this week. Such a plan would involve having the coke machine under the jurisdiction of Student Council and trying to get coke machines for the girls' dormitories as well.



September 30 Meeting

At the Student Council meeting last week the student center and Y store agreements were ratified. Arrangements were made for freshman class and ABC elections.

Four Town Night violations were reported and penalties were applied.

The Town Night committee reported that it is making progress in its objectives.

Artist Series To Present 'An Evening With Laughton'

Charles Laughton, above, will appear at MC on November 30 in a program featuring some of his best known readings. Laughton is presented by the Maryville College Artist Series.

Tickets To Go On Sale Tuesday

By Walter Elwood

Harry Harter, chairman of the Artist Series Committee, has announced that tickets for the 1953 Artist Series will go on general sale on Tuesday, October 13. Student seat reservations will be thirty cents plus presentation of an activity card. Tickets sold to town people will be two dollars.

Pat Halstead is in charge of ticket sales on campus. Times and places will be announced in chapel. Students are urged to secure reservations early. A sell-out crowd is expected.

"Evening With Laughton"

As has been previously announced, "An Evening with Charles Laughton" is to be the fall presentation on Monday, November 30, at eight p.m. in the Alumni gym.

Because of the large expense incurred in securing Charles Laughton there will not be a spring event this year.

Charles Laughton needs no introduction to American audiences. His name has become almost a by-word since he began his reading tours six years ago. Numerous radio and television appearances have greatly added to his popularity.

"Life on Mississippi"

In compliance with numerous requests, Laughton has put down in his own words the reasons why he chooses to entertain his hearers with certain selections. Here is what he says of one of his favorite exerpts, from Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi,"

"I suppose to an American child many European things seem romantic when he reads or hears about them: the beef-eaters in the Tower of London, the White Cliffs of Dover, the boulevards of Paris, the Mediterranean. But when I was a boy in England the most romantic place in the world was the Mississippi River.

"There have been lots of good things written about that river, about the plantations and the cotton, the river boats and the City of New Orleans, the magnolia trees, and the songs of the Negroes. The best of them all, I have always thought, is Mark Twain's loving tribute to the river he knew so well as a steamboat pilot, and so I often include a passage from his "Life on the Mississippi" in my program.

Varied Selections

Along with Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi," students can look forward to hearing selections from the Bible, Shakespeare, Thomas Wolfe, James Thurber and various poems and essays.

Laughton comes to Maryville under the management of Paul Gregory.

Y Radio To Open With Original Play

"I Take Off My Shoes", an original script by Ethelyn Cathey, will be the first production of Y Radio this year, co-directors Sarah Pledger and John Graulich have announced. The drama portrays the experiences of a college girl who has contracted tuberculosis and features Carol Sleight as "Lou" and Ethelyn Cathey as "Windy", with six other supporting roles.

Religious Drama

Y Radio presents religious dramas in the form of choral readings, original scirpts, and material obtained from the Protestant Radio Commission each Sunday night at 9:00 p.m. over station WGAP. The first broadcast will be October 18.

Approximately fifty students had their voices classified as a result of tryouts held last week. The programs are recorded in the Fine Arts Center with Walt Hiller as control man. Other members of the Y Radio committee are Nancy Rideout and John Moed. Ralph Moore and Jack Kemp are faculty advisors.

Societies Add 187

New members initiated into the four societies this fall numbered 187. Bainonian had 69 new members, Athenian 19, Theta Epsilon 64, and Alpha Sigma 35.

Freshmen Choose Drum President

Edgar Drum, psychology major from Latrobe, Pa., was elected president of the freshman class during elections held earlier last week. Helen (Junior) Davis, physical education major from Washington, D. C., was elected vice president. Secretary is Sandra Booth from Memphis, and treasurer is Ted McDaniels from Millville, N. J.

Representatives to Student Council are Clara Jo Minarick from Tuscon, Arizona and Perry Fuller, Scranton, Pa.

The officers have not met yet but Drum expects to call a meeting soon to get the year's program underway. At present he and Miss Davis are considering plans for the Freshman Talent Show and will present them to the class later.

James To Demonstrate Liquid Air Experiments

The physics department will sponsor a program of liquid air demonstrations by Elliott James on October 21 at 7:30 p.m.

The demonstration of experiments in low temperature will feature a mercury "hammer," kerosene "candle," lead "bell," and "liquid" airplane.

The experiments in low temperature will produce temperatures of 312 degrees below zero.

Rehearsals For 'Messiah' To Begin Monday Night

Rehearsals for the Messiah, which is given in December, will begin on Monday, October 12, from 7:30 to 8:30.

This is open to all students who would like to sing, whether they are members of the music organizations or not. It is also open to any interested townspeople.

Spanish Club Initiates New Members

Spanish club met at 6:45 Thursday, October 8. Plans were announced and new members were initiated.

Students, Faculty Pledge $1423 To Fred Hope

The pledges and payments for the Fred Hope Fund up to October 3 total 348 pledges for $1423. 25, $344.50 of which has already been paid.

The Fred Hope pledge is still not paid up, so the table will be set up in first floor Anderson on Saturday, October 10, and Monday, October 12, for receiving additional pledges and payments.

Mrs. Kolter Plays 'Mom' To 250 Men Of Carnegie

By Walter Elwood

Playing "Mom" to 250 fellows is no easy task but Mrs. Kolter does just that to the guys of Carnegie Hall.

Mom Kolter took up her duties at Maryville in 1948, becoming the first housemother in the long history of Carnegie Hall. She has been at her post since then.

Five Sons

Mom Kolter was born in Rockford, Ohio, and still maintains her home there. Mom has five sons of her own. Richard and Paul both attended college here. Paul returned after graduate study to teach in the biology department.

"I like Maryville very much; it's fine to be working with young people," Mom says. She tries to maintain an interest in what "her boys" are interested in. You can see her at most of the sporting events, except wrestling which "just tires me out."

Active in Church Work

In her home town of Rockford Mrs. Kolter was active in church work. Some of her other interests included the P.T.A., Eastern Star and the American Legion Auxiliary.

Besides her position as housemother Mrs. Kolter was in charge of dorm maintenance, working as an assistant to Mr. Black. Since she has been here Mom has taken it on herself to arrange for transportation to the U.T. concerts and has acted as chaperone on those trips.

Friend and Adviser

To many of the fellows in Carnegie Mom is more than just a house mother—she is a good friend and adviser. Many times she can be seen sewing buttons on shirts and darning socks. One of her big jobs is being nurse when sickness strikes. She has a supply of aspirin, cold tablets, and old

'Mlle' Magazine Tells of Contest

Again this year "Mademoiselle" magazine announces its annual College Board contest. Girls who are accepted then test their qualifications for jobs in the publishing field by means of three assignments during the college year.

The 20 College board members chosen as the best will win a month in New York writing and editing "Mademoiselle's" 1954 college issue.

Women undergraduates under the age of 26 are eligible for the contest. Requirements include writing a 1500 word criticism of "Mademoiselle's" 1953 college issue, and criticizing one particular field in detail.

Entries must be sent to the magazine by November 30, 1953.

DuBose To Preach

The speaker at vespers tomorrow will be Chaplain (Captain) Wilds S. DuBose, Jr., from the McGhee-Tyson Air Force Base.

Feature Writing Is Art According To Our Expert

By Kathie Chase

It's so simple to write a feature. All you do is sit down (I'm sitting) and start typing (I'm typing), and the words will flow with the greatest of ease onto the paper. Of course, I'm forgetting one very important minor detail—that is that you need a subject. Of course there are any number of things to write about—a whole world just teeming with thousands of fertile subjects. I've looked the whole world over and thought until I just can't think any more, and I can't get even one single (or married) inspiration for this feature I'm supposed to be writing. Now there must be a solution to my problem somewhere. I'm beginning to feel in as much of a predicament as "Mysterious Yokum." (Scuse me while I read the funnies to see what happened—you see, the paper just came. Oh dear, the welfare officers just came and took it away. How disillusioning!)

Now let me think. Well, there's the possibility of a feature about Columbus, seeings as how this coming Monday, Octboer 12, is the 451st anniversary of his discovering America. But now what could I write about him? I'm not personally acquainted with him and since second-hand information isn't too accurate, I guess I'd better not attempt anything that isn't historically correct. That wouldn't be being intellectually honest.

Or since it is now the month of October and Fall is officially here with its "golden days" of turning leaves (of course though, having to rake them up after they fall—maybe that's why the season is called fall—takes some of the appreciation we had for them before they fell), of football games of which Maryville's even winning this year some yet (that's Pennsyl

Collegiate Publications

From time to time we are privileged to receive a number of communications from various colleges and universities with which we exchange newspapers.

These papers are of interest to us as they show how other school papers publish the news and deal with their problems. We find it a good thing to be able to compare our paper with theirs and to see how we measure up—for what things we can congratulate ourselves and where we fall short.

Then, too, we occasionally come to encounter very valuable and entertaining items in our perusal of campus publications.

As an example of the better type of writing we come across, we here present a piece of wisdom adapted from "The Appalachian" of Appalachian State Teachers' College. We are happy to list these profound truths according to academic classification.

FRESHMAN
History: Cleopatra was no lady.
Everybody but Columbus was a square.
English: Stick in a comma when you run out of breath.
Mr. Harbrace is a jerk.
Math: x-Y on occasion.
Mr. Euclid is also a jerk.
Philosophy: If Greeks are men, and men are humans, then Greeks are ergo.
Mr. Aristotle is likewise a jerk.
Applied Psychology (covering a multitude of truths):
Some college men drink.
All coeds are not ladies.

SOPHOMORE
History: Martha Washington invented candy.
Lee was robbed; Grant drank.
English: Man, dig that crazy "Miller's Tale."
Ulysses should have stayed home.
Chemistry: You can make alcohol in a lab. All alcohol is not for drinking.
Biology: Mr. Darwin invented monkeys. Monkeys grow up to be people.
Philosophy: If Greeks are ergo, then humans are reductio ad absurdum.
Applied psychology: The art department collects nasty pictures.
A few college men drink.
Many coeds are not ladies.

JUNIOR
Psychology: All little girls are not ladies.
Freud dreamed too much.
English: Poe drank too much.
Samuel Johnson was as ugly as sin.
James Boswell was no gentleman.
Philosophy: Mr. Emerson invented nature.
John Dewey invented schools.
Chemistry: You can make rum in a lab.
All rum is not for drinking.
Applied Psychology: Most college men drink.
Most coeds are not ladies.

SENIOR
English: Shakespeare was a copy-cat.
Milton wrote too much.
Current Affairs: Eisenhower is a jerk.
Stevenson is a jerk.
Truman wrote nasty letters.
Roosevelt was a Russian spy.
Applied Psychology: All college men drink.
No coeds are ladies.

We close with thanks to the author and with a sincere wish for more inter-collegiate communication in the future.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Sadie Davis

For you lucky people that have time to indulge in a little extra reading, the library has a wide variety of new books. If you are partial to historical novels, Thomas B. Costain has written another great one entitled The Magnificent Century which covers the long reign of the weathercock King Henry III from 1216 to 1272. This is a story of the insweep of new ideas brought by men returning from the crusades. And as in every Costain book, this story of a great age is told in terms of people who lived in it, the great and the small.

For all you girls who like to sew and would like to design them and make your own patterns—Designing Your Own Dress Patterns by Helen Nicol Tamous. And for the poetically inclined, there is Collected Lyrics of Edna S. Vincent Millay, which is a collection of two-hundred-odd lyrics arranged in chronological order.

MOVIES

Attention all ye "town nighters", the Capitol is featuring "Law and Order" with Errol Flynn and the Park is showing "Jazz Singer" with Denny Thomas and Peggy Lee. For the rest of you movie goers, on Monday, at the Park, "Live Happy" with Groucho Marx and on Thursday and Friday, "Colt Two" with Ralph Meeker and Elaine Stuart.

GENERAL STUFF

Something we'll all want to attend is the "Evening With Charles Laughton" which will be here the last of next month. We already have what you might call a big story on the event, but for the culturally minded who don't bother with front page stuff, we'll mention it here.

Mr. Laughton is best known perhaps for his readings from the Bible, many of which he has recorded. In Mr. Elwood's story, you can see the variety of selections planned for the Maryville program. Read it, and then don't miss the performance.

Monday rehearsals begin for Maryville College's 21st annual singing of Handel's "Messiah". The actual rendition will be on Sunday afternoon, December 6. But before that time can come, organization of a chorus and intensive rehearsals must take place. Harry H. Harter, assistant professor of music and Vesper Choir director, also directs the "Messiah". We think you'll enjoy singing in the oratorio chorus. Anyone interested may join this Christmas event. The experience of singing Handel's music will, we are sure, make you want to sing again in years to come.

We've all heard speeches about trips to Europe, but down in the Fine Arts Center art gallery they have an illustrated travelogue. They are watercolors and drawings made by art instructors Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Beard, who traveled through Europe last summer.

Before they left last spring, the Beards offered to draw scenes in Europe for students who would like to have drawings for their own. Last Tuesday night, they held an exhibit in the gallery, showing all the pictures they drew during their travels. Mr. and Mrs. Beard both told of experiences they had on their trip.

Something we noticed were the many pictures of organs in the varied cathedrals and churches of Europe. The collection, many of which will soon be on dormitory room walls, includes both well-known and commonplace scenes.

Over in our college library again we thought it might be "of value" to mention the bulletin board displays. Stop and look at them sometime—you might learn something. It's really interesting (and sometimes amazing) to learn what a variety of titles the library has. Currently one bulletin board (the one that was changed last) has the theme of peering into a mind. Don't miss that.

It Was A Fine Series

The headline across the top of the front page of the Brooklyn Eagle read, "Egad, Men! Wake Up!" And so the Dodgers awoke. Carl Erskine fooled the Yanks all afternoon as he beat them 3-2. The next afternoon Billy Loes came through with a 7-3 win. Everything was tied up at two games apiece. The time was right for a Brooklyn romp. Talk was heard outside Ebbets Field; "De foist two games at de Stadium was nuttin' but warm-ups. De Bums will now take four straight."

But the scoring power of the American League Champs showed itself in the fifth game as Mickey Mantle led the way with a bases-loaded home run. The Brooks tried to come back but came out on the wrong side of the 11-7 decision.

Again the headlinse in Brooklyn screamed: "Let's go, Carl." All eyes were on Carl Erskine, the new World Series Strikeout King. Erskine had come back from a first game, first inning pounding to set a new World Series record by striking out 14 Yanks in a 3-2 win. Charlie Dressen was ready to shoot the works with his ace right hander.

This was it. The hopes of the Brooks had risen again. They had to come through; it was now or never. The cry of play ball was heard. The Yanks lead from the start to within reaching distance of the finish. The score was 3-1 when Reynolds pitched to Carl Furillo, the National League's leading hitter. Duke Snider had just walked on a disputed call. Carl swung, late but hard, to blast a home run into the right-field stands. The stadium shook os he rounded the bases, but then the Yanks came to bat. Two men were on and one out as little Billy Martin stepped up. Martin needed one base hit to break a Series Record for the most base hits in a six-game series. Martin was confident as the first pitch by Clem Labine came by for a called strike. Labine delivered the next pitch and it was a fine series.

Scot Makes Good

A former Maryville College basketball star, PFC. John Shields, second baseman for the 28th Infantry Softball team, Fort Jackson, is doing nearly as well on the softball diamond as he did on the hard boards of Maryville College in the years 1950-52. Shields was one of several 28th Infantry players leading Fort Jackson to the Third Army Softball Championship at Fort McPherson, Ga., last week, and a berth in the All-Army softball finals to be held at Fort Belvoir, Va., October 5-10.

Shields hit the longest home run of the tourney in the first inning of the final game to start a 12-1 rout of Camp Rucker, Ala., for Fort Jackson's fifth straight win. The pesky little keystoner also hit another four sacker and collected five other safeties to complete a .467 batting average in 15 trips to the plate. This was the third highest average for the tournament in which seven teams were entered.

Shields, better known as "Meano" and "Pasquale" around the campus, had his biggest year in the 1951-52 season, when he set a new record for total season scoring. "Meano" also set the record for the highest individual score per game when he fired 46 points through the nets in leading Maryville to a 96-92 win over the University of Chattanooga in January of 1952.

Cross Country

Congratulations to the cross country team for their fine performance against the University of Tennessee last Wednesday. Even though the Scots came out o nthe long end of the 22-33 score they showed up well. Maryville took second, fourth, eighth, ninth, and tenth as A. C. McWilliams and Homer Rickabaugh lead the way. It looks like another fine season for Coach Johnson's hill and dale men.

Strong Student Support

The increased zeal of the Maryville cheering section has shown up in the performance of the team. The Scots have played two good games at home and one on the road. Even after the 55-6 rout of Hiwassee one could not say that Maryville had a strong team. This was due to the lack of competition. But after the way the Scots played a 0-0 tie against strong Jacksonville State at Jacksonville, Ala., and beat Centre College, 13-7, it seems as if we have a winning season ahead of us. So keep up the Pep rallies before the games, the yelling and cheering during the games and the "that's our team spirit" on campus. If this is done we should remain as successful upon the field as we are in the stands.

Good Work!

Congratulations are in order to director Refty Moore and the fast-stepping Maryville College band on their fine display at the first two home games of the season. Trig Moyer, Ruth Orr and Esther Lerch have given the spectators several occasions to take heed while the whole group deserves much credit for their hours of preparation each week for the half time show.

Backing up the fine support given by the band are the peppy Orange and Garnet cheerleaders led by energetic Doris Glad and Jack Maxwell. They are doing an excellent job and have produced some catchy new yells for the Maryville students.

Homecoming Near

Two weeks from today the annual Homecoming festivities will be getting underway prior to the grid classic that night. Let's all be getting prepared for the occasion and chip ni to support the "big week-end" to the fullest.

Rumors have come our way that Newberry College totes a powerful team, aggressive in every department and averaging over 200 pounds in the starting line. This should provide many Homecoming thrills for the fans.

Gilbert Back on Campus

It is good to see Buddy Gilbert walking around the campus again after his visit with the operating table. The Scots will miss Buddy's excellent blocking and signal-calling talents for the remainder of the season.

While on the subject of football players, the Scottie gridders have been talking about one of their group that goes around the campus singing to himself: "Who's the prettiest boy on the Maryville team? Hobroy! Hobroy!" Could it be the gals are missing something special?

Prediction: This week's odd-makers put the Scotties a seven-point underdog; taking a wild guess, we shall predict a score of 20-13.

ETS Band To Play

Tonight, the East Tennessee State College band will accompany its football team to Honaker Field, and will perform at half-time. Also, the MC band will perform before the game, and at half-time.

The news concerning the new kilts for the band is rather discouraging. Word has been received from the manufacturer that the sample uniform is being completed, but no definite date is set for the arrival of all the new kilts.

Scots Host To ETS Buccaneers

Seek Third Win In Underdog Rule

By Malcolm King

Maryville College's Scotties, boasting a record of two wins and one tie, try for win number three against the visiting East Tennessee State Buccaneers of Johnson City tonight, 8 o'clock, on Honaker Field.

Coaches Lombe Honaker and J. D. Davis are expected to stick to their same starting eleven as in previous games. The Orange and Garnet gridders will be out to avenge last year's 33-13 defeat at the hands of the Buccaneers.

Coach Star Wood's Blue and Gold clad will be a tough opponent to reckon with as the two teams meet with the Buccaneers a slight favorite judging by past performances.

Down Centre, 13-7

Avenging a '52 setback of 20-0, the Scotties edged the Centre College Prayin' Colonels of Kentucky, 13-7, on Honaker Field last Saturday night in a game that was considered a toss-up prior to the opening whistle.

Two errors, a fumble and a poor center proved fatal to the Colonels, giving the Scotties their two scoring plays. Excluding these blunders, both teams played on even terms most of the contest.

For Maryville, it was again spunky Clarence Shepard, the versatile tailback, who carried the bulk of the offensive chores aided by line-cracking Wayne Newman and good blocking.

The Maryville scoring came with C. Shepard scooting over right tackle and through the visitors' secondary for a 48-yard touchdown jaunt. Brother Kenny split the uprights with his talented toe to make it 7. Late in the second period, tackle Charlie Headrick added the winning margin when he pounced on a loose ball in the end zone, regards of the Colonels' center.

Alternate-captain Jerry King was continually breaking through the Centre line and nailing the Colonel ball carriers for losses. His outstanding play was backed by "Doby" Berrong, Headrick, Jim Cox, Harrell Akers and Bill Strickland. Linebackers Newman and Bill Breen doubled the strength of the defensive line.

Taking the opening kickoff, the Prayin' Colonels completed two plays before linebacker Newman recovered their fumble on the Centre 48. Blocking back Bob Shelton gave C. Shepard the nod, and the tailback executed his 48-yard TD run to put the Highlanders ahead.

Neither team was able to produce a scoring threat the remainder of the period though Centre quarterback Herbie McQuire kept the Scot secondary busy with his effective passing.

C. Shepard opened the secand quarter with a 45-yard punt into the Centre end zone and shortly after left the game with an injured arm. The Colonels then started their 80-yard drive for the Maryville goal line. Dexter Steinecker climaxed the march with a 16-yard TD sprint into pay dirt and S. Harmon tied the score with his accurate boot.

Bob Ramger and Jimmy Harris sparked the Scottie attack for the majority of the second period with the line stalling the Centre offense. With minutes to go in the quarter, C. Shepard punted into the Colonels' end zone and the visitors commenced play on their 20. A bad center shot through Mickey Covington's legs and Scot tackle Headrick burst through the line to down the ball in the end zone for six points.

The half-time gun sounded and the scoreboard flashed Maryville 13, Centre 7—the final score.

Both squads came back in the second half with much determination. Neither team could dent the other's forward wall, rocking back and forth on the field the bulk of the third and fourth periods.

C. Shepard and Earl Lawson hit end Frank Garren with passes while Newman and Ramger displayed some fine runs. K. Shepard produced some effective blocking and clicked on the reverse. Brother Clarence turned in the feat of the half with a dazzling 77-yard punt that stopped on the Centre 4-yard stripe.

Centre began to roll and was knocking on the Highlanders' goal line when the big Honaker Field clock completed its final 60 second cycle to end the game.

Scots Tie Jax State

On the evening of September 26, the Highlanders battled the powerful Jacksonville State Gamecocks of Alabama to a scoreless deadlock on the muddy gridiron of State's College Bowl before an estimated crowd of 100.

Both teams were handcuffed beyond reason in their offensive tactics because of the grimy conditions, the rain having started 16 hours previous to game time. As it was, the two water-logged elevens engaged in a see-saw scrap of punting and breaks.

Maryville received their only scoring chance early in the game when they moved the ball within 16 yards of State's goal line, but a penalty and four fruitless plays later, the Gamecocks had the pigskin. At this time, Tom Hanson of Jacksonville booted a lofty 80-yard punt to set the Scotties back deep in their own territory.

Stocky little Clarence Shepard, the Scots' fine triple-threat tailback, carried the offensive play for Coach Honaker's forces with his continual slashes through State's line. His aerial skill was grounded by the very poor weather and field conditions, throwing only a few which were incomplete.

Guard Bob Berrong and tackle Ted Godfrey were standouts in their respective positions as they showed a rugged stubbornness in holding firm against the Gamecock blockers. Guard Bill Wheatley and linebacker Bill "Daddy" Breen played an excellent defensive game.

Jax State was halted thrice when within striking distance of Scottie paydirt. It was the strong line of Maryville that rose up and refused to relinquish a six-pointer to the powerful 'Bama hosts.

Scot Runners Edged By U-T

On Wednesday, September 30, the cross country team traveled to Knoxville to run against U.T. Maryville was defeated by the score of 33-22, the team with low score being the winner. The team looked good in its first start with a couple of newcomers showing promise.

It was a fast race over the 2.7 mile course, the winnng time being 13:50 posted by Hill of U.T. He was followed by A. C. McWilliams who clocked 14:15. The other Scots who figured in the scoring were Homer Rickabaugh, Sonny Shackelford, Rod McMillan, and Ed Drum. Shackleford and Drum were running their first meet and they promise to produce well in the future. Others who ran for Maryville but did not figure were Paul Payne, Bruce Ingles, Herb Catlin, John Schweigler, and Bob Finertie.

This week the team traveled to Davidson to run Friday afternoon. The seven boys that made the trip were A. C. McWilliams, Homer Rickabaugh, Rod McMillan, Sonny Shackleford, Paul Payne, Ed Drum, and Bruce Ingles. The boys are hoping to repeat last year's victory, and they will have a good chance.

In past years the cross country has been very successful and this season should be no exception. Led by Captain Rickabaugh, the team has a good balance of experience with newcomers, and deserves the support of every one of us.

This season's schedule follows:
Friday, October 9—Davidson (away)
Saturday, Oct. 17—Georgia (away)
Saturday, Oct. 24—W. J. Bryan (here)
Friday, Oct. 30—Sewanee (away)
Wednesday, Nov. 4—U.T. (here)

Kent Buser, first man on this past season's tennis team, continued to dominate the Maryville courts as he defeated teammate Marshall England 8-6; 9-11; and 6-4. By winning the tourney, the Indiana boy acquired for the second time the Y. M. C. A. trophy, which he first won in 1951.

In order to reach the finals both Buser and England had to overcome some serious competition. In the Semi-Final round, Kent defeated the pride of Carnegie's fourth floor, John Anderson, by scores of 6-3, 1-6, and 6-1, while Marshall defeated the ancient veteran, Edward Henry Breitbach, 5-7, 7-5, and 6-4.

Also in action was a newcomer to Maryville, Jim Roof, who played for the Pitt Panthers last year. If his game proves to be as steady as it looks, he will be a strong asset to the court squad.

The halfway mark has been reached in the touch football season and at the beginning of the final half the league has tightened up a great deal. During the recent days, upsets have been the rule rather than the exception, with most of the leading teams feeling the sting of defeat. The scores of Mrs. V. Queener is pretty excited over the arrival of son, Jake from boot camp, so it was hard to squeeze information out of her. I rummaged around for awhile, though, and here's what I came across.

The tennis tournament has finally been played off. Finalists were Mary Ann Thompson and Liz Murphy, who really had to keep in good shape to get as far as they did. There was really some good material this year, and the going was rough. Mary Ann came out on top, though, and some good playing was displayed. Congrats, Toppy.

Joan Herschelman started out today's meeting of Women's Varsity with a short and to-the-point invitation. The "M" Club's project this year is to clean up the College Woods Amphitheatre, so the wee brains have really been working on ways to get much-needed help. Finally, the way came. All the members of Women's Varsity have been invited to a "clean-up" party in the woods Monday afternoon. The girls will leave in the early afternoon and have supper out there—I'd say they'll be too tired to get back without some supper. Ah, well, girls, just think—it will count for hours of exercise!

The girls are still playing off their aerial darts tournament, as Shirley Axley blows her wee whistle and takes roll—this Shirley's one hard-worker! Corny Force and Helen Drinnen really sweated out a match, but Helen must have sweated harder, because she beat Corny by a very small margin. She then went on to beat scarred-kneed, blister-footed, pooped-out (after two games straight) Nancy Kotz, also by a not-too-large margin. Now Helen holds the championship title for the Chillies, and Junior Davis holds it for the Howies. They plan on playing off the finals Monday afternoon at 2:30. It should be a good match.

Most of the girls who go out for Varsity are pretty serious about it. And then there are those who want things to be handed to them. What would you think of a girl who went to Varsity just for the points and then tried to leave as soon as possible? That's all' right, she knows I'm kidding. Don't you, Betty?

Beard Exhibits European Art

"European Watercolors and Drawings" is the title for the October art exhibit in the Fine Arts Center. There are 103 pen, pencil and watercolor drawings done by Richard E. Beard, instructor in art, while in Europe this past summer. Most of the drawings were done on a commission basis. On the average, he did three a day, each taking approximately a half-hour.

There is at least one example from every country visited, such as Belgium, Holland, England and Spain, but the majority of the drawings were made in Italy and France. The main subjects used were cathedrals and characteristic scenes of the countries. Many artistic techniques were used and experimented with, the type used governed by the subject.

There are a great variety of drawings that should appeal to most people. Shown are conventional, realistic, picturesque drawings and many other kinds.

At the opening of the exhibit last Tuesday night, Beard discussed and commented on his work.

FAC Music Listening Hours Announced

Students may listen to records in the FAC music library each afternoon, Monday through Friday, from 2:30 to 4:20.

Listening rooms are located behind the library room. Jim Laster is record librarian.

Athenians To Present Bainonian Program

Bainonian will be presented with a program by members of Athenian tonight, at 6:15 in Bartlett auditorium.

All Bainonian members are urged to attend.

Bainonian held its annual formal initiation Saturday evening at 6:15, October 4, on Willard House lawn. Approximately 70 freshmen and transfer girls gathered in a candlelight service centered around the Bainonian symbols of love and fellowship. Mary Virginia Ferguson, president, served as hostess and explained the ideals of the society to the new girls.

All old and new members divided into their respective chapters in order to elect a chairman and treasurer. These different chapters, twelve in all, will work together as a unit in planning all activities of the coming year. After the program, refreshments of punch and cookies were served by the old members of Tau chapter. This formal initiation of Bainonian was brought to a close by the singing of the Bainonian song by all the members.

'NY Times' Microfilms Available In Library

The library now has available the "New York Times" on microfilm for the years 1952 and 1953. Anyone wishing to use them can view the microfilms through the Recordak projector which the library got last year.

Faculty members who wish to learn to operate the machine are asked to come in for instruction. Students may use it with the help of the librarian in charge.

Inter-Racial Planning Committee Meets

Maryville College campus was the scene of a meeting of the Planning Committee of the Inter-Racial Summer Leadership Training School of the South, on Tuesday, Sept. 29. The all-day meetings were held in the Fine Arts Center.

Some 12 members of the inter-racial committee, representatives of four synods of the Presbytery, were expected for the meeting, according to College President Ralph W. Lloyd.

Jointly conducted by the Presbyterian boards of Christian Education and National Missions, the meeting had as its purpose to determine the programs for the summer training school. Next summer will mark the fourth year of the school's convention on the Maryville College campus.

Answering the phone and entertaining visitors also occupy a great deal of her time. "I'm looking forward to the day when Carnegie gets an intercom system or the boys buy me a megaphone."

Books, Plays, and Concerts

Reading good books is one of Mom's favorite pastimes. Also high on her popularity list are plays and concerts. "I'm looking forward to Charles Laughton. I only wish we could have more programs like that."

Whether she is calling up to find out what's on at the movie or heating a hot water bottle for your stomach ache, her jovial spirit and fine sense of humor show through, and althought we don't say "thanks" very often we all know that Carnegie Hall just wouldn't be Carnegie Hall without Mom.

vania Dutch — I think); why I surely should be able to find a topic here. October has a wealth of subjects come to think of it. Homecoming will be here in two weeks. Ah, Homecoming, with all the returning alumni, peering into their old rooms of which we are now the proud (?) possessors, and stating that "this was our old room —the things you've done to it— we're amazed." Now there's two ways the latter part of that statement could be taken and I'm never quite sure just what they mean, whether we've made it better or worse. Very confusing. And the night of the big game and they're all out cheering for ye old alma mater. It brings a tear to my eye, maybe even two, when I think that someday I'll be back as an alumna, rooting the team on to victory— that is if I ever graduate. And the Homecoming floats and the big parade uptown, after which everybody who works on the floats collapses from sheer exhaustion. So much for wishful thinking. On with the search for a topic for my feature. Hallowe'en comes in October. Now there's a thought.

What we need are some good old-fashioned ghosts, witches and goblins to help us along with the Horror Show. Maybe we could have an announcement put out by "Dragnet" calling all witches ("Ma'am" of course), goblins, ghosts and any other interested parties such as dragons who devour young maidens. But if we got a dragon we'd need a St. George to kill him. On second thought, maybe we'd better not include dragons in this invitation because it wouldn't be ethical to invite one and have him come and then be killed in payment for his generous services. And we couldn't afford to hire a St. George anyway!

After Hallowe'en comes November. November—Thanksgiving Thanksgiving—cold weather. Cold weather — December. December—Christmas. Christmas — Christmas vacation. Vacation—only 69 more days.

Sixty-nine more days? That doesn't leave much time. Guess I'd better abandon the search right here and now. I refuse to search for 69 days, and the topic is due today anyway, and besides, I have home work to do!

Homecoming Features Queen, Founders' Day

Ferguson Reigns Over Festivities

By Joe Gilliland

Mary Virginia Ferguson, senior elementary education major from Kingston, will be crowned MC Homecoming Queen tonight at the football game when Maryville meets Newberry College.

Dr. James Proffitt, president of the Maryville College Alumni Association, will crown Miss Ferguson queen.

The queen's attendants are Mary Jim Bevan, senior art major from Whitehaven, and Virginia Smith, senior sociology major from Towson, Md.

Miss Ferguson was elected by the student body in elections held last Friday. She was nominated at a student body meeting on Thursday.

Miss Ferguson is president of Bainonian, a member of Future Teachers of America, was a member of the Daisy Chain in commencement exercises last May, had a lead in the Glee Club's presentation of "The Mikado" last semester, and has been a member of All Girl Choir since she has been at Maryville.

Traditionally the queen's roommate and opponent are chosen to be her attendants—Miss Bevan is the roommate and Miss Smith was her opponent. And they all sit at the same table in the college dining hall.

The queen and her attendants will have a featured place in the homecoming parade this afternoon. In the evening they will be introduced at the alumni banquet which is to be held on the baseball field, and the formal recognition will come just before the football game.

Last year also the president of Bainonian society—LaDonna Baylor—was elected homecoming queen. Attendants in 1952 were Edith McMillan and Mary Ann Hicks.

Moore Clarifies Questionnaires For Council

Wednesday night's Student Council meeting clarified the Chilhowean questionnaires that were circulated in dormitories this week. "They are only for statistical purposes," said Chilhowean editor Carol Moore.

Council president Bill Dartnell asked Miss Moore to make an explanation to stop any possible confusion resulting from the sheets. Miss Moore said the questionnaires were circulated in an effort to "find a typical Maryville College student."

Before Council began actual discussion of business, president Dartnell reminded council members to recall the goals set up at the first of the school year. "It's sometimes wise to remember where you're going," he said. "There has been definite progress," he added.

"We must set council and student government first," said Dartnel in concluding his remarks.

Business Discussion

Most of the discussion centered around a proposal by interested students asking Council to allow students to go outside of Town Night bounds on Tuesday night to attend Westminster Fellowship meetings at New Providence Presbyterian Church.

Clara Joe Minarik read the proposal, which had been tabled from last week's meeting because of lack of time. After much pro and con discussion, council approved the provision with amendments saying that students must go in cars provided by church people and that returning students may be let out within Town Night boundaries and be allowed to walk home.

Naomi Burgos reported that business of optional Town Night and Coke machines had be discussed at Student-Faculty Senate, and that both items were being worked out in committees. She added that the Senate had approved the blood drive and Student Center agreement.

Council voted to apply full penalty of two weeks' suspension of privilege for the one Town Night violation of failure to sign in.

Homecoming Preparation

Bill Van Benthuysen reported that the Homecoming parade was "all set" and that Horace Beckwith was in charge.

Carol Demler told council that nothing new had developed about a social gathering with the executive committee of the faculty. President Dartnell requested her to try to get something definite worked out in the near future.

The blood drive goal of 300 pints was explained by Bill Davis, who said 178 pints went out from the campus last year, and that they were "aiming high" in this year's drive.

Last Week's Meeting

At last week's council meeting, the members heard reports from committees on meeting with the faculty, town night, and the coke machine. Proposals from each of these are not final. Herb White asked for suggestions for administration of Carnegie's coke machine.

Also at last week's meeting, president Dartnell criticized the Echo for reporting Student Council business in detail. "Use general terms, not specific details," he said. Dartnell added that detailed reporting would lead to political "footballs."

The October 14 meeting ran overtime, so Council set a time limit of 9:15 p.m. for adjournment at this week's meeting.

Choir To Present Bach Cantata

Vespers will be a special service this Sunday for the honoring of Reformation Sunday. The Vesper Choir will sing a cantata, "The Lord Is a Sun and Shield" by Bach. It will be as follows: organ prelude, "Wachet auf, Ruft Ansdie Stimme;" chorus, "God the Lord is a Sun and Shield," air, by Carolyn Beaty, alto; chorale, "Thank We all Our God," recitative, by William Cunningham, bass; duet, William Cunningham and Sheila Sutton, soprano; chorale, "Firm in Thy Truth Retain Us;" organ postlude, "Fugue on the Kynie" by Coupein. A final chorale will be by French horns and timpani plus the organ. This cantata was composed for the Leipzig Reformation Festival in 1735.

The speaker of the service will be Ben Cooke of London, England.

Experimentals Plan Shakespeare

Experimental Theatre will present three excerpts from Shakespeare in arena style, November 13, in Bartlett gymnasium.

The first production, The Merchant of Venice, is being directed by Joanne Edwards, a senior English major. The cast consists of Bob Lacing, Ethelyn Cathy, Ken Wilkinson, Don Thiel, Bob Read, and Bob Clark.

Directing Midsummer Night's Dream is Jimmy Shields, a junior drama major. In the cast are Margaret Hannah, Carol Sleight, Elizabeth Enloe, Betty Messer, Anne Buckley, and Edna Mae Stout.

The third production will be a secion of The Taming of the Shrew, directed by Walter Elwood, a senior history major. The cast is Nancy Rideout, George Caldwell, Ray Harley, Annie Bucher and Grace Guider.

Black Retires After 22 Years

Louis A. Black, Director of Maintenance at Maryville College since 1931, retired from active duty on October 1.

In announcing the retirement, President Lloyd lauded Mr. Black's service of 22 years at the College as "capable, unselfish, loyal, and motivated by Christian dedication."

As Director of Maintenance he has been responsible for the general management and supervision of the buildings, grounds, and equipment, for purchases and maintenance budgets.

Black is a native of Canada but all his career has been in the United States and all of it before coming to Maryville was with the YMCA. He began as Boys' Work Secretary, but soon became a General Secretary. He had charge in turn of the YMCA in White Plains, N.Y., North Adams, Mass., Oil City and Butler, Pa., and Wichita, Kan.

During World War II he was in YMCA war work, spending one of the years in England in charge of rest camps there. From Wichita he went to Colorado to serve for four years as Executive Secretary of the Estes Park Association. It was at the end of that period that he accepted the call to Maryville College in 1931.

In 1946 he was married to Miss Susan A. Green, Professor of Biology and Chairman of the Division of Science. In 1950 she retired after 44 years on the faculty. Black reached the Maryville College retirement age some years ago but was asked by the College to continue his work.

He will continue to live at 711 Hillside Avenue just off the campus.

Student Vols To Hear Blakely On Mission Work

Student Volunteers are having as their guest Saturday and Sunday Billie Blakely. She is speaking on Christian missions and their central place today.

Miss Blakely is a recent graduate of the University of California, where she majored in social welfare. She is now looking forward to teaching in India for a three-year term under the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, USA.

She comes to MC now because of Miss Flory, the Fred Hope Fund speaker of October 2. Miss Blakely will be available to discuss Christian vocations and especially candidates for church vocations with groups or in individual interviews. Time and place for these meetings will be announced later.

Writers' Workshop Hears Caldwell, Sutton

Writer's Workshop will again meet this Monday afternoon at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's Classroom. Those taking part in the program will be Peg Fisher criticizing reader George Caldwell, and Jeannine Flori criticizing reader Sheila Sutton.

Dorothy Wells was elected Workshop's representative to Inter-Club Council at the last meeting.

Readings at past meeting were presented by Joanne Edwards and Dorothy Wells on September 28, Nancy Naylor and Sarah Pledger on October 5, Herb White and Jessie Heron on October 12, Jim Kesler and Gene Vogel on October 19; those criticizing were George Caldwell and Arthur Bushing, Herb White and Lyn Kiefer, Carol Moore and Joan Frei, Sheila Sutton and Naomi Burgos, respectively.

Students Asked To Donate Blood

The Red Cross bloodmobile unit will be on the Maryville College campus Friday, November 6, as was recently announced by chairman Bill Davis. The purpose of this blood drive is to provide the much-needed Gamma globulin for our armed forces.

Dormitory students are asked to sign up for a specific time of day at a table set up at mealtimes in Pearsons, and town students may make their appointments at the Student Center. The unit will be operating from 9:30 to 12 and from 1 to 4:30.

Parent's Signature

The legal signature of a parent or guardian is required for all students under 21 who desire to give blood. These releases may be secured at the Personnel Office. Prospective donors are reminded that anyone having had a shot of any type within 10 days previous to November 6 will not be allowed to give blood.

Davis urges all possible donors to offer blood, as the goal for this campus is 300 pints.

Pre-Meds Discuss

"Why did You Choose the Medical Profession?" was the topic of a symposium presented by members of the Pre-Med Club in a meeting held on October 8 in Fayerweather Hall. Those leading in the discussion were Marshall England, Dick Erickson, Don Ford, Allen Grippo, Al Lotito, and Ken Tuck.

A movie on first aid will be shown at their next meeting.

US Gives Awards For Study Abroad

Closing date for Fulbright scholarship competitions is October 31, 1953, it was announced by the president of the Institute of International Education.

United States Government educational exchange grants for graduate study abroad may be applied for this month. Scholarship application blanks are available at the Institute or in the offices of Fulbright advisers.

International Education

The programs under the Fulbright Act and the Buenos Aires Convention (for the Promotion of Inter-American Cultural Relations) are part of the international educational activities of the Department of state. They will give almost 1,000 American citizens the chance to study abroad during the 1954-55 academic year.

Since the establishment of the Fullbright program in 1947, over 2,700 American students have gone abroad under its auspices, and 974 have accepted grants for the current year. Under the older Buenos Aires Convention Program, Latin American countries have each offered awards to one or two Americans a year since the program's beginning in 1937.

Many Countries

Countries where graduate students may study under the Fulbright Program are Australia, Austria, Belgium and Luxembourg, Burma, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, India, Iraq, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, the Union of South Africa, and the United Kingdom.

Special provision is made in the program for Germany for five grants to American graduate students who will serve as English language assistants in secondary schools.

Requirements

Eligibility requirements for these foreign study fellowships are United States citizenship, a college degree or its equivalent at the time the award is to be taken up, knowledge of the language of the country sufficient to carry on the proposed study, and good health.

Fulbright awards are made entierly in the currencies of participating countries abroad. They cover transportation, expenses of a language refresher or orientation course abroad, tuition, books, and maintenance for one academic year.

The Institute of International Education is the agency designated by the Board of Foreign Scholarships to screen applications. Its address is 1 East 67th Street, New York, N. Y.

Judges' Panel Announces Soloists For December 'Messiah' Production

By Gail Purdy

The FAC has released the names of soloists in the forthcoming presentation of the "Messiah."

A panel of five judges from the Music Department selected the following soloists: Joyce Linginfelter, a senior majoring in piano, to sing the soprano air—"Come Unto Him;" Sally Butts, a junior majoring in education, to sing the soprano air—"Rejoice Greatly O Daughter of Zion;" Sheila Sutton, a junior majoring in voice, to sing the soprano air—"I Know That My Redeemer Liveth;" Martha Freeny, a junior majoring in elementary education, to sing the soprano recitatives—"There Were Shepherds Abiding In the Field" and "And The Angel Said Unto Them;" Myrna Ginaven, a sophomore majoring in piano, to sing the soprano ariosos—"And Lo The Angel of The Lord Came Upon Them" and "And Suddenly There Was With The Angel;"

Murphy, Kinsinger

Elizabeth Murphy, a sophomore majoring in physical education, to sing the alto recitative—"Then Shall The Eyes of The Blind Be Opened" and the air—"He Shall Feed His Flock;" Lora Kinsinger, a senior majoring in English, to sing the alto recitative—"Behold A Virgin Shall Conceive and Bear A Son" and the air—"O Thou Who Tellest Good Tidings to Zion;"

Beatty, Hickman

Carolyn Beatty, a senior majoring in home economics, to sing the alto air—"He Was Despised and Rejected of Men;" Floyd Hickman, a junior majoring in voice, to sing the tenor arioso—"Comfort Ye My People," and the recitative "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart;"

Tedford, Morse

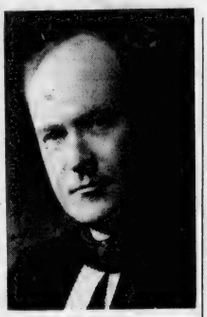
Sidney Tedford, a freshman majoring in music, to sing the tenor air—"Behold and See If There Be Any Sorrow" and the air—"Every Valley Shall Be Exalted;" Richard Morse, a sophomore majoring in voice, to sing the bass recitative—"Thus Saith The Lord of Hosts," and the air—"But Who May Abide The Day of His Coming;"

Howell, Cunningham

William Howell, a sophomore majoring in biology, to sing the bass recitative— "For Behold Darkness Shall Cover The Earth," and the air—"The People That Walked In Darkness;" and William Cunningham, a junior majoring in voice, to sing the bass air—"Why Do The Nations So Furiously Rage Together."

The judges were Edrie Sellick, Jane Johnson, Mrs. Kenneth P. Johnson, James Bloy, and Harry Harter. Ralph Moore also judged the men's voices.

Students and Town People



There are 250 college students and town people participating in the chorus. The three college choral groups (Vesper Choir, Women's Choir, and Men's Glee Club) are included in the chorus, which rehearses every Monday evening. There are still a few openings for basses and tenors.

Accompanying the chorus is pianist, Miss Garnet Manges, who has done so for the past 20 years.

The orchestra under the direction of Ralph Moore is also rehearsing on Monday evenings.

The 21st annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" at Maryville College will be held in the Alumni Gym Sunday, December 6, at 3 p.m.

Elson Speaks At Chapel Program

DR. ELSON

—Courtesy Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times.

By Walter Elwood

Today marked the twenty-first annual celebration of Founders' Day at Maryville College. The services this morning in chapel signified the beginning of the Homecoming week-end.

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd presided and introduced the main speaker, Edward L. R. Elson.

Dr. Elson's address was entitled "The Recovery of Our Spiritual Foundations." Others who participated in the ceremony were J. Hayden Laster, invocation, Judge Houston, responsive reading, James L. Getaz, scripture lesson, and Joe C. Gamble, prayer.

Greetings were extended by James Proffitt, President of the Maryville College Alumni Association. Deans McClelland and Hunter read the announcements.

Choir Sings

The Vesper Choir under the direction of Harry Harter sang two anthems, one of them "Father Most Holy" by Crverger-Christiansen. The baritone solo was sung by Dick Morse, sophomore voice major from Canton, N.C. The second selection was Norman Lockwood's "Hosanna".

Ike's Pastor

Dr. Elson is the pastor of the National Presbyterian Church of Washington, D.C. His congregation includes such notables as President Eisenhower, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Dr. Elson is a member of the Board of Directors of Maryville College and will attend the Board meeting on Friday and Saturday. From Maryville he will go to Dallas, Texas, where on Sunday he will speak to an audience of 50,000 or more in the Cotton Bowl, at the closing service connected with the Texas State Fair.

Varied Activities

Other activities of the day include a parade, an Alumni Association barbecue, and the game tonight, where the queen will be crowned.

The annual Homecoming parade through town will begin at 2:45, under the direction of Horace Beckwith. Most Maryville organizations will have floats in the parade, in which Queen Mary Virginia Ferguson will appear.

Alumni Barbecue

The annual alumni barbecue will be held at 5:45 on the baseball field. Last year over 450 former students attended the get-together.

Dr. James Proffitt, '38, president of the Alumni Association, will take part in crowning the queen and will speak over the radio briefly between halves at the game tonight.

Homecoming Dance

The Homecoming Dance will be held tonight immediately after the football game in the Alumni Gym until 11:45 p.m. Activity cards are required as admission. The dance is sponsored by the Women's M Club. Students' off-campus guests must have tickets from Miss Massey. All alumni are invited to attend.

Experimentals To Stage 'Sleep Of Prisoners'

"Sleep of Prisoners," the Experimental Theater's first play of the year, will be presented Friday night at 8 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Christopher Fry, author of "The Lady's Not for Burning," wrote this play, which is about four war prisoners who are locked in a church.

An unusual feature about the drama is the treatment of the sequences, in which lighting is used to give an expressionistic effect.

As has been announced, the play is being directed by George Caldwell, senior drama major.

The four soldiers are played by Bill Deerfield, Herb Catlin, Arthur Fryer, and George Hall.

Directors Gather For Fall Meeting

The Fall meeting of the Board of Directors of Maryville College, which is being held on the campus, began on Friday, October 23, and continues through today. Sessions were held on Friday morning, afternoon, and evening. This morning's session adjourned in time to take part in the Founder's Day exercises at 10:45 a.m.

The Board of Directors is composed of 36 men and women, living in Tennessee and 13 other states. The Chairman of the Board is Judge Samuel O. Houston of Knoxville. The Recorder (secretary) of the Board is Joe C. Gamble of Maryville. The Vice Chairman is Frank M. Cross of Meridian, Miss.

The business sessions on Friday were held in the Fine Arts Center. The business session today took place at the President's home. A reception was held at 9:30 p.m. Friday for the faculty and staff to meet the Directors.

Education Association To Meet At U-T

"Every School a Better School" is the theme of the forty-ninth annual convention of the East Tennessee Education Association, which will be held next Thursday and Friday at the University of Tennessee.

Several of faculty are expecting to attend some of the sessions. President Lloyd will speak Thursday evening to a group of secondary school principals on the topic, "Things That Make a School." Dean McClelland is secretary of the session on "Guidance and Personnel." Mrs. Edith Largen, instructor in physical education, is secretary of the session on "Health, Physical Education and Recreation." Dr. Briggs, professor of psychology and education, is a members of the research committee of ETEA.

Music Ed To Hear Panel

Two new officers were elected in an important meeting of the Music Ed Club held on Thursday evening, October 15. Yvonne Huskey, elected treasurer, and Ginny Ginaven, appointed publicity chairman, are now serving in their respective offices along with other officers previously elected.

As announced, the next meeting will be held the evening of October 29 at 6:45 in the FAC lounge. A panel consisting of Ginny Givanen, Margaret Potts, and Annette Faust will present the topic "Music Theory".

Welcome Back

At this time of year it becomes customary once again to welcome back alumni and friends who gather here for Homecoming. We realize this has been said before, but we do wish to tell you that we're glad to have you here.

Changes have taken place on campus, and perhaps the most obvious one is the new chapel, which is now in process of construction. Significant in its own way is the Homecoming dance, which was held for the first time last year as the initial experiment in having a dance after a football game.

You will notice perhaps more changes than we do, since you have been away for a period of time, but you will find that Maryville is still the same friendly place you knew.

As you look about the campus and enter into the events that are going on, we want you to know that you are welcome once more.

Parliamentary Procedure

Many students are distressed at the growing carelessness with which the business meetings of the various organizations on campus are being handled. If you have attended any such meetings within the last few weeks you have undoubtedly heard a chairman's statements like the following:

"The house committee met this week and decided on this sum for our house dues. Eight cents of each quarter go for the WSGA picture in the yearbook."

"Someone has suggested that we write a thank-you note to this family. That sounds like a good idea, doesn't it? Will the secretary please take care of this matter?"

"Mary has been nominated to be our represeentative. Are there any further nominations? Then do I hear a motion that the nominations be closed? Second? All in favor? Opposed? Then Mary will be our representative."

The social committee suggests that we have a float in the parade. All in favor signify by saying aye."

To be sure, a great many of such instances are strictly technical errors of small importance. There have been, however, many complaints to the effect that our organizations are not powerful enough or do not truly represent individual sentiment in their action. Why, then, do we not accept our opportunity to conduct our meetings democratically by adherance to the plan of parliamentary procedure?

The student council is interested in the promotion of properly conducted business meetings on campus. It is its hope that every student council member will be able to own a copy of Robert's Rules of Order in its revised form, and will become familiar with it. Perhaps it will be possible to reprint the simplified rules for parliamentary procedure once issued through the English department, in order that every student will be able to assist in keeping our organizations democratic.

Each person who wishes to see MC governed in an adult manner should be willing to learn these fundamental procedures. Here is one very important way in which we can assert ourselves individually and collectively and prove ourselves capable of mature self-government.

Scots & Soda

By Shirley Armstrong and Sadie Davis

Even though they are outrated ten to one (seems that way to us), one of, or should we say "the" most important feature of any campus is its "men." Men??? They come in all sizes and shapes . .. and, of course, we love to "rate" these characters . . . so, we're here to ask you "Who's Your Man?"

First, we give you the All-Around Big Wheel, busy constantly, feels it's his duty to serve when called. His personal philosophy is to be "well-rounded in an over-average way." He runs the student organizations, acts as social chairman of his society, and fits in a little base-ball every spring. He wears what one should wear at college. He likes button-down collars, and enjoys bull-sessions concerning Marilyn Monroe. He's just an average guy who wants to get along in the world, i.e., thirty-five thousand dollars a year. The Eventual Wife must fit in with his family, be a good wife, mother and community worker. He'll settle down at twenty-eight, when he can afford his "average life." Meanwhile, he'll give all the gals a break . . . (thus preventing adhesive involvement with any of them).

Next you will find the Intellectual in the back booth of the Grill. He's long, undernourished, uncomfortable. Sitting on the edge of his spine, he indulges in his favorite pastime: reflecting on the passing scene with carefully selected associates, pipe in hand, black coffee on the table (more daring ones order black tea). This alleviates conventional discomforts like dating, extracurric activities and remembering how long it's been since his clothes were dry-cleaned. His topics of conversation include politics, what's wrong with Plato or Hegel, what's right with Plato and Hegel, or (if the atmosphere is gay) why Pogo didn't run for president. His female companion, a carefully preserved habit, must like foreign movies (not that they ever come to Maryville,) back booths and black coffee, approve sex (objectively), never mention his father's business, that he needs a haircut, or that she'd enjoy a picnic. He'll always be sure to know what's wrong with the world . . . never dirty his hands in it if he can help it.

But the most important, or so he thinks, is the Gallant, who especially flourishes on all southern campuses (and MC is southern. . . . or is it?), where he's backed up by indestructible tradition of courtesy to the womenfolk, moonlight, camellias, convertibles and bourbon (this could be UT). He's never forgotten (his father never let him) that a Southern gentleman is every bit as charmin' as a rare book. He'll tell you, just to assure you that the world hasn't gone completely to the dogs, that chivalry is alive and kicking. "Women are meant to be the softer sex," he soothes ("Just lean on me, honey"). He's very careful about his pastel cashmeres, his well-cut cords and flannels, his hand-knit argyles, and his hair. Campus life is a rosy haze of social activities, extracurric, and occasional study . . . but he gives precedence to the flower of Southern feminity, "the sweetest, most natural gyuls."

And . . . we could go on and on . . . but, maybe we'd better hush whiel we can! Could be you all aren't agreeing with us on this subject. . . . anyhow, please don't blame us, fellows . . . you brought it on yourselves!

P.S. We don't want any dates anyhow!!!

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Faith Nollner

VOICES, and strange ones at that have recently been heard at the Fine Arts Center. If you have heard and wondered, perhaps we can help solve your mystery. Last week at the student recital, the faculty crashed the party with a very novel innovation. Ten members of the music faculty presented Ernst Toch's "Fugue aus Geprathie". Seems that the basis for it all was rhythm, rather than tone, because the whole thing was spoken. There were four parts to it and as they all chimed in with varying sections of the world such as Mississippi, Nagasaki, Athens, Rhatiphur, Mexico, and so on, it began to sound like a high-class round. The entire work consisted solely of geographical sections, with a few words of German thrown in to keep the rhythm straight. They do say that this is an untried field, in music (?); I could add at Maryville, too. And we liked it.

Don't let that MASK fool you! It's jus' lil ol' me, your roving book critic, or reviewer, if you prefer.

While looking through the New Book list, I didn't come across anything recent, but there are some from a few weeks back that you might have missed. One that really impressed me was Theodore O. Wedel's "The Christianity of Main Street." He expresses his belief that man is growing away from the faith of his fathers. We are coming to "a belief in ideals not in creeds, a faith in man, not in God". Here's food for thought.

Costain has done it again! For those of you who like your history dusted off and freshened up, try "The Magnificent Century". It is the second in a sequence of books which will make up "The Pageant of England." Covering the long reign of King Henry III from 1269-1272, it's a real thriller!

From past history to present history - in - the - making, you will find "The Bridges At Toko-Ri" by James A. Michener. This is a novel that will be called one of the masterpieces of war literature. Its heroes are the men of courage, skill, and initiative who were engaged in the war in Korea. Specifically, it is the story of the men of a naval task force operating in icy Korean waters with a vital mission to perform. This mission? Read on and you will find out what it was and how they carried it out.

Since my crystal ball is a little SHADOWY, it's a trifle hard to predict the movies for next week. The crystal balls down at the Park and Capitol aren't working so well either. Finally, through a heavy mist I managed to discern the (bad, glad) tidings of Coming Events at the Park. On Monday and Tuesday, those of you who care to risk it will see "The Magnetic Monster" with Richard Carlson. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, you can see Scott Brady, David Bryana, and Vera Raulston in "Perilous Journey". But a veil is drawn between me and the attractions-to-be at the Capitol. If anybody knows how to fix crystal balls, please apply to this column.

Writer Confused By Conflicting Theories Taught In Classes

By Faith Nollner

Since I've entered into that joyous state of being one of those much-vaunted coeds at an institution of higher learning, I've come to only one conclusion: I'm confused! We will all take time out while my friends and acquaintances chortle with satisfaction because I'm finally admitting it. Yes, I do admit it! I'm one of those mixed-up kids, not to say crazy. The fact is, that I feel like a Studebaker—I don't know whether I'm coming or going. (Old joke, corn).

Confusion

The main reason that I'm in this bewildered condition is that there is a serious discrepancy in the courses which this college offers, and I'm here to complain. Let me give you just one staggering example. In the morning I drag myself to philosophy (which I'm sure would be a very nice course if it didn't happen so early in the morning). Anyway, I go in and prepare to continue my sleep when somebody comes across with the idea that Thales, or some kid like that, thought that everything was made out of fire. Well, I just don't believe it. But finally they convince me that it's so. The next day I go back and by that time, they've changed their minds and declared that everything is made out of water. By this time I'm too exhausted to argue with them, and I say o. k., so everything is made out of water. I've got my mind stretched around this and settled down again by the time I go to biology and what do they do? They tell me that everything is made out of protoplasm! Now my question is this: Is protoplasm another word for ashes (which is bound to be the result when you mix fire and water) or are the biology and philosophy departments trying to fox

Poetically Speaking

Lost Love

In losing thee, my soul did strive
Too much, my love, to keep alive
The blessed image of they face,
Thy tender voice, thy quiet grace,
And now the vision grows as dim
As the last soft note of a vesper hymn
That rising 'mid the fading light
Is borne away on the wings of night,
For as the hymn doth need, to live
A voice that of itself will give,
This vision that I scarce can see
Doth find its source of life in thee,
And love that from thy soul divine
Canst flow and be a part of mine,
Or else my love, 'twill die and be
A thing forever lost to me.

Newberry College Indians

Meeting the Scots tonight on Honaker Field will be an unfamiliar name to this area—Newberry College of Newberry, South Carolina. But this stranger brings to us a top brand of football and are favored in everyone's book to grab their third win of the season.

The Scarlet and Grey clad Indians, under the guidance of Coach Harvey Kirkland, are a member of the Little Three South Carolina Conference and last week upset conference foe Wofford, 7-6. Their only loss of the season came at the hands of Furman (a school three times their size and a member of the Southern Conference, 33-0, in their first game.) Maryville has a larger enrollment than Newberry, but the Indian gridders are "hand picked" and play a slate of tougher competition than the Scots.

Coach Kirkland runs his boys out of the split T formation and has a complete starting line up of veterans to lead the attack. The Indians' starting line averages 210 lbs. thanks to one boy—right tackle Grover Davis—who tips the scales at 26 6lbs., the only 200 pounder on the first line. Maryville's heaviest starting front wall averages 196 lbs., three of them 200 pounders. To date the Newberry line has been their strong point, especially on defense for it held Furman scoreless for the first 28 minutes and then they scored vie the airways. Their running attack is supposedly tops over their aerial game, but they have not shown a real offensive threat in the games of '53, winning them by scores of 7-6 and 14-2 while not scoring against Furman. Of course that was against strong opposition. The heaviest man in the starting Indian backfield is Fullback Stan Bessinger at 170 lbs.

Honaker Field should be full of football thrills tonight. Pregame rumors give the Indians a three touchdown edge, but football has become a game of upsets which means anything can happen in the Scot-Indian contest.

An Amazing Win?

With only 40 seconds remaining on the Honaker Field clock, lanky end Jim Saunders intercepted a wayward pass and toted it to within seven yards of the goal line. The very next play he completed his hero's role by hauling in a Clarence Shepard pass to put the Scotties six points ahead of the East Tennessee State Buccaneers and enable a 26-20 upset win for Maryville. Amazement filled the stands and drifted around for several days afterward.

Dr. Lloyd was overly exuberant when he stalked into the Scot dressing room following the game to congratulate the coaches and players. There were very few Maryville students that were not at least a little surprised, but there are always the optimistic counsellors who never give up and this was one case that they were right. Even the coaches were being more than a little pessimistic about the outcome of grid battle. Even the college alumni were quite jubilant over the "stunning" victory and showed their graciousness towards the team.

Probably more taken back by the game results than anyone else were the ETS students and their strong supporters in Johnson City. Last year Maryville seemed a pushover for the Bucs in their annual Homecoming classic, losing 33-13. It seems they were anticipating a similar occurrence this season, but times have changed. One thing is for certain—the Scots more than surprised the ETS team as well as their fans for the Bucs certainly were a little over-confident when they first trotted gallantly onto Honaker Field. At halftime, they were a little puzzled. When the final gun sounded, they were stunned amid the cheers of Maryville rooters.

This corner picked a 20-13 Buccaneer win and other corners predicted a similar outcome, but some people went as far as to predict a positive four touchdown win for ETS. Someone was a little off!

One group of Maryvillains failed to voice an opinion and that was the Highlander gridders. They just silently went about their daily chores Saturday morning and afternoon, but that evening, playing together excellently on offese and defense, the Scots out-charged, out-fought, and out-ran the Bucs to cop the win. Yet, everyone was astounded by the win. Could be some people underestimate the Scots, but let's hope they do not over-estimate them.

East Tennessee had been upset twice before the Maryville game which makes it even worse on their part. Coach Star Wood was interviewed the following week and said that his boys just didn't play as hard as they were capable, that Maryville was really fired up and that the Scots played a very good game—all contributing to the outcome.

Whistle Happy?

Reports came floating back from the Emory & Henry game last week that the referee, head linesman and field judge were a bit too free with their whistles to please the Maryville interests. From several good sources it was said that the Scots put the ball over the goal line three times when they were inside the four-yard line, but everyone but the linesman and referee saw it.

This seems very logical for I, as well as many others, was wondering why in the world the Scots couldn't score from the 2-inch line. Well, people, it looks as fi we got our answer. It certainly appears that at least one of the three viewing officials would have detected the score. Maybe someone ought to send them a copy of "Three Blind Mice?"

Clarence Paces Scots

Stocky Clarence Shepard, the younger of the Scot footballing Shepard brothers, has thus far provided the Orange and Garnet with their only formidable scoring punch of the '53 season. Not only is his running an invaluable asset, but his punting and passing are also important to Honaker's forces.

To date, the versatile tailback has crossed the enemy goal lines for 36 points and passed for six more, the game-winning TD against the East Tennessee State Buccaneers. The Jacksnoville State (0-0) and the Emory & Henry games (7-0) are the only ones Clarence has failed to hit paydirt for the Scots. His punting is on an average of about 40 yards per try, one boot going 77 yards to the oppsition's 4-yard stripe. He has often put the enemy in the hole with his boots.

In the Emory & Henry contest last week, Clarence was hit hard in the first period and wasn't his usual self the remainder of the game. There was one instance when Shep walked into the Wasp secondary after a play while the Scots were huddling in their own backfield. It appears that all opposing teams hit Clarence with more manpower and harder than any other ball carrier. This is always the case with a team's top performer.

At the rate the Scot tailback has been going, he has an excellent chance to fill the empty spot left by Jimmy Campbell on the '53 Little All-American squad or possibly better it. Campbell received honorable mention honors for his excellent performance last year mainly as safety man.

Highlanders Battle Indians Tonite

Newberry Top Choice In Homecoming Classic

By Bob Jackson

Seeking to make this a successful Homecoming by avenging last week's setback, the Maryville College Highlanders butt heads with the powerful Newberry College team from Newberry, South Carolina, tonight, 8 o'clock, on Honaker Field to climax the annual Maryville Homecoming festivities.

Newberry is a heavy favorite to cop the grid battle this eve, but will meet a determined and victory hungry Scot eleven who suffered their first loss of the season last week at the hands of Emory & Henry, 7-0. In the meantime, Newberry was winning over Wofford, 7-6, in a nip-and-tuck scrap.

The South Carolinaians will enter the game boasting a record of two wins and one loss while the Scots try for their fourth win in six outings, having one loss and one tie. Newberry's only loss came at the hands of Furman in their first game of the season and have been progressing since with each game.

Orange and Garnet Lose to Wasps 7-0

A rock-ribbed defensive line and a fast hard-running backfield were the necessary elements to give a hard fighting Emory and Henry team an upset victory over a previously unbeaten Orange and Garnet squad.

Striking quickly midway in the first quarter the Wasps marched eighty-one yards in six plays for the touchdown, split the uprights for the extra point, and the evening's scoring was completed. The march was climaxed by an eight yard sprint around the Scot's right end by Cokie Kitts into the end zone for the T.D. It should be mentioned, to the credit of the Maryville line headed up by Bill Wheatley, Bob Berrong and Roy Hayes, that this was the only time E.&H. was able to pass the Highlanders' thirty-five yard stripe.

Maryville just could not seem to deliver the necessary punch needed to score, when they had driven close to pay dirt. No less than six different occasions were the Scots within twenty-five yards of touchdown land, but each time the offensive spark would sputter and go out.

The Orange and Garnet had their first big chance to score in the opening minutes of the first quarter, when Bill Strickland recovered a fumble on the Wasps' twenty-seven yard line. After Clarence Shepard and Wayne Newman had tried unsuccessfully to make yardage on the ground, Clarence attempted to hit brother Ken in the endzone, but the pass fell incomplete, and Emory and Henry took over on downs.

The next Maryville opportunity came late in the first half, when some fine running by Flash Harris and Buddy White put the ball on the enemy four with a first down and goal to go. Two shots at the line put the ball on the two and on the next play Clarence smashed into one melee, bounced off, and spun into the endzone for what looked like a score, but a fast whistle had stopped the play before the TD was made. Again, on fourth down the Scots' tailback hurled himself up and this time over the pile for what proved to be the break of the game, because the ball was inches short. On this series of downs it is only right to pay tribute to a gallant Wasp line, who were no less than terrific.

Several times during the second half the Highlanders started to move only to be halted by bad breaks. Maryville players, who deserve special mention are Clarence Shepard, who continued to play despite an injury on the first scrimmage play, Bill Wheatley, who played his finest game of the season, Earl Lawson, who added to his usual fine kicking ability, showed promise of blossoming into a fine ballcarrier, and Flash Hraris and Buddy White who did some excellent running.

Scots Edge ETS

East Tennessee State's Buccaneers of Johnson City trotted into Honaker Field on the evening of October 10 with a rather confident swing to their motions after a resounding victory the week before, but 60 football-minutes later the Bucs dazedly walked off the field, beaten by a fired up Scottie eleven, 26-20.

Stringbean end Jim Saunders played the hero's role for the Scots by intercepting a Buc pass with 45 second remaining and returned it to the 7-yard stripe. Tailback Clarence Shepard flipped the lanky end the winning TD pass on the very next play to complete the story-book climax. Buddy White missed the conversion, but Maryville won with the six.

Again it was the sparkling play of Clarence Shepard plus the consistent line plunges by fullback Wayne Newman that paced the Scots. Shepard talied the first two of the Highlanders' touchdowns on two—and one-yard leaps, set up by Newman plunges. Captain Keny Shepard and White added the two extra-point boots while Jimmy "Flash" Harris cracked the Buc line from 2 yards out with the final Scot six-pointer of the first half.

East Tennessee opened the scoring parade by reaching pay dirt on their first set of offensive plays. Halfback Foster cut through the right side fo the line and raced 68 yards for the TD, but the kick was wide. This was soon matched by Maryville with C. Shepard's first score, set up by a 40-yard reverse jaunt by Captain Keny.

In the early minutes of the second quarter, the Scots made it 14-6, regards of C. Shepard and White. Paced by Foster, Wilson and Morrison, the Bucs readily duplicated it with a Wilson TD pass. Harris added his marker in the waning minutes, but the conversion was missed. ETS took to the airways, and moved the ball from their 30 to the Scot 3 on three passes. With 40 seconds remaining in the half, Wilson hit Morrison in the end zone, Morrison booted and the half ended, Score: 20-20.

Scots Play Vols JV To Support Band

Coaches Lombe Honaker and J. D. Davis have scheduled a game with the University of Tennessee Baby Vols for the open date of October 31 here on Honaker Field. The main reason for the scheduling of this game is to help the band with their funds for the new marching uniforms.

Last year's post season game with Tennessee Wesleyan provided ample results, but most of the gate went to the visiting gridders for their participation. The uniforms will be sent by air express for the purpose of having them for this benefit game with the Vols.

In 1896 it was against the rules for Maryville students to travel by train on Sunday.

Intramurals....

By Tom Paton

As the intramural football season draws to a close the field of contenders has been narrowed and the race for the title is a close one. The leaders at this time are the Scotties, Fleetfeet, Bombers and Rebels. The ties in recent games have proved the closeness of the race.

On Monday, Oct. 12, the Rebels and the Bombers played to a scoreless tie, neither team being able to crack the others' defense. Tuesday saw the Fleetfeet and the Frosh tie, 7-7. Jim Heddon and Charlie Partee figured in the Fleetfeet scoring while Bill Dent and Jim Conklin scored for the Frosh. In the second game the Scotties beat the Athenian team, 19-7, Beckwith and Paton scoring for the winners while Jim Demer got the lone tally for the losers. The next day the Highlanders, led by Harry McCall, downed the Pre-Mins, 6-0. The Pre-Mins dropped another game on Thursday, losing to Athenian, 19-0. The Athenian squad was led to victory by Al Grippo, Jim Cummings and Dave Williams, who each tallied once. In the second game the Bombers edged the Fleetfeet, 7-2. On Friday the Highlanders surprised the Rebls by holding them to a 0-0 tie.

This week's activity got underway Monday with two ties. In the first contest the Pre-Mins and the Bombers played to a 6-6 deadlock. Robinson scoring for the Pre-Mins and Cummings for the Bombers. In the second the Rebels and the Scotties tied, 7-7. The Scotties scored early as Bob Nier caught a Beckwith pass in the end zone, and another pass accounted for the extra point. The Rebels caught up in the fourth quarter as two Matthews-to-Abbott passes were good for a touchdown and extra point. On Tuesday Athenian handed the Highlanders a 6-0 defeat for their second victory of the year. The second game saw the Scotties, sparked by the running and passing of Beckwith, defeat the Frosh 28-0. Beckwith passed twice to Johnston, once to Rorex and ran for a touchdown to account for the Scottie scores. On Wednesday the Highlanders defeated the Frosh, 7-6, as McCall passes connected with Marshall England and Dock Jennings for the touchdown and extra point. The Frosh tallied when Mert Hall took a pass and outdistanced the Highlander defenders on a long dash for a touchdown. Another

Bridge, switch, reverse, takedown, pin; these are all words which will become familiar to a number of men in the next couple of weeks. This all means the start of wrestling season. Under the able leadership of Captain Tom Bugenhagen the squad is beginning the long hard task of getting into shape. Right now the men are learning basic holds and positions.

The old men out include Bob Jackson, Bueford Miller, Jim Demer, Rod Patten, Bob Buchanan and Tom Bugenhagen. Kenny Shepard and Flash Harris are out for football and will join the squad in a few weeks. New faces include Ron Morley, Jerry Waters, Joel Fort, Bob Finertie, Gene Garren, Dick Henderson, Ray Williams and Winston Davis. Maryville's matmen finished with a fine 6-3 record last year and with four lettermen back wil ltry for another winning season.

BASKETBALL

Swish!

Monday afternoon saw the start of the basketball season at Maryville as tryouts began. Coach Johnson is running things at the Alumni Gym until football season ends and Coach Honaker returns.

Old faces at the opening season include Charlie Partee, Lynn Sexton, Dick Abbott, George Henry, Bob Johnston, Jack Crouch, and Bob Patterson. There are some hoopmen who are also out for football and will not be attending practice until football season is over. These men include Earl Lawson, Bob DeLozier, LeRoy Gooden, Jim Saunders, Jack Keny and Bob Shelton.

In addition to the old men there is a large group of potential stars out. Although it is too early to tell yet it seems as if a number of these boys will play ball this year.

Harriers Tie, Lose; Matmen Train

The Highland harriers journeyed to Davidson, N. C. on Friday, October 9, and tied Davidson College 28-28. The Scots took 6 out of the first 10 places which forced Davidson to count their eleventh man to give Maryville a tie.

Homer Sparks of Davidson broke the tape first in the fast time of 22:18. Close on his heals came Scotties Homer Rickabaugh in 22:44 and A. C. McWilliams in 22:57. Floyd Feiny of Davidson took fourth, Andy Turner of Davidson, Scot Sonny Shackelford, Dick Lovette of Davidson finishing up fifth, sixth, and seventh respectively. Three Scotties — Rod McMillan, Paul Payne, and Ed Drum — took eighth, ninth, and

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Go bury your head in the sand," shrieked Sheedy's chick. You'll never put a wing on my finger until you start using Wildroot Cream-Oil on that messy hair. It's America's favorite hair tonic. Keeps hair combed without any trace of greasiness. Removes goose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Paul looked so good the very fuzz time he used Wildroot Cream-Oil, his pigeon egged him on until he proposed. So why don't you buy a bottle or tube today at any toilet goods counter. And necks time you have a haircut, ask for Wildroot Cream-Oil on your hair. Then no gal will ever give you the bird.

Disc Club Hears Records

Adlai Boyd played and explained Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" in D minor ("Choral"), found in the Fine Arts Center Library, at the regular meeting of the Disc Club Thursday evening, October 22.

Members of the club take turns playing and explaining records. At a previous meeting Miss MacMillan told the story and played the recording of Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" starring Rise Stevens and Robert Merrill.

Records are availabel in the F. A. C. Library to anyone from 2:30-4:30 every afternoon and at other times at special request.

The next regular meeting will be held Thursday evening, November 12. Anyone and everyone is welcome to come and listen in at any meeting.

Marshmallow Roast Held

Last Saturday night the four societies on the campus joined together for a social program, which was held in the Alumni Gym. A program of games was presented under the direction of Betty Cutler, Don Moffett, Mary K. Allison, and John Borter. The evening was terminated by group singing and a marshmellow roast around a bonfire on the football field.

Question: Have all you aspiring "M" Clubbers completed at least half your hikes? If not, see Betty Harrill and Nan Spivey. They've done four now and are going to do the remaining two someday, so I know they would be delighted to give you all info on the touchy subject of hiking seven miles in two hours. (note: they've only run it once, though, so aren't up on that topic too well). Also, be sure to fill in the "Do you go to breakfast?" blank with a "yes"—Mrs. QQueener eats breakfast—that's why she's so athletically inclined. Not to change the subject any, but have you ever seen Mrs. Queener do the Hokey-Pokey? It's a show no one should miss in the four years here (just pushing your games class, Mrs. Q.—Honest! .

The Varsity girls have shifted to a new sport already. "Junior" Davis (freshman, no less!) won the aerial darts tournament. She was so good no one would play with her after that so they decided to change to volley ball. Shirley Axley, after getting lots of experience blowing the wee whistle and taking roll, and Joan Herschelman, who told girls how to clean up the amphitheatre (by the way, girls, I hear it looks much better— congratulations!), are assisting Mrs. Queener with the new sport. This tournament is always a good one, so there will be more on the subject before long. I haven't looked over the volleying crew yet so have no report to make.

I'd just like to drop a little advertisement into this article at this time. That is, as you might have already guessed, there's going to be a great parade this afternoon, starting at 2:45, and then tonight the great Maryville Highlanders will honor the Newberry team with a little scuffling on the football field. Following said scuffle on said football field the Women's "M" Club is sponsoring a gigantic dance (no admission!) and, honest, kids, we'd sure like to see all out to all three Homecoming activities. This dance will be good, too, not like that other one. The lights will be dimmer and, believe it or not, there'll be decorations! Don't forget to come—we'll miss you if you don't show up!

THE STRANGEST TABLE

By Mary Moranville

Each one of the tables in Miss Ware's dining hall has its own particular personality, but I truly believe that ours is far the most . . .well, I'll let you supply that at the end of my description.

We began to get unkind looks from the rest of the tables when we all came straggling in at odd hours of the day and night, so we set the usual fine of a penny for each time late to a meal. But this meant nothing to the rich members of our table! Our treasurer is getting rich fast, that is when we pay our debts.

Intellectual Conversation

The novel times we arrive for meals are not the only distinguishing factors of our table, however. The conversations that are carried on are very intellectual and thought-provoking. For instance, just the other day we had a discussion about which way the carriage of the typewriter is pushed at the end of a line. We all preceeded to type on our imaginary typewriters at the table to prove that we were right. Then of course there are the times when there are three conversations going on at one time and we try to connect them—that's a feat in itself.

Small Appetites

The third thing which makes our table different from all the rest is the small appetite of each of us. Our waiter never goes back more than twice for any thing. We just get it from one of the tables around us. We are always very considerate and thoughtful of the waitresses around us in that we finish up any food they have left so that they will not have to take it back to the kitchen. And then there are the times when there is something we particularly like and we send out our scout who goes through the dining hall inquiring at every table with an empty platter and a look of complete starvation. Very often it works too!

Late Goers

Distinguishing us in still another way is the fact that we are always the last to leave. We love each other so much that we cannot bear to separate and therefore it takes us twice as long as any other table to eat. Perhaps you have noticed some of us coming out the door as you go in for the next meal—those times are rare thought. We are usually gone an hour at least before the next meal.

Family Jokes

I could tell you a few of our family jokes here as further proof of my claim, but I am afraid that some of my dear friends and tablemates would not appreciate my revealing intimate facts that might incriminate some of us. However, as a final word I would like to toss in the favorite expression of a member of another table who joins us after every meal, "Put the food in your mouth!"

each other, or is everybody as mixed up as I am?

Classical Knowledge

Which brings me to my second point: What's with this Aeneas cat? To my way of thinking, he's a typically confoosed male-type. For the benefit of ignorant freshmen and stupid upperclassmen who never caught on in the first place, this is what I'm talking about: There was this square name of Aeneas who came over from Troy, where he'd lost his wife, to this real gone burg name of Carthage. Anyways, he's giving it a once-over and he meets this smooth chick, Dido, who is the queen. The minute she digs him she says, "This is the kid for me. It musta been fate," and all those time-honored expressions of love and devotion. So she takes him home to play with. This seems to me to be a pretty soft set-up, but what does Aeneas do? He only stays a coupla years, then he throws some socks and a toothbrush in his ship and sails off Rome-hunting. He finally winds up in Hell, which is where he should of been in the first place. Now the way I look at it, he was the original mixed-up kid. On second thought, maybe he was pretty smart. Seems that his gal-friend, Dido, was also a pyromaniac. She mighta used him for tinder.—But how a man could misplace his wife is beyond me.

Secret Police

Something else I don't understand is how do all the profs know when I'm planning a big weekend? Lately I've been guarding my secret jealously. I have my own diminutive version of the Iron Curtain. The F.B.I. was never more secretive. But somehow the news has leaked out and gone the rounds like the plague (perish the thought). Now I have a book to read, scads of unfinished assignments, and two tests. If anybody knows how they do it, please let me know. I have two theories:

(1) They bribe or torture my roommate.

(2) She's on their side.

Now that I'm in such a black mood, tell me something else: What do you do with a joker who writes things like this and you have to read them just at the time when you have so much to do that you can't even go out on town nite?

"Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee
Jest and youthful jolity. . .
Come and trip it as ye go
On the light fantastic toe . . ."

I'll sit this one out, if you don't mind, I just got back from hiking the loop.

Scots To Play U-T 'B' For Band Benefit

NEW UNIFORMS—Members of the Maryville College Band get some practice on the "Highland Fling" which they will do in their new uniforms which arrived Thursday by air. Here band members Martha Horton, right, from Aiken, S.C., and Darold Johnsonbaugh, Nashville, left, show off the new kilts with drum major Trig Moyer, from Mifflin, Pa. Air Recruiters To Visit Campus

Visiting the campus will be representatives of Flying Training Air Force on Wednesday, November 4 from 10:00 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Carnegie Lobby.

This group of men will be especially interested in meeting members of the senior class. "As many of the seniors are presently considering the various military programs, we would like them to be come cognizant fo the Aviation Cadet Program offered by the United States Air Force," Lt. Miller, team president, explained recently.

This is a program by which a qualified man may undergo approximately twelve months of intensive training as a pilot or observer, and graduate with his silver wings and a commission as a second lieutenant in the Air Force.

Of special interest to men with slightly defective eyesight is the fact that they may be qualified for the Observer Program. If their vision is not more than 20/50 without glasses, and is correctable to 20/20, they could be selected for observer training.

This plan would qualify a cadet graduate as a navigation officer, bombardment officer, or radar officer. Many students do not consider that they would even be allowed to apply for the cadet qualification examinations if they do not have perfect vision, and this is not the case.

In addition to this requirement, men must be between 19 and 26½, be single and agree to remain so until completion of the Cadet training, pass the physical, general knowledge, and coordination examinations offered at Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, Ga.

Members of this visiting team will be interested in informing any student concerning any Air Force program, but wil be particularly interested in speaking to graduating seniors about the Aviation Cadet Program.

FTA To See Movie

Future Teachers of America will meet November 5 in Thaw at 6:45 A movie will be shown and plans for the National Education Week will be discussed. The group will present a chapel program November 12, concerning the NEW and program plans will be made then.

All students interested in FTA are invited to attend.

Westminster Fellowship Plans Future Meeting

Plans for the forthcoming year were discussed at a business meeting of the Westminster Fellowship of the New Providence Presbyterian Church held on Thursday evening, October 29.

The Fellowship called this meeting after Student Council approved a provision allowing interested students to participate in the Tuesday night meetings.

It was decided that the theme will be the Christian witnessing on the college campus.

The first regular meeting will be next Tuesday night, with a panel discussion led by Sue Binnion. There will be planned recreation and refreshments, and the meeting will be over by 8:45.

Those planning to attend are asked to meet in front of Anderson at 7 p.m. All are welcome.

Sigs To See Talent

Alpha Sigma will meet Saturday evening at 6:15 in the Y-rooms, according to John Borter, program chairman. Entertainment will be provided by talented freshmen.

YW To Play Host To State Meeting

Maryville College YWCA will be host to a statewide conference of YWCA next week-end, president Carol Demler has announced.

The theme of the meeting will be "Can the YWCA share its Christian witness?" Speakers and discussion groups will apply the question of the theme to academic life, campus problems, and the community, nation, and world.

From 30 to 40 delegates are expected for the conference, which will last from Friday through Sunday.

The speaker will be Nelle Morton, former director of youth work in the Presbyterian Church, U.S., and executive secretary, Fellowship of Southern Churchmen. She is now a free lance writer in Bluff City.

Rosalie Oaks, national secretary of the YW southern region, will spend a few days here with the YW.

Meetings of the leadership training program will be held in the Y rooms.

Record Listening Aided By FAC Music Groups

By Pat Brendle

Perhaps you are one of those people with either a love for music or some free time that you would like to use indulging in a little private "Music Appreciation" hour. Well, what is wrong with the record rooms down at the Fine Arts Center? They are available for listening every day (except Saturday) from 2:30 until 4:30 and after dinner every evening except Tuesday from 6:30 until 7:30. Its really amazing how relaxing some good symphony can be.

Oh, you don't like that kind of music! Well, bring your own records, but just for the books (or records) why not try one of the new ones which just arrived last week? You would love Mozart's "Requiem Mass" and the new "Opera Otello" by Verdi. (This is a complete recording of the whole opera.) But more about them later.

Let me emphasize the fact that students who want to enjoy the records must also obey a few rules concerning their use. Mr. Bloy asked (personally) that they be especially careful with both records and machines. (In other words, Treat them not as your own!) and to please follow the instructions posted in the rooms and on the phonographs.

Really now, there is a wide variety of recordings available, and it is an expensive collection. (almost as high as Glen Miller's records. Have you tried to buy one lately? They are twenty-five dollars a piece, so if you have any, for goodness sake, keep them!) As I was saying (How did Glen Miller get into this anyway?) please be careful with them and do go down and listen sometime. After all, they are there for our benefit. Let's use them freely.

The following is a complete list of the new record library purchases: (See any you would care to listen to?)

Prokofieff, "Peter and the Wolf" and "Fifth Symphony"; Beethoven, "Symphony No. 3 in E flat" (Eroica) and "Piano Sonata Op. 57 (Appassionate)"; Bach, "B

Lloyd Travels To Kentucky

President Ralph W. Lloyd hopes to return in time for the football game tonight from a meeting in Louisville, Ky. He is attending a gathering of the officers of the Joint Negotiating Committee on Church Unon at Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. Dr. Lloyd is chairman of the committee. He left Maryville Thursday night.

At Louisville, Dr. Lloyd and the other officers will make preparations for a full joint conference in November.

Tuesday through Thursday of this past week, Dr. Lloyd attended a Study Conference on Church and World Order in Cleveland, Ohio. Present at this meeting were 450 leaders representing 30 protestant churches, Dr. Lloyd said.

Dr. Lloyd was a member of the section on the United Nations and a member of the message committee at the conference.

Radio Sermon

In Atlanta, he recorded a sermon for the Protestant Radio Hour series, which is featuring speakers from the Presbyterian Church in the USA, from October 4 through November 29. An interesting fact to note is that six of the nine speakers this fall are connected in some way with Maryville College.

Members of the board of directors who speak are Dr. W. Wood Duff, of Nashville, on Ocotber 4; Dr. Herman L. Turner, of Atlanta, on October 18; and Dr. Donald A. Spencer, of Chattanooga, on October 25. Dr. Lloyd will speak on November 8. Others who are bringing messages are Dr. Earle W. Crawford, '35, of Wichita Falls, Tex., on October 11; and Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of New Providence Presbyterian Church in Maryville, on November 22. These broadcasts may be heard every Sunday over stations WGAP or WNOX.

Harter Names 1953 Madrigals

The following members will comprise this year's Madrigal Singers, as announced this week by Harry Harter: sopranos, Sheila Sutton, Helen Seay, Myrna Ginaven; altos, Carolyn Beatty, Margaret Blackburn, Lora Kinsinger; Tenors, James Akin, Floyd Hickman, Harry Harter; basses, Bill Cunningham, Dick Morse, Forest Amidon.

Plans for this semester include performance at the annual Christmas Vespers and their usual Christmas banquet.

String Ensemble Plays

The Maryville string ensemble performed Saturday, October 17, at the Methodist Church for the Second District Meeting of the Tennessee Federation of Music Clubs.

This string ensemble is the only one out of the many colleges in this area. Some of the members are violin, Margaret Jones, John Graulich, R. E Beard, Esther Lerch, Virginia Lee Burk; viola, Sidney Tedford; cello, Wayne Shelton, Marylin Baumgartner, Mrs. R. E. Beard.

Music Students Need Three Days' Notice

Music students are required to obtain permission from their instructors to perform publicly at least three days in advnace.

According to Katherine Davies, head of the department of music, this provision is made for the protection of the students and in the interest of better performance. She urges that students needed for performance be asked early so they will be able to obtain proper permission.

North To Preach At Vespers Tomorrow

The speaker at vespers Sunday night will be the Reverend Gerald C. North, pastor of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church of Knoxville and St. Paul Evangelical Luthern Church, Maryville.

Council Meeting Hears Reports

By Joe Gilliland

Hearing of committee reports and nomination of 27 seniors to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" occupied most of the time at Student Council meeting Wednesday night this week.

Council heard one final report—that one from the special committee to arrange a social gathering with the Executive Council of the Faculty. This group, headed by Carol Demler, presented a report recommending the gathering be held November 4 with all Student Council members, executive council members and their wives, all club presidents, and all class officers being present.

The committee members made it clear to Council that the faculty members are hosts at this gathering. Many council members at the council meeting expressed opinions about the number of persons that would be involved in the gathering, and the formality or informality of the entire thing. Jim Hunt, a committee member, said the idea of a formal presentation of ideas had been discouraged generally by both the faculty members and the students.

Many council members said they would prefer a smaller gathering "so we could present our goals."

Despite the great amout of discussion, council voted to accept the committee report. President Bill Dartnell asked the committee members to be responsible for issuing invitations to persons who are to attend the gathering.

No Town Night violations were reported.

Other committees reported as follows:

Student - Faculty Senate — Next meeting on November 6; no meeting since report was made last week.

Social Board—Reported that the Junior Class was presenting a square dance (tonight) after the football game, instead of a horror show. This square dance will last all evening if the game is called because of bad weather.

President Dartnell here interjected comments about the possibility of the Social Board and Student Council's running special buses to Knoxville concerts and special movies. "We could have run a whole lot more if we'd handled it on the Martin Luther picture," he said. He said Student Council could have publicized it better.

Dartnell said he would like to have some plan worked out for such management in the future.

Gamble Elected Board Chairman

At its Fall Meeting on the campus last Friday and Saturday, the Board of Directors of Maryville College elected the following officers for a term of three years: Chairman, Attorney Joe C. Gamble, Maryville; Vice-Chairman, Rev. Dr. Donald A. Spencer, Chattanooga; Recorder (Secretary, Miss Clemmie J. Henry, Maryville.

Succeeds Houston

Gamble, a graduate of Maryville College in the Class of 1926, succeeds Judge S. O. Houston, of Knoxville, who has served as Chairman of the Board for the past twenty years. Judge Houston asked that he be permitted to retire from the chairmanship, although he will remain a member of the Board.

Dr. Spencer, elected Vice-Chairman, is pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Cross, of Meridian, Miss., who has been Vice-Chairman for the past five years.

Miss Clemmie J. Henry has been a member of the Board of Directors of the College since 1936, being one of the first two women to be elected to the Board. Until 1950 she was for many years an Administrative Officer of the College, as Director of Student-Help. In 1950 the College conferred upon her the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Permanent Committees

Members of the two permanent committees of the Board were also elected at this meeting. Committee on Administration—Ralph W. Lloyd, Joe C. Gamble, A. D. Huddleston, Clemmie J. Henry, all of Maryville, J. Hayden Laster, of Harriman, and Donald A. Spencer, of Chattanooga.

Committee on Finance—Joe C. Gamble, Clyde T. Murray, Ralph W. Lloyd, and Hugh R. Crawford, all of Maryville, F. E. Barkley and Nellie P. McCampbell, both of Knoxville.

Junior Class To Sponsor Hallowe'en Square Dance

A Hallowe'en square dance sponsored by the junior class will be held in the alumni gym tonight after the football game until 11:45. The previously planned horror show has been called off.

Everyone is invited to attend the dance and celebrate a spooky Hallowe'en.

Kilts To Appear At Game Tonight

The Maryville College Band's new kilt uniforms will be the chief attraction for spectators tonight at Honaker Field, where the Scotties meet the University of Tennessee B team at 8 o'clock.

These uniforms, which were ordered last year, arrived in Maryville Thursday afternoon after having been shipped by air freight from near Kansas City. The plaid of the kilts is taken from the Hay Clan Tartan, which has red as the predominant color.

Benefit Game

Proceeds from tonight's game will be used for payment of the new uniforms. The UT team is receiving no money from the event, and has agreed to play entirely as a benefit game.

Backing the benefit game and purchase of new uniforms for the band are the members of the Maryville Boosters Club. Dr. Henry Callaway, Maryville physician and MC graduate, is heading the club. This club was formed last year and sponsored a benefit game which began the drive to erect an electric scoreboard and purchase new band uniforms.

The Boosters Club has been going all out toward sponsorship and publicity.

Television

Scottie Coach Lombe Honaker was to appear on Art Metzler's television sports show Thursday night over WROL-TV in Knoxville. Tickets for the game have been on sale all week in downtown Maryville stores and by band members on campus.

Price of tickets are $1 for students and faculty; $2 for reserved seats and $1.;50 for general admission tickets. No tickets will be sold at the game.

The Boosters Club achieved part of its purpose last year in the present electric scoreboard and clock on Honaker Field. Last year's benefit game was to have been held on Friday, November 21. Slated Scots opponents were the Tennessee Wesleyan Bulldogs from Athens. But a record snowfall, anywhere from 12 to 18 inches deep, knocked the game in the head on Friday, and the game was not played until the following Wednesday.

The Scots won 20-12.

Uniforms

Tonight's game will mark the first time since the football season of 1946 that the MC band has had regular uniforms. The band's old uniforms burned when Voorhees Chapel was razed by fire in March, 1947. Since that time, the band member's outfit has consisted of stock items such as all white, two-piece outfits, or this year's outfit of garnet jackets with white trousers or skirts.

Freedom Of Press Still Question Today

One of the freedoms which Americans traditionally cherish is the freedom of the press. A study of history shows that for centuries publications were closely censored by the government. It was not until the reform and revolutionary movements of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries that newspapers came into their own as a means of reporting facts to the people and of voicing their sentiments.

In America newspapers have made a long and distinguished record for themselves, and they have been able to do this because the press was free. There have always been, however, those who did not wish to see this freedom. Perhaps it has been from a mistaken sense of responsibility—"It's not good for the people to know what's going on. It is better for us, the leaders, to decide what is for their best interests."

Such an attitude is directly opposed to that of democracy. The democratic ideal was founded on the belief that the people are entitled to know the truth and capable of making intelligent decisions on the basis of that knowledge. And it is the primary purpose of the newspaper to provide those facts.

This is not a plea for wild and irresponsible journalism. Every reporter and every editor should realize the importance of his role and his relationship to the total picture of the situation in which he finds himself. But it is his duty to give the facts. Freedom of the press is not merely a group of high-sounding words, but a principle which must be acted upon, both in large and in small matters.

On Our "Student Body"

A recent issue of the Echo carried, in this column, an article on conducting our various student body meetings according to the rules of parliamentary procedure. Although these basic rules are necessary they will not, however, automatically ensure a democratic student body meeting.

In the term "student body" itself is perhaps where the greatest fault lies, because does it not imply simply that—student body? That means the complete student body and not just a handful of students who don't happen to have a B period lab or who don't have anything better to do after chapel on Thursday mornings—plus the few, of course, who are actually interested in the working plan of our student government.

At the last student body meeting, students who are considered by many to be some of the campus leaders got up and left chapel before the meeting was called to order—to say nothing of those students who openly flouted al lthe rules of simple etiquette and left during the nominations, voting, and statements of our president.

A common excuse given for not attending these meetings is the B period lab. This, perhaps, is a fault of the new schedule put into effect this year. If my memory serves me correctly, however, the "B" or "C" schedule is put into effect for our meetings, and I'm sure that there are very few professors who would begrudge our student government a few minutes of a lab period for an essential bit of business.

Needless to say, it is these same "interested" students who are the ones who complain when "the same old crowd gets elected every time." I wonder it it ever occurred to them that it is perhaps this "same old crowd" who really are the students who are vitally interested in making the student government at Maryville something real with a tangible influence.

Shortly there will be another student body meeting for the purpose of nominating the Barnwarming candidates. The students chosen for this are supposed to be selected by the entire student body—not just nominated by a few and criticized by the rest.

If we want our government to be truly representative, it is up to us to sacrifice the very small amount of our time required to make our student council feel as though they have the support of the students who chose them as leaders.

Scots & Soda

The moving of the crane from the new chapel site got as much attention as a lot of profs wish they could get in A period classes, or some other time of the night.

Then there's the freshman who wails that his schedule is so good this semester that the law of averages is bound to catch up with him next semester. He comments, "I guess I'll even have a G period class."

And Doc Griffitts tells this in class:

Seems there was a small boy sitting on a curbstone, crying. A man came by and asked the lad what his trouble was. The boy said that his father had died; what was worse, his father had died of strong drink.

"You mean your father was a drunkard?" the aghast passerby inquired.

"No, sir," came the innocent reply. "A block fell on him."

Give Blood

Picture yourself as the unseen observer in a field hospital on a battlefield where a soldier lies dying. The young doctor in charge calls for more bloon plasma but the nurse replies that they have used the last pint on the boy in the next bed and there is no more on hand. The doctor looks at the soldier and with a nod to the nurse turns to examine the patient in the next bed. She feels the soldier's pulse, lets the arm drop and with a muffled sob pulls the sheet over his head. A life has been lost—a life that might be very dear to you—a life that you might have saved had you given a pint of your blood.

Again picture yourself as the unseen observer in the children's ward of a hospital somewhere here in America. That little boy over there in the iron lung lies dying of polio. The man and woman sitting by it are the boy's parents. They know he's going to die—there wasn't enough gamma globulin for the anti-polio injections last year and their little boy was one of the many unfortunates who failed to receive an injection. The doctor has entered the room and comes over to examine the child. But it is too late—it's all over. The valiant lungs have given up the fight—the odds were too great against them. Another life has been lost—a life that could be your brother or your son—a life that you might have saved had you given a pint of your blood.

Picture yourself as the soldier or the little boy. You know you're dying and there's nothing anyone can do. And you also know you could go on living if only someone had given their blood.

Homecoming week-end was the usual big event on the campus this year with a larger than usual number of recent graduates returning to their old haunts. Among those from the class of '51 who returned were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams (Anne Robinson ex-'54), and Ruby Jean Harris. Visitors from the class of '52 included Bob Moser, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kees (Hazel Woods), Mrs. Charles Mabry (Barbara Blum), Cora Anthony, Gracie Scruggs, Charlie Allen, and Phil Zebley.

The most recent graduates, the class of '53, turned out in the largest—and noisiest— numbers, including the very familiar faces of Phylis West, Dave Helwig, Barbara Scott, Nancy Ferguson, Harold Glad, Dick Patton, Martha Lou Coile, Sid Wiley, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Garren (Jo Brooks ex '56), George Carpenter, Jack Durant, Sally Brown, Ann Kirkpatrick, Edie McMillan, Ken Shaeffer, Mary Grace Pritchard, Bobbie James, Jeanette Whitaker, Dick Kerr, Paul Merwin, Daisy Walker, Jimmy Campbell, and Bob Mizelle.

Other familiar faces floating around the campus over the week end were those of Guy Sneed, ex '54, Dick Hughes, ex '54, Marian Rice, ex '54, Barbara Newman, ex '54, and Mrs. Bob Bouffard (Tish Buchanan ex '54). Former members of the class of '55 included Mr. and Mrs. Don Etheridge (Elaine Barker), Mary Alice Kemp, Jimmie Ann Scruggs, and Carol Ann Doll.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Peggy Packard

Voices on performance at the FAC this week were heard Friday night when the first Experimental Theater staged Christopher Fry's, "Sleep of Prisoners," directed by George Caldwell, with the four soldiers portrayed by Bill Derfield, Herb Catlin, Arthur Fryer, and George Hall.

Everyone is beginning to wonder when another book will receive as many rave notices as The Silver Chalice, Forever Amber, and The Man Called Peter. While looking over some book reviews this week I noticed a new book and a new author, who is only twenty-three years old. The notices for Love is a Bridge are marvelous, especially for a first novel. Charles B. Flood has accomplished that rare achievement of "tracing fully and convincingly the change and development, over a number of years, of characters who at once establish themselves as eminently worth the time and attention and affectionate regard of the reader." It has already won the Houghton Mifflin Literary Fellowship Award and so perhaps we have another "Big Hit".

Speaking of that inspirational book A Man Called Peter, which has been on the bookstands for three years and a top best seller for 104 weeks, I would like to ask, "Have you read it yet?" This book is one which brings joy and peace to the hearts of its readers, for it is a truly Christian story told in lovable fashion by Catherine Marshall, the wife of Peter Marshall, the Scottish immigrant who rose to chaplain of the U.S. Senate.

For all you movie goers "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" starring Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe will be shown at the Park Theater in Maryville on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. On Thursday and Friday, "The Lion and the House," a western starring Steve Cochran will be shown.

Two outstanding movies are playing in Knoxville this week; they are "The Robe" and "Martin Luther." "The Robe" stars Richard Burton, Jean Simmons, and Victor Mature while the lead in Martin Luther, the story of a man who had the courage to fight for his convictions, is played by Niall MacGinnis.

Alumna Writes Novel

Florence Whitfield Barton, 1924 graduate of Maryville, is the author of a recent book, "The Sage and the Olive," which has received favorable reviews in the New York Times and Christian Century.

Mrs. Barton was a contributor to the Echo during her years at Maryville, where she lived in Baldwin Hall. A former librarian, she now lives in Wharton, Texas, with her husband and two children.

"The Sage and the Olive" is a novel in that the dialogue and some scenes are imaginary, but is based upon historical fact and carefully documented.

The book is the story of the life of Robert Estienne, printer and heretic in sixteenth century France. The title of the book comes from the printer's device which he used on his title pages and on the sign above his door.

Mrs. Barton's book came off the press in June and was featured by Christian Life as their "Book of the Month" for September.

The author says herself, "The important thing was to bring to light the work of this man who was so human; so real, so that he would not be just a foot-note in dusty tomes."

SCHOOL SPIRIT

Last Saturday's game demonstrated just what a good rooting section can do for a football team. Our Scotties went into the game a two to three touchdown underdog. Though we came out on the short end of the 13-7 score it seems to this writer that we outran, outpassed and outplayed the Indians from Newberry College. The boys were up psychologically ready for this one and a large part of the credit can go to the student body through their fine display of fan spirit. Let's keep up this fine spirit for the remaining games.

SURPRISE.

Here is something for baseball fans. Bruce Edwards, former ace Brooklyn catcher, who was washed up because of an arm injury, is returning to the major leagues. This time Edwards, now 30, is coming up as a third baseman. The Chicago Cubs purchaesd Edward's contract from their Des Moines affiliate in the Western League.

Edwards managed Des Moines to a fouth place finish and the play-off championship last season. He also played third hitting .321. Edwards played in forty-games for Des Moines, hitting seven homers and driving in forty-two runs.

WHY ATHLETES DON'T DATE

With the publication of both Kinsey reports to complement the Pieper report on the dating habits of the American man and woman we would like our few readers to think over the following remarks, (thanks to Neale Pearson and the 1950 Echo).

Why don't girls date trackmen? Well, they're too fast or throw too much weight around. Tennis players? They play too many love games and practice with any good racquet. Gridiron Giants? They will tackle anything and try pass and run plays. Basketballers? They're the unpredictable type—half the time they are taking time out and the other half of the time they're going out of bounds. What about baseball players? Well they are very unscrupulous—they hit and run. Wrestlers? They are always trying to escape and reverse.

GRACIAS

The Maryville College Highlanders will meet the University of Tennessee B team in a benefit game here tonight. The Vols are giving their services with all proceeds from the game going to pay for the new band uniforms. The uniforms should be here in time for tonight's game.

The U-T Bees will carry a 1-1 record into the contest, with a win over Vanderbilt and a loss to Georgia Tech.

Tickets were on sale at several Maryville business places all week. After U-T has consented to come over here and play Maryville, the least we can do is to come out and support our team. It does cost an extra dollar to see the game but it is going to be something which will provide enjoyment for all. When you compare our band with those of other schools the comparison is favorable as far as musical abliity and formation are concerned. But when you take into consideration the uniforms, why its like comparing a grammer school to a university. I can't seee why so many years have gone by without the purchasing of new uniforms. Well, the uniforms are here; lets go out and pay for them. We have a fine looking team this year; how about a fine looking band? You still have a chance to buy tickets from band members all day today.

As far as the game is concerned it promises to be a good one. The Vols will bring over a power-loaded team. They will outweigh the Scots in the line seven pounds per man. The Vol backfield will average 178 to Maryville's 162. In favor of Maryville will be its experience. One can't forget that this will be mainly a freshman team we are playing.

The Tennessee varsity will play the University of North Carolina this afternoon. They will take four teams with them and the rest along with the regular B team will come to Maryville. U-T uses a single-wing formation but will try more power plays than Maryville does. The Scots try to break the tailback and wingback into the open for long gains while the baby Vols will be hitting the Scottie line for short gains. As one of Maryville's linemen put it: "We should get a physical beating but come out ahead as far as the score is concerned." I pick Maryville to win by two touchdowns. No matter how the game turns out, thanks to Harvey Robinson and the University of Tennessee for their cooperation.

WHO KNOWS?

With the 1953 colege football season starting its second half everyone seems to be sounding off on the new limited substitution rule.

It seems that most football fans are in favor of the new rule. Several admendments have been suggested to the one-platoon rule. Here is one by "Red" Sanders, head coach of powerful UCLA. Sanders said: "The rules should be changed to permit a man to go in for conversion plays or eliminate the conversion from football. A good team shouldn't be penalized because it doesn't have a good point kicker on its first team." Could it be that the 21-20 upset of bowl-bound UCLA by Stanford could have anything to do with Sanders suggestion?

Some coaches are still opposed to the change because it calls for more coaching. As George Munger of Penn State said: "In the two-platoon system a coach had to teach a player only that half of the game for which he was naturally best fitted; now you have to teach him the things he does worst."

A majority of the coaches seem against the change. Among these include Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, Charlie Caldwell of Princeton and Red Blaik of Army. Reasons these men give are a long scrimmage will wave a two-way player in poor shape to study, fewer boys get a chance to get into games and making a boy play 60 minutes will increase his chances of getting injured.

This writer agrees with Columbia's Lou Little who said: "Whether it's two-platoon or one-platoon football, the stronger team usually wins."

The players are also divided on this question. Some feel that the change from defensive to offensive ball or vice versa is too hard to make. Some in favor of the change say that a player becomes cold and stiff between platoon changes under the old rule and your chances of getting hurt are greater when you're cold.

The answer to this question can only come with time. But it sure is nice to go to a football game and know what players are on the field.

All this talk about football reminds me of a story. It seems that at this time of the season there are only two kinds of colleges—those who wish they had fired their coach last year and those who wish they hadn't.

Hoopsters Train

Basketball continues its three-day-a-week workouts under the tutorship fo Coach Ken Johnson with a total of 18 boys participating in the drills.

To date the hoopster hopefuls have been working hard and consistently on general fundamentals with the veterans and new tryouts mixed in the trials.

Veterans pacing the practices are last year's leading scorer Dick Abbott, Bob Patterson, George Henry, Jack H. Crouch, Lyn Sexton, Bob "Monk" Johnston and Dexter Heaton. These plus a number of lettermen on the football squad will be the starting nucleus for the '53-'54 squad.

Some very promising basketball material has presented itself in the personage of the new tryouts. Making up the list of initial Scot hopefuls are Bill Wallace, Bill Dent, Ed Drum, Don Abbott, Guy Sealander, Tom Hurt, Bill McBryer, Larry Tate, Jim Rook and Don Sherrick.

Coach Johnson mentioned that all of the boys have been showing good promise and should supply the Highlanders with ample talent for the "B" and varsity teams.

Coach Honaker has a tentative schedule of seventeen games with hopes of filling in open dates with several more. The first game will be with the Carbon Carbides of Oak Ridge, here, Nov. 30 or with Hiwassee, Dec. 1 (place undecided), the Carbide game in question but Hiwassee is definite.

Scot Gridders Meet Baby Vols Here Tonite

Breaks Give Newberry Indians 13-7 Win In Homecoming Tilt

Tonight the Maryville Scotties engage the University of Tennessee Baby Vols in a benefit game, to aid in providing uniforms for the Scots' band. The game promises to provide many gridiron thrills and should be hard fought and closely contested.

The Tennessee club is made up primarily of freshmen, who may well be the stars of the S.E.C. in the next couple of years, and some of the fourth and fifth string varsity performers. They boast a record of one win and one loss, having beaten Vanderbilt, while losing, this past Saturday, to Georgia Tech.

The Highlanders have high hopes of rebounding from two straight defeats, and get back on the victory trail by surprising the Volunteers.

Lose 13-7

An alert Newberry College squad took advantage of a series of breaks to defeat the Maryville College Highlanders last Saturday evening, 13-7, and thereby spoil the Scotties' Homecoming. Striking for two TD's in the second quarter, the boys from South Carolina built up an advantage, which the Orange and Garnet, who were hindered all evening by a series of bad breaks, found impossible to overcome.

Maryville took the field with high hopes of defeating their highly regarded opponents, but it seemed that the football gods of the universe were opposed to their every attempt to gain victory. The game was one in which a few "breaks" would determine the victor, and it seemed that Maryville did not receive one all evening, while the Indians could do no wrong.

Paul Davis, substitute right halfback for the Red and White, scored both of the visitors' touchdowns. Taknig the ball on a "quicky" off the split T formation, he broke through the Scots' line, reversed his field and out-ran the secondary for fifty-two yards and the score. The try for the extra point was no good. Minutes later the same Mr. Davis plucked a Maryville fumble out of the air, and scampered unmolested forty-five yards for the clincher. This time the try for point was good, and the half closed with the score 13-0, against the Scots.

In the third quarter, Maryville started to move with Clarence Shepard and Wayne Newman doing the bulk of the ball carrying. The drive covered fifty-two yards, and was climaxed when Wayne Newman plowed over from three yards out for the score. Captain Ken Shepard kicked the extra point.

The remainder of the game found Maryville trynig desperately to pull out the decision. Twice they drove to Newberry's twenty, but there the Red and White's defense stiffened and turned back the threat.

The Scots now have a record of three wins, two losses and one tie. In their two losses, the Scot gridders allowed but 20 points, losing one 7-0 and the other 13-7. To date the Scot opponents have tallied 53 points while Maryville has amassed a total of 101 points.

Blood Drive Still Needs 100 Pints

To date, 200 pints of blood have been pledged for the blood drive to be held here on campus, Friday, November 6. To fill the quota of 300 pints, 100 more pints are urgently needed.

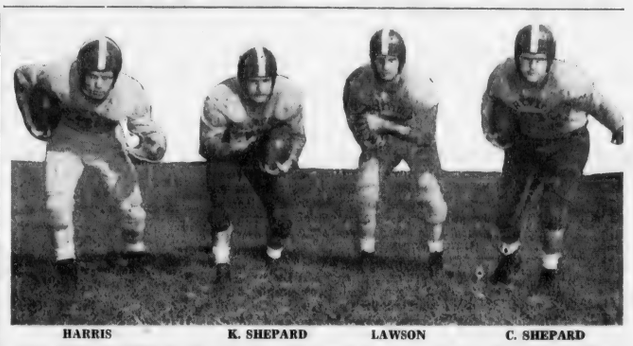
Students under 21 who have signed up must bring releases signed by their parents when they donate their blood. Reminders will be sent to those who are donating, reminding them of the time to come.

Wee Scotch Lass

By Dixie Conner

"Hey, Junior, does the net scoop up over there?" greeted me as I entered the Intramural Gym this afternoon. Women's Varsity had begun, rather unceremoniously, with some basketball shooting on the part of Liz Murphy, "Junior" Davis, and Kay Leeth. To spoil the fun, though, "boss" Axley showed up with the order (gently spoken)to put up the volley ball net (I forgot to mention that is volley ball season in Varsity). Thus the above quote, compliments of Kay Leeth. They got it up, too!

Then Chilhowean Editor Carol Moore and "Doc" Griffitts showed up with the little camera and flashbulbs. Mass confusion! If you've ever tried to handle about sixty-sixty athletic females at once, you know what I mean.



For the "M" Club picture all the girls were asked to wear the regulation "M" Club sweaters. So Joan Hedschelman borrowed a wee one belonging to Jackie Kendall and Betty Watson appeared in Jack Keny's. They finally switched and the Club breathed one unanimous sigh of relief. After approximately seventy-two trics the picture was taken, in spite of Barbara June Gregory's pincurls and various suggestions to "Doc" such as, "You could get up on the roof!"

The Chillies and Howies had their pictures taken in front of all those odd lines on the back wall of the gym. Natalie Prinzing looked funny with a black line growing out of her head. The Laing sisters offered a lovely double leer for the camera.

This week the Chillies and Howies started the playoffs of the Volley Ball tournament. Both teams have cheers, but the Chillies outdid themselves. Their favorite is (quote), "Beat the "H" out of the Howies!" I figured it out and this is how it adds up. HOWIES minus H—wel, it really is funny-looking! Another perpetual holler is "Set 'em up, girls!" Makes one wonder!

To get down to business for a minute, this past Tuesday, when the first game was played, the Chillies beat the Howies (compliments Corny Force—you guessed it, a Chillie). This afternoon the Howies (compliments of Liz Murphy, a Howie) came up from a half-time score of 13-24 to defeat the enemy by a score of 34-29. It looks like this tournament is going to be a fight to the bitter end.

Perhaps "Doc's" favorite of today was, not only taking all of those pictures while girls romped around him and sang him songs as he tried to get his work done, but a surprise. Mrs. Queener, for some reason, has a strong objection to having her picture taken, and so refused to take part in any of the shots. Arrangements were made, however, and a beautiful action shot was taken as she was engrossed in the game. Some of us know just HOW engrossed "Ma" Queener can become in a sport, too—for example, a wrestling match! Thanks a lot, Mrs. Queener.

Other standout backfielders to date, not pictured above are Bob Shelton, Wayne Newman, Bob Ramger and Buddy White. Tonight these hard-battling ball carriers will be out to bring the Maryville rooters their fourth victory of the season.

Harriers Nip W. J. Bryan

Cross-Country

Coach Ken Johnson's Cross-country team notched their first win of the season last Saturday afternoon as they edged W. J. Bryan, 27-28, in the annual Homecoming meet.

Bespectacled A. C. McWilliams clocked a fast 21:58 to lead the runners across the finish line followed by Captain Homer Rickabaugh in a close second. Two Bryan boys, Larry Hess and E. Boyce, finished third and fourth respectively. Scot Rod McMillan completed the first five.

First year men Paul Payne, Sonny Shackelford and Ed Drum finished ninth, tenth and eleventh to bring the winning margin to Maryville. Bruce Ingles finished thirteenth.

The cross-country team now has a record of one win, two losses and one tie and sought their second win against Sewanee yesterday afternoon. Next Wednesday afternoon, November 4, the Scots will run against the University of Tennessee squad. There are four more meets on the schedule for the '53 runners.

All of the boys have been working extra hard since their humiliating defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech with plans of not losing another in a lopsided fashion.

Ping-Pong

Senior John Anderson downed his tennis captain, Kent Buser, to capture the Intramural Ping-Pong Tournament held on campus last week.

Anderson beat little Ed Breitbach and Buser trimmed Sonny Shackelford in the semifinal round to meet in the championship match.

The tourney was composed of 21 contestants and was held in the Student Center lounge.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Sufferi as I'm concerned" said Sheedy's gal, "your hair looks like something the cat dragged in. Purrhaps you better spring for some Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic. Keeps hair combed without greasiness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcoholic." So Sheedy roared down to his druggist for Wildroot Cream-Oil, and now he's feline mighty fine. All the girls paws and stare when he passes. So you better leopard on the bandwagon and try Wildroot Cream-Oil right meow. Scratch up 29¢ for a bottle or handy tube at any toilet goods counter. Experimental Play Given Last Night

Last night the Experimental Theater presented its first selection of the year, "Sleep of Prisoners" by Christopher Fry. Of the oldest type of English drama, church drama, it was essentially a morality play. To quote director George Caldwell, "Through four soldiers who are imprisoned in a church, their problems and the problems of the world are reflected. Through their dreams they come to the conclusion that because of the challenge of the times this is a wonderful world in which to live."

Presented in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center, the all-male cast included Herb Catlin, Arthur Fryer, George Hall, and Bill Deerfield.

The next presentation of Experimental Theater will be four scenes from Shakespeare on November 13.

Heron To Read Paper On English To Faculty

Jessie Heron, assistant professor of English, will present the program at the next meeting of the Faculty Club to be held on Monday, November 2.

Miss Heron has chosen to read an account of the relationship between the English Placement Test given all freshmen at the beginning of their first college year and the honor of Cum Laude presented to worthy seniors at graduation. This study of 101 and 103 students covers a period of 15 years.

Refreshments wil be served following Miss Heron's report.

Artists Travel To Fontana . . .

IRC Hears Trygve Lie At Oak Ridge Meeting

A group of twenty-two faculty members and students attended a lecture by Trygve Lie Wednesday evening at Oak Ridge. The United Nations Committee of Oak Ridge invited Lie to speak in observance of United Nations week, October 25-31.

This trip was sponsored by the International Relations Club, which held its regular meeting Thursday in Thaw Hall. The topic for discussion was "European Defense Community."

Disc Club To Hear 'American In Paris'

A meeting of the Disc Club will be held Thursday evening, November 12, in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Henry Emmans is in charge of the program and is planning to play "American In Paris" and other similar compositions of the same period. He will explain a little about Gershwin's style and its influence on popular music. Everyone is invited to rest and relax to the rhythm of these examples of 20th century American music.

The meeting will begin promptly at 6:45.

Stein's Tuesday Class Teaches Dancing To Many

By Kathy Chase

Every Tuesday night, promptly at 6:30, a group of eager young men and women gather at the Intramural Gym to indulge in another dancing lesson. Roll call is read by the dancing master, Bill Stein, under whose leadership the class has been conducted for the past three years. Through the years, the method of teaching has changed considerably from mediocre to better. Three other capable instructors are Dixie Conner, Ruth Orr and Cary Valentine, without whom Bill feels the class would not be one-half as good as it now is.

Rules were begun last year and have proved quite effective in conducting the class on a more businesslike basis, instead of a play-time and gab fest time. Such rules as no onlookers, promptness and cuts from the classes have had some alterations from last year through experience. Mrs. Nell Strick is the class chaperone.

Class Test

Right now, the class is engaged in the study of the fox-trot on which they will be tested this Tuesday night. All students are tested on such things as leading and following ability, grace and ease. Lessons in jitterbugging will begin after the foxtrot test, and will be studied for a certain period of weeks as a unit, which is the way all the dances are taught.

It's a lot of fun and an inexpensive and easy way to learn to dance and anyway, I could go on dancing forever!

Student Council . . .

Inter-club Council—Joanne Edwards reported the Council had drawn up a new constitution to make it a "better functioning body."

Finance—Jim Hunt said classes needed to pay their dues to the council and that they still had some unpaid bills. Dartnell said he would pay for his recent letter to the student body himself if it was found Student Council could not afford it.

Publicity—Herb White said the committee had tried to keep Student Council meetings publicized, and added he had talked to Dean of Students McClelland about a special Student Council bulletin board. Location of this board is still undetermined.

Classes reporting were the sophomores and freshmen. Tom Bugenhagen, sophomore president, said his class had postponed its parties until the second semester. Edgar Drum, freshman president, said the freshmen were collecting dues and "laying the groundwork" for a talent show.

Other organizations making reports were:

YMCA—President Hal Black said the Y Hike was a success, and told Council of the Y's publication this fall of its aims and set-up of the organization.

YWCA—Carol Demler told Council about the statewide conference which will be held on campus next week-end.

Athletic Board of Control—Bill Van Benthuysen reported that everyone "seemed well pleased" with all the Homecoming activities.

Highland Echo—Editor Joan Frei told of the number of papers published this semester, explaining publication was not always weekly. She said printing this year had gone from $72 to $85 per paper.

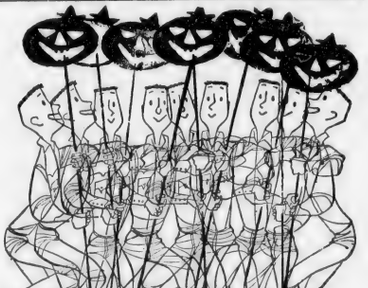
Town Night—Peggy Fisher said the committee had met with some faculty members, but would rather wait until later to make any definite report.

Bill Davis, who is in charge of the Blood Drive, said he still needed five men who had no A-hour class on Friday morning. Daxis explained that a minimum of six men were needed to help set up equipment. On Wednesday, he said, 180 students and 11 faculty members had signed up to give blood. This drive is also open to townspeople, Davis reminded Council members.

Council members voted individually on the 27 seniors nominated for Who's Who. Ballots were turned in, and will be counted by Bill Dartnell, Dean Frank D. McClelland, and President Ralph W. Lloyd.

Dartnell told Council that the Inter-Club Council had completed a new section of the Student Council constitution. "This is the first major piece of legislation to come before the Student Council in our reorganization," he said. This matter will come up at the next meeting, he said.

Under new business, Council gave Dartnell authority to call a Student Body meeting either next Saturday, Tuesday, or Thursday, whichever seems to him to be the best time. Purpose of the meeting is nomination of Barnwarming Queen and court.



Many MC professors were active in campus activities in their student days here. Verton M. Queener was the 1923-24 editor of the Echo, a four page, five column paper. Arthur S. Bushing was president of his senior class in 1942, and E. R. Hunter was a chemistry lab assistant in 1913.

Craven Directs Coming Drama

Play To Feature Williams, Kemp

By Susie Cook

The Maryville College Playhouse fall production, John van Druten's "Bell, Book, and Candle," will be presented in the Alumni Gymnasium November 20 and 21.

Players are the following:

Marcia Williams, sophomore drama major from Peekskill, N. Y., who takes the part of Gillian Holyrod; Jack Kemp, MC instructor in drama and speech, is playing the male lead, the part of Shepherd Henderson;

Anne Buckley, junior drama major from Clifton, Va., will play Miss Holyrod. Miss Buckley is replacing Garnetta Alexander, who has withdrawn from the cast because of a throat condition.

Bill Stein, senior psychology major from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is playing Nicky Holyrod; and Walter Elwood, senior history major from Paterson, N. J., is taking the part of Sidney Redlitch.

Kathleen Craven, director, has announced the following committees:

Publicity—Abby Crosby and Ray Harley; Scenery — Ellen Colwell, Nancy Rideout, Mary Alison, and Sonja Sweat; Tickets—Polly Transky and Clara Gowan; Makeup—Janet Maib, Jo Brooks, and Sandra Motsinger; Costumes—Grace Guider.

Martha Horton is house manager, Jim Shields is stage manager, Bob Read is assistant stage manager, and Doug Stubblefield and Dick Ebright are electricians.

"Bell, Book, and Candle" is described as a "sophisticated comedy." The theme is modern witchcraft. Gillian Holyrod is a "young and attractive modern witch" and her brother, Nicky, is also a witch. Gillian desires to fall in love as normal people do, but she has difficulty because she is a witch.

College Orchestra To Give Concert

A concert will be presented on November 14 by the Maryville College Orchestra, under the direction of Ralph Moore.

The program will include the following selections: "Overture Der Freischutz" by Weber, Mozart's "Symphony in G Minor," Anderson's "Syncopated Clock," Mozart's "Piano Concerto in B Flat" by soloist Jane McMillan, and "Finlandia" by Sibelieus.

Irene Bewley To Speak At Maryville High School

The Department of English of Maryville High School and the National Forensic League are presenting Irene Bewley, native of Greeneville, in her original "Fools, Feuds and Furriners," at 8 p.m., Tuesday, November 10, in the high school auditorium. Permission has been obtained for MC students to attend, and tickets are fifty cents.

Once on MC Staff

Miss Bewley, who was once on the college faculty and was an early director of the Maryville College Players, is a noted mountain monologist and a pioneer in her chosen field. She has tried to capture the real spirit of mountain life from her own background and to combine it with her professional skill, presenting authentic folk lore.

Miss Bewley's mountain folk entertainment is said to be rich in native humor and is popular in every type of audience, including those in the leading cities of the United States. Local sponsors consider themselves fortunate in being able to present to a Maryville audience this Tennessee author-actress in her original dramatization of "Fools, Feuds and Furriners."

Echo Staff Plans Party For Tuesday

Members of the Echo staff and their guests will hold a party in the Y Rooms on Tuesday night.

The guest speaker at the party will be Dean Stone, managing editor of the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times.

Last year at the Echo's annual party, editor Clyde B. Emert of the Daily Times spoke to the group.

In addition to the speaker the Echo party will feature refreshments, games, and fun for all.

Janek To Speak At Vespers Tomorrow

Victor J. Janek, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Milan will speak at vespers tomorrow evening. A graduate of Trinity University, in San Antonio, Texas, Janek served in Benton, Ark., before coming to Milan, where he has been for a year.

Next Sunday, November 15, the speaker will be Dr. John H. McKennon, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, which is one of the largest U.S. Presbyterian churches in Tennessee.

Garnet Manges To Give Music Ed Club Program

Music Ed Club will meet Thursday, November 19, at 6:45 in the FAC lounge. Garnet Manges, who is the "Messiah" acompanist, will present a program on teaching class piano.

Miss Manges will demonstrate her methods with a group of children, each using a cardboard keyboard.

This program will be of special interest to all who are considering tecahing music or are interested in the possibilities of the creative arts as they provide a means of expression.

NYU To Grant Law Scholarships

Outstanding American college seniors interested in a career of legal leadership may apply now for a $6,600, three-year Root-Tilden Scholarship offered at the New York University School of Law.

Applications for the 20 Root-Tilden Scholarships to be awarded next year must be made by February 15, 1954. Final selections will be announced late in April and recipients will begin their study at NYU in September.

The unique scholarship program, designed to help educate and develop potential leaders in public affairs, was inaugurated at the University three years ago. It now has 54 young men under training for the legal profession.

Made financially possible by an anonymous donor, the scholarships honor two NYU School of Law graduates famous in legal history—Elihu Root (1867) and Samuel J. Tilden (1841).

Requirements

Root-Tilden Scholarships are awarded on the basis of superior academic record, potential capacity for unselfish public leadership, and active extracurricular participation in college life.

A candidate must be over 20 years of age, but not over 28, when his law training begins at NYU, and he must be an unmarried male citizen of the United States. (The series of awards known as the Florence E. Allen Scholarships are available for women at the NYU Law Center).

Each of the scholarships carries an annual stipend of $2,200 to cover tuition, books, and living expenses, so that the student will be free to devote his time to his studies. Although the award is made initially for one year, it is renewed for the second and third years if the student maintains a high standard in legal and general scholarship.

Experimentals To Present Three Selections

Experimental Theater will present excerpts from three Shakespearian plays, the evening of Friday, November 13 in Bartlett gymnasium. The Merchant of Venice, The Taming of the Shrew, and Midsummer Night's Dream have been chosen to fill the bill for the evening.

Merchant of Venice

A selection from The Merchant of Venice will be first enacted. The cast under the direction of Joanne Edwards, senior English major and president of Theta Alphi Phi, is named as follows: playing Portia, Ethelyn Cathey, sophomore English major; playing Shylock, Bob Lorenz, junior English major; playing Antonio, Don Theil, sophomore pre-ministerial student; playing Bassanio, Bob Read, senior physchology major; playing Gratino, Bob Clark, junior political science major; playing Duke, Ken Wilkinson, junior economics major.

Taming of The Shrew

The second production, an excerpt from the Taming of the Shrew, is being directed by Walter Elwood, senior history major. Those performing in this production are as follows: Nancy Rideout, junior drama major, playing Kate; George Caldwell, senior drama major, playing Petruchio; Ray Harley, freshman drama major, playing Vincentio; Annie Bucher, sophomore philosophy major, playing the first servant; Grace Guider, freshman, playing the second servant.

Midsummer Night's Dream

In conclusion to the evening's program, a selection from Midsummer Night's Dream will be presented under the direction of Jimmy Shields, junior drama major. The players of this production are listed as follows: Ann Buckly junior speech and drama major, playing Flute; Carol Sleight, sophomore biology major, playing Bottom; Margaret Hanna, sophomore sociology major playing Quince; Betty Messer, sophomore speech and drama major, playing Snout; Elizabeth Enloe ,speech and drama major, playing Snug; Edna Mae Stout, senior sociology major, playing Starveling.

Martha Horton is in charge of costumes for all three plays.

The two performances, at 7:30 and 9:30 will be presented as a theatre in the round.

Lloyd Comments To Echo On Possible Church Union

By Gail Purdy

Ralph Waldo Lloyd, chairman of the Joint Negotiating Committee of the Presbyterian Church, has made the following statement concerning the union of the churches:

"I am very much in favor of this union. The reasons for it may be summed up as follows:

(1) We are members of the same family and belong together. There are no essential differences in our three churches—in heritage, doctrine, government, practice, people, or even geography.

(2) Union would eliminate much overlapping, competition, duplication, misunderstanding, and unnecessary organization and expense.

(3) The combined witness and ministry of a United church would be greater than the present witness and ministry of any one or of all three added together.

(4) The fellowship and outreach of each congregation and Spirit is leading Presbyterians toward union in praying and working with Christ and the Holy Spirit."

Plan of Union

The 1953 General Assembly of each of the three churches received a Plan of Union as drafted and revised up to April 8, 1953, by the Joint Negotiating Committee and approved by the three Permanent Committees. Each Assembly took action transmitting the Plan, which is a book of 290 pages, to the presbyteries and making it available to other organizations and individuals for study and comment. November 1, 1953, was set as the date to which comments and suggestions regarding the Plan would be accepted for consideration.

Copeland To Lead February Meetings

Barnwarming Court Elected

By Kathie Chase

Elections were held by secret ballot yesterday for persons nominated in Student Body meeting Thursday for the Barnwarming court. Results of these elections were not to be made public until formal presentation on Thanksgiving night.

Peggy Evans and Virginia Smith were the senior girls nominated for Barnwarming Queen., Miss Evans is an elementary education major from Trenton, N. J., and Miss Smith is a sociology major from Towson, Md.

Nominated for Barnwarming King were seniors Frank Garren and David Gates. Garren is a business administration major from Maryville, and Gates is a physics major from Fulton, Mo.

Classes nominated the folowing persons for sponsors:

Dorothy Wells, English major from Clinton, and Jo Bash, English major from Coral Gables, Fla., were nominated from the senior class.

Marilyn Kiefer, English major from Easton, Pa., and Mary Ann Thompson, physical education major from Maryville, were nominated by the juniors.

The sophomore class nominated Callie Mitchell, elementary education major from Atlanta, Ga., and Mary Brasfield, music major from Butler, Mo.

Council Meets Faculty At Party

Student Council substituted a social gathering with members of the executive council of the facutly for a business meeting this week.

Student Council members, faculty members on the executive council and their wives, and club and class officers attended the affair Wednesday night in the Fine Arts Center lounge.

The faculty members were hosts, and the council members arranged the program of games and entertainment.

Plans for the party were worked out by a special Student Council committee which worked with a similar faculty group on making plans. The committee presented its recommendation for the gathering at last week's council meeting.

Student Council will meet as usual this Wednesday night in the Student Center.

Exhibit To Show Chagall Pictures

Illustrations by artist Marc Chagall of the "Fables of la Fontaine" will be on exhibit at the FAC art gallery beginning November 12.

This collection of 50 etchings from the Museum of Modern Art will be supplemented by selections from Marianne Moore's unpublished poetic translations of the original text. A gallery talk will accompany the opening of the exhibit.

Exhibit Schedules

The tentative schedule of exhibits set for the coming year follows:

In December and May student shows will be held; also in May, plans are being made for a reception. During January photographs of a Japanese mural, given to the school as a gift from Japanese colleges, will be on display. In February a collection of 42 original water colors entitled "Versatile Medium" will be exhibited. They represent the work of noted European and American artists. In March the A.A.U.W. will sponsor the showing of children's paintings from Holland. This exhibition is made possible under an exchange program. During April the works of painter Ferdinand Warren and of sculptress Marie Huper will be displayed.

Mrs. Dorathea Beard, instructor in art, expresses "a welcome to all interested in any phase of art, to come see these exhibits."

Knoxville Pastor To Preach Here

By Gail Purdy

Leader of this year's February Meetings wil be Rev. Dr. Joseph J. Copeland, Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Knoxville. This announcement was made this week by President Ralph W. Lloyd.

Dr. Copeland came to the pastorate at Knoxville a little more than a year ago, succeeding Dr. Clifford E. Barbour. He has visited the college as a member of the Board of Directors but has not yet spoken here.

Texan

He was born in Texas and has spent most of his life there. He graduated from Trinity University, Texas, where he was active in debate, drama, and other fields and was elected to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." He also has received an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Trinity. His theological training was at McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, whereee he was president of the Student Body his senior year.

His first pastorate was one of three years at Frederick, Okla. His second was one of ten years at First Presbyterian Church, Denton, Texas, from which he came to Knoxville. He is a member of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education and has held or holds a number of other important positions in the church.

Throughout his ministry Dr. Copeland has been in demand as a leader on college campuses. His church in Denton was near Texas State College for Women, probably the largest higher institution for women in America, His church in Knoxville is attended by many students from the University of Tennessee. He has been a religious emphasis week leader on various campuses, including the University of Texas, Texas A&M, Oklahoma College for Women, and others. In January, before coming for our February Meetings, he is to be in a meeting at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, an instiution of six thousand students.

Dr. Copeland is thirty-nine years old, has a son aged twelve and a daughter aged four. Mrs. Copeland is also a Texan and a graduate of Trinity.

The dates of the Meetings are February 10-18, 1954, a week later than those printed in the catalog. It is expected that the new chapel will be ready for use by that time.

Benefit Game Makes $1600

The Booster Club has succeeded. With the help of the College and the town people the band now has its new uniforms. The 45 uniforms cost $80 a piece and the two bag pipes cost $125 apiece. The College donated 1,000 dollars; the balance from last year was $1,300; and the profit made from the benefit game was about $1600.

The total of these provided just enough to pay the bills. Although the Boster Club has finished this project it will continue to support the college in many ways, one of which will be the informing of high school students about Maryville College.

Bainonian To Hear About 'Teen-Agers In Persia'

Bainonian Society will meet at 6:15 tonight in Bainonian Hall. Mrs. Commodore Fisher will speak on "Teen-Agers in Persia". Following Mrs. Fisher's discussions there will be a short business meeting

Plans are now being made for next week's Fashion Show to be given by Proffitt's Department Store. Four Bainonian girls who have not been selected yet will model. Other arrangements are to be made early in the week.

Chapel Plans Include Use Of Building By January

By Faith Nollner

Some of the more alert students may have noticed the construction which has been under way on campus lately and wondered about it. Well, in case you haven't found out what it is; it's the college chapel, which will replace the one which burned down six years ago.

After six years of sitting on bleacher seats, the student body is becoming anxious to sit in the chairs with which the new chapel will be blessed. And we will have to wait only about two more months.

Lloyd's Statement

President Lloyd gave us this statement: "It is still expected that we will be able to use the main chapel building before the end of January. As soon as it is ready we will begin to hold chapel there and we will hold February Meetings there.

The college has asked the contractors to have the main chapel ready first if there is to be any difference in dates of completion. However, it is thought that there will not be much difference in the dates of completion."

Building Continues

This week they are putting in the forms for pouring concrete of the balcony floor. After that has been completed, they will finish the wall on the East side of the auditorium.

The brick layers will complete the walls of the theatre stage house as rapidly as weather will permit. If they are hindered by rain, they will work on those days on the inside of the chapel wall.

The workmen are also preparing to cover the concrete roof with special roofing and before long will be ready to begin placing the glass walls and windows.

'Nothing In It'

We frequently hear of complaints from readers that the Echo "doesn't have anything in it." Obviously, this is not literally true—we have yet to publish a paper merely with "Hello" written across page one.

But seriously speaking, we invite comparison of the Echo with other college weekly newspapers. We're funny enough to think that we try to do a good job of covering campus-wide news and of getting features on it that we think would be of general student interest.

Nothing about a newspaper ever runs exactly the way you'd like it to. Some weeks we're pretty worried about running short of copy and not having a "newsy" paper. And then there are the times when we can't print a fifth page to hold all the news we do have on hand. Perhaps that's what our complaining friends mean when they say the paper has nothing in it—their club news got left out.

So far as pictures are concerned, we think readers appreciate good ones. Too many destroy a newspaper's purpose of detailed reporting, but a newsworthy, interesting picture is often worth much more than a news story.

We'd like for you to think about these facts and consider them the next time you think something has been carelessly omitted from the Echo news. Despite our explanation here, we appreciate hearing criticisms of our paper—that's the best way to begin to improve it.

A printer once said, "If some of them people would come down here and lift these forms to the floor some time, I'll bet they'd think then there wasn't anything in the paper!"

Support Your Chilhowean

An important part of any campus is the year book. It preserves bteween its pages many of the highlights of the school year. Long after you have joined the ranks of the alumni the year book will recall many of the events and personalities that were a part of your college days.

At Maryville, as at many other small colleges, the year book is self sufficient financially. That is, it receives no aid from the school or from the student activity fee.

The Chilhowean has three main sources of income. They sell advertising space to the merchants in town; they sell page space to organizations on campus, and they sell copies of the book to the student body. Income must be procured from all three of these sources if the Chilhowean is to be a success.

The Chilhowean has a working budget of between four and five thousand dollars which is a considerable amount to raise on this campus in the course of a year. The Chilhowean does not aim to make a profit. It merely seeks to break even after all of the bills are paid and to present a worthwhile publication for the enjoyment of the entire campus.

In order to break even the staff of the Chilhowean has to sell at the very least 550 copies of the bok. So far sales have been falling away behind that goal. Faced with rising costs and lack of support by the student body the staff may be forced to cut down on the size and quality of the book.

This will be a disappointment to all of us and most of all to the staff who are putting a tremendous amount of time and energy into the production of the 1954 edition.

There is still time, however, to correct the situation. Sales will be extended to the end of the month. There is time to order a 1954 Chilhowean. The cost is small, five dollars in all. A two dollar deposit is enough to hold your copy. The remainder does not have to be paid until April.

How about it? Are you going to force Maryville to publish a second rate yearbook, or will you place your order today?

On Literature

The other day in Shakespeare class Dr. Hunter made some observations that started us on a train of thought. He was talking about people who try to draw useful lessons from Shakespeare's plays and suggested these points as being about all one could conclude,

"Love's Labor's Lost"—Don't masquerade as Russians.

"Midsummer Night's Dream"—Don't go to sleep in the woods.

"Merchant of Venice"—Don't borrow money to help out your friends.

These facetiously mentioned moral lessons do bring out the fact that too few of us read literature for itself, for the enjoyment we can derive from it. Too often our reading is a necessary evil, something we have to do for a class we're taking or something we endure for the sake of finding out some necessary information. As college students seeking a liberal education we should become capable of reading books and appreciating them without trying to force upon them any immediate practical value.

On Band Uniforms

We extend our congratulations to the band for the appearance it made in its new uniforms last Saturday. They made an impressive sight in their kilts as the representatives of a school with a Scottish tradition.

Thanks are due to the Boosters Club and all those who worked to help make the benefit game possible. A fine spirit of cooperation was shown by all concerned.

Scots & Soda

By Peggy Packard and Barbara Wilkie

One might get the impression that people are homesick around here, with everyone talking about bus tickets and plane reservations for Christmas holidays. Let's see now, how many more days are there. . . 46?

We heard about those sophomores working hard on Milton term papers only to have them flung into the basket marked "trash." Pretty good!

Those cozy corners back in the library stacks are used for studying??? Well, sometimes, anyway!

Suggestion to the administration: Install an elevator in Anderson like the one being used in the chapel construction project.

With the miles of stairs eliminated, we students could save the time otherwise spent in getting to class in studying our assignments. Just think how much better our English themes would be, if we had those extra minutes to write them in! That would mean better grades for us and less work for you teachers! (Oh well, we think it's a good idea anyway.)

We were all surprised at the mild weather last week. It made us feel like sleeping through classes. Could it be that spring fever was hitting early this year?

The Westminster Fellowship for college students got underway Tuesday night with the Christians being "devoured." (Now, Jeff, didn't you mean "devoted"?) The meeting was so informal that they announced, "Don't bother to wear shoes next week."

On Broadway

We've heard a lot about the various night spots that Tuesday town-nighters (and every-night Carnegie visitors) attend in downtown Maryville. Most of the places cluster around the bowling alley end of the boundaries.

Coming up Broadway, first there's Louie's or the Quickway, where they had to remove the TV set because they got too many "visitors" during the evening hours. Special of the house is an egg sandwich with onions fried with it.

Next there's Gilbert's, where they are available all night for Carnegie's town night, which begins any night around 10:45 p.m. Ah, yes, there's nothing like sitting in the window at Gilbert's to wait for a seat at the counter—absolutely nothing.

Then we come to the Broadway Cafe, where the french fries are of a different shape. We understand that there's a possibility that this wonderful (maybe) establishment may give MC'ers the privilege of playing records—for free, already yet!

By the time we get up to Lyons, they're getting ready to close up and throw people out. This eating place seems to be a favorite for town nighters—they're probably too lazy or it's too cold to walk any further down the street from the movies.

So much for the Maryville College sinful night life.

We hear Dr. Queener tried to get into the Remington Rand company the other day and see one of the big shots. But the man had just stepped out. A sign on the door said: "Out to lunch—I shall return."

One of the rare privileges which come with the honor of having your name listed with the Echo staff is the assignment of this "Culture" column! Frankly now, tell me who has time to read the latest books, o rthe plays, who goes to see the exhibits and other cultural attractions around Maryville College, and for that matter just who reads this column?

Anyway this reporter got busy and made a survey of all the things that you are supposed to mention and I found, much to my amazement, that it is of special interest to most of you students, who have nothing beter to do on Tuesday nights, to know what is showing at all the local theaters and drive-ins. (Really now, there are so many other nights you could go.) The Park is showing "Scared Stiff" with Martin and Lewis (you probably saw it last year) and the Capitol, oddly enough, is showing "It Came From Outer Space" in 3-D. The drive-ins are just showing anything!

An afternoon and evening performance of "Si Yo Fuera Deputado" (If I Were A Congressman) starring Cantinflas (Mario Moreno) was shown Wednesday in Thaw for all Spanish students. The movie was shown by Dr. James O. Swain of the University of Tennessee and his assistant Charles Beech. It was a story of the astronomical rise of "Cantinflas" from a humble barber to a successful defender of the poor in the court of law and later to a seat in Congress. These movies have proved helpful to students and they provide contact with the native speakers.

After wandering around for hours in the library looking for something on book reviews I found one that especially appealed to me (it must have been the cover) so I just read the whole book, "Requiem For A Nun," by William Faulkner (1950 winner of The Nobel Prize for Literature). Faulkner has already said of his book the only thing suitable: "I decline to accept the end of man. It is easy enough to say that man is immortal simply because he will endure; that when the last ding-dong of doom has changed and faded from the last worthless rock hanging tideless in the last red and dying evening, that even there will still be one more sound, that of his puny inexhaustible voice, still talking. I refuse to accept this. I believe that man will not merely endure; he will prevail. He is immortal not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice but he has a soul, a spirit capable of compassion and sacrifice and endurance. The poet's, the writer's, duty is to write about these things." It is a wonderful book and well worth taking time to read.

Spanish Club To See 'Romeo And Juliet'

The next regular meeting of the Spanish Club will be held Thursday, November 12, and a take-off on "Romeo and Juliet" will be presented in Spanish.

Tuesday, November 3, a film was shown to the members of the club and all other Spanish students. The two hour movie, which was a comedy, named "To Be A Congressman", was shown from 3:30-5:30 that afternoon and from 7:30-9:30 that evening. The entire film had no English speaking or writing in it. The story was explained by the head of the Language Department of the University of Tennessee before the film was shown.

Socially Speaking

By Shirley Armstrong

Not too much has been happening around here this past week, and practically everyone "stayed home" last week-end, so this won't be long at all.

Speaking of parties (they make the world go 'round, you know), Baldwin's house "monsters" (that's the house committee) had a big one Hallowe'en night. The invitations were extended by means of the fire gong about 11:30 p.m., and instead of a fire drill, the inhabitants of said dorm found the parlor decorated with spooks and jack-o-lanterns, and skits, songs, and refreshments all added to the fun.

And, those who went away last week-end include Cornie Force and Jane Robinson who had a gay time at the Georgia Tech-Vandy football game in Nashville.

Going South, Doris Scott and Sandra Miller were guests of Elizabeth Enloe in Atlanta. They didn't come back 'til Tuesday . . . must have had a wonderful time! Also, Nella Grinstead had as her guests Gracie Harrison and Donna French. Nella's home is in Sevierville.

Sports Spotlights

By Malcolm King

Why Is Football "King?"

Of all the American sports, football is considered the "king" of them all. In the following paragraphs, I have related some of the reasons why I think football is the leader of the sports of America.

Each fall, starting around the first of September, sports stores are stocked with football equipment, clothing stores decorate their display windows with pennants of large football colleges and universities, and the general conversation concerns the question of how certain schools will fare in this year's gridiron wars and who will be ranked top team in the nation. Everyone's blood runs high as the opening game draws near with a whole town turning out to support their team or thousands driving hundreds of miles to witness the state university in action. Yet, for basketball, baseball, track, tennis, etc., schools are lucky to get a third of the attendance for their complete seasons compared to that of "King Football."

One factor could be that the gridders very seldom have a schedule of more than ten or twelve games while baseball and basketball each have twenty or more in most schools with the Baseball Majors going 154. This short season with limited games because of the strenuousness of the sport holds the spectator's interest to the end, giving him just enough for him to eagerly await the arrival of the next season. Basketball drags itself along with an extended schedule and is climaxed by three or four tournaments as does baseball. Track, tennis and other sports just seem to be too individualistic to appeal to a large crowd.

Football is in almost every way the most spectacular and thrilling of the American sports. A person can see a dazzling 88-yard punt return for a touchdown, a last-minute field goal split the uprights to win the game, a long spiraling pass to put a team into the win column or numerous other thrilling occurrances to make his heart beat faster. Basketball has its last-minute wins; baseball delivers with its "large-charge" moments, as does track, golf, tennis and the others, but none to the extent of football.

Another thing is the tremendous pageantry people make of football. Every school, college and university has its football "fight" song, the Notre Dame theme being the most outstanding through the past era. The pre-game ceremonies and the colorful half-time shows—the bands with their high-stepping drum major, lively strutting majorettes and the clever marching maneuvers manipulated after a week of practice—are part of it. Each school has its color combinations which add to the picture as the teams mix it up before the gaping fans. The stilled beauty of the pre-game "Star Spangled Banner" with everyone attentive in attitude to the band centered on the field below is stirring in itself.

Fall's wintry evenings add much to the game of football. People consider it part of the game to bundle up in their winter dress and sit huddled together to witness the gridiron action. The peppy cheerleaders, in their glory during the football season, have the spectators yelling and jumping to aid in the warming process as well as supporting the team. The large outdoor stadiums packed with a capacity crowd ir a spectacle in itself—pom-poms, pennants, banners and people of all walks of life scattered throughout.

Then there is the annual Homecoming Game which is the biggest week-end of the season. In no other sport is there such enthusiasm over a game as this grid event. A bonfire, the big parade, the pre-game tension and the rip-roaring dance following the game with the Homecoming Queen reigning over her subjects feature the colorful event.

The players are the ones who really make the game tops. At least half of the game is the glory and satisfaction the boys receive from participation on college, high school or other teams. When a fleetfooted halfback races 85 yards for a touchdown, he is tired, but that is soon forgotten as he receives slaps on the back, hears the roars of the crowd and later sees his name in print. Such receptance boosts the ego of a ball player, and he, as well as others, seeks to duplicate the feat for the glorified satisfaction. The sportswriters love to splash a hero's name across the sports page and the fans relish the amazing accomplishments of the "stars". This makes football.

High schools and colleges alike back it to the fullest with banquets, pep rallys, alumni and special funds because there is no better press agent than a football team in the top ten national poll for any school. The prestige received is overwhelming and very few nowadays shun the opportunity to build up something close to them or themselves.

There is also the non-glorious side of the gridiron, and that is the daily drudgery the boys go through in practice. Calisthentics, pushing the sled, blocking and dummy workouts, continual running of plays and the heated scrimmages all figure in a day's work. Of course, some get ample credit for this daily knocking of heads; if not from one source, from another, one who is very dear to the leather-toting individual.

Some of the preceding statements may seem a little exaggerated to you upon reading this, but Saturday turn on your radio (all you hear is football games and "Mr. Touchdown, U. S. A."), scan the paper or observe with these facts in mind at the next football you attend, the surroundings, and you will see it everywhere. The Sunday paper is especially plugging the grid picture. There is nothing wrong with this because the American public anticipates such occurrences. It provides them with thrills and beauty. In fact, it is a big part of the annual American way of life. That is why football is "King"—its splendor, the beauty, the thrills, the razzle-dazzle, the crowded stadium, the glory and the prestige.

Take a Bow

Last week-end the marching band of Maryville College was in its glory because the eagerly awaited-for Scottish kilts had arrived. The band marched proudly with heads high as it paraded through town in the afternoon and strutted even more as the Scotch plaid and green were displayed for the first time on Honaker Field.

But what should have been the real interest came later—the benefit game between the Scots and the Vol "B" team. It was the second benefit appearance of the Highland gridders within one year and they deserve a hearty thanks and handshake for their contribution to the cause. Let's hope for the footballers' sake that Maryville does not have fund-raising campaigns every year!

Rough Sport

Earlier this week the Intramural Touch-Football League claimed two victims to its casualty list which has been gathering quite a few bunged-up ball players this year.

In the Alpha Sigma Scottie-YMCA Fleetfeet game Monday afternoon, Herb White of the Fleetfeet and Ken Hammond of the Scotties suffered injuries. Herb fell back on his hand and broke two bones in his wrist which he will be suffering from for several weeks. Hammond is now hopping on one good leg while the other is temporarily out of commission due to roughness in the Scot-Fleetfeet contest.

All season the patricipants in the padless football league have been bumped and bruised from the sometimes unnecessary bodily contact and from fired up members of the league which has made it one of the best years of the intramural league and also one of the roughest.

Scots Face Eagles In Last '53 Home Game

Resume Bitter Rivalry With Carson-Newman Tonight

By Bob Jackson

Tonight the Maryville Scotties engage the high-flying Carson-Newman Eagles on Honaker Field. The rivalry between the two schools has long been established and is one of the most highly contested in small college circles. In most of the contests, previous records have had little to do with the outcome of the game as both teams always go all out to defeat the other, and it is usually one of the most colorful and thrilling games of the season.

Last year, when the teams met twice, the Highlanders journeyed to Jefferson City only to lose the contest, but in the return encounter the Scots won out, 14 to 7. This evening's game will be the final home contest of the season, so let's everyone get out and cheer the Orange and Garnet on to victory.

Going by comparative scores, the Highlanders would be considered the favorite, but people in Knoxville give the Eagles a four or five point edge. This fans see it as a tossup with the team getting the breaks winning by a slim margin.

Scots Win, 7-0

An inspired Maryville College eleven, paced by some fine running by Clarence Shepard and Jimmy "Flash" Harris, triumphed over a favorite University of Tennessee B team last Saturday evening at Honaker Field by the score of 7 to 0.

Maryville scored the only TD of the game midway in the third quarter, when Tailback Clarence Shepard plowed into the end zone over right tackle for the score from one yard out. Captain Ken Shepard kicked the extra point. Shepard's plunge climaxed a fifty five yard Highlander drive, which had its source when Bob Shelton snared a stray Vol pass and returned the ball to the Scots' forty-five. The victory gave the Orange and Garnet a season record of four wins, two loses, and a tie, while the loss gave the Baby Vols a record of one win and two losses.

Although outweighed by several pounds in both the line and the backfield, the Scots proved to be the masters of the situation at all times. In the battle of statistics, Maryville was also the victor as they racked up sixteen firstdowns and 240 yards gained on the ground. Compared with these, UT gained only 119 yards while making nine firstdowns. The only phase of the game in which the visitors led was in yards gained passing and passes completed. Maryville's aerial game hit almost rock bottom as they completed only one pass in nine attempts.

Charlie Headrick Stars

Much of the credit for the Highlander victory should be given to play of the linemen, who stopped the famous Neyland power plays cold. Standouts for Maryville were Ends: Frank Garren, who made some spectacular open-field tackles, Don Moore, and Chuck Dunn; Tackles: Charlie Headrick, who may have played his finest ball game of the year against some of his former teammates, and Bill Strickland; Jerry King, Bob Berrong, and Roy Hayes, who recovered a Vol fumble, were outstanding in guard slots, while Jack Keny and "Dad" Breen did their usual fine jobs holding down the center post.

Special recognition should be given to "Flash" Harris who really turned in a terrific job of ball-carrying. Harris, who has always been one of the local team's best runners, but never a standout kicker or passer, had not seen too much action this season before last week's game. But when Buddy White suffered an injured leg, "Flash" stepped into the fullback post with only a few days' practice and gave a performance of a polished and cool veteran. Time and again he split the defense of the Vols and drove, smashed, and clawed for every inch of ground he could gain.

Tennessee had several opportunities to score, but did not seem to have the power to cross the last yard stripe. Late in the first half Lon Herzburn hit Charles Robinson on the Maryville four yard line with a forward pass, but before another play could be gotten underway time ran out. In the third quarter John Cventnick turned his own left end and, behind crushing blocking, ran sixty-five yards for what looked like a score, but a holding penalty against the Vols nullified the score.

Intramurals....

Earlier this week, the Intramural Football League ended its season in three-way tie. Involved in the trio deadlock were the YMCA Bombers, Alpha Sigma Scotties and the Rebels. The intramural managers met and arranged for the playoffs with the Rebels drawing a bye for the championship game under the lights Tuesday night.

Thursday afternoon the Bombers and Scotties clashed in the semi-final contest with the Scots coming out on top, 7-2. Both teams played a commendable game with Bill Van Benthuysen and Bob Jackson pacing the Bombers, and Horace Beckwith and Monk Johnston leading the Scotties.

The game's only touchdown came in the second period after a series of Beckwith-to-Johnston passes put the Scots on the Y 18-yard line. Beckwith then threw to Tom Paton for the score, regards of a blunder by a Bomber pass defender. John Graves caught a pass for the extra point. Late in the last quarter, the Bombers missed a golden opportunity to score when on the Scot two-yard line, but seconds later picked up a safety. The game ended, 7-2.

Tuesday night the Scotties and Rebels will both be eagerly looking for the win to cop the intramural cup, won last year by the Rebels.

SOCCER

To date only three teams have entered in the Intramural Soccer League. Unless more teams are entered soon, it is likely that the league will be abolished with basketball to follow.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Coach Ken Johnson's cross-country team failed to see action Wednesday as scheduled against the University of Tennessee squad.

The Scot runners were eager to go, but the UT team failed to appear to compete against them. UT had an important meet scheduled for today which led to their non-appearance.

Three Seniors Close Out Career

By Jim Demer

Three Scots will be playing for the last time on Honaker Field. Captain Kenny Shepard and Alternate-Captain Jerry King along with Frank Garren will lead the Highlanders as they meet their arch rivals, the Eagles from Carson-Newman, tonight. Maryville has one game left, an away contest against Concord State College W. Va., next Wednesday afternoon.

All three of these men have played good football this season. Kenny Shepard, although not very big, has supplied the Scot fans with plenty of thrills picking up long gains from the wingback spot. Kenny is only 5 feet 6 inches and weighs about 145, but must have read somewhere about big things coming in little packages. Playing both offense and defense can prove to be pretty hard for anyone, but to look at that little guy you couldn't tell it.

Shepard lettered here in 1949, then entered the Army, returning in 1952. He has proved to be a valuable addition to the team who was recognized this year by being elected captain.

Alternate Captain Jerry King is what is called a fighter. Jerry believes in winning and is out there on the field giving all he has all the time. In 1951 and '52 Jerry was a quarterback, first on a "T" formation team and then on the single wing used today. Last year he was moved to guard where it was felt that his agressive play would be of more use. King is quick to pick up the other teams' plays and is in on almost every tackle coming his way. The Scots will miss Jerry's fine line play next year.

The third senior is Frank Garren. When you look at Frank it is hard to picture him out there catching those passes the way he does. Frank is not a really big boy, being 6 feet and weighing 170 pounds. But he really grabs those passes in the end spot. Garren is also a good defensive player, breaking up those end runs. He has lettered here at Maryville three years and is well on his way to becoming a four year letterman. His hard play has had a lot to do with Maryville's fine record this year.

All three of these boys are from Maryville. Let's give them a big cheer tonight as they close out their playing days for the Scotties.

Wee Scotch Lass

By Dixie Conner

"Yes, we must remember to be volleyball-minded," were just a couple of words said by Mary Ann Thompson this Thursday. Friend Axley had just interrupted some beautiful basket-shooting; in other words, it is becoming harder and harder to keep from being basketball-minded. Understand? Among the basketball-minded Varsity members we have with us a local celebrity. To those of us who attended the high school basketball tournaments last year, Shirley McNeill proved herself to be an outstanding player. She's one of these very steady players—always there and always on the ball. But then there are a lot of M.C. students who didn't get to watch Shirley and the other tournament—it's not everyone who gets to sell candy and hot dogs and make slaw for the "M" Club so they'll come through with a free pass to those games!

Last Tuesday the Chillies ended this year's volleyball tournament in what must have been a very atives from each church, will meet in Cincinnati, Ohio, on November 11, 1953, to consider the communications received and to formulate recommendations. On succeeding days the three Permanent Committees, each composed of approximately twenty members, will hold joint and separate meetings in the same city to take action on the Joint Negotiating Committee's report. The Plan will there be completed for reprinting and submission to the three 1954 General Assemblies for vote next May. If the General Assemblies vote affirmatively, the Plan will be sent down to all Presbyteries of the three Churches for vote and if a sufficient majority of the Presbyteries of each Church vote affirmatively during the year, the General Assemblies of 1955 will confirm the votes and the General Assemblies of 1956 will consumate the union by merging into one General Assembly.

Results Uncertain

"Prospects of success in the voting," says Dr. Lloyd, "of course are unknown at this time. The information which we have indicates that probably the Plan of Union will be approved by all three General Assemblies next spring and by the Presbyteries of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., and of the United Presbyterian Church. In the Presbyterian in the U. S. (Southern), there is organized opposition to the union. Those opposed to it are carrying on an active campaign. Leaders of that Church believe that a majority of their people are in favor, but a ¾ vote of Presbyterians is required and it is not known whether the opposition to the union will be able to influence the situation enough to win more than ¼ of the Presbyteries to vote against the union. Final success, therefore, depends largely upon what happens to the sentiment in the Southern Presbyterian Church. We hope sincerely that in the providence of God the necessary vote for the union will be secured in all three churches."

Negotiations

Negotiations between the Presbyterian Church U. S. A., which has 2,500,000 members, and the Presbyterian Church in the U. S., which has 750,000 members, have been in process since 1939. The United Presbyterian Church joined in 1951.

Dr. Lloyd has been a member of the negotiating committee since 1939 and chairman since 1941.

Copies of the Plan are available at the offices of the three Assembly Stated Clerks.

Members of the Joint Negitiating Committee and of the three permanent Committees stand ready to assist in interpreting the Plan of Union in conference, correspondence, or public meetings.

one-sided game. The Chillies won by a score of (according to some Chillies) about 39-6. Sometimes I wonder what these Chillies are wanting to happen to me—I'm expecting a knife in my back one of these lovely, cold, smokey evenings.

This time the game was a squad game. In this game, all those who didn't get to play much and didn't make the team, play like mad fiends for the honor of their respective teams. It really gets exciting when at every serve one must keep an eye on the ball to be assured that one's head is not going to bounce off one's shoulders. I finally left—they were getting close. The spirit at these squad games is of the very best, though. The Howies had all four of their non-players hollering themselves sore. Also the old "Thumbs up!" routine went into action and, even more nerve-racking, the new "Thumbs down" tactics were referred to whenever the other team served. Do you wonder that I left? Aside from that, the Chillies thirty-five-or-so bench warmers were also screeching and hollering and making almost as much noise as the Howies' four. It's no wonder Mrs. Queener was sick today—anyway, she didn't show up for the game.

20 Scholarships

College seniors interested in the Scholarships should apply immediately to Dean of the School of Law, New York University Law Center, New York 3, N.Y.

Under the terms of the grant, 20 scholarships are awarded annually on a competitive regional basis, with two scholarships allocated to each of the 10 Federal Judicial Circuits. A candidate whose application is accepted is first screened by a state committee consisting generally of the Chief Justice of the State, the president of the state bar association, and the publisher or editor of a leading newspaper in the area.

Echo Reporter Notes Events At Typical Morning Chapel

By Bud Spalding

It was time for chapel. He came in, took his seat in the choir section, and was hardly noticed.

The Vesper Choir members came in in small groups and singly. Almost none of them saw him sitting there. And of those who did see him, one or two said hatefully to him, "Go on, get out."

He just ignored the snobs and regarded Dr. Hunter who was about to make the day's announcements.

"There will be a student body meeting after chapel this morning," one of the announcements went. He thought it was a very good idea and began proclaiming its worth in a loud voice. Of course this brought laughter and snickers from those who didn't understand the point he was trying to get across. So he retired silently to his seat.

Then came the announcement that the cross-country team had won a meet. This was far too good to pass up, so he arose once more and began cheering loudly. This time everyone thought it was funny—hilarious, you'd think, from the way they carried on. Even Dr. Hunter stopped and turned sideways to look amused at him.

That did it Now he was angry and he began berating the audience who had laughed at his sincere efforts. But now sentiment in his favor had turned. A few in the audience still thought his presence amusing, but more of them had the get-rid-of-him look in their eyes.

And so as soon as the doors were opened at the conclusion of the services, he bolted out the door, a hurt look on his face.

When he walked toward the gym at 8 o'clock the next morning, he had forgotten the previous day's incident. He was intent on going to chapel like any other person. From now on, he was not going to make a sound about any announcement or anything else. He was determined to be just as inconspicuous as the next fellow.

He marched cheerfully up to the door and looked long at it. Then, very reisgnedly, he turned and stumbled away, his head drooping.

He turned once more and looked at the sign on the door. It read: NO DOGS ALLOWED.

Not to get off the subject of Women's Varsity, but tonight the Maryville College Highlanders play their last home game, and with Carson-Newman, our traditional rivals. This game won't cost a cent unless you forget your student activity card (and who would do a thing like that?) so why don't we all drop our special studies (you can tell I don't have them yet!) and other unimportant things and show our team that we are behind them.

Thev go out on that field and give practically their life blood (ask Kenny Shepard—he's the one that told me) so I (but I'm a Yankee) don't see any reason why we can't go out and get ourselves a nice healthy glow in our cheeks from that East Tennessee air. You don't have to holler very loud if you don't want to (I understand they can't hear us anyway), but it makes them feel a little good if they know that more than one-third of the student body struggled out of their wee rooms just to see them play (he told me that, too—I think). Anyway, the point of all this is, I'd like to see all of us out at the football field Saturday. Also, Theta Epsilon is putting on a pep rally before the game to get us in the mood. That's a good time to practice all these yells we never seem to know at the game. If the band can go out in "sawed-off skirts" maybe we can too. Don't feel I'm slamming you—just trying to get up the nerve myself.

Who's Who Recognizes Nine MC Seniors

Barnwarming Show To Use Theme Of Story Book Land

Barnwarming, sponsored annually by the YWCA on Thanksgiving day, will have for its theme this year "Story Book Land." The entertainment is scheduled for 7 p.m., with the show to start at 8 o'clock.

Theme of the show is "Let's Pretend." Written by Naomi Burgos and Eddie Breitbach, it is directed by Miss Burgos and Betty Messer, with Carol Moore in charge of musical direction.

Queen's Presentation

The king and queen and class sponsors, whose identity is being kept secret until the event, will be presented just before the show.

Tedford, Butts

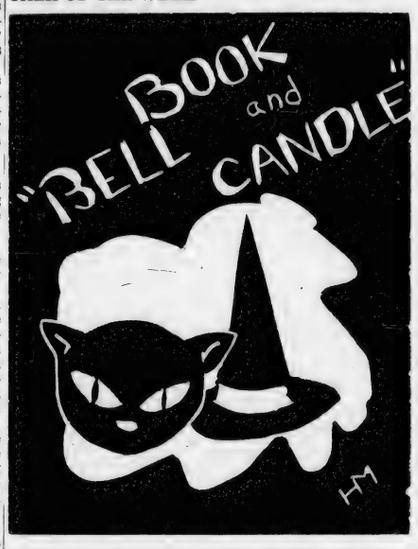
Playing a leading role as Prince Charming is Sidney Tedford. Sally Butts takes the part of Sally.

Others in the cast include Myrna Ginaven, John Barrows, Charlie Greathouse, Bill Howell, Judy Burgos, Junior Davis, Lavinia Lee, Lora Kinsinger, Sheila Sutton, Martha Jackson, Ann Daniels, Carol Moore, Jo Bash, Esther Lerch, Carolyn Beatty, and Jean Morgan.

Booths

Booths will be featured before the show begins. They will include a hare and tortoise race, a wishing well and the gingerbread house where refreshments will be on sale.

Proceeds from the booths, as well as from admission to the show, will be sent to help Korean children.



Committees

Other members of the Barnwarming committee in charge of the event include Jeannine Fiori, business; Mary Jim Bevan, publicity; Nancy McCammon, tickets; and Ginny Smith, booths.

Working on the sets are Bob Brand and Jack Barber.

Alice Rowe is in charge of props, and Martha Horton of costumes.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Y-Radio To Air 'Footsteps' Series

Tomorrow night there will be another "Footsteps Through Life" series on Y-Radio. It stars Dick Jensen as Poston Riggs, Jo Brooks and Joan McNaughton. Directors are John Moed and Nancy Rideout.

November 29 Y-Radio will present Louise Chandlin Moulton's "The Thanksgiving Guest," adapted for radio by Jimmy Shields. Leads are played by George Caldwell and Annie Bucher. It is directed by Sarah Pledger and John Graulich.

Last week Y-Radio presented a choral reading, "The Answers," by Darius Leander Swann. It described the search of a young man for the answer to the problems the world is suffering from and the struggle between Communism and the Church. Sarah Pledger and John Gralulich were the directors.

The program is broadcast each Sunday night at 9 over station WGAP.

Workshop To Hear Lorenz, Chubb Monday

For the November 23 meeting of Writers' Workshop the readers will be Bob Lorenz and Barbara Chubb. Joe Gilliland and Jim Kesler will be the critics.

At the last meeting A. J. Weir and Jeannine Fiori read. Gene Vogel and Dorothy Wells were the critics.

FAC Makes Announcement

Applied music students are asked to sign for final examination times on the sign-up sheet posted on the Fine Arts Center bulletin board.

NSA President Visits MC SC

James Edwards, president of the National Student Association, was the guest yesterday of the Maryville College Student Council as he paid a visti to the MC campus during a national tour he is making.

Edwards, who is a graduate of the University of Illinois, was to have been honored at an informal reception Friday night, and was to have attended the College Playhouse play later in the evening.

MC student body president Bill Dartnell announced Edwards' visit Wednesday night at Student Council meeting.

Personnel Office Announces Registration

Registration for the second semester, which begins January 13, 1954, will start Monday of next week when seniors will register at the Personnel Office.

Persons in the other school classes will begin registration later in the week. Blank schedule cards and instruction sheets will be distributed by chapel seats.

Fisher To Speak At Sunday Vespers

Commodore B. Fisher, associate professor of history, will be the preacher at the vesper service tomorrow evening.

The service will be held in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The Vesper Choir will provide music.

Robert D. Swanson, Vice President of McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, Ill., will be the guest speaker for the Vesper service Sunday evening, November 29.

Mr. Swanson will be on the campus November 29 and 30. Any students interested in McCormick Theological Seminary may arrange for an interview with Mr. Swanson.

Special Studies Party Planned

Jack Maxwell, president of the senior class, has announced that there will be a special studies party for the seniors on Tuesday night, December 1. He says that the place is not definite yet but will be announced later.

Rehearsal Offers Glimpse Of Finished Production

By Faith Nollner

"Doing what comes naturally is not nearly so easy on the stage". That's what I learned when I went to see Miss Craven Wednesday to get the low-down on the current Playhouse production. This sort of surprised me, because I had always been much impressed by the ease with which our future Barrymores and Coopers (if you like the more rugged style) had carried off the previous productions. So I decided to go over that night and get a first-hand pre-view of what was to come.

As I walked in the door, the first thing I saw was Grayce Guider holding a huge black Persian monster. On the other side of the gym, Miss Craven was sitting on the floor in tennis sneakers, evidently directing a tea party which was in progress between Mr. Kemp and Marcia Williams. Then Garnetta Alexander, an aspiring Lady MacBeth, it would seem, wandered in carrying two lighted candles.

Next I heard a noise as though the whole place were falling in, and Bob Read and Walt Elwood staggered in carrying long black things which I learned were proscenium (I had to ask how to spell that one). To the uninitiated, they're flats. All this while, the tea party, with variations, was progressing merrily.

I soon found that this was only a rehearsal for the rehearsal because Act I was just beginning. That is, it began after a short delay caused by Sammy, the cat, who didn't seem to like Marcia. But there's no love lost; Marcia doesn't like him either.

After a short lesson on how to hold a cat, Act I progressed to the accompaniment of banging proscenium. (I like that word!) With

Council Members To Attend College Conference At C-N

Five members of Maryville's Student Council will attend a conference at Carson-Newman College on December 5 to aid in establishing a division for East Tennessee in the state collegiate government association.

Council took action approving these five delegates at its meeting Wednesday night in the Student Center. The five delegates are Sonny Schackelford, Herb White, Bill Davis, Pat Halstead, and Jim Hunt.

Hunt and Miss Halstead have both attended previous state student government meetings.

Purpose of this meeting, according to a letter received and read at the Wednesday night meeting, is to organize an East Tennessee Division of the Tennessee Association of Collegiate Student Governments.

Council President Bill Dartnell explained that when he and Miss Halstead were at the state conference last spring, the few East Tennessee colleges represented had no official organization. The ET representatives at the meeting planned at the convention to hold an organizational meeting this fall, Dartnell explained.

The president said he believed the proposed meeting to "be a good thing," and that MC "should send someone." Miss Halstead said, "I think we're obligated to send someone."

Dartnell made suggestions about persons going to the meeting, saying he would like Miss Halstead to go since she was at the spring meeting, and that he would "like to see some underclassmen go too."

He then asked the Council for approval of his ideas and further suggestions. Members made suggestions of the five persons named, and then upon motion voted to send them to the meeting.

The question of Tuesday Town Night enforcement in Pearsons was apparently settled when WSGA president Mary Jim Bevan

Town Night Moved

Town Night this coming week will be on Wednesday night, due to the official school holiday on Thanksgiving. Student Council voted last Wednesday night to move Town Night up a day this week.

All rules usually applicable on Tuesday nights will be in force on Wednesday.

Marching Band To Give Concert Next Saturday

The Maryville College marching band, which has automatically become a concert band for the rest of the year, will present a concert next Saturday night in the auditorium of the FAC at 8. The band is under the direction of Ralph Moore and has 40 members.

The tentative program includes the following numbers: "An Outdoor Overture" by Aaron Copland; "Tales From Vienna Woods", Johann Strauss; "The Desert Song," Sigmund Romberg; "Second Suite for Military Band in F Major," Gustar Holst; "V. F. W. March," Edwin Franko Goldman; "Folk Song Suite," R. Vaughn Williams; and "A Solemn Music," Virgil Thomson.

Echo Schedule

As a change in the Echo's tentative publication schedule that was announced at the beginning of the semester, there will be no Echo next week, November 28.

The Echo will come out on December 5 and December 12.

Publication dates for next semester will be announced in January.

Laughton To Read Here Before Sell-Out Crowd

By Joe Gilliland

Maryville College Artist Series officials are expecting a sell-out crowd of well over 500 persons Monday evening, November 30, at this year's presentation, "An Evening With Charles Laughton."

John Barrows, student publicity chairman for the event, said this week that all the reserved floor seats had been long sold out but that a limited number of bleacher seats were still available.

Student prices for the bleacher seats are 20 cents per person with activity card. Bleacher seat tickets for town people are now on sale at Byrne's Drug Store in downtown Maryville.

Mr. Laughton, long known for his famous reading programs, is expected to arrive in Maryville late Sunday or early Monday. His program will take place at 8 o'clock Monday evening in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Mr. Laughton's presentation is the only event on the MC Artist Series this year. There will be no formal program, Mr. Laughton selecting his own passages to read.

Some favorite selections of Mr. Laughton's include excerpts from Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi," the Bible, Shakespeare, James Thurber, and Thomas Wolfe.

Mr. Laughton began his reading tours about six years ago. This appearance will mark his first visit to the Maryville College campus. His popularity has been heightened by his appearances on radio and television. Recently, Mr. Laughton was a key figure in the beginning of the First Drama Quartet, a group of well-known actors which performs public readings of plays. This Quartet had a tremendous success in New York and on tour with its presentation of "Don Juan in Hell."

Laughton has also recorded his famous readings from the Bible, readings which he did for friends before he began his public appearances.

He comes to Maryville under the management of Paul Gregory.

Thanksgiving Service Slated

A united Thanksgiving Day Service will be held Thursday morning, November 26, in the First Christian Church. The speaker will be the Rev. W. L. Pickering of Broadway Methodist Church.

Meals on campus on Thanksgiving Day will be breakfast at 8 a.m. and the annual Thanksgiving Dinner. No evening meal will be served.

German Club To See Movie About Germany

German Club will meet Monday night in Herr Reber's classroom. Ingeborg Rodemann, in charge of the program for the evening, will present a movie on Nuremburg, Ulm, the Danube, and other points of interest in Germany.

On Monday, December 7, the German Club is again presenting the movie "Wilhelm Tell." It will be shown in the afternoon for the benefit of all those wishing to see the picture.

Formals Without Flowers Set For December Dance

Athenian and Bainonian societies will present the first MC fall formal dance December 4 at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. The dance is formal in dress, but Social Board has asked that there be no flowers.

Theme of the dance is "Black Magic." "We're inviting everyone to come and enjoy an 'evening of enchantment'," Glenn Gentry, Athenian dance chairman, said this week.

Al Homan is in charge of the student dance band which will play.

Others making arrangements for the dance include Mary Ann Thompson, Carol Jean Summers, and Al Lotito.

The affair is a program dance. Admission price is $1.20 per couple.

Tentatively, the dance committee has planned for the dance to last until 11:45 p.m., but this time is not yet definite.

This formal fall dance is being sponsored in coordination with a new dance program approved last semester by the Executive Council of the Faculty, which allows Social Board to plan informal dances at its discretion, and provides for one formal each semester.

Formerly the single fall dance was informal, and the one formal of the school year was held in the spring.

Council, Faculty Choose Leaders

By Abby Crosby

Nine Maryville College seniors have been elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, according to announcement made recently by Frank D. McClelland, dean of students. The students are Mary Jim Bevan, Hal Black, Naomi Burgos, Bill Dartnell, Carol Demler, Janice Eakin, David Gates, Jim Hunt, and Hank Van Hassel.

Basis for Selection

Students are selected on the basis of student leadership, scholarship, and participation in extra-curricular activities. This selection is made by a vote of the faculty and student council.

Large Number

It is interesting to note that this class has a larger number of students elected to Who's Who than many recent graduating classes. The maximum membership from Maryville College is ten students, with last year's class represented by only seven.

Bevan

Mary Jim Bevan is an art major from Whitehaven. She is the president of the Women's Student Government Association, having served as class representative on the board during her junior year. She was on the Chihowean business staff, has been an officer in Theta Epsilon, is a member of Girls' Glee Club, and is a Student Council member.

Black

Hal Black, a sociology major from Ridgeway, Pa., is the president of the YMCA this year, having held various cabinet positions in the past. He is a member of the Social Board and the Student Council, and was, for two years, a member of the Vesper Choir.

Burgos

Naomi Burgos, a political science major from New York City, is a member of Student Council, Writers' Workshop, and Pi Kappa Delta. She is on the debate team, having been an active member for several years, and is on the Y Cabinet.

Dartnell

Bill Dartnell is a political science major from Dover, N.J. He is the president of this year's Student Body, and last year was the Chilhowean Business Manager.

Demler

Carol Demler, an elementary education major from Pittsburgh, Pa., is the president of the YWCA. Last year she was the YWCA secretary, and the year before was a Nu Gamma leader. She is on the Social Board and the Student Council, and is a member of Bainonian.

Eakin

Janice Eakin, an English major from Prospect, Pa., was the Nu Gamma chairman last year, having been a Nu Gamma leader the year before. She was the secretary of the Student Council last year, and is on the YWCA Cabinet. She has also been a Bainonian officer.

Gates

David Gates, a physics major from Fulton, Mo., was the treasurer of the Student Council last year. During his sophomore year, he was the vice-president of his class. He has been a member of Band and Orchestra, and is at present the president of the French Club and an officer of Playhouse.

Hunt

Jim Hunt, a psychology major from Union, Pa., was the vice-president of the Student Body during his junior year. He was treasurer of his class his freshman year, and was the president his sophomore year. At present, he is an officer of French Club and the treasurer of the Student Council.

Van Hassel

Hank Van Hassel, an English major from Paterson, N.J., is a member of the Student Council. During his junior year he was president of his class. He has been a member of the Y Cabinet for two years, and is a member of Writers' Workshop.

Thanksgiving

The other day near the table where Barnwarming tickets were on sale, we heard someone comment, "What're they selling tickets for? I thought everything around here was free."

The answer to that question is that money from Barnwarming goes to a good cause. Each year the proceeds are sent to aid in mission work, either in this country or abroad.

This is one way in which we can express the thankfulness that is supposed to be a part of Thanksgiving, in fact the reason for its existence.

Too often we take an unduly cynical attitude toward such a statement, resenting someone's telling us to be grateful and count our blessings. Everyone has problems, and we don't want to be cheered up by being reminded of how much better off we are than someone else.

Actually, being grateful should not mean taking a smug and self-satisfied view of life. It would better involve taking stock of ourselves and our situations, but not concentrating only on ourselves. We should, too, take a look at the world around us.

When we think of our money going to a mission field, we should realize not only that we are going to help someone else but also that other people and cultures have values to offer us. Our thankfulness should include an ability and willingness to learn.

On School Spirit

On a past Saturday night while watching a football game we suddenly thought of the word, "spirit." We asked ourselves, "What does it really mean"? It certainly cannot mean calmly sitting here watching the game and seeing the weary cheerleaders get up time and again to try to get this wonderful(?) crowd to join in a rousing cheer which should be heard miles away." But should the crowd, now attending college, have spirit? Since they are now grown-ups, shouldn't they be sophisticated?

Mr. Webster gives us many meanings for the word "spirit", "but those which were most interesting to us were the following: "life, courage, energy, and vim; enthusiasm for an object—as, school spirit—." "Sophistication," according to Webster, means "worldly-wise." We see absolutely no harm in joining both parties, in fact, we think it is and should be most profitable. After all, "life" is a necessity. And we are sure that everyone has some "courage, energy, and vim"; and as for "enthusiasm for an object—as school spirit—" why shouldn't everyone have that? Becoming "sophisticated" or "worldly-wise" is a part of growing up and it is only natural for everyone to have some sophistication.

But you say to yourselves, "Why should I worry about school spirit now? Football is over." Nevertheless we have heard that basketball will soon commence and we are sure that the presence of school spirit at this time can do the team no harm. In fact, standing behind the team and giving it some support will do a great deal of good.

So com'on all college sophisticates—show your balanced personality and cheer your team on with some school spirit!

Fall Dance

This year for the first time the annual fall dance is to be formal. There have been more dances this year than ever before, and the holding of a formal dance is yet another step in having more and varied social events in campus.

We think the decision to have the dance formal, yet corsage-less, was a good solution to the possible objection that that it might prove to be too much of an expense.

By this method, boys are enabled to save their money—at least on this one occasion—and still the girls have a chance to wear the formals they've been saving since the rush weeks or the faculty reception.

Scots & Soda

By Frei and Kinsinger

After hearing last week's chapel speaker inquiring as to the length of time it would take a person to go through Maryville College if he studied all the courses that are offered, Dr. Hunter took himself off to make some calculations on the subject.

He came up with the conclusion that if one student took all the 1011 semester hours of academic credit that MC offers, at the normal rate of 32 hours a year, he would require 31 and a half years to complete it. That would mean if he began in September, 1953, he would finish his course in December, 1984.

As for us, we think we'll just go ahead and graduate.

As a final proof that things are going to the dogs, or maybe it's just special studies getting us down, there's the fact that Dr. Lloyd lectured in ethics last week on the story of Little Black Sambo. At least it was relaxation after hearing about egoism and altruism.

Speaking of ethics, the latest excuse for eating up your roommate's food is that it's all just pure altruism—if you devour it you're saving her—or him—from the evil effects of too much to eat.

A neighbor of the college told us an interesting story about Dr. Sisk the other afternoon. Seems that way back when he was a student at Warren Wilson he was supposed to "rake out" the coffee pot after every meal. One day the routine of things got too rough for him. He threw the pot out the window; they say he still blushes when he sees a dented piece of kitchen ware. (That's a pun?)

"I'm a Stupid English Major"

Students of the development of the English language were discussing the various ways of indicating the gender of nouns. Dr. Hunter mentioned such names of animals as billy goat, nannie goat, and chanticleer the cock. Then he was bewildered by the laughter of the class when he didn't catch Abby Crosby's comment, "And Billy the Kid?"

Then another bright student stated this fact: "We frequently refer to cats as 'she' and dogs as 'he'—unless we know better."

Dear Teacher

Practice teachers encounter many amusing situations. We rather like the answer one usually quiet and sensible student gave to a question on soil conservation. "You ought to see the soil in Georgia," said he. "It's so poor that the farmers have to plant three seeds in every hill—one to push, one to pull, and one to come up!"

Grading papers affords many a laugh, too. A future history teacher found that one of her charges thinks suffrage means the right to suffer.

NSF To Award Fellowships

The National Science Foundation has recently announced that it plans to award approximately 750 graduate and post-doctoral fellowships for study in the sciences for the 1954-1955 academic year. These fellowships which are open only to citizens of the United States will be awarded solely on the basis of ability.

They are offered in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences, including physical anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), physical geography and interdisciplinary fields.

Graduate Fellowships

Students studying for either their master's or doctoral degrees are eligible for graduate fellowships at the first year, intermediate or terminal year levels of graduate study. College seniors majoring in the sciences who expect to receive a baccalaureate degree during the 1953-1954 academic year are encouraged to apply for the awards.

The selection of predoctoral Fellows will be based on test scores of scientific aptitude and achievement, academic records, and recommendations regarding each candidate's abilities. The evaluation of each candidate's qualifications will be made by panels of scientists chosen by the National Academy of Sciences. The final selection of Fellows will be made by the National Science Foundation.

Annual Grants

The annual stipends for predoctoral Fellows range from $1400 to $1800; the stipend for postdoctoral Fellows is $3400. In addition to providing limited allowances for dependents and travel, tuition and certain required fees will be paid by the Foundation. The tenure of a fellowship is for one year and can be arranged to begin at any time after June 1, 1954, but normally must not be later than the beginning of the 1954-1955 academic year at the institution of the Fellow's choice.

In order to be considered for the 1954-1955 academic year, graduate applications must be received in the Fellowship Office of the National Research Council by January 4, 1954.

Detailed information and application forms may be secured from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Ave., N.W., Washington 25, D.C.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Shirley Armstrong

Did I hear someone say that only the "cultured" collegians read this column? Or maybe it was vice versa. . . but anyway, here goes a "good attempt" (as a certain English professor is so fond of labeling my compositions!) to let you in on a few things here and there!

First of all, if you didn't see "Bell, Book and Candle" last night, by all means, don't miss tonight's performance. That is, if you're looking for a modern slant on witchcraft. You may remember, Lili Palmer and Rex Harrison played the leads on Broadway.

Then, Monday night, November 30, Charles Laughton will be presented as the Artist Series attraction for this year. Just in case you're interested, he (Laughton) directs "John Brown's Body," which will be in the U-T Concert Series sometime after Christmas. You'll probably be hearing more about this later.

If you liked the style (theatre in the round) in which the Shakespeare scenes were presented, you would like the Carousel Theatre. (We're not really plugging U-T this week.) Their next production will be "Black Chiffon," which will run November 30 through December 5.

And then there are the usual movies showing down town on Tuesday night. Gary Cooper and Barbara Stanwyck are playing in "Blowing Wild" at the Capitol. Saw the prevues of this about six months ago, and it doesn't look too bad. Sort of on the order of "High Noon." You know, Frankie Laine singing in the background, although this one isn't in Technicolor. I think this is the one he sings "Black Gold" in. . . maybe not, I can't remember.

The Park is showing "The Glory Brigade" with Victor Mature. This sounds like something ancient, but it just might prove to be interesting. . . if you like Mature. And, so much for the "flickers."

"Y Radio" will be at the usual time, 9 p.m. Sunday night, so be sure and listen.

There are a number of volumes on the new book table this week that should prove interesting to English students—or to anyone else for that matter.

A new edition of William Langland's "Piers the Plowman" in the library is complete with notes and a glossary, making it a good critical edition.

Cazamian's "Development of English Humor" traces English humorous writing from Old English through Chaucer and Shakespeare and the seventeenth century writers.

'The Melville Log" is Herman Melville's own diary, a "sort-of" autobiobraphy of his own life.

In conclusion there are several unique and ingenious displays in the library that are well worth some attention.

Rehearsal . . .

Sammy pacified, we continue . . .

As you may imagine, the sets at a rehearsal are very elaborate. For a door, there are two chairs, which are swung very realistically back and forth. For a table, we have a lab stool, for walls, there is nothing and you can't imagine how hard it is to drink a cup of tea that isn't there!

Well, there isn't any need to tell about the plot. If you went last night, you know it; if you're going tonight, you certainly don't want me to spoil it for you. As you know, the play is about magic; and take it from me, it's spellbinding!

Some of the behind-the-scenes people who deserve a great deal of praise and very seldom get any, are the people who work on the committees.

For this production of Playhouse the committees were publicity, Abby Crosby and Ray Harley; stage manager, Jimmy Shields; assistant stage managers: Bob Read and Garnetta Alexander; tickets, Polly Tranavski and Clara Gowan; make-up, Jo Ann Brooks, Sandra Motsinger, and Janet Maib; costumes, Grayce Guider; electricians, Doug Stubblefield and Bugs Ebright (who, incidentally, have done the lighting for three plays for Experimentals and Playhouse this semester). House chairman is Martha Horton; set designs are by Bob Brand and the technical work is done by Mr. Kemp.

Giving blood to the Red Cross blood drive last week were 163 persons. 15 others volunteered but were turned down for various reasons. An additional 50 students who signed up did not appear. The number of pints given fell far short of the anticipated goal of 300, but the Red Cross is reported satisfied with the 163 pints it received.

Sports Spotlights

By Bob Jackson

Now that the football season is over for another year, our thoughts turn to the prospects of next year's team. Several boys, who will be returning next fall, really came into our own this past campaign, and did some outstanding playing. In the following lines we will attempt to give a description of a few of those boys who showed promise of future greatness.

The first player is Charles Headrick, whose big number 50 was evident at all the Highlanders' games at the tackle slot. A big boy standing an even 6' and weighing 220 pounds, Charlie turned in some standout performances especially in the benefit game with the Baby Vols and against Concord in the season's finale. Time and again in the U-T game, Charlie crushed the attempts of the Vols to gain ground by rushing, and it was Charles Headrick who blocked a Concord attempt to kick a game winning field goal.

Two junior boys caught some of the limelight this past season with their play at the center position. Bill Breen and Jack Keny were the two players who handled most of the pivot duties for the Scos. Breen, who has been on the squad for three years, but had the misfortune to be playing behind Homer Garren, the Scots captain in 1952, blossomed forth as an excellent center and a capable linebacker when given a real chance. "Dad," as he is known to almost everyone, is a rough and ready ballplayer who makes up for his lack of size with spirit and determination. Jack Keny, who is playing his first year with the Scot gridders, has been a defensive star all season while doing a commendable job on offensive. Not a one sport athlete by any means, Jack is a crack hook-shot artist for the Maryville Five. He packs 180 pounds on his 6' 3" frame.

BREEN

WHITE

William "Buddy" White, although only a freshman, has already made a name for himself as a fast hard- plunging fullback. Until injured late in the season, Buddy was running second string fullback and aiding Ken Shepard with the place kicking duties. A quiet, modest guy off the field, the former Maryville Red Rebel, has the ability and the proper attitude to become a star.

Jim Cox was a letterman for Coach Honaker's squad in 1951, but last year he transferred to Emory and Henry and played some ball at end for the Wasps. Returning to Maryville this year, Cox easily made the team and next year may easily be the starting right end. Jimmy is majoring in Business Administration, and is a graduate and former captain of Seveirville High. He is 5' 11" tall and weighs a husky 185 pounds.

Bob Ramger, a sophomore from Pinellas Park, Florida (St. Pete is one of its suburbs) is a lightning-fast back and an excellent pass receiver. A 5' 11" boy, Bob has shone speed and deception in his play this year and, with a little bit of patience on defense, should become a standout athlete.

Credit the following to Roy Roberts

A few years ago when all forms of intercollegiate athletics were being rocked by scandals and cries were being heard on all isdes to de-emphasize the sports. Now all this was going on in the outside world because, here at Maryville, the Scots had just completed their second winless season. Charlie Allen, the captain that year, was trying to get a speaker for the annual football banquet and someone suggested that he try Tom Anderson, the stellar sports writer for the Knoxville Journal. When Charlie called and identified himself, Anderson is supposed to have said: "Oh, I know you. Your from that college that has been de-emphasizing football the last two years."

P.S. He didn't come to speak either.

I have a nomination for the longest football game of the year. It seems that up North two high school teams met on a Friday night to play an ordinary game. But, by half time, fog had so obscured the players that action on the field was invisible to the spectators. During the time out, the officials and the coaches decided to postpone the second half to the following Monday evening. Some Game!

Tate Gets Promotion

Coach Johnson unveiled his newest cross country star yesterday, when Larry Tate ran with the Scots against Sewanee U. Tate, a Pennsylvania boy, first came to the attention of Johnson when he won the annual intramural cross-country race in the excellent time of ten minutes for the two mile course.

The cross country team is at Bryan University for the second annual invitational meet. Last year the Scots coped the trophy and Captain Homer Rickabaugh hopes his team will repeat last year's win. The meet will be the finale for Captain Rickabaugh and Rod McMillan. We know that they and the rest of the team will be trying to close out the season with a victory.

Coach John Davis announced this past week the schedule for the Maryville wrestling team. The Scot grapplers, under Captain Tom "Tiger" Bugenhagen, hope to improve over their fourth place finish in the SEC last year.

The Schedule

Dec. 5—Knoxv. YMCA	There	Feb. 6—M. Tenn. State	Here
Dec. 11—Knoxv. YMCA	Here	Feb. 13—Open
Jan. 23—Chattanooga	There	Feb. 19—Emory U.	There
Jan. 29—M. Tenn. State	There	Feb. 20—Auburn Univ.	There

Vanderbilt and Sewanee are possibilities for the open date.

Breen Elected To ABC

END SCOT CAREERS—Capain Ken Shepard, Co-Captain Jerry King, and Frank Garren bow out of the Maryville College Grid picture this year. All three boys have played superb bal lthis year and will be missed next year. Shepard played wingback; King guard; and Garren played right end. King's out standing play may bring him a Little All-American team nomination.

Gridders End Season King, Shepard, Garren Close Out Scot Careers

Coaches Lombe S. Honaker and J. A. Davis' forces ended a very successful football season on November 11 when they met Concord State Teacher's College on Bluefield, W. Va.'s Mitchell Stadium field as part of an Armistice Day's celebration. The Scots completed the season with four wins, three losses, and two ties.

Donning the Orange and Garnet colors for the last time were three stellar performers—Captain Ken Shepard, Co-Captain Jerry King and Frank Garren. Shepard's fine play and superb leadership contributed considerably to the Highlander's fine season.

King displayed such fine talent and leadership that he has a good chance of being named to the Little All-American squad. Garren played by far the best season of his career, credited as being the best receiving end of the Scots and in most games the standout defensive end. All three boys will be sorely missed by the '54 Orange and Garnet squad.

Tie Concord State, 6-6

In the Highlander's finale, they tied the Concord State Mountain Lions, 6-6, before a large crowd of Armistice Day and Homecoming fans in Bluefield's Mitchell Stadium.

Jim Harris and Clarence Shepard paced the hard-running attack of the Scots while Jerry King and Jack Keny were the outstanding linemen, playing excellent defensive ball.

It was the combination of Harris, C. Shepard and Bob Ramger that tallied the lone Scot score. With only a minute and 25 seconds left in the half, these three moved the ball down the field, aided by good blocking, to the Lions' one yard line where Harris plunged for the score—36 seconds left on the big clock.

Neither team was able to do anything the first quarter and most of the second with the feature being a series of punts by each team. Then, after getting the ball on their 19 yard line, the Scots began to move. Shepard and Harris chewed up the yardage and when slowed down, a pass to Ramger put the ball deep in the Lions' territory. The Scot line charged hard and the backfield field broke fast, and seconds later the score was 6 to 0. The educated toe of Captain Shepard had a mental lapse as he failed to boot the etxra point.

The Mountain Lions came back in the third period with much determination. Midway in the period the Lions recovered a fumble on the Scot 44 yard line and quickly moved it down to the two where the boot and the score was deadlocked.

In the fourth quarter, Concord State got a break when Ramger was hit hard after taking a punt on his 14 and fumbled with the Lions recovering. They moved it to the one yard line, but superb defensive play by Jack Renfro and crew pushed them back to the nine. A field goal was attempted, but Charlie Headrick deflected the ball to spoil the attempt. Minutes later the horn sounded to close the '53 Scot season.

C-N Wins, 7-0

Carson-Newman added "insult to injury" when they downed the Highlanders, 7-0, on Honaker Field two weeks ago after splashing white paint on various points of the campus previously.

The game featured two determined squads playing their bitterest rival of the season. Maryville outplayed the Eagles from start to finish, but a lapse on the part of the Scot pass defenders enabled Halfback Bill Bacon to toss a 35 yard TD pass to End Norman Hanson for the game's only score.

It was in the early minutes of the first quarter that the Eagles tallied, and afterward they managed to stifle a half dozen TD thrusts by the Scots. The closest Scot threat came in the third period when they marched to the Eagle 14 only to have a Shepard pass intercepted on the one yard line.

JACK KENY—Player of the Week

Tailback Clarence Shepard lead the Maryville offense while big Jack Keny played outstanding defensive ball—good enough to be named Player of the Week.

Maryville had 12 first downs to four for the invaders while the Scots had a yardage-gained total of 143 to the Eagles 81.

Rebels Nip Scots To Retain Title

The Rebels beat the Alpha Sigma Scotties in a tight game on Tuesday, November 10. Thousands cramped into the packed stands of Honaker Field to see the Rebels win the intramural football championship for the second straight year. The Rebels beat the Sigs, 7-0.

The Scotties kicked off to the Rebels, and then held them on the first three downs forcing them to kick. The Scots moved the ball for several first downs, but could not muster up enough drive to score. There was an exchange of punts with the Rebels picking up yardage. The Scotties, once again in possession, pulled their best play of the game. Bob Johnston took a lateral behind the line of scrimmage from Horace Beckwith and then passed to Beckwith in the flat. Beck ran the ball to the 2 yard line where he was pushed out of bounds. The Sigs had four downs to score, a touchdown being called back, but failed to cross the goal line to the satisfaction of the referees. The Rebels took over, but could not go anywhere.

The second half opened with the Rebels in command as the breaks went their way. Lyn Sexton speared the drive to the Scottie 15 with two nice catches. Then Chick Matthews hit Dick Abbott in the end zone, Abbott making a beautiful catch to put the Rebels in front. Matthews passed to Bill Howell for the extra point. The game ended with the ball in possession of the Scotties deep in their own territory.

The '53 Scot Gridders will be honored with a banquet Monday night in the College dining hall, climaxing the successful season of this year's squad.

Intramurals....

Intramural basketball started off with a swish this week as the "A" League played Monday and the "B" League Wednesday. Games for yesterday were postponed till Monday and games are scheduled for this afternoon.

Monday afternoon the YMCA Aces opened the season with a smashing 43-17 win over the Destroyers. Speedy Kent Buser and Mike Connally paced the victors with 11 and 12 points respectively while Ken Shepard led the losers with 7. In the second game, Tom Paton with 12 points led the Alpha Sigma Scotties to a 30-21 victory over the Question Marks who were aided by the Ace's Connally's 8 points.

In the final game, the red-and-white clad Moser squad downed last year's intramural champs, the Snowbirds, by a score of 44-30. Jump-shot artist Bob Ramger and Center Monk Johnston, 17 and 16 points respectively, paced Moser's while sharpshooting John Anderson had 14 for the losers.

On Wednesday afternoon the "B" League commenced with three games. Charlie Miller's 8 points and Don Moore's 10 led the Local Yokels to a 35-31 win over the Athenians in a closely contested game. The College Hotshots won their initial contest by trimming the X's, 28-19. Wallace notched 10 for the winners while Ed Griggsby led the losers with 6.

The Ramblers rambled right over the Pre-Min squad with a 45-16 romp. Eagle-eyed Bob Jackson ripped the cords for 19 of the Ramblers' points as Hyne had 5 for the Pre-Mins.

Hoopsters Prepare For Season Opener

By Tom Paton

As the 1953-54 basketball season draws near, Coach Honaker and his squad are working hard to round out the team. About 23 boys are trying to capture posts on the varsity and B-team squads. Of these about 12 will be chosen for varsity, and nine or ten for the B squad. The team will have to be picked in time for the opening game with Hiwassee on Dec. 5, at Hiwassee.

The backbone of the varsity team will be made up of five returning lettermen. Those who won letters last season and are back this year are: Dick Abbott, last year's high scorer; Jack Keny, the big pivot and rebound man; A. C. McWilliams, the flashy ballhandler; Bob Shelton, set-shot artist; and Bob DeLozier, a fine ballhawk and defensive man. Other re-

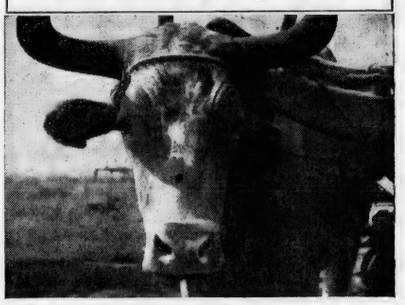
Wee Scotch Lass

By Dixie Conner

Basketball season is going to break wide open soon and even the girls are getting in on it. Emma Curtis and Betty Watson are giving Mrs. Queener a hand at teaching and refereeing in Varsity. Betty gives the exercises to open the hour and from there on out Emma takes over. Don't think Betty's getting gypper, though, because turnabout is always fair play and she'll be a chief assistant next semester while Emma takes her turn at scrounging around.



This week the Chillies are scrimmaging and the Howies are going pro. The guards and forwards have split up and Liz Murphy is literally drilling the latter. As a matter of fact, Chillies Corny Force and Jane Kirkpatrick didn't have a chance when they strolled nonchalantly in to Howies' practice. They were promptly shooed out and some fake "plays" were called. Ah, sweet mystery of life!

Last year, some of you may recall, a lot of people objected to the girls' basketball rules. A conference was held last week to decide whether the same rules, which official college intramural rules, or the high school rules, which some have felt we should have, should be used this year. It was decided that the N.S. G. W. S. (National Section Girls'-Women's Sports) rules would be put on a year's trial period. This means that the only changes made would be a limited dribble and tie-up of the ball. The girls are slowly becoming accustomed to this.

Although basketball is on its way, football has hardly begun for some people, namely Theta and Bainonian Societies. Tonight they have some real thrills and lots of spills in store for us at 6:15 when they play their Powder Puff Football Game. I doubt that many of us who like to get a few laughs out of life would miss this!

Sometimes people are inclined to wonder if the Physical Education Department ever does anything but create aching muscles in that Intramural Gym. Well, it does. Christmas is coming and that wee gym is literally buzzing with activity. All I can say for now is that —well, an awful lot of us are lazy —right? And we like to be entertained—right? And it does our old hearts good to see someone really work up a sweat to keep us happy.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"Your hair's no yoke" bellowed Sheedy's gal. "Those cowlicks look awful. Why not take the bull by the horns and get yourself some Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's favorite hair tonic? Keeps hair combed without greasiness. Makes you look cud-dly. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Relieves annoying dryness. Contains Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. I won't cow-tow 'til you start using it heifery day." Paul was udderly stunned, so he bought some Wildroot Cream-Oil for just 29¢. He told his girl the good moos and now they're hitched for life. So just steer yourself down to any toilet goods counter for a bottle or handy tube. And remember to ox your barber for Wildroot Cream-Oil too. You'll be the cream of the campus—and that's no bull.

Bainonian, Theta To Meet In 'Powder Puff' Game

An extraordinary meeting will take place this Saturday night under the flood lights of Honaker Field at 6:15 sharp, where there will be a display of the vim, vigor, and vitality of the Theta and Bainonian "all American" football teams in a Powder Puff Ball Game. The coach for Theta's squad is Buddy Gilbert, and the cheerleader is Jackie Kendall. Ken Shepard and Jim Cox are the coaches for Bainonian, and the cheerleaders are Jean Dildy and Margie Haynie. turnees from last year who will be seen in action are Lynn Sexton, Charlie Partee, George Henry, Bob Patterson and Earl Lawson.

These boys will have a lot of competition from a fine group of newcomers. These new men are led by three big boys named Bill; Bill Wallace, Bill McBrayer, and Bill Strickland. All of these Bills are over 6' 3" and should strengthen the team under the boards. The other boys vying for places on either of the squads are Tom Bass, Bill Dent, Ken Hutson, Guy Selander, Larry Tate, Jim Roof, Don Sherrick, Bob Bivens, David Mills, and Ed Drum.

The season's schedule is still in a tentative state but the team should have about 21 games on its card. After the opener against Hiwassee the team will play its first home game against Carbon Carbide.

Council . . .

reported that men would now be required to leave Pearsons parlor at 10:15 on Tuesday nights.

Virginia Smith and other council members brought up this question at last week's meeting. She said that couples, both those having parlor dates and those coming in from town, were not leaving until 10:25 or later.

Some other members told Council that Dean of Women Massey gave girls in Pearsons permission to have parlor dates until 10:25 on week nights. This permission was given last year, they said.

After much discussion, council last week decided the most practical way of settling the problem would be to have Miss Bevan talk with Miss Massey and Mrs. LeMaster, Pearsons housemother, requesting a 10:15 limit on Tuesday night.

Miss Bevan reported Wednesday that both Miss Massey and Mrs. LeMaster had agreed to the moving back of the time limit on Tuesday nights. This 10:15 limit applies both to parlor dates and town dates.

Herb White said a Student Council bulletin board for Anderson Hall was now "definite." The new board is slated to be put on the wall over the drinking fountain.

It was also announced at the meeting that the Coke machine proposal, the Town Night proposal, and the new Inter-Club Council constitution would go before Student - Faculty Senate on Friday (yesterday). No one at the council meeting explained about the content of these proposals.

Town Night monitors reported no violations at either this or last week's meeting.

Council approved a proposal from the Tusculum College student council suggesting an exchange chapel program be worked out. A similar project was carried out last year. President Dartnell appointed Jim Kesler and Jim Hunt as a committee to arrange the program.

At last week's meeting the council heard reports from Bill Davis, on the blood drive, and Clara Joe Minarik, on Westminster Fellowship. Davis said 163 pints of blood went out from the college, 15 being rejected from the total 178 persons who came to donate blood.

Miss Minarik told council of Westminster Fellowship's programs of discussions and talks by faculty members.

Carol Demler termed the state YWCA conference "very worthwhile."

Tentatively, Council decided not to meet this coming week because of the Thanksgiving holiday and the Wednesday Town Night.

Phys Ed Department To Give 'Winter Holiday'

At 7:30 tonight in the Intramural gym, the Physical Education Department will present "Winter Holiday." Santa Claus and Mrs. Santa will make a special trip to the campus for the occasion.

It is requested that everyone use the back entrance and thus save confusion. Also Mrs. Largen asks that people bring blankets to sit on, as the bleachers will not be put up.

Y Radio To Air Story Of 'Littlest Angel'

This Sunday evening at 9 p.m. Y Radio will present the story of "The Littlest Angel" by Charles Tazewell.

Garnetta (Andy) Alexander will play the the tiny angel who is happy in Heaven.

Korean Oratorio Society Receives 'Messiah' Music

Battle-torn Korea has been the object of much concern in recent months, for the task of rebuilding the country is indeed great. Food and clothing and other necessities are not the only things needed, however. People everywhere have a deep longing for the so-called finer things of life.

Realizing this need, the Maryville Messiah Chorus and Orchestra, directed by Harry H. Harter, launched a drive last year to send music for "The Messiah" to the Korean Oratorio Society, whose scores had been destroyed by the Communists.

Recently Mr. Harter received a letter from the conductor of this society, Tai Joon Park, who expressed deep gratitude for the music. The society will be able to perform "The Messiah" this year thanks to Maryville's interest and help. Mr. Park's letter said that the college Messiah Chorus and Orchestra last year collected enough money to buy the orchestral parts of the oratorio, the Maryville Music Club having bought the vocal scores. Because of postal regulations, these had to be sent in 22 separate packages.

Mr. Park visited the college last year after having met Mr. Harter the preceding summer while at a course in choral conducting at Union Theological School of Sacred Music in New York City. Mr. Park, a graduate of Tusculum College and Westminster Choir School at Princeton, N. J., also teaches music and hymnology at Chosun Christian University at Pusan.

Echo Staff Adds Four

At a meeting last Thursday the Student-Faculty Publications Committee approved the addition of four new members to the Highland Echo staff.

Sophomore sports writer Bob Jackson was added to the staff to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Sadie Davis.

The committee approved three freshmen, Sue Brown, Betty Knott, and Gail Purdy.

This brings the total of freshman reporters up to seven, still leaving five vacancies for freshmen on the Echo staff. Positions on the Echo from the other classes are all filled.

The Publications Committee is made up of the senior editors of the Echo, the Student Council publicity committee, and the faculty committee on publications.

Choirs To Sing At Christmas Vespers

Next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock will be the Christmas Vesper Service, to be presented in the Alumni Gym.

Madrigals To Sing At Kiwanis Meeting

The Maryville College Madrigal Singers will present a musical program for the local Kiwanis Club dinner meeting Tuesday at noon.

They will sing "Ding Dong Merrily on High," a French carol; "Carol of the Polish Grenadiers," arranged by Niles-Horton; "Patapan," a French Carol; and "I Hear Along Our Street," a French carol.

The annual Christmas banquet will be held Thursday night in the Y rooms. The group will also sing for Christmas Vespers and gave a program for a women's meeting at New Providence Presbyterian Church Thursday night.

French Club Dinner

Next Wednesday evening, December 9, the French Club will hold its annual banquet.

The cost is seventy-five cents per plate. It should be paid by Tuesday morning.

Dues for this semester are twenty-five cents and are payable anytime.

Laughton Entertains MC By Program Of Readings

By Faith Nollner

Dear Carol,

It's awfully late, but I just had to write and tell you about one of the most thrilling evenings I've ever spent while it's still fresh in my mind. Tonight I spent an "Evening With Laughton" and what an experience!

When I went over to the gym, I hardly knew what to expect. Hearing selections read from familiar books by such a famous actor was an entirely new thing for me as I imagine it was for most of the rest of the audience.

But whatever I anticipated, I was hardly prepared for the sort of homey atmosphere that surrounded us. It was just as though we were in a cozy den or living room listening to an extraordinarily talented member of the family read from such old favorites as Dickens, Hans Christian Anderson, and the Bible.

Don Juan in Hell

But I doubt that any member of most families, no matter how gifted, could have held us spellbound with that marvelous selection from "Don Juan in Hell" by George Bernard Shaw. I believe that it's an excerpt from "Man and Superman."

Speaking of "Don Juan in Hell" reminds me of something interesting that I learned today. Did you know that Laughton, Charles Boyer, Agnes Moorehead, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke have formed a group known as the "First Drama Quartette" and that they do nothing but dramatic readings of this type? They played the whole of "Don Juan in Hell" and it was a smash hit. In it, Laughton took the part of the devil and one critic said that he didn't resemble a devil so much as "a fat, fond uncle." Which description, I think is quite apt.

Began as a Lout

Some of the details of his life were really quite funny. For instance, it seemed funny that he should be the son of hotel owners. Somehow, I just never pictured Mr. Laughton as having parents, but I guess he must have. However, that may be, he began his dramatic career at the age of eight by reciting in a closet in his parents' hotel.

After varied attempts at soldiering and hotel managing, he finally enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, where he didn't exactly make a good first impression. He arrived, said a fellow student, as "a great lout of a fellow

Bible Department Opens Oration Contest To Men

The 1954 T. T. Alexander Oration Contest is open this year to all men of the college, except any winners of previous contests, it is announced by Professor J. D. Buchanan of the Bible department.

Last year the contest was open to women students, and was won by Barbara Clark, who took first place, and Jeannine Fiori, who took second place.

Students wishing to participate in the contest should see Dr. Buchanan before December 18.

Manuscripts must be ready for presentation to the judges by March 15. A preliminary private contest will take place on or about April 1 for the judging of delivery and the selection of the first two contestants.

The final public contest between the first two will be between April 9 and 15 for the awarding of prizes.

The current college catalog contains further information for contestants, and future chapel announcements will give more details about the oration contest.

Glenn Gentry To Give Recital

The Division of Fine Arts will present Glenn Gentry in an organ recital in the Music Hall on Friday, December 11, at 8 p.m.

The program will consist of the following seelctions: "Wir glauben all' an einen Gott" (We all believe in one God)—J. S. Bach; preludes on "How Firm a Foundation" and "On Jordon's Stormy Banks I Stand"—Glenn Gentry; "Prelude and Fugue in F"—Dietrich Buxtehude; Chorale preludes on "Wir wollen alle frohlich sein" (We shall all be joyful) and "Gelobt, sei Gott im hoechsten Thron (Praised be God in highest Heaven)—Ernst Pepping; "Apparition de l'Eglise eternelle" (Vision of the Church eternal)—Olivier Messiaen; and "Finale from the First Organ Symphony"—Louis Vierne.

The preludes written by Gentry are two of a group of 24 similar compositions on well-known hymns, which he wrote for his special studies.

Gentry, whose home is in Donelson, is a senior carrying a double major in music theory and biology. He will receive his B.A. degree at the end of this semester.

After graduation, he plans to do graduate work in bacteriology at Vanderbilt University. He will also be organist of Donelson Presbyterian Church.

"Marcho Piccolo," a march by Gentry, was played by the Maryville College Band at the concert held Saturday evening, November 28.

Vogel To Speak To Bainonians

The Rev. William Vogel will speak on "Courtship and Marriage" at tonight's regular meeting of Bainonian Society.

Elections for next semester's officers were held Tuesday, December 2. Results of the elections are as follows: president, Sue Binnion; vice president, Dorothy Wells; secretary, Nita Ann Baylor; program chairmen, Sandra Motsinger and Jean Morgan; and Skit Night Chairmen, Peggy Fisher and Betty Messer.

Theta Elects Officers

Results of the Theta Epsilon elections held last Tuesday are as follows: president, Helen Seay; vice president, Ruth Orr; secretary, Nancy McMillan; treasurer, Sarah Carpenter; sergeant-at-arms, Katie Marston; chaplain, Ruth Nelson; program chairmen, Shirley Armstrong, and Madlon Travis; and skit-night chairmen, Ethelyn Cathey and Carol F. Moore.

Last Saturday night's program featured a discussion on dating led by a panel consisting of John Borter, Eddie Breitbach, Doc Jennings, Bob Patterson, and Ken Wilkinson.

Council Passes New Proposal

Student Council's Wednesday night meeting consisted only of approving a new Coke machine proposal and of hearing various other reports. The session was comparatively short — adjournment came about 9:20 p.m.

The new Coke machine proposal was received from Student-Faculty Senate, which has already approved it. The proposal will not become official until it has been approved by the Executive Council of the Faculty.

The proposal calls for maintenance of a vending machine in each dormitory subject to the head of each dormitory and the student organizations—if any—in the dormitories. The present proposal would put machines under the jurisdiction of WSGA in the women's dormitories and under E. E. McCurry in Carnegie Hall.

One student in each building would be in charge of the machine there, and would be paid from the profits, subject to the supervision of the Student-Help office. Each dormitory would be required to contribute 10 percent of the net profit to Student Council.

Council's discussion of this proposal was fairly short and limited to points of clarity. Payment of the 10 percent fee, it was pointed out, may be made at any time interval, optional to the individual dormitories.

Council voted unanimously to accept the proposal. It now goes before the faculty committee for consideration. A resolution was passed to go with the proposal, stating that the present MSO coke machine fund be transferred to a joint account of Mr. McCurry and the student in charge of Carnegie's coke machine.

A supposed Town Night violation was reported in Pearsons, a case in which a girl had signed in by 10:25 p.m. but her date had stayed until 10:29—four minutes past the limit. Sue Binnion, the monitor reporting the case, indicated that she believed it to be the same as coming in four minutes late.

Mary Jim Bevan, WSGA president, said that the rule about the time for men to leave Pearsons on Town Night as cleared up at the last Council meeting had not yet been clarified in the girls' dormitories. "That matter will be taken up at house meetings before the next Tuesday night," Miss Bevan said.

General opinion of the Council—and a motion was passed—was that

British Universities Offer Summer Schools

British universities will offer summer courses at four centers in 1954, according to D. J. Wenden, Dean of the Oxford University Summer School.

These courses will be given at Edinburgh, London, Oxford, and Stratford, each school presenting programs particularly suitable to its location and tradition.

The courses are open to college juniors and seniors, post-graduate students and teachers.

Wenden points out that one of the most valuable parts of the summer program is meeting students from Britain and the 25 other countries from which representatives go to attend the summer schools.

"Questions of common international interest are debated informally, friendships are made, and a unique insight into British university achievement is gained," he adds.

The schools will last six weeks and are recognized for credit at American universities, and for grants under the G.I. Bill of Rights.

The cost is an average of $200 for board and tuition, and a few scholarships are awarded. Students accepted for enrollment will have ship passage reserved for them if they wish.

Further details about the courses and application forms may be obtained from the British Information Services, 30 Rockfeller Plaza, New York 22, N.Y., or from the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21, N.Y.

Jamieson, McCall Slated For Chapel Speakers

Rrepresenting the Presbyterian Church of England the chapel speakers on Wednesday, December 9, are the Rev. Peter McCall, M.A. and the Rev. H. Burns Jamieson, M.A.

They are part of a team of four who are visiting our country for a period of two months in order to examine the program of the Presbytreian Church, U.S.A. They are extremely interested in the New Life Movement and evangelism.

Mr. McCall was Moderator of the Bristol Presbytery in 1950-1951. He has been the minister of the Trinity and St. James' Presbyterian Church of England since 1947.

Mr. Jamieson was a chaplain during the period of 1939 to 1945 in the Prisoner of War Camps in Italy and Germany. Since 1945 he has been the minister of the Ealing Presbyterian Church of England.

Harter Directs Handel Oratorio

By Shirley Armstrong

The twenty-first annual presentation of "The Messiah" will be given by Maryville College's 275 voice combined choirs Sunday, December 6, at 3 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. This chorus will include the Vesper Choir, the Men's Glee Club, and the All-Girl Choir, selected student singers, and singers from the Maryville-Alcoa community.

The chorus will be accompanied by the Maryville College Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Ralph Moore, with Harry H. Harter as conductor, and Garnet Manges at the piano for her 19th year.

Soloists for the oratorio were selected by a panel of five judges from the music department. Joyce Linginfelter, a senior piano major, will sing the soprano air, "Come Unto Him."

Sally Butts, a junior education major will sing the soprano air, "Rejoice Greatly O Daughter of Zion."

Sheila Sutton, a junior majoring in voice, wil sing the soprano air, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

Martha Freeny, a junior elementary education major, will sing the soprano recitatives, "There Were Shepherds Abiding in The Fields" and "And The Angel Said Unto Them."

Myrna Ginaven, a sophomore piano major, is to sing the soprano ariosos, "And Lo The Angel of the Lord Came Upon Them" and "And Suddenly There Was With The Angel."

Elizabeth Murphy, a junior physical education major, will sing the alto recitative, "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened," and the air, "He Shall Feed His Flock."

Lora Kinisnger, a senior English major, wil sing the alto recitative, "Behold A Virgin Shall Conceive and Bear A Son," and the air, "O Thou Who Tellest Good Tidings to Zion."

Carolyn Beatty, a senior majoring in home economics, will sing the alto air, "He Was Despised and Rejected of Men."

Floyd Hickman, a junior voice major, will sing the tenor arioso, "Comfort Ye My People," and the recitative "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart."

Sidney Tedford, freshman music major, will sing the tenor air, "Behold and Se If There Be Any Sorrow" and the air, "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted."

Richard Morse, a sophomore majoring in voice, will sing the bass recitative, "Thus Saith The

On Rules

Every student here at Maryville should know the rules. They are printed in the M Book, which is widely circulated for all to read. Whether or not an individual approves of all the rules, he should at least know what it is that he is opposed to.

Frequently someone says, "I didn't know about that," or "Nobody ever told me I wasn't supposed to do that." Ignorance of the law is no excuse. People in college should have enough responsibility to know what the rules are under which they live while they are here.

Amazingly enough, if you read the rules carefully, you may even discover some privileges you didn't know you had.

On Objectives

As the end of another semester draws near it may be well to look back over the year and see just what has been accomplished and what has been left undone. Most of us begin each September with high hopes for a successful school year. We look forward to interesting courses, renewed friendships, and lots of fun all of which elements make up college life.

Many of us reach our objectives, but unfortunately many of us do not. Somewhere along the way we loose sight of the more important aspects of college life. We start to drift along in those courses that we had planned to work at, or we go to the other extreme and bury our nose in the books neglecting our friends and our recreational opportunities.

It's hard to hold that happy balance of enough study and enough fun but it is the magic formula for a well balanced college career. It's not an easy balance to find, and can't be had over night. It takes a little planning to be able to get that term paper done on time and still have time to enjoy yourself at the fall dance.

Perhaps this editorial would have had more value if it had appeared in the first issue of the Echo in September. However, there are still two weeks left before we say farewell and board that train for home. There is still time to get to work and pull up that sagging average, and there is still time to let yourself go and enjoy life.

What kind of semester has it been for you? Are you proud of the record you've made or are you just a little sorry that you didn't try harder? It might be worth your time to stop a minute and think about it. It it hasn't been all you hoped it would be where does the fault lie?

It's easy to cast around and find scape goats for our own failures but nine chances out of ten the fault is our own. As the old saying goes there is no use crying over spilt milk, but the experiences of the past are always good guides to the future.

In a couple of weeks this semester will just be so much water over the dam. All the mistakes, the failures, and the disappointments will be so many memories. A brand new semester is on the way, however, with all of the golden opportunities of that second chance. Here's hoping that next semester will be all that you want it to be.

Scots & Soda

By Joe Gilliland

Thanksgiving, like most of the other MC events, brought the usual number of alumni—official or unofficial—hanging around dormitories trying to scrounge a place to stay for from one to five days.

In Carnegie, one guy who had returned after an absence of two years found himself a "sack" in a freshman room and thought he would have an undisturbed sleep through the night, breakfast, and chapel. (!) But about 3 a.m. he was awakened by another alumnus who had arrived too late. This latecomer was pawing around in the dark trying to find an empty place too. I'll bet the freight elevator was crowded that night.

An Old Spiritual

We did gain a contribution from a visitor over the Thanksgiving week-end.
Oh, the freshmen pulled the ivy from Anderson,
Anderson, Anderson,
The freshmen pulled the ivy from Anderson
And the walls came tumbling down.

The reviews of Charles Laughton's appearance in the Knoxville papers were very interesting—especially the one in the News-Sentinel. The reviewer was discussing Mr. Laughton's Bible readings, and commented on the actor's presentation of the story of Shadrack, Meshack, and Abednego. The reviewer said, "Mr. Laughton used the Revised Standard Version." Somebody's wrong. Mr. Laughton commented on the beautiful English prose of the translators of the 17th Century. Perhaps the 1611 Bible was a revision of the one that our reivewer reads regularly.

Waitresses seem to make it a point to become bitter about the food situation after so long a time. A couple of days ago at breakfast one sniffed at the atmosphere and said, "Gad, it smells like the place is burning down!" Everyone at the table was momentarily encouraged until the same young lady said, "But I forgot—they must be cooking dinner now."

* * * *

Dr. Hunter has been entertaining the Language class this week with mistakes in hearing that persons frequently have, a lot of times in church and in singing hymns. Here are some Dr. Hunter and other members of the class mentioned:

"Surely good Mrs. Murphy will follow me all the days of my life. . . ."
"The consecrated cross-eyed bear. . . ."
"Pontius, the Pilot"
". . . thy will be dumb. . ."
". . . round John Virgin, mother and child. . ."
"in the name of the Father, Son, and into the hole he goes."
"a YMCA concentration service"

I suppose all of us read about the "kegnapping" over at UT. I wonder what would happen if Carson-Newman were to carry off Anderson Tower? Our forefathers must have had that in mind when they made the peace pact with the Baptists.

* * * *

Dr. Lloyd really put his point across well in chapel Thursday morning while he was speaking about the bad use of English by present-day college students. "They don't know how to really write well," he declared. Too bad! Split infinitives are still a pain to Dr. Hunter.

Hopeful whispers are going around: "I hear they're going to de-emphasize special studies this year." or "I'm going to work straight through all the time and hand in the completed product in September." Note to sophomore lit students: When you run into the term "nemesis" in connection wtih your Greek friends, just substitute "special studies" or "comps" in its place. Then you'll understand it.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Pat Brendle

I realize that everyone is terribly busy studying for exams, and the like, but there are a few things coming up that you will not want to miss.

Tonight the Physical Ed dance classes will present a show "Winter Holiday," and it will include the visit of Santa Claus and then again, it gives the girls a chance to display their hidden talent (?).

Bring a blanket to sit on because you will be seeing it from the floor, no less.

Tomorrow the chorus and orchestra will present the Messiah at 3 p.m., in the Alumni Gym. The two groups have worked hard to bring the Messiah to you and have been patient through all the strenuous and tiring rehearsals. I might also add that the soloists selected this year are really tops!

At the F.A.C. Gallery this week (continuing from last week) is the Student Art Exhibit. Believe me, it is well worth your time to go down and see it. (If you have a lot of other things to do then don't go, because you spend hours trying to figure out some of them.)

Really, though, you will enjoy the exhibits. I was particularly impressed with Dixie Conner's "Town Night" and Richard Ebright's "The Outside." If he is around when you are there ask him to explain it to you. (What an imagination that character has!)

If you can afford it, the movies are still showing on Tuesday night. The Park has "Hell Gate" with Joan Leslie and Sterling Hayden. The Capitol is showing "War Paint" with Robert Stack and Joan Taylor.

On the new book table in the Library, an interesting looking volume is Edwin Teale's "Green Treasury," which is subtitled "A Journey Through the World's Great Nature Writing."

It includes seelctions from Izaak Walton, Thoreau, Poe, Joseph Conrad, Melville, Thomas Wolfe, Hardy, Whitman, the Bible, Emerson, and many others, dealing with all the varied aspects of nature.

Paull Baum's ". . . the other harmony of prose. . ." is a scholarly piece of work that deals with the principles, usually unrecognized, that are basic to the rhythm of language.

Other books in our library, which, though not new, we can heartily recommend, include John Hershey's "The Wall," an imaginary story based on fact about World War II;

James Thurber's "The Thirteen Clocks," a delightfully fantastic tale with serious implications;

Robert Penn Warren's "World Enough and Time," a historical novel with an unusual slant;

Steinbeck's "East of Eden," his latest work;

"The Caine Mutiny," a war story by Herman Wouk;

"Give Us This Valley," a historical novel by Tom Ham, the father of one of our students.

Socially Speaking

The day after Thanksgiving a group of former Maryville students were entertained for the evening at the home of Dr. Paul Davies at McCormick Seminary in Chicago.

Miss Katherine C. Davies was in Chicago at the time attending the meetings of the National Association of Schools of Music.

Dot Wells was visited by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wells and her sisters, Natalie, Katrina, and Nancy, of Clinton, on Thanksgiving Day. Mr. and Mrs. Wells were here again Monday evening to hear Charles Laughton.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Horton of Aiken, S.C., visited their daughter, Martha, over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Nancy Ferguson, '53, was married to Billy T. Atkins in her church in Pittsburgh, Pa., on Thanksgiving Day. The couple will be living in Chattanooga. They were guests on the campus on November 29.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schroeder, '53 (Alice Jo Larson, ex-'54), visited the campus Saturday and Sunday after their marriage in Coral Gables, Fla., on November 24.

Ann Leeder, '52, was married to Douglas Pickett on November 14 in Landour, Mussoori, Uttar Predesh, India, where she is a missionary in the Woodstock School.

Among the former students of Maryville who were on the campus for the Thanksgiving holidays were Mary Grace Pritchard, '53, Nancy Rodgers, '53, Carolyn Sloan, ex '54, Jack Durant, '53, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Van Pelt, '52 (Eleanor Kramer, '51), Terry Albert, ex '56, Anne Snyder, '52, Jimmy Squires, ex '54, and Guy Sneed, ex '54.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bevan of White Haven, and Cookie Robison, visited Mary Jim Bevan over the Thanksgiving week-end.

Dear Bill:

The Board of Directors of the Blount County Chapter of the American Red Cross wishes to thank you and the other students at Maryville College for the wonderful results accomplished in your recent blood recruitment drive. The total of 163 pints received in your drive was more than twice the amount received in our last drive held in June. It is encouraging to see a student body so interested in their fellowman that they are willing to give their own blood that others may live.

Will you plase convey our thanks by means of the Highland Echo to all the students who cooperated so wonderfully.

Cordially yours,

"TIGER" TOM STALKS '53-'54 SEASON

For the first time in the history of Maryville College's wrestling team, a sophomore was elected to captain the Scot matmen. This high honor was received by Tom "The Tiger" Bugenhagen, who, since, his debut on the wrestling mat for Maryville, has become a domineering personality on the campus.

Tom, a very personable chap with light brown curly hair and a certain twinkle in his eyes, hails from the town of Erie, Pennsylvania, where he first saw the light of day twenty years ago. He completed his high school education at East High School in Erie, then detoured his education for two years to work as an electric arc welder in a small boat building shop in order to obtain money to go to college.

This broad-shouldered grappler is 5'11" tall and tips the scales at a solid 175 lbs. Tom has an excellent background for his wrestling, having lettered his four years at East High to acquire the skillful mat maneuvers that awe the men and delight the girls. His accomplishments are expected to replace those of last year's captain Bill Morse and possibly excell them. Already The Tiger has become a fearful character to the men of Carnegie with some of his sideline feats—pinning innumerable opponents without tiring—some even members of the wrestling squad.

Tom's athletic ability also includes the knack of slapping a golf ball around a 18-hole course at an enviably low score. He lettered in golf for two years in high school while also picking up two letters as a member of the East High cross-country team.

In the class room, "Bugie" is a very prominent member with his consistent participation in discussions and in making high grades. This comes from acquiring an excellent background in high school where he was a member of the National Honor Society. Tom's major is math, and, upon graduating, he plans to enter graduate school to qualify for a position as a math instructor.

Other laurels Tom has picked up since entering Maryville are: elected president of the sophomore class, recently elected vice-president of Alpha Sigma, and last year chosen to participate in the May Day Court as a representative of the Freshman class escorting the cute freshman girl attendant. He has that "certain something" which captivates people.

Summing up "The Tiger's" character, abilities and accomplishments, one must apland the choice of Tom Bugenhagen as captain of the wrestling tam. Best of luck and may the grapplers have the best of seasons under a very capable guy!

SHEPARD, KING HONORED

Tailback Clarence Shepard and senior guard Jerry King were honored earlier this week when they received Honorable Mention Little All-American notice in the Associated Press poll. This is the second straight year two Maryville players have received this honor. Congratulations to both!

Hal Morrison, the big end of East Tennessee State made first string end. Incidentally, ETSC stomped Emory & Henry in the Burley Bowl Thanksgiving Day, 48-14. Rather odd considering we beat ETSC and Emory and Henry beat us.

BERRONG, SHEPARD TO LEAD '54 SCOTS

Clarence Shepard and Bob "Doby" Berrong were elected as captain and co-captain respectively of the 1954 Highlander football team. Clarence steps into the vacancy left by brother Kenny while Berrong replaces Jerry King.

Both boys are excellent players and leaders, and should lead the '54 Scots to an outstanding season. Congratulations and good luck!

REGARDS OF KNOXVILLE JOURNAL AND TOM ANDERSON

The furore over the borrowings without permission of Navy's goat and Kentucky's pro tem beer keg reminded a medium oldster, Karl Steinmetz, that there is nothing new whatsoever about this type of undergraduate adventure . . . Here's the chronology: Jim French of Maryville College, kicked off over the goal. The Vols, limp-jawed at such a pedal prodigy, just stood there. A Maryville warrior hustled down and fell on the ball . . . Nobody knew the proper ruling—whether it was a touchdown or whether the ball should be brought out to the 20 and given to UT. . . . The teams argued. The officials confessed they were stumped. . . . Some bright somebody suggested that a national authority be wired. . . . So members of the teams, coaches and officials went to the Southern Depot and dispatched a query. An hour later the reply arrived. He ruled that since Maryville was onside when it kicked-off the end-zone recovery constituted a touchdown. . . . Tennessee refused to abide by this decision and thus perhaps the briefest game—one play—in history ended. . . . Maryville took the ball and placed it in the college trophy room.

CONGRATULATIONS TO HARRIERS

Coach Ken Johnson's cross-country team closed out their season in fine fashion by retaining the Bryan Invitational Meet at W. J. Bryan College. Special notice is to be to Captain Homer Rickabaugh for his fine showing—finishing a fast first in his final meet for Maryville.

Also congratulations to A. C. McWilliams who was elected to lead next year's hill and dale men. "Ace" also was top scorer this year with 74 points.

Norwegian University Offers Summer Study

The University of Oslo will hold its eighth summer school from July 3 to August 14, 1954. It is designed for American and Canadian students who have completed at least their freshman year in any accredited college or university.

Classes will be conducted in English. Courses center around a study of Norwegian culture, education, literature, and social and political problems, with field trips, museum trips, and excursions planned.

A limited number of scholarships is possible. Catalogs and further details are available from the Oslo Summer School Admissions Office,car e of St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.

Dr. Crothers Donates RSV Bible To Library

A gift copy of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible has been presented to the library by Dr. William H. Crothers of Maryville.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Crowley of Penns Grove, N.J., made a gift donation for the purchase of books to be placed in the library as a memorial to Vennor Lowry, who died July 11, 1953.

Mr. Lowry was graduated from Maryville College in 1932.

The selection of books includes "Green Treasury" by Edwin Way Teale, "UN: Today and Tomorrow" by Eleanor Roosevelt and William DeWitt, and "Elizabeth Crowned Queen: The Pictorial Record of the Coronation."

KING

BERRONG

THREE GRIDDERS HONORED— Co-Captain Jerry King and Clarence Shepard were honored by the Associated Press earlier this week when they were selected to the Honorable Mention Little All-American group for their outstanding play this year. Shepard and Bob "Doby" Berrong were elected to lead the '54 Scots by the returning lettermen at a banquet given to the gridders last week.

Intramurals....

Intramural basketball continues along at a fast pace. Saturday, November 21, saw the "B" league in action. The Boxers opened the day by taking a close one from Athenian. Dexter Heaton and LeRoy Gooden led the way with 15 and 13 points respectively. Lyn Counts scored 13 for the losers. The final score was 36-34. The second game showed a little more difference in the teams as the Hot Shots beat the Ramblers 46-32. The Hot Shots had too much height as Wallace swished in 14 to pace the winners. Bob Jackson scored 12 for the Ramblers. The third game was a forfeit as the Pre-Mins failed to show up a team against the X's.

Back to the professionals on Monday. In "A" league play the Snowbirds came through with a surprising 44-32 win over the YMCA Aces. The game was picked for a close one by the bookies. Mills really hit the points as he hooped in 18 points to pace the Snowbirds. Mike Conneley and Kent Buser each scored 10 for the Aces. The Alpha Sigma Scotties beat the Destroyers in the second game. Bob Leitch hit for 8 points for the Scotties while the scoring (?) was evenly divided among the Destroyers who really live up to their name. The final score was 27-14. Finishing up the afternoon were Mosers and the Question Marks. The Marks stayed in the game for the first half but Mosers class finally told as they won 37-20. Bob Johnston was high scorer with 13.

Back to The Bush Leagues

A new week of play saw the Ramblers win over the X's on Wednesday. Bud Spalding returned to intramural play and swished in 12 points for high score. Eddie Grigsbey scored 9 for the X's as they came out on the wrong end of a 34-20 score. The next two games were real romps as the Local Yokels ripped the Hot Shots 44-17, and the Boxers nipped the Pre-Mins 57-18. Ted Wilson scored more than the entire Hot Shot team as he netted 18 points for the Yokels. LeRoy Gooden and Dexter Heaten tied for scoring honors in the third game, but Gooden did not even play the second half.

On Friday afternoon the Snowbirds beat the Scotties 25-16 in a low scoring affair. John Anderson hit for 10 to pace the Snowbirds with the scoring evenly divided among the Scotties. In a wild and wooly affair the Question Marks beat the Destroyers 32-11. Tom Bass ripped the cords for 18 points. The third game was something of a surprise. A good YMCA team played Moser, the best team around. But the Aces didn't pay any attention to the Moser's press notices as they played them nip and tuck only to finally lose 33-31. Bob Ramger was high scorer as he hit for 10 points to lead Mosers. Kent Buser found the nets for 8 for the Aces.

Wednesday play found Athenian finally breaking into the win column with a 57-7 snowing over the X's. Lynn Counts and Mert Hall paced the Hoot Owls with 19 and 15 points respectively. The second game was a little closer as the Hot Shots won over the winless Pre-Mins, 16-8. The two first place teams played in the third game. The Local Yokels preserved their undefeated record as they handed the Boxers their first loss 21-28.

Boston. Eugene O'Neill, noted American playwright, Nobel and Pulitzer Prize winner, died November 27 of bronchial pneumonia. He was 65 years old.

They are now on the display table in the Reading Room of the library.

Hill And Dale Men Win Invitational Meet at Dayton

By Jim Demler

The Scottie cross country ended a disappointing season on a victorious note. For the second consecutive year Maryville College took first place at the Bryan Invitational Meet held in Dayton, Tennessee, on Saturday, November 21. This win came after a one point loss to Sewannee on Friday.

Close Ones

This loss was the second at the hands of Sewannee this year. Both losses were by one point, 28-27. Friday's race was run on Maryville's course with A. C. McWilliams winning in the very fast time of 19:45. Sewannee took the next place while Captain Homer Rickanbaugh came in third. Sewannee placed men in the 4, 5, and 6 positions with Sonny Shackelford, Rod McMillan and Paul Payne coming in seventh, eighth, and ninth respectively. Sewannee took tenth place and the meet 27-28.

Harriers

The Bryan meet was a horse of a different color. With four schools entered, Maryville placed 5 men in the first 9 positions to come out with low score of 27 points. Captain Homer Rickabaugh and A. C. McWilliams came in first and second. Bryan took the 3 and 4 positions and Emory and Henry University the fifth and sixth. Then Maryville took 7, 8, and 9 with Shackelford, Larry Tate and Paul Payne coming in that order. Bryan took tenth place. The final score was Maryville 27, W. J. Bryan 50, Emory University 54 and Berry 93. Homer's winning time was 20:49.

Tough Breaks

The Scots final record was 3 meets won, 5 lost and 1 tied. But when you take into consideration that 2 of the losses were to powerful U. T. and 2 were by one point to Sewannee the record does not look so bad. Maryville's worst loss was to Georgia Tech., and even then some of the boys were sick as Tate was for the second Sewannee meet. A. C. McWilliams who has crossed the finish line first many a time this season has been elected captain for the 1954 season. Captain Homer Rickabaugh and Rod McMillan will be lost by graduation. That leaves a base of six men to build next years team on. Following is a record of individual points accumulated this season.

A. C. McWilliams	74 points
Homer Rickabaugh	68 points
Sonny Shackelford	27 points
Rod McMillan	22 points
Paul Payne	17 points
Edgar Drum	7 points
Larry Tate	3 points

Washington. The State Department reacted coolly to the Soviet Union's counter-proposal for a four-power foreign ministers' conference to be held in Berlin.

Moscow proposed that the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France, and the Soviet Union meet in Berlin and discuss the question of holding in the near future a five-power meeting which would include Communist China.

Bonn, Germany. Doubts have been expressed by German leaders about the motives of the Soviet Union in accepting the Western invitation to the four-power foreign ministers' conference. They are especially dubious as to the outcome of such a meeting.

Seoul. At his first press conference since the signing of the armistice, General Maxwell D. Taylor, Allied field commander in Korea, asserted that his United States' 8th Army was ready for any task.

"We have planned for everything," Taylor said.

Balboa, Panama Canal Zone. Thousands of Panamanians and Americans welcomed visitors Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh to the Panama Canal Zone on November 29.

Mount Shasta, California. A member of a Jon Lindbergh mountain team died of injuries from an 800-foot plunge down the icy slopes of Mount Shasta. The Lindbergh expedition could not be reached by a rescue party in time to save the climber's life.

Lindbergh, leader of the team, is the son of the famed aviator.

with a North Country accent who couldn't find his hat because he was sitting on it." But when he began to recite, he held the room spell-bound and has continued to do so through all his years in the theatre.

Began on "Toast of the Town"

His career of dramatic reading began four years ago when he read on Ed Sulliyan's "Toast of the Town" TV show. A young theatrical agent happened to see him and persuaded Luaghton to go on tour. From this the First Drama Quartette was formed.

This type of theater isn't a new thing, by any means. It was quite popular about the turn of the century when the Chatauquas were in their hey-day. Such famous people as Charles Dickens and William Jennings Bryan were noted for such appearances. But these solo readings died with the Chatauquas, and it was left for Charles Laughton to revive them.

Caused a Furor

Naturally this revival has caused a furor in the critical realm. The opinions range from "100% true-blue ham" to "genius." Well, I'll leave that controversy to the ranks of the critics, of which I am not a member. My most humble opinion, for what it's worth is: terrific!

The public is cordially invited to attend this performance.

Council . . .

it had no ground to go on, and the matter was dropped.

Following the discussion, council president Bill Dartnell commented that all students—and especially Council members—should be familiar with Town Night rules in the M Book. "It doesn't take much effort to read the Town Uight Proposal," he declared. "Just about everyone here can read," he quipped in addition.

In connection with the recent blood drive, Bill Davis read a letter of commendation from the Blount County Red Cross Chapter. The text of this letter is printed elsewhere in this issue of the Echo.

Council secretary Barbara Chubb read requirements for a standard form for organizations making reports to Council for inclusion in the Book of Law, now in the process of being compiled. All reports are due before the Christmas holidays, president Dartnell reminded the group.

Jim Hunt said the exchange chapel program with Tusculum College had been postponed until next semester. Also President Dartnell told Council the East Tennessee collegiate convention planned to be held at Carson- Newman today (Saturday) had been indefinitely postponed.

Herb White announced that the new Student Council bulletin board had been made and was now hung near the drinking fountain in Anderson Hall.

Wednesday night's meeting was Council's first in two weeks, since no meeting was held last week due to the Thanksgiving holidays and the Wednesday Town Night.

Fry Play To Present Edwards, Caldwell

Playhouse Plans Next Semester

Joanne Edwards, senior English major, and George Caldwell, senior drama major, will play the lead roles in the MC Playhouse's production of "The Lady's Not For Burning."

Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama, announced this week a tentative cast for the play.

It is scheduled to be given next semester. Tryouts were held Wednesday night of this week.

The cast is as follows: Richard, Bill Deerfield; Thomas, George Caldwell; Alizon, Marcia Williams; Nicholas, David Gates; Margaret, Nancy Rideout; Humphry, Ronald Pearson; Hebble Tyson, Arthur Fryer; Jennet, Joanne Edwards; The Chaplain, Walt Elwood; Edward Tappercoom, Herb White; and Matthew Skipps, Preston Bogia.

First rehearsal for the cast will be announced following the Christmas holidays.

This production of "The Lady's Not For Burning" will mark the second production of a Christopher Fry play this school year. Experimentals presented Fry's "Sleep of Prisoners" on October 30.

Setting of the play is a small town in the Middle Ages. Witchcraft and a love interest provide the plot. Like other Christopher Fry plays, "The Lady's Not For Burning" is written in poetry. Fry is noted for his use of metaphor and unusual language.

Most of the members of the cast for this forthcoming play are experienced in both Playhouse and Experimental plays. Deerfield and Fryer appeared in the other Fry play, which was directed by George Caldwell.

Miss Williams and Elwood appeared in the Playhouse production of "Bell, Book, and Candle" this fall. White played in "The Heiress" last year. Miss Edwards and Gates were in the cast of "Goodbye My Fancy" last spring, and Bogia was in the spring production, "Antigone." Miss Rideout had a part in Experimentals' production of selections from Shakespeare this semester.

Adult Beginners Give Recital

The student recital Tuesday afternoon in the FAC Music Hall featured a group of adult beginners in piano and the music education instrument classes. Numbers performed included the following:

"Pet Shop" by Schubert, Jayne Harris, pianist; "Far-Off City" by Freed, Betty Knott, pianist; "Largo from 'New World Symphony'" by Dvorak, Annette Faust, violinist, Jacqueline Speigner, pianist; "Maytime Waltz" by Popejoy, Ruth Sexton, cellist, Margaret Potts, accompanist; "Melody in F" by Rubenstein, Rosa Bauerle, pianist;

"Memories of Stephen Foster" arranged by Herfurth, Margaret Potts, violaist, Ruth Sexton, accompanist; "Pop oGes the Weasel" arranged by Ostling, Yvonne Huskey and Sidney Tdeford, snare drummers, Thomas Hord, cymbalist, Marian Hina, bells, Luther Johnson, bass drummer; "On Wings of Song" by Mendelssohn, Jacqueline Speigner, violinist, Annette Faust, accompanist;

"Swinging in Fairyland" by Harker, Eloise Gazaway, pianist; "Sabbath Meditation" by Popejoy, Gavin Douglas, cellist, Henry Emmans, accompanist; "Over the Waves" by Rosas, Ruth King, pianist; "The Boat Song" and "Harvest Time" by Herfurth, string class.

Bainonians To Install Newly Elected Officers

Tonight Bainonian will have its formal installation of officers for the coming semester.

The installation will be followed by a Christmas party at which refreshments will be served.

Christmas Vespers Set For Tomorrow Night

By Faith Nollner

The annual Christmas Vesper program will be presented on Sunday evening, December 13, at 7 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Taking part in the program will be all the musical organizations on campus: the String Ensemble, Katherine Crews, director; the Brass Ensemble, Ralph H. Moore, director; the Men's Glee Club and the Women's Choir, Edrie Sellick, director; and the Madrigal Singers and the Vesper Choir, Harry H. Harter, director. Dorothy Vawter will be the pianist.

President Ralph W. Lloyd is to be in charge of the candle-light service in which each group is to have a particular part.

After the processional, which is to be entirely by candlelight, the Men's Glee Club will sing three selections: "A Virgin Most Pure," by Hanscom; "In the Bleak Mid-Winter," by Holst-Woodgate, and "Angels O'er the Fields," by Dickinson.

The Madrigal Singers have chosen for their selections "Ding Dong Merrily on High," a French carol; "Carol of the Polish Grenadiers;" and "Patapan" and "I Hear Along Our Street," which are both French carols.

"Shepherds Awake!" by Davis, the "Coventry Carol" from the sixteenth century, and "In Dulci Jubilo" will be sung by the Women's Choir.

The Vesper Choir will sing the "Tennessee Cherry Tree Carol," "A Lullaby for Christmas" by Lockwood; "Shepherds, Quickly Wake!," a Tyrolean carol, and "The Three Kings" by Willan.

As a finale, the combined choruses of approximately 150 voices with the string and brass ensembles and the piano will join in a "Fanfare for Christmas Day."

The service, one of the outstanding religious programs of the Christmas season, is to be given entirely by candlelight.

Council Does Not Meet

Student Council did not meet last Wednesday as scheduled. Council president Bill Dartnell was to call a special meeting sometime before the end of the semester.

Social Board Plans 'Katie Did It'

By Shirley Armstrong

Tonight, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center, the Social Board is presenting a free movie. "Katie Did It" stars Ann Blyth and Mark Stevens and features such supporting players as Jesse White, Cecil Kellaway, Craig Stevens, William Lynn, Elizabeth Patterson, Jimmy Hunt, and Sheila Stevens.

Delightful in theme, and jampacked with laughs from the opening reel to the final fadeout, this is one of the brightest comedies to come out of Hollywood film studios.

The picture revolves around Miss Blyth, who has been brought up in a strict manner in a prudish New England town and who falls in love with city slicker Mark Stevens, who portrays a commercial artist. The romance blossoms brightly until Ann falls victim of false information and believes that Mark is already married and the father of two children. From then on it is a sprightly comedy of erorrs, winding up with a whirlwind finish.

There will be two shows, the first one beginning at 7, the second at 8:30. There is no admission, and everyone is cordially invited for "an evening of fun."

Business Club Newly Reorganized, Meets

The newly reorganized Business Club was to meet in Mr. Witherspoon's classroom on December 10 at 6:30.

The officers for the year are as follows: president, Bob Clark; vice-president, Don Craig; secretary, Jim Crawford; treasurer, Luis Cardoso; and sergeant-at-arms, Dave Brannum.

Y Radio To Give Christmas Program

"Our Christmas Package" is the program for the final Y radio presentation this semester, to be presented tomorrow evening at 9 o'clock.

The program will be under the direction of Sarah Pledger and John Graulich.

Students To Leave For Merry Christmas Back Home

By Barbara Wilkie

Very soon (after these last hectic days) the students of Maryville will scatter to the far corners of the earth to celebrate Christmas. As one of Santa's little elves I think it would be nice if I gave you a sneak preview of how some of your friends (and perhaps you) will be spending the holidays.

Down in the deep, deep South I can see those Louisiana freshmen, "Gilly" Gilmore and Lou DeLatte, whirling from one party to another in true Southern-belle fashion.

In contrast, let's switch to the high Rockies where Bugs Ebright is having a great time skiing down the snowy slopes.

All the Georgia folk are having a reunion in Rich's Department store in Atlanta.

Ken Wilkinson has kindly consented to be Santa Claus at the party for underprivileged children given by the Akron, Ohio, chapter of the Society for the Preservation of Old Maids in America.

Noemi Arjona-Leyva is in Mexico having some gay fiestas while catching up on much-needed siestas.

Out in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Barbara Cech is forming an argyle-sock knitting industry. (She's such a rapid knitter, you know.)

On the other hand, Emma Lou Arnold in Illinois has given up knitting and crocheting; she's embroidering dish towels to send to missionaries in Africa for Christmas.

Tom Paton is spending the holidays riding subways in New York City. (I think he's working on them, or something.)

In New Jersey we find Bill Davis, who managed Alpha Sig's Christmas card sale so well, peddling mechanical Santa Clauses from door to door.

Athenian's high-pressure salesmen, Walt Hiller and Sidney Tedford, are still selling plaid scarves, this time to rich widows in Pittsburgh.

Bob Brand can't seem to leave set designing alone. He's working on one over the holidays for the West Virginia Opera Company, which is presenting Glenn Gen-

Englishmen Visit Campus, Speak

By Walter Elwood

The Rev. Peter McCall and the Rev. H. Burns Jamieson visited the campus on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week as part of a tour of the United States on behalf of the Presbyterian Church of England. They are part of a team of four who are investigating the Presbyterian Church in this country to see if any of our programs, such as the New Life Movement, could be adapted to the situation in Great Britain.

Both McCall and Jamieson took part in the Chapel service on Wednesday. McCall read the scripture lesson and offered the prayer and Jamieson gave a brief address, explaining the purpose of their tour and the impressions they had gathered about this country.

"We were greatly impressed with the new surge of life that is apparent in the Churches of the United States," he said. "We can se a great need for strengthening the bonds of friendship between the people of England and the United States."

This he explained would help us get rid of many of the common misconceptions that we have about each other.

He went on to explain the difficulties that have beset the British Church since the war. One of the most important of these is the change in the standard of living and the new political concepts that are now coming into being.

"The church in England is a great deal weaker since the war partly because of the material damage that was caused and partly because of the family and community break-down that occurred. There was a great deal of church property destroyed and it has been almost impossible to restore it completely."

Jamieson concluded by stating some of the signs of hope in England today. One of these is an act of Parliament which will allow the public schools to offer religious instruction. Another is the renewed interest in religion which is shown by the art and drama that is now popular.

After leaving Maryville they will proceed to Washington and Baltimore, then on to New York City where they will leave for England, having completed a nine week tour.

McCall was Moderator of the Bristol Presbytery in 1950-1951. He has been the minister of the Trinity and St. James Presbyterian Church of England since 1947.

Jamieson was a chaplain during the war years of 1939 to 1945 in the Prisoner of War Camps in Italy and Germany. Since 1945 he has been the minister of the Ealing Presbyterian Church of England.

Exams To Begin Today, Continue Through Friday

Final examinations will be given from Saturday, December 12, at 1:30 p.m. to December 18 at 10 a.m.

The Barnwarming show this year made a profit of approximately 120 dollars. The money will be sent to Korea for the use of an orphanage there.

Service To Recognize December Graduates

MC To Occupy Chapel By February Meetings

By Bud Spalding

"When will the new chapel be finished?" Will it ever be finished?"

Such are some of the questions running through the student body. President Lloyd's reply to such a question should allay the fears of some of the more pessimistic. "The College is still making plans on the expectations that at least the chapel auditorium will be ready for use by the time of the February Meetings."

February Meetings are scheduled to begin February 10.

Dr. Lloyd further commented that "Construction is behind the schedule that was set up two months ago. This delay is due chiefly to the installation of the aluminum and glass walls." He went on to say that the contractors have had a great deal of difficulty in securing a sufficient number of skilled craftsmen for the installation. For the amount of such work to be done, there should be ten or 12 men doing the installing, whereas there are only four or five to be had at present.

This difficulty in enclosing the building has prevented any sort of adequate system of heating to be put into use, thus making such operations as plastering and other indoor work nearly impossible. Cold weather is a great hindrance to such types of work.

Dr. Lloyd again stressed that "because of the nature of the building, one part can be used before another," referring to the plan whereby the auditorium will be finished before the rest of the building.

Ending on an optimistic note, Dr. Lloyd said, "The seats for the auditorium are being manufactured now, and the first shipment is ready. They will be put in as soon as the building is enclosed and can be heated."

FTA Celebrates With Christmas Party

FTA had its Christmas party Thursday, December 3. Noemi Arjona told about South America, after which members of the club gave skits. The members then went to the Willard House for refreshments to end the evening.

Debaters Travel To Tournament At Boone, N.C.

The women on the Maryville College debate team brought back a better record from the Mountain Forensic Tournament than did the men. Jo Brooks won second place in women's debating and also second place in radio news broadcasting.

By teams, the women won three and lost one in the affirmative bracket, and won six and lost one in negative argument. The men won five and lost one, affirmative, and won two and lost five, negative.

The tournament, the 13th annual one, was held at Boone, N.C., December 3, 4, and 5. Other schools participating were Mars Hill, Appalachian State Teachers College, Carson Newman, Lenoir Rhyne, East Tennessee State, and Milligan.

Teams from Maryville were the following: negative—Naomi Burgos and Jeannine Fiori; Bob Clark and David Williams;

Affirmative—Jo Brooks and Lavinia Lee; Bob Duff and Don Young.

Faculty members A. F. Pieper and Newell Witherspoon accompanied the debaters on the trip.

A deported member of the old Charles (Lucky) Luciano vice mob was shot down and killed in gangland style Wednesday, a few weeks after sneaking back into this country. The victim was Dominick (the Gap) Petrillo. He was cut down in a Bronx bar and grill by three well-dresed gunmen.

Comedian Milton Berle and Ruth Cosgrove were married Wednesday at the New York County Courthouse. It was the third marriage for the television star.

United States diplomats were reported packing to go home Wednesday, as efforts to arrange a Korean peace conference appeared to be breaking down.

Lorenz Finds In Library Poet's Daughter's Letter

By Joe Gilliland

A letter wrtiten by the daughter of William Cullen Bryant added some interesting criticism to the book in which it was found, an American literature student recently learned.

Bob Lorenz, junior English major who was doing research for a term paper, found a letter written by Julia Bryant inside the library's copy of the standard biography, "Life of William Cullen Bryant," by Parke Godwin. Lorenz found this letter in October, and quoted it fully in his term paper.

The edition formerly belonged to Miss Bryant, and the letter was probably connected with the last person to own the set.

The book had been stamped only three times in the back, indicating that Lorenz was probably the fourth person to check it out. He said he did not know if the old letter had been noticed before this year.

Library markings in the front of volume one show that the book was purchased in 1948 from Barnes and Noble, a London second-hand book agency. Copyright on the book (an original edition) is 1883.

An inscription in the front of the first volume reads, "Miss Janet Forrester Gibson from her much valued friend, Miss Julia Bryant. 21st May 1883." The letter could have been written to the owner of the book, but the salutation reads, "My dear Victoria."

The letter was dated in Paris on May 7, with no year given.

The content of the letter is partly personal, matters women frequently write to each other about. Of greater interest is Miss Bryant's mention of Parke Godwin's treatment of her father's religious life.

She mentions a Dr. Ely, obviously a minister and close friend of the Bryants. Miss Bryant comments:

"Also, Dr. Ely's career should have its place in the memoirs. Although my father and all our family (myself included) communed at his church when at Roslyn because Dr. Ely so cordially invited all members of other denominations to commune with his flock.

"Indeed, I wish that there might have been a fuller account of my Father's religious life in the Biography . . . on the whole it gives a

Ten Seniors Finish Courses

Ten seniors graduating this semester will be recognized in a special chapel service on Tuesday, December 15.

President Ralph W. Lloyd will preside at the service. The same number of seniors is graduating in December this year as graduated last year.

The seniors are the following: Edward Breitbach, English major from Newark, N.J.; Moody Bryles, psychology major from Pine Bluff, Ark.;

Jim Darroch, history major from Philadelphia, Pa.; Wayne Feehrer, psychology major from Pitcairn, Pa.;

Trudy Furman, Bible and religion major from Long Island, N. Y.; Glenn Gentry, biology and music theory major from Donelson;

Johnnie Griffitts, elementary education major from Calderwood; Al Homan, mathematics major from Greenport, N.Y.;

Harland Jackson, political science major from Albion, N.Y.; and Helen Petts, history major from Vincennes, Ind.

The future plans of these students are not yet known. Some will go on to graduate work, and others will begin their careers.

They will be officially included as part of the class of 1954, and can, if they wish, return in May to take part in the graduation exercises then.

Second Semester To Begin January 13

Class attendance will be required from the first day of the second semester which will be Wednesday, January 13, the personnel office announces.

Absences will be reported according to class rolls made up from the registration cards which have been filled out, approved, and turned in to the Treasurer's office this past week.

The penalties which will apply for absences on the first two days after the recess will be equal to half-semester hour penalties. Chapel will be held at the regular time, 8 a.m.

Thursday, January 14, will be the last day to make payments of bills at the treasurer's office. The regular day for necessary changes in schedules after registration will be Friday, January 15.

The dormitories will be open on Tuesday morning, January 12, at 8 o'clock. The first meal will be served at 6 p.m. of the same day.

Anne Yoakum Receives Membership In ACS

Anne Yoakum, senior chemistry major from Alcoa, was honored last week by receiving membership in the American Chemical Society.

Each year the East Tennessee section of the American Chemical Society awards memberships in the society to outstanding senior chemistry and chemical engineering majors in each of several colleges in Tennessee.

Miss Yoakum plans to go on to graduate school and possibly to do medical research when she graduates.

IRC Holds Elections

Margallen Hanna presided at the IRC business meeting on December 3. Naomi Burgos and Kenneth Madgin were elected to the office of vice-president and treasurer respectively.

Next semester's program was discussed by the club.

Plans were made to sell subscriptions of Life and Time magazines preceding and immediately following meals on Wednesday and Thursday, December 9 and 10. Special gift rates are offered to those desiring either of these magazines.

On Happiness

Most of us readily agree that we believe with Thomas Jefferson in the right of every person to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." But seniors have been discovering under the guidance of Dr. Orr that one does not achieve happiness by pursuing it.

According to his understanding, happiness is a value experienced not as a result of a definite effort in its direction. There are, however, several aids to happiness which we can employ. Among these aids one very important one is the acceptance of our particular lots. This self-acceptance is an interesting phase of psychology which can contribute much to our happiness and is, it would seem, a vital part of our MC spirit.

We frequently hear comments on the fact that the MC students always manage to do so much with nothing or be so successful in spite of technical difficulties or for that matter be relatively gay "in spite of" the rules. It seems we are quite capable of "making the best" of nearly every situation, whether bad or good.

This editorial is not a condemnation, but a commendation for the purpose of encouragement. We should be proud of our ability to acquiesce in our given situations. We should be ever making the effort individually to realize our own capabilities and limitations so that we can come to a more nearly complete realization of ourselves and our potentialities.

We should even further develop our ability to be content, to be adaptable to changing conditions. This does not mean that we need to knuckle under to authority or always to follow tradition. Rather it means that we must be alert to the ways alterations can be made when they are advisable, utilizing our various talents in the direction of progress. And we must continue to develop our ability to enjoy the best qualities of each experience.

It is such an attitude that makes for individual happiness and will determine to a large extent the success of the enterprises not only of college life but of society as a whole.

About Letters

The Echo is ready to print letters to the editor on pertinent subjects that should come before the student body. Such letters provide a medium of expression for those who would otherwise have no chance to voice their opinion and ideas. Views expressed need not coincide with the private opinions of the editor or with the editorial policy of the paper, although there is always a possibility that they may do so.

For the benefit of those who for one reason or another may not wish to see their names in print, names may be withheld by request, but nothing anonymous will be printed in the Echo. Anything that appears must first have been duly signed and acknowledged by its author.

Not much use has been made of the Echo Forum this semester. A few letters have been printed, but it seems that much more use could have been made of it.

Frequently persons who are complaining about some topic shy away when asked, "Why don't you write a letter to the Echo about it?" If they feel that their comments are worth saying, they should be willing to pass their ideas along to others.

Letters are not necessarily critical, either. Words of praise might also be made public. The belief that something is worthy of commendation can be stated for everyone's benefit.

Since this is the last paper before Christmas, no more use of letters to the editor can be made this semester, but it is something to bear in mind when we return in January.

Scots & Soda

By Abby Crosby

Christmas is upon us, as well as exams. But let's think about Christmas, and maybe the spirit will surround us enough so we'll forget about our exams. (Well, it might work!)

Everyone has the end of the semester drag, with more lights staying on later than ever before, and more coffee being consumed, and the dining hall getting quieter and quieter and emptier and emptier every morning.

A good example of this drag occurred in Milton the other day when Herb White yawned quite widely in Miss Jackson's face. In response to her surprised look, "I was sleepy before I came in, so it won't be you."

We've been hearing the sad story of a guy whose roommate actually wanted to get busy and clean up the room. An interested by-stander offered the encouraging advice: "The best way to deal with that is passive resistance."

Etiquette for Necking, as posted on the bulletin board in Pearsons (and as issued by the University of Houston):

"1. Area outside of D and E dorm reception rooms approved for goodnight kisses only.
"2. Cullen Boulevard, side of D dorm, recommended.
"3. Cars in dorm parking lot only if we can see your heads showing over car seat.
"All other areas are taboo. Don't go about wrecking your necking by using the taboo areas."

According to one life-guard, the swimming pool is the best place on campus to see the student body.

Yes, there is a Santa Claus, even if he didn't show up at the choir party—but George did very well.

Don't worry, 'though—he showed up right on time at the dining hall party last night—in his size 40 suit! Orchids to you, Jim Hunt—you made a nice Santy!

Well, time's a 'wastin'—and a very Merry Christmas to you-all!

On Peace

This is the first Christmas in three years that the Korean War has not been menacingly in the background of all the festivities. The other Christmases, no matter how merry they were, had always behind them the knowledge that all was not peace and good will in other parts of the world.

Everything is not calm and peaceful now, but at least we are for the moment free from an actual shooting war. We hope that we will be preserved from another all-out world war that could easily mean the end of our civilization, or even of all civilization.

Perhaps with the Christmas spirit that should be more in evidence than ever at Christmas time, something may be acomplished for lasting peace.

We, at least, can do our small share in trying to bring this about. The principles of Christianity can be the only basis for peace in the future.

TALK OF THE WEEK

The death toll in tornado-torn Vicksburg, Mississippi, reached 32 Wednesday with another missing and feared dead, but the city was beginning to look normal for the first time since last Saturday's twister.

Poetically Speaking

The Two Trees

Why is there a tree at Christmas?

Christmas is the beginning;
But there is a tree also at the other end of the story— .

A bitter tree—one hard to bear.
Why is there a tree at Christmas?

Men, busy at their symbol making, have made it;
Green it is and fresh from life in the forest;
And it glitters, and is loaded with gifts.
But men also made the other tree,
And their hate made it heavy and bitter

Oh, Christmas Tree, laden with our pride of things,
Too often redolent still of the pagan Yule tide,
Amidst our feasting and gift giving and joy
Keep us still—thou a tree—keep us still mindful of the other tree.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Kathie Chase

With all the exam worry and rush of the last week, just in case any of you bright students who don't have to study for finals are interested in what's on at the shows uptown, here they are.

Monday night at the Park is "Loan Shark," with George Raft. I couldn't find out anything about it, but it should be fair.

Tuesday and Wednesday the Park is presenting an Italian production, "Volcano" with Anna Magnini. It's a wild melodrama of a sort of Italian Sadie Thompson who is exiled by the police to her native island where she is persecuted by the female prudes. She kills a cynical young sailor who is after her sister for the white-slave traffic. It has some sneaked-in documentation on tuna fishing, frogmen operations and pumice mining.

At the Capitol Monday and Tuesday will be "Hannah Lee" with Joanne Dru, MacDonald Carey and John Ireland. Carey portrays the gunman hired by some wicked cattle barons in their battle against the hapless homesteaders. Miss Dru is the beauteous saloonkeeper, while John Ireland is the U. S. marshall who loses all his fights and is shot in a gun battle with Carey, who in turn is done in by Miss Dru. Rather a new twist—the hero isn't quite the hero after all. Dhat are these westerns coming to? "Hannah Lee" is the title of the background music for the show. It does have some spectacular technicolor scenes though.

A couple of rather good fiction books have recently been added to our library. One of them is A. J. Cronin's "Beyond This Place," the story of a young boy who learns he is the son of a convicted murderer. He sets himself to the task of learning the truth about the trial and becomes immersed in the trial and witness' lives. And the closer he gets to the truth, the more he is threatened by men in high places. It all makes for a sustained and exciting novel of a son's loyalty.

"The Sinner of St. Ambrose" by Robert Raynolds is another very excellent book. It is the story of a pagan's search for God during the decline of the Roman Empire during Theodosius' reign. Brought out very well in the story is the persecution of the pagans after the Christians were in power.

The only time of the year when all the choral groups on campus present a program together will be at Christmas Vespers tomorrow night. It's a beautiful service and one you'll want to be sure not to miss.

In the meantime, best wishes on your exams and have a wonderful vacation!

Merry Christmas!

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

Here's a sad cotton tale: poor Paul was in a stew about his hare until his paw wrote: "I ear you got a bun on because your girl left you. Now, lettuce look at the bre'r facts. To get in on the bunny huggin', smart rabbits foot it down to any toilet goods counter for Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's biggest-selling hare tonic. So fuzz thing tomorrow, invest 29¢ in a bottle or handy tube. Contains soothing Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. Grooms the hare. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes loose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test." Sheedy tried Wildroot Cream-Oil and now he's a jump ahead of every Tom, Dick and Harvey. So what're you waiting for? Get Wildroot Cream-Oil today, and ask for Wildroot at your barber's. You're bound to like it!

To whom it may concern:

It seems in order to bring to light some ideas and questions dealing with campus law and order, since the present student governments seem to be leading to a somewhat unsatisfactory situation regarding the making and enforcing of rules and regulations.

Rules are necessary in order to insure that each student has his chance at obtaining a college education with a minimum of friction where other students are concerned; they are necessary in order to protect the student from himself, but they are not necessary solely in themselves. The only justification of rules and regulations is in the way they help the student. Christ said this in so many words when He proclaimed that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath.

Of course there must be some organization for the enforcing of these rules, but it seems reasonable that that organization would not need to be as strict as an organization dealing with students selected on a solely secular basis, because here at Maryville we are dealing with an essentially Christian student body, which should, if that Christianity is to mean anything at all conduct itself with a minimum of ill-will and friction without a severe form of government.

The purpose of our student government should be to make and enforce only those rules which are necessary in order that the greatest benefit will result to the student. Our student government should exist solely in order to benefit the students, and not just to punish the student when he breaks a rule. It is the responsibility of the student government to see that students maintain a peaceful relationship among themselves, and do not damage themselves, the college, or others. This overseeing should be done with a minimum of regulation, and a minimum of punishment; for the type of rules necessary are not sins in themselves if broken; they are sins only when the breaking of them hurts one's self or someone else.

Perhaps it would be wise to re-examine the reasons behind the rules. The rules exist not as ends in themselves, but only as means to an end of arranging for pleasant and efficient living. When they cease to be beneficial and become burdens, and opportunities for some students to inflict punishment on others, then they and their enforcement should be reconsidered.

To be more specific, it ought to be the concern of each student council member checking the town-night ceremonies, that as many women as posible be properly signed in; in this way there

Sports Spotlights

Farewell To Shorty!

Basketball has moved into the limelight of the country's colleges and with it the shorty of the hoop game (anyone under 6') has been pushed into further oblivion. Many still hold positions on present-day college teams, mainly the schools in the lower level, but the ones that are playing continuous ball are few and far between.

Small schools, such as Maryville, can afford to use lots of "under six" boys because of their competition, but every once in a while they find the need for bigger boys. A good example was represented by the Scots against TPI last week. Bob Shelton, 5'11" guard, had to guard a 6'5" sharpshooter who took home the distinction of having scored 22 points. Bob said that when he pressed the minor giant, he would step past him with his long legs. When he played him "loose," the TPI ace popped in an over-the-head shot. What could he do?

Not only have the "big men" taken over the hoop game, but they have developed speed, ability to shoot from everywhere on the court with all types of shots, and play defensive ball as well as or better than the "littlemen." Ten years ago this was practically unheard of on the hardwood courts of America.

Take a peak at Sport Magazine's pre-season All-American selection. The smallest member of the first team is Kentucky's Cliff Hagen, 6'3" and 220 lbs., who last week bombarded Temple's bucket for 51 points, and the largest is Don Schlundt, 6'9" center of the NCAA champs of Indiana. Averaging the first five you get a height of 6'6" (Maryville has one 6'6" player).

Even the second team choice does not have a player under 6'3" with two of them measuring 6'9". Very few players six foot or under in the last few years have received All-American honors. Ralph Beard, Dick Groat and Johnny O'Brien were outstanding exceptions, being some of the most versatile and clever cagers to make the "dream" team.

When college scouts look for promising court prospects, their main objective nowadays is to try to land the big ones. There are plenty of them around and even more on the way up. The "leggy Jake" has finally found the sport in which he can prosper provided he receives the proper coaching.

It has become quite evident that the short boy—unless he can dribble with either hand, shoot deadly with either hand, possess enormous spring or jumping ability and is a master of the defensive game—is doomed in future college basketball. It is unlikely that the shorty will ever get past high school or the extremely small college game in the near future. If anyone plans to cultivate their boy into a hooper, you better grow him big or give him stretching exercises from the day he is born.

Another noticeable trend in the present-day game is the emphasis on offense. The old saying goes that "the best defense in basketball is possession," but teams are scoring so much nowadays that they are lucky to control the ball a minute at a time.

Also the large variety of shots and the size of the players are making defensive play much more difficult. Some of the present-day giants carry the ball a foot above the height of the basket, and make scoring appear rather simple. Teams have turned to making their defense a high number of points, a powerful offense.

The only satisfactory or effective defense of late is the "freeze." Trouble is, the underdog or the team getting beat usually uses it nowadays to prevent the opposition from scoring a hundred points, but sometimes it doesn't wokr, eh Scots?-

Scots Lack Smoothness and Timing

In viewing the Scot cagers last year, it was quite obvious that they lacked the smoothness that superior basketball teams have. This comes with extreme stress on fundamentals—ball-handling, dribbling and accurate passing—which the Honaker men seemed to have little of. They appeared erratic and at times there was a little too much "individualism." Their timing was far from good on working the plays(?) or patterns.

Against King College Wednesday night, the same raggedness persisted in the majority of the game except in the latter part when they were playing pressure ball. The timing was not there either, for the plays were few and far between.

Looking at the Scot defense brings out a weak spot. The first half King College ripped the Maryville zone apart, connecting with 43% of their shots. But worse yet was the rebounding of the Scotties. It was very poor indeed! King dominated both backboards most of the time though they had no more height than the Scots. The Orange and Garnet clad were too hesitant about following their shots, backing away in most cases.

Dick Abbott displayed his usual fine form and held the Scots together in the first half. He continued with his accurate shooting and fine leadership. Two newcomers added hopes to the Scot future with their outstanding play. Freshman Bill Wallace played a splendid game defensively and offensively and should be a future headliner for Maryville.

Bob "Doby" Berrong kept the Scots in the ball game in the waning seconds with two timely points and his rebounding. He is an intramural product and a good one. Little Lyn Sexton played a fine game with his playmaking and steadiness, especially at the free throw line.

Bob Patterson provided Mayrville with the majority of their rebounds the first half, displaying lots of scrap in salvaging the ball for the Scots. Bob Shelton played a good floor game and made som timely plays, but he showed a bad habit of driving into the corner which leads to nothing but the out-of-bounds line. All in all, the team looked good for this time of the year and let's hope they have a much better season than last year's.

Scots Edge King Cagers, 79-78

Down Tigers in Opener Stomped By 'Big' T P I

By Jim Demer

The hardwood of Maryville College rang out with a 79-78 win over King College on Wednesday. After trailing for three quarters, the Scots rallied in the final period to overcome a 12 point deficit. "Hooks" Keny sunk two foul shots in the last five seconds to give Maryville a one point victory.

Things looked bad for the Highlanders in the third period as high scoring Dick Abbott and Bob Patterson fouled out. Abbott had 15 points and Paterson 7. But Bobby Berrong and Bill Wallace came through with flying colors to keep Maryville in the game. Wallace also fouled out but played some fine ball as he scored 14 points.

Paced by Bob Shelton, Jack Keny, and Lynn Sexton, the Scots took the lead midway in the fourth quarter and beat back a desperate King rally in the dying seconds for the win. J. Moore, little sharpshooting guard hit 6 fouls in the last four minutes to keep King in the game. Berrong scored a field goal in the last minute to put Maryville ahead by one, but Edgar, who paced King with 16 points, hit for two to give King the lead. This left it up to Jack Keny, who was fouled in the last five seconds, to swish in both fouls for a nerve racking 79-78 victory.

Keny was high scorer for Maryville with 16 points. Abbott had 15 and Wallace 14. The future looks bright for this freshman from Townsend. Edgar had 16 for King, supported by J. Hull and E. Hull with 15 each.

T.P.I. Romps

The Scots were stopped in their quest for a second win of the young season as Tennessee Tech romped with a 100-52 win. The men from Cookeville had too much height for Maryville as they started a team with only one man under 6'3". The game was played on Tech's home court. Tech scored most of their points near the basket as they controlled the backboards the entire game. Dick Abbott was high scorer for the Scots with 15 followed by Bob Shelton with 11. Howell, a dead-eye forward for Tech, took game scoring honors with 22 points. Hughes, Tech's big center, nteted 16.

Tech beat Clemson 97-60 on Wednesday to make the Scots look a little better. All one can say is that Tech is really loaded. They are one of the few teams on our schedule that we don't have a home and home series with. Thank Ralph!

Win Opener

The Scottie Hoopmen opened up the 1953-54 basketball season with a 61-38 win over Hiwassee. Dick Abbott, high scoring forward, led the Scots with 17 points. Abbott, team captain, paced the Scots with a 16 point average last year. Bob Shelton followed with 16, the same as Wright for Hiwassee.

Freshmen Cagers Split

The Maryville College B team split two games this past fortnight. Both games were against intramural teams. On December first, the rookies nipped Moser's 36-35. Bill Bivens was high man with 11 points for Maryville. Bob Ramger had 9 for Moser's. Moser's led for most of the game but Jim Roof hit for two points in the last seconds for the tight win.

In the preliminary game to Wednesday night's varsity game the Snowbirds eked out a 46-45 win over the freshmen. Dave Mills sunk a foul to break a 45-45 tie. The undermanned B team gave the Snowbirds a rough game but John Anderson's 20 points proved to be the breaking point.

Last year the Chillles had a star who was star of all stars (Merry Christmas!), and again this year the Chillies refuse to be outdone. Last year's "Girl of the Basketball Court" was a junior, Henny (or "Bevo") Laing, who racked up about 99 hundred points every game. This year Henny's going strong again; after all, four out of thirty-five is a good record if you look at it right. As I said, though, someone has moved into Henny's place and unseated the queen. Her name is Shirley McNeill. Believe it or not, I predicted that Shirley would be an asset to whichever team she joined, and

Scot Wrestlers Down Knoxville Y

By Tom Paton

On Saturday, December 5, the Maryville matmen traveled to Knoxville for their first match of the season, against Knoxville Y. M. C.A. Coach J. D. Davis used a number of new boys in the contest, and they came through very well against the more experienced Y team. Of the eight matches, the Scots won six, the Y one with one ending in a draw. The final score was Maryville 26—Knox Y 5.

In the 123 lb class, it was Jerry Waters of Maryville going against Bill Arnold of the Y team. It was the first match for Waters and, although he looked good at times, Arnold won the match on a decision. In the 130 lb class, Buford Miller turned in his usual good performance, pinning Jack Pappas of the Y in the first period. Jim Cummings took a little longer to get his man, but the 137 pounder won his match over Joe Clendenen with a pin in the second round. The 147 lb. contest ended in a draw between Jack Renfro and Jim West. Renfro was ahead on points, but the Knoxville man had been on top most of the time and gained points for riding time. The rest of the matches were all Maryville. Herb Catlin won by a one point margin over Joe Wheless in their 157 lb. clash.

"Tiger" Tom Bugenhagen won over Don Jones of Knoxville in a hard fought decision. Although Captain Tom was on top for 8 min. 27 sec. of the 9 min. match, he could not pin the powerful Jones. Maryville got its third pin in the 177 lb. class, when Bob Buchanan downed Paul Hickok for the count in the second period. In the heavyweight class, John Anderson, another newcomer, won on points over Jack Coram. With his teammates shouting instructions from the sidelines, John handled his bigger opponent with little difficulty.

With all but two of these boys being either Freshmen or Sophomores, the future of Maryville College wrestling looks bright. I am sure that this year's squad will provide us with many thrills, and they should win some matches while doing it. The boys will be giving it all they have in every match, so let's do our bit by supporting them.

Intramurals....

By Bob Jackson

This past week marked the close of this semester's intramural basketball leagues. In the "A" league, Moser's is leading the pack with five wins and no losses, closely followed by the once defeated Snowbirds. The Local Yokels led by Don Moore and Ted Wilson and the Boxers paced by Dexter Heaton and Roy Gooden are running one-two, in the "B" loop.

Both leagues were in action on Wednesday. The A league play was in the Alumni Gym, while the B action took place in the Intramural court. In the former circuit, the Snowbirds defeated the Destroyers 21 to 16. John Anderson and Dave Mills led the winners with 9 and 8 points, respectively. In the second contest, the high-flying Moser five doubled the output of the opposing AE Scotties 36 to 18. The winners were paced by "Monk" Johnston, Bob Matthews, and Bob Ramger. In the final game, the Y.M.C.A. Aces whipped the Question Marks, 36 to 18. Mike Connelly led the Aces with 10 markers, while Larry Tate accounted for nine points.

Over in the Intramural Gym, the B league was in action. In the first contest (?) the Boxers, led by some sensational shot-making by Dexter Heaton, who scored 36 points, defeated the hopeless X's, 71 to 25. The second game also proved to be a runaway as the Athenians bent the Pre-Min five, 39 to 17. Jim Demer, with 12, and Lynn Counts with 10 were high scorers for the Owls.

In the afternoon's finale, the Local Yokels held to an eight point half-time lead, turned on the power early in the third quarter, and coasted to a 40 to 27 victory over the Ramblers. Don Moore had 10 to lead the "Yokels," and Jim Hedden scored 8 to pace the losers.

Workshop Plans Opera

Opera Workshop's tentative program for next semester is the presentation of a one-act folk opera named "Low Land Sea." The music was composed by Alec Wilder.

The opera was written in 1952, and it is based on sea songs including such as "Bobby Shaftoe," "Here We Come A Roving."

There are going to be two casts for the two performances. The leading characters are Sheila Sutton and Myrna Ginavin playing the part of Dorie Davis; Richard Morse and William Cunningham taking the part of Johnny Dee; John Barows playing Captain Jessie; and the part of Nathanial Hazard is played by Floyd Hickman and Wally Schroeder.

Nuts and Bolts

My back's all aching,
And my muscles are sore,
My arms won't work
But one way anymore.
My eyelids droop,
And my pulse is slow,
I'm just a wreck,
And my legs won't go.
I've got little pains,
That shoot all around.
Right now I feel
I should be underground.
So hereafter and forever,
I now do declare
I'll watch gym classes
From a safe wheel chair.

The biography was published soon after Bryant's death in 1878. Miss Bryant apparently gave this particular set to her friend the same year it was printed.

Lorenz has looked no further into the matter of the letter. He is considering writing to some authorities on Bryant in an effort to learn to whom the letter was written, and if there is any further record of Julia Bryant's criticism of the standard work.

The library has fixed a special pocket in the book for the letter, and a notation has been made on the book card.

she was. The rest of those thirty-five points (thirty-one, to be exact) were made by Shirely, and she's been doing as well (anyway, almost) in every game she's played. Poor Howies! Life gets tedious, don't it! Anyway, to make this long story come to an end, the Chillies won this year's basketball tournament with very little opposition from the Howies. Tough, kids, but there is always another year.

A means of closing every season in Varsity is a good knock-down and scramble squad game. In this way all the girls hvae an opportunity to play at some time or other. Any girl who makes the "Team" is not allowed to play in this, so the girls really go wild. I found out, though, who it is that does all the yelling at the tournament games, and it ain't the team, but the squad. It's funny, but you know, the team has the ability, but the squad has the spirit. I guess that's the only way to run a team.

Some of those squad girls really do scramble for the right to lay a finger on that ball, too. Frieda Whitehead (?) put up a good show as a fightin' Chillies' guard—and she did all right, too. The Howies only made about half the Chillies' score. Nancy Priest, playing for the Chillies, was really getting a good many knocks from those mean old Howie guards. Pleased to relate that she came out alive!

There's not much news this week coming out of the women's sports department. A few flashes from that department: Saw Mrs. Largen in the swimming pool the other day—looking good as usual; Mrs. Queener kind of taking it easy lately and sitting on the sidelines, letting her very efficient physical education majors take over—until Christmas is over, anyway, and she can start cracking down on them again; from all signs, yesterday as the last day for a free swim in the pool.

Since Christmas is on its way, I just want to remind all you varsity girls to keep exercising over the holidays so you won't get sore next semester, and as for you "B" girls, find some place other than the Mountain Air to exercise, wouldja? Jolly holiday, everyone!

would be fewer violations. The idea behind the rule is that the students need some time in ttheir rooms before bedtime, and therefore each student council checker should feel morally responsible to do everything in her power to get the near-late student signed in on time; this would include warning. In this way that particular rule might be more efficiently enforced, and many hard feelings and unnecessary punishments would be avoided. The student council checkers should not give the impression that they are big, black spiders waiting to pounce upon the innocent Susie Jones who might make one tiny false step. The idea is not so much to punish violators as it is to see that there are no violators, and if this must be done by lying in wait to catch and punish students innocent of any evil intention, then the rule and its enforcement ought to be re-examined. The enforcement of much of the "after-hour visiting" rule in at least one women's dormitory has resulted in more people being disturbed than if the "offender" had been left alone.

The direction student government at Maryville seems to be taking is toward more strict rule enforcement. With the gain in power, the student leaders should realize that there automatically comes a responsibility in administering this power. At last week's student council meeting it was suggested that a woman should be considered loitering if her escort does not leave promptly at the moment the woman was due in. Would it not be better, in the future, to ask personally those late-stayers to leave, instead of making this a punishable offense?

It seems rather sadistic for an enforcement officer to allow deliberately a violation to occur which she could prevent, in order that she might catch the violators and have them punished. This has happened here, as it has happened in Jefferson City, in the form of the celebrated speed trap.

Respect for the student government is necessary, and to be expected from all students, but it will certainly not gain in respect by the addition of laws which are unnecessary, the infliction of unusual punishments, such as the "quarantine" of the W.S.G.A., and the lack of understanding in enforcement.

Sincerely,
(Name withheld by request of the writer)

TALK OF THE WEEK

Opera Workshop Plans 'Lowland Sea'

By Barbara Wilkie

February 5 has been set as the date for the Opera Workshop's production, "The Lowland Sea," by Alec Wilder and Arnold Sundgaard. The setting of the opera is a sea town in New England around the year 1845.

The cast is composed of applied voice students, and, since there will be two performances, a double cast has been chosen for the lead roles. Sheila Sutton and Myrna Ginaven will play the part of Dorie Davis; Richard Morse and William Cunningham will portray Johnnie Dee; and John Barrows and Forrest Amidon will portray Captain Jesse.

Cast And Committees

Others in the cast include Floyd Hickman, Sidney Tedford, John Graulich, Carolyn Beatty, Sally Butts, Shirley Leever, Martha Freeny, and Lora Kinsinger.

Harry H. Harter is the musical director; Kathleen Craven is the director of dramatics, and Jane Johnson is the pianist for the production.

The various committees include house manager, Walter Hiller; properties, Betty Messer; make-up, George Caldwell; lighting, Richard Ebright and Douglas Stubblefield; publicity, Maryel Vogel; and tickets, Marilyn Baumgartner.

No Admission Charge

There will be no admission charge for the production, which will be given in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center, but tickets for reserved seats must be procured.

It is interesting to note that Sundgaard, who wrote the libretto for "The Lowland Sea," also wrote the libretto for Kurt Wild's folk opera, "Down in the Valley," which was givene here by the Opera Workshop in 1950.

Girls Ask Boys To Jeans Drag

The Jeans Drag, sponsored by the Women's Choir, will be held tonight at 8 in the alumni gym.

This dance was inaugurated last year to replace the usual Sadie Hawkins Dance. The girls ask the boys and give them selfmade corsages. Two prizes will be given to those who create the two best corsages.

Committees

Cornelia Force, program chairman of the choir, is in charge of the affair. The committee chairmen are as follows: decoration, Doris Glad; publicity, Susan Cook; and refreshments, Elizabeth Enloe.

T. W. Kleinsasser will call for the square dancing. Refreshments will consist of cider and doughnuts.

Admission is ten cents per person.

Nu Gamma Party Entertains Girls

Last Saturday night, Maryville co-eds were put on the spot. Judge Jo Brooks, "persecuting attorney", Ethelyn Cathey, and a jury of Nu Gammas tried and convicted girls for breaking the "old Maryville laws."

Such crimes as wearing red, patent leather shoes, and failing to wear knickers on the tennis court, possessing firearms, smoking, and not keeping at least four feet apart while walking with one's brother were only a few "samples."

After being sentenced by the "musical" jury, the defendants agreed that life "nowadays" isn't as bad as they thought.

The Hen Party is an annual event, sponsored by the Nu Gamma group of YWCA, for all the women on campus, and especially for any girls who come to Maryville in the middle of the year. This year, only one new girl entered MC at this time. She is Nancy Crickman, from Eldorado, Ill.

Sally Monroe, from Buffalo, N. Y., and Dottie Enfield, from Street, Md., returned after being absent last semester.

Presbyterian Women To Raise Funds Toward New Dorm For Girls At MC

The Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church in the USA has made a new dormitory for women at Maryville College the Christian Education object of women's "Opportunity Giving" in 1954, upon recommendation of its Women's Committee, and with the approval of the Executive Committee of the National Council of Women's Organizations.

Opportunity Giving to National and Foreign Missions and Christian Education is a special enterprise of Presbyterian women above their regular budgeted benevolences.

Gifts Planned

Literature on the Maryville dormitory will soon be ready for use of women's organizations throughout the Presbyterian Church. The College will give its full cooperation. The Synod and Synodical Society of Mid-South have voted to promote the dormitory fund. All Presbyterians will soon be receiving information on how to help.

Modern Building

Estimates of the Opportunity Gift which may be reasonably expected by the college in 1954 are from $50,000 to $65,000. The college now has in hand $82,000, and campaigns are being organized to secure the additional funds needed to construct a modern dormitory.

The Western Big Three and Russian talks, which at one time seemed doomed, reached a compromise in their argument over a meeting place. The conferences on German unity and on an Austrian independence treaty will begin on January 25. According to their agreement the first week's talks will be held in the ACA Building, the second week's at the USSR High Commission's residence in East Berlin, then back to the ACA. Thereafter, the progress of the talks will determine the meeting sites.

Two of our "boys" have denounced their stand for Communism, but further appeals to the other 21 who choose to remain seem hopeless. While parents and friends of the fellows wait anxiously, men who run our nation are wondering what has been lacking in our democracy that even so small a group should be lost to the enemy.

In the next few weeks we will be reading and hearing much about the proposed Bricker amendment. This measure which Congress will consider proposes to limit the president's treaty-making power by placing more control in the hands of Congress. The opponents to this Constitutional amendment object mostly to its requirement for state legislation, but advocates point out that in most countries treaties have the force of international law only after such legislation.

The fruit of President Eisenhower's UN speech proposal for the pooling of atomic-material for peaceful use seem to be ripening. At first the Russians attacked the speech, but now, after considering the free world's approval of Ike's idea, they have agreed to talk it over. Time, place and agenda for a conference on questions is being worked out by Secretary of State Dulles and Soviet Ambassador George N. Zarubin behind closed doors.

Rainfall here during the past week is the heaviest in years, according to the Knoxville Weather Bureau.

Disc Club To Hear Sixth Grade Band

The next regular meeting of Disc Club will be held February 4. Tentative plans are for Pat Brendle to be in charge. She will play "Fifth Symphony", and Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rapsody."

These recordings are of her grade six high school band in Waynesville, N.C.

This band played in the highest grade a high school band can play in, and received the highest possible rating. This will be the first non-professional group to be presented to the club.

Disc Club met at 6:30 Thursday evening in the FAC lounge. Myrna Ginaven was in charge. She played the full orchestration of Bach's "Italian Concerto."

FAC Offers Scholarships

Four scholarship awards are being offered this year in the fields of organ, voice, art, and piano to high school students and others who have not attended college or a music school of college level. The award in piano is $300, in voice $300, in organ $300 and in art $200.

Applications must be made before March 16, 1954.

Council Holds First Meeting

Student Council's first meeting of this semester, held Wednesday night, was comparatively free from highly important actions. Council passed no resolutions or laws; reports by president Bill Dartnell and other Council members made up the meeting.

Tuesday night monitors reported no Town Night violations.

Schedule Cards

Dartnell showed the council samples of small cards with the B and C schedules and special February Meetings schedule to be given to each student in the near future. Final printing remains to be done, the president said. "This is one of the little services that a student government should do," Dartnell commented.

C-N Letter

Naomi Burgos, at the president's request, read a letter from Carson Newman college to Dean F. D. McClelland, telling him that Carson-Newman was reimbursing MC $13.72 for the expense incurred in the removal of paint from the campus.

Purpose for reading the letter, Dartnell said, was to show how effective the Maryville-CN "peace pact" could be.

Projects

Dartnell told the Council that different persons were drawing up proposals for a unified activity fee, a new set-up for the Athletic Board of Control, and the same for the Drama Board of Control. He referred to these as projects for this semester.

The prsident also said that both the first-semester coke machine and Town Night committees had handed in reports in the form of recommendations.

New Proposals

The coke machine proposal, providing machines for the women's dormitories, was changed slightly by the faculty, and passed at the final meeting of Council last semester.

Changes were requirements that the proposal must be reconsidered each school year.

Dartnell also said that a new optional Town Night proposal, also passed by Council at last semester's final meeting, had been rejected by the Executive Council of the faculty, with recommendations for changes.

He declined to say what the proposed changes were, but said the Council Town Night committee members "were pleased" with them. "We hope to have this in operation within one month," he added.

E-T Meeting

A letter from an official of the Tennessee Association of Collegiate Student Governments at Middle Tennessee State College was read, requesting permission to have the East Tennessee divisional meeting on the MC campus.

Dartnell received the letter in December shortly before school dismissed for vacation, and after it could be taken up at a Council meeting. Dartnell, according to the letter, has been appointed temporary chairman of the E-T division.

After discussion on the wisest procedure, Council voted to have the president communicate with Carson-Newman and find out what has been done with an earlier proposal to hold a similar meeting on that campus.

Another letter, from McAllister College in Minnesota, asked the MC Council to consider seriously joining the National Student Association. NSA president James Edwards was at Maryville last semester.

Dartnell asked Jim Hunt to proceed with plans for procuring coke machines for the dormitories, and told him that Pearsons has already requested one.

Hunt announced that the finance committee was now ready to receive class dues.

A. C. McWilliams was asked to arrange senior class elections to replace former vice president, Moody Bryles, who graduated in December.

French To Meet

French Club will hold its regular meeting on Thursday evening, January 28. This will be the first meting of the second semester.

The club will not meet during February meetings.

Sellick Announces Cast For Operetta

Magill To Lead Meetings' Singing

Magill To Lead Meetings Music

By Sue Brown

The Rev. John Magill, pastor of Abingdon Presbyterian Church (Pa.) will be the song leader for February Meetings, which begin February 10 and run through February 18.

Magill was song leader for the meetings in 1952.

He is a Maryville College graduate, receiving his degree in 1939. His home is in Worcester, Mass. Following his undergraduate work at Maryville, Magill received his theological training at McCormick Seminary in Chicago.

MC Graduate

He was active in musical and religious work while here in college, serving as director of the choir at New Providence Presbyterian Church, and was a member of the college Vesper Choir.

Work in Chicago

After his seminary work, he served four years as a pastor in Chicago. And for five years after his Chicago work, Magill was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Monmouth, Ill.

He was serving at the Abingdon Church at the time he was at Maryville two years ago.

Mrs. Magill is also an MC graduate. They have a small son.

Mlle. Sponsors Poetry Contest

In conjunction with its February publication of the late Dylan Thomas' verse play "Under Milk Wood," Mademoiselle magazine is offering two $100 Dylan Thomas Awards for best poems by young women writers. One prize will go to women college students under thirty, the other to women under thirty who may or may not be college graduates.

Poems submitted to the Mademoiselle contest may not have been published previously except in college publications. No writer may send in more than three poems. Entries should be typewritten, double-spaced on white paper. The contestant's name, address, age, and "in college" or "not in college" should be clearly marked.

Judges of the contest are Mademoiselle editors. The deadline is April 15, 1954. Send poems to Mademoiselle Dylan Thomas Award, Mademoiselle magazine, 575 Madison Avenue, New York 22, N.Y.

Spanish Club To Hold 'Get-Acquainted' Meeting

The new officers of the Spanish Club, Sadie Davis, President; Bill Wheatly, Vice President; Barbara Packard, Secretary; Mary Carol Coker, Treasurer; Elizabeth Enlow, Program Chairman, welcome all the old and new Senors and Senoritas to the first meeting, Monday, January 25 at 6:45 p.m. in Senor Schwam's classroom.

This first meeting is held in order that the new members can become acquainted.

Library Restricts Use Of Great Books

The Great Books of the Western World, previously available on regular two-week circulation, are now restricted to use in the reading room only, due to a new library policy announced this week.

Procedure for using these volumes is the same as for other reference works. They are shelved on a special bookcase behind the pamphlet file near the circulation desk.

ECHO SCHEDULE

For financial reasons the Echo will omit some issues again this semester.

A tentative publication schedule sets papers for the following dates: February 6, February 20, March 6, March 20, April 3, April 17, May 1, May 8, and May 15.

Subscriptions to the Echo are available from Business Manager Bob Read at 50 cents for the semester.

AEC Offers Fellowships

College seniors majoring in chemistry, physics, or engineering are eligible to apply for Atomic Energy Commission - sponsored graduate fellowships in radiological physics for the 1954-55 school year.

Radiological physics is concerned with health physics, radiation monitoring and control, radioisotope measurements, and similar activities associated with the use of radioisotopes or the release of nuclear energy.

Three Locations

As many as 75 fellowships may be awarded, with fully-accredited graduate study to be carried out in three locations. One program is operated by the University of Rochester and Brookhaven National Laboratory, another by the University of Washington and the Hanford Works of the AEC, and the third by Vanderbilt University and the Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

In each case, nine months of course work at the university is followed by three months of additional study and field training at the cooperating AEC installation. The program is accredited for graduate-level training leading toward an advanced degree.

$1680 Per Year

Basic stipend for fellows is $1600 per year, with an allowance of $350 if married and $350 for each dependent child. University tuition and required fees will be paid by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, which administers the program for the AEC.

Additional information concerning the program may be obtained from science department heads or by writing the University Relations Division of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, P. O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

FAC Shows Art Exhibit

Maryville College has been chosen as one of the recipients of a valuable art exhibit from Japan. This exhibit, which has been sent to several universities and colleges in America, is a token of appreciation from the people of the Japanese Universities for the kindness and help that has been extended to them by American institutions of higher learning.

The collection is composed of copies of the representative masterpieces of the ancient paintings of Japan.

Ancient Murals

The subjects, style, and derivation of these ancient murals in the Kondo Horyuji Monastary have been the object of many sincere discussions. The few paintings which were left after the monastary burned are the ones of which the college has received copies.

Workshop To Hear Van Hassel, Heron

Hank Van Hassel and Jessie Heron will read at Writers' Workshop Monday afternoon at 4:30. Critics will be Joan Frei and Herb White

Choirs Prepare 'Fortune Teller'

Edrie Sellick, director of Girls' Choir and Men's Glee Club, yesterday announced the soloists for the combined groups' forthcoming presentation of Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller." Two casts are being used for the performances on March 12 and 13, as has been the custom in the past.

Leads include the following: Irma, Ruth Billingsley and Susan Cook; Captain Ladislaus, Bob Patterson and Tom Fairhurst; Savior, Kent Toomey and Adlai Boyd; and Musette, Joyce Linginfelter.

Soloists

Other soloists, in order of their appearance, include: Fresco, Eugene Jenkins; Count Berezowski, Morgan Biggs; Lt. Timar, Cary Valentine; Lt. Almir, Don Craig; Wanda, Mary Nichol and Virgina Zwicki; Vera, Ann Daniel and Sylvia Liles; Boris, Bob Brand; Vaninka, Laura Rainwater and Peg Purdy; and Mme. Pompon, Carol Lacy and Faith Nollner.

Setting in Livonia

The setting of the operetta is in the country of Livonia and the characters involved are members of a gypsy band. A love story, music by choruses and soloists, and comedy provide audience interest.

Two familiar songs from the "Fortune Teller" are "Gypsy Love Song" and "Romany Life."

This year's production of a Victor Herbert operetta marks a departure from the Glee Clubs' use of Gilbert and Sullivan, which they produced for two consecutive years. In 1952 the production was the "Pirates of Penzance" and in 1953 they presented the "Mikado."

Miss Sellick will be the director for the performance. Committees and accompanists have not yet been chosen.

Athenians To Give Annual ABC Show Next Saturday

Athenian Society will present the annual ABC Show Saturday, January 30, at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gym. The show, "The Doll Shop," is centered around a small toy store and will present six Bainonian girls, whose identity will remain a top secret until the presentation.

Hiller In Charge

Walt Hiller is the general chairman of the production. The show was written by Abby Crosby, Peg Fisher, and Hank Van Hassel, and will be directed by Peg Fisher and Abby Crosby.

The chorus is under the direction of Lora Kinsinger and Margaret Blackburn. Included in the cast of the show are Phil Muir, Don Williams, Ted McDaniels, Bill Howell, Jim Demer, Perry Fuller, and Jim Hunt.

Sets

The sets were designed by Anne Shimomura and are being built under the direction of Dave Ramsey. The set committee includes Ken Madgin, Jim Crawford, Charlie McFarland, Charlie Williams, Graham Sieber, and Bill Bolger.

Charlie Rogers is in charge of publicity, and Diana Evans is in charge of the programs.

Pre-Meds Hear Talk On Polio Program

Last Thursday night's meeting of the Pre-Med Club featured a program on Polio in observance of March of Dimes week.

A movie was shown, and Kreale Dulaney gave a talk on the subject.

Athenians To Meet Tonight At 6:15

Athenian's regular meeting will be held tonight at 6:15 in Bartlett.

Discussion of the forthcoming ABC show and a special program will make up the agenda for the meeting.

On Opportunity

You are what you make yourself. You are in college now. You have a lot of years ahead of you yet—years fashioned by what you do now—here. Those years will bear the fruits of your early years. What seeds you sow now, you will reap the harvest later—the benefits, the gains, the joys and the sorrows and the losses. Much depends on what you make of college—in fact, a life depends on it—your life.

Even this small college offers a wealth of opportunities for enriching and strengthening your life and making a better person of you. Whether you take advantage of them is a choice left to you and you alone. Whether you can stand up against the storms of the world that so often come and leave you with a feeling of utter hopelessness depends on whether you have been able to withstand the little squalls that come during college years. These little squalls will strengthen you so that you will be able to stand up and laugh and go on after the storm.

You have to be able to ignore and take many things that you won't like and you have to be able to forgive and forget, too. You can develop these traits in college. Just take a minute and look at yourself—are you often prone to let things get you down and hold grudges against others for their unmeaning thoughtlessness?

You've got to tell yourself to forget it and go on because there's a whole lifetime waiting for you, and you'll feel a real uplift in character and personality. And you'll be a better person for it. You're preparing your way for a long road ahead—whether that road will be long and hard or seemingly short and easy depends on what you make of your opportunities and own potentialities—for your life depends on it.

On Ethnocentrism

Sociologists define ethnocentrism as involving distrust of anything which is not one's own; and this distrust carries with it elements of suspicion and ignorance. This kind of feeling exists not only with members of large and distinct culture groups, but, unfortunately enough, is often found in the everyday situations of everyday people—even on this campus. A knowledge and appreciation of one's own background, political and theological views, and place of birth are doubtless good, but the narrow provincialism they often degenerate to has no real place in the college mind or the college life.

Perhaps the only way to insure keeping ethnocentrism from one's own thought patterns is to make and continue consistent association with larger groups. Maryville College has the distinct advantage of having students and faculty of every political, social, economic, and religious point of view and background from nearly every state in the union. To fail to know them is to fail to understand them, and to fail to understand them is to fail to appreciate them. In retreating into any kind of narrow fraternity, one does himself the injustice of not making the kind of contacts necessary to a true appreciation of all his fellows.

Any kind of small group is just not sufficient for a complete social life. Of necessity it makes for exclusion and an antisocial nature. Wendell Wilkie travelled around the world and was shocked to find that it was one. Every current international situation calls us to a new realization of global interdependencies. It is not the time for narrow horizons, isolationism or gibraltarism, or any aspect of ethnocentrism. Eliminating these on our own personal and local level is the beginning of eliminating them on the international level—where they do international harm.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Bud Spalding

With the damp weather prevailing (which prompted underclass women to say, "Gee, I sure do wish that this rain would stop so the spring rains can come."), us'n's with afternoons and evenings to spare may be wondering just how to spend some of that awful excess.

The local cinema parlors offer these solutions:

Monday at the Park Theater shows a fantastic thing called "Two Lost Worlds." It's so fantastic that there aren't even any actors.

Tuesday and Wednesday at the same place provide a relic of sorts called "Thunderhead, Son of Flicka," the same one that made us each want a horse when we wuz littler. Roddy MacDowell is still in it, too, along with Preston Foster.

Thursday and Friday offer "Mighty Joe Young" with Terry Moore, of Korean ermine bathing suit fame lately, and usually-cowboy Ben Johnson. This one concerns a big ape and how he becomes the misunderstood pet of a rather little girl, Terry Moore. Of the King Kong pattern, really.

Across the wide boulevard at the Capitol, Monday and Townday night's fare is "Split Second" with Stephen McNally and Alexis Smith. The reviews in papers with large circulations all said that this 'un was really a good 'un, with emphasis on some of the character portrayals. Veddy suspenseful, to boot.

Wembley, Thirsty, and Friday bring a scrin adaption of H. G. Wells' "Var of the Vorlds" to local eager faces. It too is supposed to be quite passable in the realm of science-fiction variety movies.

And Saturday!, he is about to say with bated breath, Saturday comes the 3 Mesquiteers, top western favorites of this decade, in a real gone oater, "Red River Range." "Hoo Boy!" Walt Kelly or Pogo one would put it. Almost seriously, though, the associate attraction, called "One Girl's Confession," starring Hugo Haas, one of the lesser geniuses of the movie-making industry (y'know he produces, directs, writes the story, stars, tells jokes, and blows bubble gum at the audience in his first 3-D attempt) and Cleo Moore, who possibly may have more actual appeal to the ticket buyers.

A bulletin board over to the liberry says that it would be exceedingly good policy to read at least one book per week during '54. Fine, fine, if you are carrying from six to ten hours a semester. (There may be rumors that the writer is in the secret employ of the local theaters, but is mere rank coincidence, honest!)

And the Fine Arts Center offers at least one thing this and next week:

It is a good place to take off your raincoat and shake it after walking down there through the elements.

(Ed. Note: Had enough? Just drop a postal card to the paper with the one word Uncle inscribed largely on it.)

Library Offers Books; Music Group Plans Opera

By Frei and Kinsinger

On the new book table in the library is "From Beowulf to Virginia Woolf," which has been reviewed before in the Echo, but has just recently been acquired by the library. It deals with such well-known topics as Milton's "Paradox Lost," bringing in every possible pun on literary subjects. In the front of the book is a map of England that locates very convincingly Pepy's Dairy, Drakes Bowling Alley, Prentice Hall, McGraw Hill, and many other spots.

This new book is in the tradition of Richard Armour's "It All Started with Columbus," an equally improbably account of American History. Like Will Cuppy's "The Decline and Fall of Practically Everybody," "Columbus" has a background of sound historical knowledge as a point of departure.

Also in the humor field is the library's "Through History with J. Wesley Smith." J. Wesley appears in Rome, Chaucer's England, or Thoreau's New England, always somewhat confused, always slightly behind the times, and always convinced that he is perfectly right.

And another case of humor in a field where it is rarely to be found is Jim Dance's special studies, appropriately entitled, "The Gentle Art of Terror." This is one of the few instances in existence of a special studies volume that prompts that inquiring reader to read on and on.

In another category is the library's new book, "Good Stories for Great Holidays," by Frances Olcott. This should be especially useful to those who are called upon to lead a program for some special occasion, entertain a group of children, or even want to be entertained themselves.

Sports Spotlights

Abbott In Fourth Season As Scot Cager

Sporting the Orange and Garnet uniform of the Maryville College Scotties for the fourth straight basketball season is Richard ("Dick") L. Abbott, sometimes called "Red" for his bright colored hair or "Rabbit" because of his fleetness on the court. This quiet, rather shy basketballer has been a very prominent figure to local cage fans.

Dick is an athlete all local people can be proud of, being born and raised in Maryville and attending all local schools. He graduated from Maryville High School in 1947 and, strangely enough, he did not play basketball for the Red Rebels.

Played Ball in the Army

Immediately following graduation from high school, Dick joined Uncle Sam's Army and served from '47 to '50. While doing duty in the service, the fleet-footed hoopster donned the colors of the 27th Fighter Squadron Division team where he gained his first real valuable experience to make him the player he is today on the Scot squad. He had the distinction of being the only "non-com" on the Squadron first team, playing along with four lieutenants.

Enters Maryville

No sooner had Dick received his honorable discharge papers than he was seen walking around the campus of Maryville, enrolling here in the Fall of '50. And a good break it was for Coach Lombe S. Honaker's basketball forces.

Ever since first donning the Scot uniform, Dick has proven himself a formidable cager to all opponents, always a top scoring threat. His sophomore year, the redhead teamed with Meano Shields to form a deadly scoring combination fearful of no one. This '51-'52 hardwood five gave Honaker one of his best basketball seasons.

Last year Dick bore the brunt of Scot scoring along with big Jack Keny, amassing a total of some 300 points with an average of 16 points per game. This year Dick has been off to a slower start than usual, but should pick up as the season progresses.

Erratic in Style

One thing a person thinks when he first sees Dick in action is that he "lucks in" the majority of his shots. But, by watching him game after game, he will soon realize that that is just his style of play, making all types of odd, awkward and hard shots every game with excellent accuracy the majority of the time. This style is probably what makes him exceptionally good. This and his superb speed.

He races up the court at full speed and, in what seems to be another easy stride, he leaves the floor and sinks a well-executed push shot, never slowing down or changing step. 'Tis hard to do!

Fine Average

His sophomore year, when teamed with Shields, Dick compiled an average of 12 points per game. Last year, as previously mentioned, he had a 16 point average. To date this year, Dick has scored 116 points in nine games for an average of 12.8 per game.

Physical Education Major

Dick has followed the major field of physical education since entering Maryville, planning a future of what has been a big part of him the last several years. He hopes to teach or better yet be a basketball coach. Here's wishing the best of luck to an excellent self-made cager who will be a fine coach someday.

Scot Scoring Chart

Up through Tuesday night's game, Dick Abbott leads the Scot offense with his 12.8 average, a total of 116 point. Second is southpaw sharpshooter Jack Keny with a 12 point average, having 108 points in nine games. Following in the third spot is Freshman Bill Wallace, a cager with a very bright future on the Scot hardwood. His figures are a total of 93 points in nine games, giving him an average of 10 per game.

Totals are:

Player	G	FG	FT	Pts.
Abbott	9	42	32	116
Keny	4	45	18	108
Wallace	9	36	21	93
Patterson	8	27	12	66
Sexton	9	23	20	66
Shelton	8	24	14	62
McWilliams	6	6	2	14
Strickland	7	6	1	13

Scotties Wallop Johnson Team By Score Of 105-43

Coach Lombe Honaker's cage squad overcame an early period "freeze-athon" by the Johnson Bible College Thursday night in the Scottie gym to win going away, 105-43.

Johnson froze the ball for the first four or five minutes while the score stood 2-0 in favor of the Scots. Then the Bible squad got daring and unleashed a few shots which enabled the Maryville five to start rolling.

Paced by slender forward Bill Wallace, who totaled 16 points, the Honaker men moved to a 39-18 halftime lead. They came roaring back in the second half, led by Wallace, Bob Patterson, Lyn Sexton and Bob Shelton, the latter three had 15 points each, to break the century mark as the final whistle blew to stop the onslaught of the hapless Johnson five.

The Kentucky Wildcats; the nation's top basketball team, play the Tennessee Volunteers tonight in Knoxville.

Wing as if you are used to it; Lose as if you did not care; Good sportsmanship is very important o be in a good athlete.

Grapplers Meet Moccasins

Score Impressive Win Over Sewanee

By Jim Demer

Tonight the Wrestling Team journeys to Chattanooga to engage the U. of C. Moccasions on the mat. Tom Drake, last year's SEC 191 pound champ has graduated, but the Moccasins have at least two very good men in Fred Shaw, a transfer from Auburn, and Abe Cohen. Shaw wrestles in the 157 pound class and Cohen is the heavyweight. I look for Maryville to win in a close one.

The Scottie wrestling team extended its winning streak to three straight with a 28-6 romp over The University of the South. This is the first year that this school, better known as Sewanee, has had a wrestling team but strong competition is promised in the years to come from this all-boys college.

Led by Captain Tom Bugenhagen who had a first period pin of his man, the grappiers came through with five pins and a decision. The two losses were suffered at the hands of experienced wrestlers with high school backgrounds in this grunt and groan sport.

New Man

Clarence Norton started the night off with a second period pin of his opponent. This was Clarence's first match and picking up a pin is really getting off on the right foot.

Jerry Waters looked good with a second period pin of his man. Jerry wrestled over his usual 123 weight as did both Buford Miller and Jim Cummings. Miller was extended to the third period but picked up the five points for pin. Buford remains the aggressor every match and should go far in SEC circles this year.

Too Bad

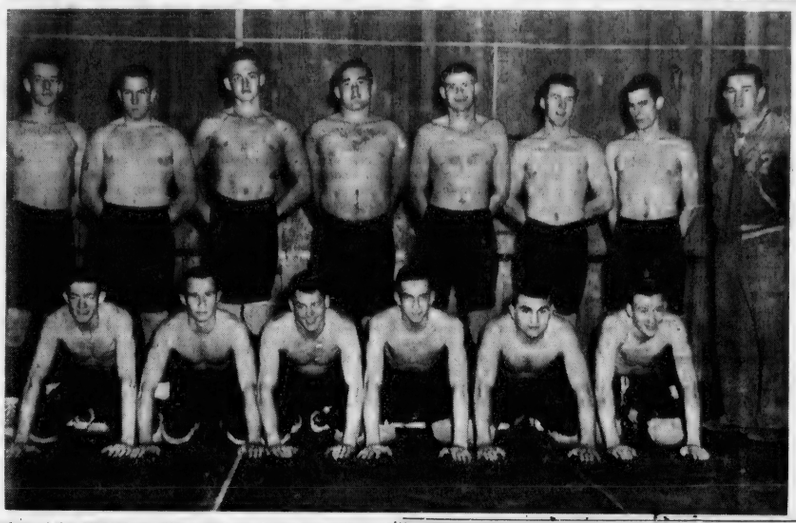
All good things come to an end, and so it did as Jimmy Cummings dropped a close 7-5 decision to Hal Knight. Despite a 12 pound handicap and a near pin in the first period Jim rallied and nearly took the match.

Herb Catlin took the only other Maryville lose as the Sewanee captain Pete Tranakos won a tight 5-4 decision.

Good News

"Tiger" Tom Bugenhagen didn't waste any time as he got his man in 1:20 of the first period.

Bob Buchanan got Maryville's fifth pin with a second period win over Harry Spore.



Namesake

John Anderson of Maryville beat John Anderson of Sewanee 4-1. John picked up his points with a reverse and riding time.

With only home and home matches left with Chattanooga and Middle Tennessee State, Maryville could have an undefeated season.

Summary:

123 pound class—Clarence Norton (M) pinned Kent Ray (S)
130 pound class—Jerry Waters (M) pinned Spike Bevens (S)
137 pound class—Buford Miller (M)) pinned John Breaver (S)

Cagers Edge Tigers, Lose To Oak Ridge

Milligan Downs Hoopsters, 75-57

Smarting under the effects of three straight losses, the Milligan College Buffaloes roared back into the victory column by trouncing the Highlanders 75 to 57 in a game at Johnson City.

Never in any trouble, the Buffs rolled to a 46-29 lead at intermission by sinking 21 out of 48 shots. Then after checking off only 10 points in the third period, the upstaters added 19 in the final quarter to completely smother the Scots.

Milligan was paced by Gaslin, who hit for 15 and Burgett, who contributed 12. The Highlander scoring attack was led by Patterson and Keny with 14 and 13 points respectively.

For Milligan it was their sixth victory against an equal amount of losses. Maryville now has won 5 while losing 3.

HIWASSEE

Starting the new year off in good style, the Maryville Scotties returned to action by turning back Hiwassee, 76-70. Trailing throughout most of the game, the Scots set a tremendous fourth quarter pace to nip the tired Tigers in the waning moments of the tussle.

Playing a very much improved brand of ball, Coach Howard Davis' cagers outsmarted, outfought, and outshot the Highlanders for the first three quarters. Hensley, Wright, and Spurling continually banged away at the Scots defense with an attack that appeared unstoppable. Then, midway through the final period, the home team suddenly came to life led by big Jack Keny and Dick Abbott, the gap was quickley narrowed. Keny was especially good under the boards and his fine all-round play was invaluable. With five minutes left to go the trend was clearly visible and a one-hander from the corner by Bob Shelton seemed to indicate the final outcome.

Keny led the Maryville scoring with 25 points, closely followed by Abbott who tossed in 19. Hensley was high man for Hiwassee with 24.

OAK RIDGE

At Oak Ridge Saturday night, the Highlanders got a dose of their own medicine as the National Lab squeezed out a 76-63 victory. It was only the second loss for the college team this season.

For the first half of the game the Scotties played sparkling basketball, perhaps their best of the current campaign. Yet, with victory apparently in their grasp, the hoopsters from the Hill had to take a backseat as Muckenthaler and Wolfe began to find the range in a second half that was all Oak Ridge. This scorching comeback, coupled with poor play on the part of the Highlanders, was all that was needed for victory.

Muckenthaler was high man for the game with 24 counters. Lynn Sexton dumped in 12 for the Scots.

Intramurals....

By Bob Jackson

This past week marked the first full week of action in the two intramural basketball leagues since last semester. The B loop was in action on Monday and Wednesday while the A leaguers played their games on Tuesday and Friday. The Friday games were played too late in the week in order to make the column. Monday's games results are as follows: In the first game the X's defeated the hapless Pre-Mins 32 to 21. Leading the scoring parade for the X's were Eddie Grigsby of "Vulture's View" with twelve points and Intramural Manager Max Sockwell with 11. The losers' top scorer was cross country captain Homer Rickabaugh who accounted for eight markers.

The second game, a closely contested affair, ended with the Ramblers besting the Hotshots, 27-26. The Ramblers' "Shotgun" Bud Spalding led both teams in scoring with 13 tallies. The Ramblers iced the game when Sonny Shackelford made a driving one-hander with less than a minute to go. The losers had a chance to tie the game with two foul attempts in the final seconds, but both shots went astray as the game ended.

In the afternoon's final game the Athenians won over the Boxers 25 to 21. The losers had the leading scorer of the game in Dexter Heaton who accounted for 14 points. Lynn Counts had ten for the winners.

Chicago To Offer New Program In Communication

A new graduate program in public communication, designed for students interested in journalism, public relations, propaganda or communication research, has just been organized by the Social Science Division of the University of Chicago.

Beginning in 1954, the degree of Master of Arts in Communication will be awarded to students who successfully complete an intensive training period focused on understanding the communication process and its effects on opinions, attitudes, and behavior. Lectures in social psychology, sociology, statistics, political science, business administration, education and other fields are included in the instruction.

New Courses

The interdisciplinary program includes courses on the relationship between organization of the communication industry and the nature of its products; on techniques for measuring the effects of press, radio, television and film; on propaganda and psychological warfare; and on the latest findings of communication research. Other courses supplement undergraduate preparation in the basic social science disciplines.

Flexible Requirements

Because previous training and career objectives of students may vary widely, course requirements are purposely kept flexible. College graduates with an undergraduate major in a social science can normally complete all requirements for the M.A. in Communication within one year.

Students in the communication program will have an opportunity to participate in ongoing research under faculty guidance. A scholarship fund has been set up for men who plan careers in journalism, and research assistantships in communication are from time to time available. Special consideration is given students with previous experience on college and high school publications.

Further information about the new degree program may be obtained from the Committee on Communication, University of Chicago, Chicago 37, Illinois.

Medical Schools Advise May Admission Test

Candidates for admission to medical school in the fall of 1955 are advised to take the Medical College Admission Test in May, it was announced by Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the test for the Association of American Medical Colleges.

These tests, required of applicants by almost every medical college throughout the country, will be given twice during the current calendar year. Candidates taking the May test, however, will be able to furnish scores to institutions in early fall, when many medical colleges begin the selection of their next entering class.

Local Centers

Candidates may take the MCAT on Saturday, May 8, 1954, or on Monday, November 1, 1954, at administrations to be held at more than 300 local centers in all parts of the country. The Association of American Medical Colleges recommends that candidates for admission to classes starting in the fall of 1955 take the May test.

The MCAT consists of tests of general scholastic ability, a test on understanding of modern society, and an achievement test in science. According to ETS, no special preparation other than a review of science subjects is necessary. All questions are of the objective type.

Applications

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information, which gives details of registration and administration, as well as sample questions, are available from premedical advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton, N.J. Completed applications must reach the ETS office by April 24 and October 18, respectively, for the May 8 and November 1 administrations.

Echo Forum

Dear Editor;

Over the Christmas holidays, I had time to think objectively of our life here at college, and to discuss with others some of the pros and cons of the Maryville attitude. Invariably, there was one regulation that received widespread condemnation—the Sunday afternoon "no dating" rule.

I remember the Sundays of my childhood with nostalgia. It was a happy day at our house; a day to look forward to all week; a day to visit, or read, or sing together; a "different" day, when we did different things.

But now I am at Maryville College, and all of that has changed, especially for those of us who go steady with someone on or off campus. Instead of making Sunday a day when couples can walk the drive, or sit on the campus, or, on rainy days, enjoy each other's company in parlors, it has become the day most oppressed by prohibitive rules. The day of rest is becoming the day of restlessness.

The main reason, it seems, for this Sunday quarantine, is this feeling on the part of some of the faculty: "The couples are together all day long six days of the week, why should they be together Sunday afternoon too?" On the contrary, an amazing number of couples do not feel they see each other enough during the week to benefit from these protective Sunday afternoon separations. And just maybe they could be right.

At the busy tempo of life on this campus, the average couples find much less time to spend with each other than the faculty would suspect. During the day, they are able to walk together to a class or two, an encounter lasting the whole of five minutes. Some couples eat at the same table. For others, the boy can walk the girl home after each meal, unless one is a waiter, or is busy elsewhere, is is often the case. The afternoon is left open for being together. But it is amazing how many little things crop up in the afternoons to keep students busy, especially if one has an E or F class, or both. Some couples study together in the library, a thrilling experience for all concerned.

And so the week tears by, till Saturday afternoon arrives, the one time, on this campus, when couples can enjoy each other's company, undisturbed by the fear of missing the next day's deadlines. Homework will, of course, be saved til Sunday afternoon, the natural result of such a distorted schedule of things.

Where in this mess did we louse up the time honored idea of catching together the loose threads of the week on Saturday, ready to start a newer, better week on Sunday? The right pictures would be: A Saturday Afternoon—Showing fellows and girls in their work clothes, busy on homework, or laundry, or odd jobs; and A Sunday Afternoon — These same fellows and girls in their Sunday best, enjoying the day that was made for them. It smacks of Currier and Ives, doesn't it? But those old boys had a lot on the ball. At least their negatives didn't get switched at the photographers.

If this system is hard on campus couples, imagine its results when one member of a twosome is outside the iron gates.

These aren't radical modern heresies, nor were they when my mother, or my grandmother was in college. If Moses were alive today, that hardy old patriarch might even give me his hieroglyphic.

I would like to "remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy", so that in the future, I can remember the Sabbath day because it was kept.

Sincerely,
(Name withheld by request)

coming up in two weeks, you may be interested in reading what Sundgaard and Wilder, librettist and composer of the opera, have to say about it.

They say, "'The Lowland Sea' was written out of a remembering of the sea and sea songs—of dunes, of harbors, of voyaging, of loneliness, of waiting. It is hoped that it will seem familiar to anyone who has walked (or wanted to walk) the streets of Nantucket, or has waited for the evening mail boat at Ocracoke."

The college production will follow the original plan of the composers in using only such basic properties as a table, a bench, and two chairs. By rearrangement of these and skilful handling of the lights the changes in mood and scene will be effected.

It is expected that those who attend the opera will come away with a feeling of nostalgia, but a new tune or two to hum in idle moments and with the glow of having been near the Lowland Sea.

Legislative Groups Pass Town Night Plan

Copeland To Begin Next Wednesday With Series of February Meetings

By Sue Brown

Maryville College February Meetings, an annual period of special religious emphasis by the college, will begin Wednesday morning at 9:45 when, for the first time since 1947, the Meetings will open in a college chapel auditorium.

This year's February Meetings mark the 78th series to be held annually on the MC campus.

Copeland

Joseph J. Copeland, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Knoxville, will lead February Meetings from February 10 to 18. John Magill, pastor of the Abingdon Presbyterian Church, Pa., will officiate as song leader and will be accompanied at the piano by Henry Barraclough, Philadelphia.

Dr. Copeland came to the pastorate at Knoxville over a year ago, succeeding Clifford E. Barbour. He is a member of the Board of Directors of Maryville College and has visited the campus as such, but will speak to the students for the first time this February.

Trinity Graduate

Dr. Copeland, a native Texan, graduated from Trinity University, Texas, where he was active in debate and drama. Trinity granted Dr. Copeland membership in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" and bestowed upon him an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity. He received theological training at McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, serving as president of the Student Body his senior year.

His first pastorate was at Frederick, Okla., for three years; his second was at First Presbyterian Church, Denton, Texas, for ten years; after which he came to Knoxville. Dr. Copeland is a member of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education and holds a number of other important positions in the Church.

Religious Leader

Throughout his ministry Dr. Copeland has been in demand as a religious leader on college campuses. He has been leader of religious-emphasis week at various schools, including the University of Texas, Texas A&M, Oklahoma College for Women, and others. This January he is assisting in a meeting at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn.

Married to a Texan and graduate of Trinity, Dr. Copeland has a son, 12, and a daughter, four.

Magill

Dr. Magill, the meetings' song leader, is a graduate of Maryville College of the class of 1939. He came to Maryville from Worcester, Mass. After graduation from McCormick Theological Seminary, he served four years as a pastor in Chicago. For the next five years Dr. Magill held the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church of Monmouth, Ill.

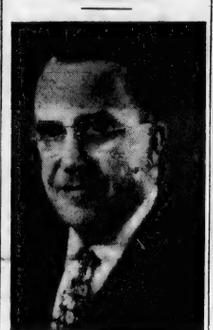
While at Maryville College, Dr. Magill was particularly active in the field of music, serving as director of the choir at New Providence Church. In continuing this interest, he has attained reputation for his ability in music.

Mrs. Magill is also a Maryville College graduate.

Dr. Barraclough is a native of England. He first came to the United States to accompany Charles M. Alexander, evangelistic singer.

Dr. Barraclough has been pianist for February Meetings before, usually accompanying for only part of the meetings.

Letters have been sent to the homes of all students, notifying their families of the February Meetings and inviting all interested to join the College students for the week of services.



Dr. Howard Moody Morgan led February Meetings last year. It was Dr. Morgan's fourth time to be the preacher for the Meetings. Dr. Sidney Stringham, song leader for over 20 years, was the 1953 musical director.

FAC To Show Exhibit Of Modern Art From N. Y.

The Fine Art Division announces that an exhibition of modern watercolors entitled "The Versatile Medium" will be on view in the art gallery of the Fine Arts Center from February 9 to March 3.

The exhibition consists of 40 watercolors and gouaches selected from the collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The opening will be on February 9 at 8 p.m. in the art gallery.

For those interested in learning more about the paintings, Mrs. R. E. Beard, instructor in art, will give a gallery talk on February 23 at 8 p.m.

Mrs. Beard stated, "Everyone is urged to attend this exhibit, which the Art Department feels is the most significant and valuable it has ever shown."

Modern Approaches

This exhibition is a survey of the various modern approaches to the watercolor medium and includes work by important European and American painters. Beginning with Cezanne as perhaps the most influential fore-runner of contemporary art, the other artists represented are Prendergast, Burchfield, Marin, Stuart Davis, Grosz, Beckman, Nolde, Kokoshka, Chagall, Dufy, Masson, Klee, Orozco, Graves, and Motherwell.

Although no attempt has been made to cover all trends in modern art, the present selection briefly illustrates the more outstanding of these: Post-Impressionism, the German artist group called The Bridge, Expressionism, Social-Realism, and Surrealism.

Watercolor Art

"Where painting in oil has been traditionally accepted in the West as a relatively formal expression, watercolor is often thought of as a more intimate and informal medium," Mrs. Beard explains. "The appeal of sketches in watercolor to the artist and onlookers alike nearly always lies in the spontaneity of execution. The necessarily quick and facile handling of the medium

MC Enters Auditorium of Wilson Chapel Today

By Pat Brendle

Maryville College held its first program in the new ultra-modern $600,000 chapel this morning.

Workmen finished the remaining work this week in order to be in the building for February Meetings, which start February 10. While yet the actual completion of the building is months away, the chapel wing is almost finished.

Temporary Equipment

Temporary light fixtures and platform furniture has been installed until the permanent fixtures come. They have already been selected and ordered. Also choir platform seats have not been installed.

Tomorrow night's Vespers service will be held in this new chapel, but there have been no definite plans yet to have Vespers there permanently.

Seats For Guests

There are reserved seats in the back and side for visitors, and the balcony is also opened. The ground floor will seat all students. The seating arrangement has been posted in Anderson.

May 16 is the date set for dedication of the building which will include the chapel, theater, and class rooms. Work will be going on in the remainder of the building until that time.

Lloyd Visits Detroit

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd's travel schedule this semester is in full swing.

In Detroit on Tuesday and Wednesday he spoke to the Presbyterial Society there on the subject of Maryville College and Presbyterian Church union. He met with the presbytery committee which is studying the plan of church union and visited with Maryville alumni.

While in Cincinnati on Thursday, he attended a meeting of the joint negotiating committee for church union.

Town Night To Be Optional

Optional Town Night for all girls is the oustanding feature of the new Town Night agreement passed by both the Student Council and the Executive Council of the faculty.

Student Council approved the agreement at its meeting last Wednesday after it had previously been passed by the Executive Council.

Two Documents

The Town Night program is based on two documents. The Town Night agreement is an agreement between the Student Council and the Executive Council as representative bodies. It provides the broad outlines and acts as a framework.

In addition, there is a plan of operation, specifying essential details, which has been passed by the Student Council.

Student Body Approval

It is this operating plan which must be approved by the student body before the Town Night program can go into effect.

President Bill Dartnell will call a student body meeting in the near future to approve the operating plan.

The new agreement provides for one Town Night a week, any night Monday through Friday for freshman and sophomore girls, and two nights Monday through Saturday for juniors and seniors.

Senior privileges on dating in Knoxville on one of the Town Nights will remain in effect.

Two girls may go to town, without having to be in a group of three.

Operation of the plan will be similar to the present system, with the change that Town Nights are no longer limited to Tuesday.

Boundaries are fixed by a large square rather than by specified routes. The emphasis is upon conduct while in town and going to and from town.

Penalties remain the same as they are in the "M" Book under the existing Town Night agreement.

Agreements Printed Here

The full texts of both the Town Night agreement and the Town Night operating plan are printed in the Echo and appear on this page.

Dartnell made the suggestion that all students read both plans carefully and perhaps bring their copies along to the student meeting.

The long plan may be changed or reconsidered by the Student Council at any time so long as it keeps within the spirit of the original short agreement.

Joint Committee

The agreement was the work of a joint committee of students and faculty members, under the chairmanship of Peggy Fisher.

Dartnell appointed another Town Night committee to work with representatives in the dormitories to carry out details of procedure.

Judy Burgos is chairman of the committee, which includes Ginny Smith, Pegy iFsher, and Hank Van Hassel.

In line with the agreement, Council voted to recommend that housemothers enforce the 10:15 leaving time for men every evening. This applies especially to Pearsons Hall.

Other Legislation

In addition to pasing the Town Night agreement Student Council considered several other matters of business at its February 3 meeting.

President Bill Dartnell reported that he received a letter scheduling a meeting of the East Tennessee Division of the Collegiate Student Government Association for February 27 at Carson-Newman College. He stated that the representatives elected last semester will attend the meeting.

Service Program

Carol Demler, president of YWCA, asked Council's cooperation in the World University Service program, formerly the WSSF. She explained that this is a project undertaken by students to aid students in other lands. Dartnell

Echo Prints Text of Town Night Agreement, Plan Passed By Faculty, Council

Town Night Agreement

The Student Council agrees to be responsible for the satisfactory working of Town Night, and will adopt an operating plan which it will report with all revisions when made to the Student-Faculty Senate and the Executive Council of the Faculty.

1. It will be responsible for the number of times Town Night may be taken.
   a. Sophomore and Freshmen women may have one Town Night each week, Monday through Friday.
   b. Junior and Senior women may have two Town Nights each week, Monday through Saturday nights. (Seniors may take one night in Knoxville in accordance with Senior Privilege regulations.)
2. It shall be responsible for the time regulations of 5:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.
3. It shall be responsible for maintaining area limits which include the section of Maryville bounded by the college campus, Cates St., Washington St., and Harper Ave.
4. It shall be responsible for the provision that girls must be with a date or in groups of two girls at all times; and for making provision for Housemothers to know whereabouts of each girl.
5. It shall be responsible for conduct and shall be prepared to deal with instances of behavior that bring adverse criticism from students, faculty, or townspeople.
6. This agreement shall be for the college year specified, but shall be subject to question or recall by the Student Council or Executive Council of the Faculty at any time and must be reviewed and approved each May before it is effective for the coming year.

Town Night Operating Plan

I. The Town Night Operating Plan shall be in accordance with the Town Night Agreement bement between the Executive Council of the Faculty and the Student Council. The plan shall be for the college year specified and shall be subject to question and/or revision in May or whenever necessary. Any such revisions in the plan shall be reported promptly to the Student-Faculty Senate and the Executive Council of the Faculty, thereafter to be submitted to the Student Body for ratification. Regardless of revisions this plan must be ratified by the Student Body not later than the second week of the fall semester of each college year.

II. Provisions

Couples and groups of two or more girls are eligible for town night.

Frequency and time of town nights:

1. Town night shall last from 5 p.m. till 10:15 p.m. (late after 10:30)
2. Town night couples shall be allowed in the parlors of the women's residence halls from 9:30 to 10:15 p.m.
3. Freshmen and sophomore girls shall be allowed one town night a week. This privilege may be exercised any night Monday through Friday.
4. Junior girls shall be allowed two town nights a week. These may be taken any week night.
5. Senior girls shall be allowed two town nights a week. These may be taken any week night. One night may be taken in Knoxville in accordance with Senior Privilege rules.

Signing Out:

1. Each girl shall personally sign out in the dormitory on a Town Night sign out slip, and file it in the out box.
2. Each girl taking town night must remove her sign out slip from the out box and return it to the in box by 10:30.
3. The out box shall be locked regardless of cards in it at 10:30.
4. Names of girls whose cards are still in the out box when it is locked shall be given to the Housemother. The WSGA representative in charge of the box will also keep the late names, note time of return, and turn these in to the Student Council.
5. Late girls must report immediately to Housemother and to the WSGA representative in charge.

Care of File and Out Box:

1. There shall be two girls elected from each women's dormitory to be in charge of the file and out box. These elections shall be held in accordance with semester WSGA elections.
2. These six girls shall work under the direction of the Student Council Town Night Committee.
3. These girls shall tend to the box on alternate weeks. Their duties shal include:
   a. Locking the box at 10:30.
   b. Reporting all late names to the Housemother.
   c. Keeping a list of the late names, noting the time each girl reports to them personally, turning late names and amount of tardiness in to the Student Council.

Area:

The area visited shall include only the business section of Maryville bounded by the College Campus, Washington St., Harper Ave., and Cates St. Students shall go directly to and from the campus and shall see to it that their behavior at all times is such as to reflect the good taste and high standards of the College and its student body.

Note: Stanley and Miller Avenues are direct route to College Hill Grill and Jones Avenue to Washington St.

III. Responsibility

The Student Council is responsible for carrying out the agreement. The plan will be effective only as long as the student body is willing to cooperate. The student body is to signify its willingness to recognize the authority of the Student Council by a vote of approval of the plan. The Student Council will recognize and be prepared to deal with instances of behavior which may bring adverse criticism from students, faculty, or townspeople, and with other infractions of limits as to area and number of times allowed.

IV. Penalties

The Student Council is responsible for the enforcement of all College rules and regulations for persons taking a town night, and for administering this reponsibility. It is empowered to impose penalties as stated below, or to recommend other penalties. In general, maximum penalties imposed shall be as follows:

1. Suspension of Town Night for eight weeks for
   a. Failure to sign out on the Town Night slips.
   b. Overstaying the hour by more than five minutes.
   c. Taking more Town Nights than the stated number allowed.
2. Suspension of Town Night for six weeks for
   a. Failure to be in groups of two or with a date at all times.
   b. Conduct that occasions unfavorable criticism.
3. Suspension of Town Night for four weeks for
   a. Being late up to and including five minutes.
   b. Being out of bounds.
4. Suspension of Town Night for two weeks for
   a. Failure to sign in and return Town Night slips to in box.
   b. Signing in or out for another person.
5. Three demerits for going to town during time in which tow night has been suspended.

Additional Explanations:

1. Girls are to remain at all times in groups of two or more.
2. Penalty for overstaying the time will be imposed after 10:30 p.m.
3. Students shall go directly to and from the dormitory.
4. In connection with note 3, the lobby at Pearsons is on the second floor, not in the dining hall entrance.
5. Town Night rules concerning conduct apply to all students regardless of whether they have been to town or not.
6. Penalties are carried over the Christmas Holidays and are not included in that period of time.
7. In the event that more than one penalty is inflicted, the Student Council may stipulate that the penalties run concurrently.

New Chapel

It is most appropriate that the first major use of the new Samuel Tyndale Wilson chapel should be for the services of the 78th series of the February Meetings. As we worship daily during this annual period of religious emphasis, the fact should be impressed upon our minds that a college chapel's primary function is that of serving as a place of worship with the end of fulfilling the student's spiritual needs.

The fact that Maryville College students have successfully observed the tradition of daily chapel for nearly six years in a gymnasium should be an encouragement to those leaders and supporters who have had a new chapel in mind since the Voorhees building burned in 1947.

It is to interested alumni and friends of Maryville College that we owe our thanks for their support and interest in the building which is being completed this spring. We who have often become discouraged at the prospect of there ever being a new chapel have been among the many who "inspect" construction progress periodically.

Our drama department, which has managed marvelously (and learned a great deal about stagecraft at the same time) with its quarters in Bartlett and the Alumni Gymnasium, is getting a new theatre with latest facilities.

The name of the chapel is that of the late Dr. Samuel T. Wilson, president of Maryville College for 29 years. During Dr. Wilson's term, the college gained its greatest progress up to that time. A contemporary building certainly reflects Dr. Wilson's spirit of continued interest in the progress of Maryville College.

We believe the new chapel to be something for which both students and alumni should be thankful and proud. We will watch with interest as the finishing work is done.

February Meetings

On Wednesday of next week Maryville College will embark on the 78th series of February Meetings. Folowing a long established custom all other campus activities will be discontinued for the ten days' duration of the meetings.

The purpose of February meetings is to devote a portion of the college year to concentrated spiritual emphasis. These meetings through their long history have meant a great deal to the spiritual life of the college and to many individuals connected with it.

Again this year as in the past we will hear many complaints about the long chapels, the qualities of the speaker's voice and the choice of hymns. No doubt, to many people on campus February Meetings will mean no more than the inconvenience of a long chapel.

But to many others, who wil greatly out number the professional gripers, February Meetings will mean a great deal more. It will be a time of consecration for some, and a time of rededication for others. A time to re-examine values, to rethink vital problems concerning life's purposes, to rekindle the bond of felowship; this and more the meetings wil mean to a great majority of the college community.

As with most phases of living, so with February Meetings the attitude of the participants is of vital concern. If you go to chapel expecting to be bored you wil be bored. If you go expecting to experience a spiritual growth you will experience a spiritual growth.

To the leader of this year's meetings we extend our best wishes for a profitable and enjoyable stay on our campus. We hope that when the time comes for you to leave, you, as well as we, will be richer for your leadership. To the song leader and the various members of the faculty and student body who will take part in the meetings, we express in advance our gratitude for a task that we know will be well done.

In this secular age, let us all be grateful for a college like Maryville which is endowed with a rich heritage of Christian tradition and ideals. Long after we graduate from Maryville College we will look back with thankful memories to the inspiration of February Meetings.

Let us begin this year's meeting with a prayerful determination to make them a success and let us emerge from this year's meetings better men and women.

On Town Night

At last optional Town Night is about to be here. With it will go such measures as more flexible boundaries, a deadline advance to 10:30 and the right for girls to go to town in two's instead of in groups of three. All these represent advances for the college students. But far more than extra privileges they stand for an attitude of trust.

Frequently we have heard the complaint, "We aren't trusted. We're treated like children instead of mature adults." The new Town Night agreement should do much to alleviate such a situation. Under it, students are to be trusted more than ever before.

We should realize, however, that with increased privileges goes increased responsibility. We can prove that the new plan will work.

We should see that we keep within the spirit as well as the letter of the law.

The Town Night agreement and operating plan were worked out by a group of students and faculty members in cooperation. It is up to us as individuals to prove that we are able to cooperate with others, to show that we are ready for responsibility when we receive it.

You have my sympathy and admiration. For all the nights you wil spend with it until the sleepy hours of the morning, you will deserve a medal.

It will be your date on Tuesday night and your breakfast on days for tests. You may suddenly find yourself going steady with it. I doubt if you will ever be able to bring yourself to kiss it goodnight, but you must admit it is quite a good conversationalist.

Feel free at all times to give it a kick if you want to. This helps discipline it, as you will find it has a way of becoming very unruly at times.

February Meetings being very close, I realize that many of you will be attending the morning and evening services to hear Dr. Copeland deliver his inspiring messages, but here are a few suggestions on what to do when relaxation from the grind of classwork is lacking.

BOOKS

Reading is a good pastime, and on the new book table in the library you can find an abundance of interesting looking books. The following are examples of some of the books which I found. If you are a fan of Pearl S. Buck, her new fictional novel called "Come My Beloved" should catch your eye. For the first time she uses India for the primary scene of her story. But actually it reaches across the world to follow man's universal search for God.

It tells of three men of stubborn will and deep heart who struggle to express each in his own way, in his own time, in his own place, the eternal yearning of mankind toward the highest good.

For those music lovers there is "Some Enchanted Evenings" by Deems Taylor, a portrait story of that wonderful musical team, Rodgers and Hammerstein. Also included in the story is the story of the life of Lorenz Hart, former partner of Rodgers.

Louise Baker's "Snips And Snails" is a humorous story of a sole female teacher at a private boy's school out west. It makes delightful reading and can be enjoyed by everyone.

COMING EVENTS

Seems that a lot of secretive things are going on in the freshman class. There seems to be something about March 6th, and, pardon the expression, but HIDDEN TALENT! (Yea, I wondered about this too!) It really promises to be an outstanding event. There will be no admission and everything will come strictly out of the freshman funds. (May I add there that some of the freshman class have not contributed to that this semester?) Tryouts were held week before last. The cast and chorus have been selected and rehearsals started last week. All announcements and the theme will be withheld until later.

Another coming event is the operetta, "The Fortune Teller" by Victor Herbert, which the women's choir and men's glee club are presenting March 12 and 13.

Then you mustn't forget the Park and the Capitol—you know—the two most famed buildings on Broadway that seem to show the best movies on Tuesday nights.

On your calendar of past events you can put the "Lowland Sea" an American folk opera by Alex Wilder and Harold Sundgaard which was presented in two performances Friday night in the FAC by the Opera Workshop.

The independence of Ceylon since 1948 was celebrated by one of the tables in the dining hall last week. Special decorations were used to present Ceylon's colors, red, yellow, and green.

Echo Forum

Dear Editor,

Our college has so many opportunities for a Christian influence to be felt—through personal contact with those who have more spiritual depth than we and interaction between those who are seeking God, through insights gained in the required courses in religion, ethics, and philosophy, through the meditations at the daily chapel programs, through the religious services on the campus such as Prayer Meeting, Vespers, and dorm devotions, through organizations such as Y and Vols, and through the witness of the lives of faculty and students. It seems that the policy of the school is saying—here are our Christian influences, we hope they do influence you in a Christian way, but we are afraid that perhaps it won't, and rather than have you make any wrong decisions, we will supply for you a restricted environment, free of temptations. To me, the effect of the Christian influence on the campus is somewhat nullified when there is not enough faith in it to see if it will work as a basis for students making their own decisions. I do not think of Christianity as something negative or repressive, but as something which is vital, and dynamically positive which enables one to know how to make decisions in a Christian way. With more freedom in things neither good nor bad in themselves (coming home even as late as 11:00, going off the campus more than once or twice a week at night, riding in cars—things one has done before and will do after coming here) one could make wrong choices, but there is also more opportunity for good and more opportunity to use Christian principles in choosing the good. College is preparation for life. We will be better prepared for the life we face completely on our own if we develop more strength of character through making more decisions on the forces in life that we come in contact with in the outside world while we have Christian influence and guidance here. When you feel that people believe in you and trust you, you take their confidence as a challenge and become worthy of it.

There is something about our human nature that makes what we are forced to do seem not so great a privilege as what we may choose for ourselves because we subconsciously think that if it were such a great opportunity we wouldn't have to be forced. "I have one more cut left, so I'm not going to church." After being in a situation where it is really thought a great opportunity and privilege to go to church (and at least once a day for a period of weeks!) it alarms me how one's attitude can change. God could have made us all good, but then what actual good would there be, for we would be nothing more than robots. There is more ethical good in making the right decision for oneself than doing it because you cannot do anything else. When the decision that I go to church is already made for me, I feel that I am cheated of the opportunity to make it for myself and also it is less likely to be the basis for future decisions than if I had made it for myself.

Are our Christian influences strong enough that students can make more of their own decisions for themselves in the light of Christian principles? I think so, do you?

Sincerely,

Faculty Club Hears About Spanish Writing

James Schwam read a paper, "The Rogues in the Early Spanish Picaresque Novels," at the first faculty club meeting of the year, held last Monday night.

Teling of social, economic, and political conditions in Spain during the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, Schwam showed how later literature was based on these Spanish novels.

Freshman home economics students served light refreshments after the meeting.

Now that everybody has stayed here for a couple of week-ends, just so nobody can assuce them of always going away, the place will be looking rather bare . . . in fact, I missed several people last week-end!

Ann Daniels took off for good ole Atlanta, and Kreale DuLaney visited Ann Yoakum at her home in Alcoa. Susie and Pat Jones are leaving today for Elizabethton, their home town, and Faith Nollner left yesterday for Carthage. (Then there's "I", who sits here!)

Mrs. W. Edgar Ginaven is visiting her daughter, Myrna, this week end. Mrs. Ginaven came down from Xenia, Ohio, for the Opera Friday night. "Ohio bound" last week end were Mary Ellen Vogel and George Hardy, who visited Mary El's home in Cincinnati.

Saw Liz Murphy and Barbara Chubb yelling "good-bye" and running down the hill last Saturday morning. Obviously they were going somewhere . . . but I don't know where! (Too lazy to find out!) Also, Libby Parrish went home last week end.

Jean Maxwell's fiance, Rev. Neely McCarter, arrived Thursday for a visit. He is minister to the students at the University of Florida, at Gainesville.

And, other than that . . . I guess the rest of us just hung around. I always did like to sleep my week ends away, didn't you?

Spanish To Meet Monday

The regular meeting of the Spanish Club wil be held on Monday evening instead of the usual Thursday because of February Meetings.

It will begin promptly at 6:45 and there will be a short business meeting.

The program for the evening will consist of initiations of the new members.

PLANS FOR LASSIE CAGERS VETOED

A few days back two basketball-minded Maryville College gents put their heads together and came up with the idea of having a college girls' basketball team. Many thought it a good idea and they contributed suggestions to the movement which might put a new spark into the campus activity program.

Plans for a small intercollegiate schedule were contemplated and the girl hoopsters were assembled. Monday night the lassies met for a practice session which proved in vain as far as intercollegiate competition goes. The best that could be approved by the college was an intramural setup.

This corner is in full favor of such a plan by the two college upperclassmen. For one thing, on the strictly sports side of the picture, there are some mighty good girl basketeers on campus as was evident in last year's annual Theta Epsilon-Bainonian contest. And these females would like to participate in such a program.

On the other side, it would not interfere with the girls' studies if given the support and co-operation of the college physical education department. In fact, it is the opinion of some people that it would help to perk up the interest around campus. If the lassies played a few preliminary games before the boys' varsity meybe it would help attendance which at present seems to be at a very low low, especially at the "B" squad games.

Most of the girls who would participate have played high school basketball, and the program would not be anything new to them. It is possible all the games could be scheduled on the local court so the girls would not have to travel—games with Hiwassee, surrounding high schools, and U-T Sororities for a beginning.

The "No, but. . ." clause given the plan is an intramural program of girls' basketball, but would that offer the type of competition worth the interest of the girls? There are not that many capable players and the same two teams would probably be playing each other all the time.

Then there is always Girls' Varsity, but is that what the girls want all the time?

I am in favor of the girls' basketball team with outside competition and the above is just my opinion. Of course, I am just one in some 600 and more students. Maybe my view is good, maybe bad. What do the rest of you think? If you have a comment that you would like the students to hear or read, I will publish it in this column if sent in to the Echo.

CAMPUS QUIP

Athletics in the past were strictly for men
But times have changed much since then
Lassies are included in most sports today.
So let's let our girls hoop away
Not just in intramurals, but in good competitive play.

Improvements Needed In Intramural Basketball?

Another season of Intramural Basketball has passed into the record books of the college intramural office. When next year's program rolls around, many of the participants are hoping for and would like to see some changes made in the way of improvement.

One big factor hinders any good substantial plans for improvements and that is of TIME. This year the teams had to be satisfied with two 15-minute halves with a one-minute halftime period. Playing basketball at that rate cuts down the quality and interest of the game among the players. A good example was the many "rough houses" they had this year. Without actual timeouts, no one would stop the game to try to bring play under control. If some plan could be worked out so that the teams could play one or two NIGHTS a week in one of the gyms, more time could be allowed for the games played in the afternoons and in the ones played at night. Such a plan would be the best thing that has happened to intramurals in years so reports go.

Another item that could stand considerably improvement is the refereeing of the gamese. Of course, the most important factor along this line is co-operation from the boys who offer their services as officials. An efficient plan should be in the ready-for-operation stages by next season if some people are thinking between now and then.

The Intramural Dpartment deserves crdit for establishing the Intramural-Letter plan which has boosted interest this year. But does it give evereyone who would desire a crack at winning one a real chance?

HEATON LEADS ALL INTRAMURAL SCORERS

Dexter Heaton, lanky center for the B League Boxers, paced all intramural hoopsters in scoring according to statistics compiled from the information available. Heaton amassed 113 points in seven games for an average of 16.1 per game. Following were two boys who only participated ein four games each but had 12.7 and 12.0 averages.

They were Leroy Gooden and Chuck Don Dunn respectively. Ted Wilson, the ace of the Local Yokels, sank 90 points in eight games for a 12.2 average. Athenians' Lyn Counts chalked up 59 points for an average of 11.4, and big Don Moore had 88 points with a 10.8 average.

Next was John Anderson of the Snowbirds with 74 points and an average of 10.6, followed by Kent Buser of the Aces with 78 points in eight games, averaging 9.7. Two Moser hoopsters came next: Bob Ramger getting 63 points in six games for a 10.5 mark and Bob "Monk" Johnston 70 in seven games for a ten point average.

Harold Wallace of the B League had one of the best averages considering the number of games (9), scoring 93 points for a 10.3 mark. Bud Spalding completed the top-scorers-of-the-season list with 52 points in five games for an average of 10.2.

M C Matmen Host To MTS Squad

The Scottie wrestlers will grapple with a rough and ready Middle Tennessee State team here tonight. An interesting bout will be the Heavyweight event. The Staters have a giant heavyweight in the person of Billy Hix. Little Billy tips the scales at an even 280 pounds. The last time these two schools met, Hix set a new school record in pinning Charlie Headrick in 32 seconds. Also wrestling for State is O. L. Davis, last year's fullback on the Scot eleven.

Wrestlers Lose Three Matches

The Scot matmen lost six out of eight matches to Chattanooga University on January 23 as they dropped a 20-10 loss. Buford Miller and Captain Tom Bugenhagen each earned pins to pick up Maryville's ten points.

In the 123-pound class, Oscar Scruggs decisioned Jerry Waters of Maryville, 6-2. Jerry had a take down, but Scruggs quickly reversed him and picked up a later reverse and two points for riding time. Buford Miller continued along at a fast pace as he pinned John Farr in 6:30.

Close One

Jimmy Cummings lost a tough one to Bill Merritt by one point, 4-3. Jim had a point for time advantage while Merritt had two reverses. Dick Goetz pinned Ted Wilson in 4:00. This was Ted's first match and he did as well as could be expected. In the 157-pound heaveto, Fred Shaw shut out Jack Renfro, 6-0. Shaw is a former Auburn wrestler and runner up in the S. E. C. 157-pound class two years ago. He did not compete last year as he wrestled for the Knoxville Y, but has a good chance to cop the crown the end of this month.

We Want More

"Tiger" Bugenhagen caught his man in 2:16 of the first period. Herb Catlin lost a high scoring match in the 177-pound event 15-8. Abe Cohen, a good bet to win the S. E. C. heavyweight class this year, decisioned John Anderson of Maryville 7-3.

On January 29, the Scot wrestlers took a 17-11 loss at the hands of Middle Tennessee State. Maryville lost five of eight matches, but two by one point. Jimmy Cummings pinned his man and Miller and Bugenhagen each picked up decisions.

Jerry Waters nearly beat his man, but lost a 10-9 decision. Jerry had two reverses, a take-down, a near fall, and an escape for nine points, but Potterfield scored ten on three reverses, a take down and two points for time advantage. Buford Miller tied the score with a 6-0 decision over David Liverette. Jimmy Cummings put Maryville ahead with a pin over Sullivan. Billy Collins beat Gene Garren in a 147 pound go.

One Pointer

A former Maryville football player and wrestler, O. L. Davis, beat Jack Renfro of Maryville 5-4 in the 157 pound bout. Renfro had two reverses and Davis a reverse, takedown and one point for time advantages. Tom Bugenhagen, decisioned Bill Mulloy 9-0, but could not beat his strong opponent by the wanted pin.

John Nickens decisioned John Anderson 4-0.

Huge Billy Nix, 280 pound giant, pinned Charlie Hedrick in 32 seconds of the first period for a

Pioneers, Wasps Victors Over Maryville College Team

In a rather unexciting game played on the local hardwood, Emory & Henry College coasted to an easy 95-72 victory over the Highlanders. The hoopsters from Virginia were never in any real danger as Youell, Long, Revilla, Doceson, and Co. found the local buckets easy targets.

Employing a new zone defense for the first time this season, the Scots held the visitors to almost even terms for most of the first half. Freshman Bill Wallace, who entered the game as a reserve, led the inspired attack of the home club.

The final two periods, however, were a different story. With Youell and Long increasingly finding the range, the bewildered Highlanders had to take a backseat in a tussle that was all Emory & Henry. The Wasps played a superb brand of ball and their scorching attack carried right up to the final buzzer.

Youell paced the scorers with 21 points, followed by Long with 17. Dodson and Revilla both garnered 16. Wallace, the former Townsend High ace, led the Scots with 14.

Nipped by Tusculum

Displaying a well-rounded and spirited attack, the Pioneers of Tusculum College squeezed out a 77-76 overtime victory at the expense of a fighting Highlander squad. It was one of the most exciting games local fans have witnessed in recent years.

The two teams appeared evenly balanced from the opening whistle, The Scots, paced by Shelton and Keny for most of the first half, appeared to have a slight edge and as the midway buzzer sounded the hometeam left the floor leading 35-32.

Both squads continued to play heads up ball throughout the third quarter. Each team seemed to hit in spurts. The rebound work of the Coach Lombe Honaker's Scot hoopsters failed to carry through with their last quarter scoring spree and the University of Chattanooga Moccasins edged them, 81-77, thanks to sharpshooting Bobby Case's six points in the waning minutes.

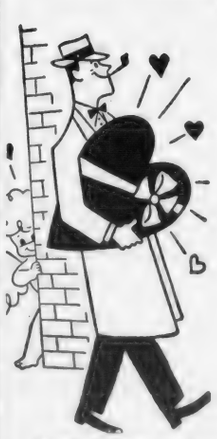
Chattanooga took advantage of their home-court familiarity and led the Maryville Scots up through the third quarter. Fighting back in the fourth period with a thirteen-point disadvantage, the Highlanders hit for fourteen points while the Mocs were unable to find the range to take a short lived 74-73 lead.



The suddenness of the attack snapped the 'Nooga Five back into reality, and, while the Scots became a little erratic, Case and Co. jumped ahead to control the latter part of the ball game.

Dick Abbott regained his shooting eye after several weeks in a slump and led the scrappy Scots with 24 points, followed by hustling Lyn Sexton with 20, his high for the season. Bobby Case, now deemed 'Nooga's "old reliable," tallied 21 for the Moccasins.

Moser's, Yokels Win Intramural Crowns

By Bob Jackson

Last week culminated the regular season of the Intramural Basketball League with the red and white Moser's squad copping the A League crown and the Local Yokels victors in the B league. Moser's finished with a 9-2 record while the Yokels had the distinction of being the only unbeaten intramural team in either league with 10-0 record.

Moser's whipped through the first half of league play with five straight wins, but returning from the Christmas holidays, the flashy unit almost blew their chances for league victory. Losing to the YM CA Aces and the Snowbirds, the red and white clad crew bounced back in time to win going away. The Snowbirds and the Aces tied for second place with indentical 8-3 records, with the Alpha Sigma Scotties finishing third.

In the B League, it was a different story with the Yokels waltzing through having a little trouble gliding past the Ramblers in their final tussle of regular play, winning by only three points. The Boxers and the Athenians followed the Yokels in that order to complete the top three spots.

Tournament Starts

The annual intramural basketball tournament opened this past Wedensday. This event always follows the close of the regular season. All teams in the A league and the top-ranked fives of the B league are included in the tourney.

The results of the games of Wednesday afternoon are as follows:

The YMCA Aces took the measure of the B loop's top team, the Local Yokels, 35 to 22. Sensational shooting by the winners proved to be the difference in the game as they blistered the nets. The leading scorers in the game were Kent Buser and Al Grippo, who accounted for 11 each while footballer Ted Wilson had 10 for the losers.

In the second contest, a fighting Athenian fell before the AE Scotties, 24 to 22. Big Bob Leech led the scoring parade for the Alpha Sigma team with four field goals and a foul tally for nine points. "Rock" Demer led the other campus society with six points.

The final game pitted the league winning Moser squad against the Boxers, led by the other league's scoring champ, Dexter Heaton. When the battle smoke had cleared, it was the superior team play and fine shooting of Bob Matthews, which gave the Moser five the victory. The game was close all the way as the Boxers' tight zone defense held down the winners' scoring. Heaton lived up to his press notices as he led both teams with 13 points.

Students Finish Swimming Course

The first half of a 30-hour swimming course, under the direction of Mrs. Edith Largen, was completed last night by fifteen students.

Classes in this pre-instructor's course which began on January 25 were held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday through Friday. Those enrolled were qualified to take the course only if they had previously earned a senior life-saving badge in swimming.

The second part of the program, or the instructor's course, will begin March 15 and will continue through March 26. Students wishing to attend sessions must be at least eighteen years of age, must hold a current senior life-saving badge, and must have taken the pre-instructor's course at Maryville this year.

The Senate voted 85 to 1 this week to give Senator Joseph McCarthy the $214,000 he wants to continue his investigation for Communism and corruption in the government.

Senator Wiliam Fullbright was recorded as against the proposal granting the funds to McCarthy.

Senator Allen Ellender has frequently attacked McCarthy for wasting the taxpayers money in a "search for headlines." He says that the work the McCarthy committee is doing is mere duplication of other committee work.

The United States and France have smashed a Soviet bid to torpedo the Western alliance. Along with Great Britain, they again demanded a peace treaty for Germany without Communist shackles.

Secretary of State Dulles and Foreign Minister Bidault emphasized their determination to maintain a defensive system as long as the Soviet Union wielded a "one man" domination over this military block of 800 million people.

Together with Anthony Eden, they urged Molotov to take up the Eden plan for unifying Germany by free elections before forcing a peace treaty on them. Molotov has said that he will submit a Soviet plan for "free elections" at the next session of the Big Four.

Former President Harry S. Truman has supported President Eisenhower's stand on the Bricker Amendment by describing it as a vicious one that "would absolutely ruin any attempt of the President to carry out a foreign polley for the United States."

He further added that the amendment is "an attempt on the part of the isolationists to put the country back into isolationism, and it must not happen."

In a later news dispatch, however, President Eisenhower surprised the nation by saying that he found the proposal "acceptable." With the proposed changes to the proposed amendment, the most recent view of the Bricker Proposal seems to be that no one understands it.

Pritchard To Speak At Vespers Sunday

Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of New Providence Presbyterian Church, will preach at the first college vesper service to be held in the new Wilson Chapel. The service will be held at 7 o'clock Sunday evening.

The Vesper Choir, directed by Harry Harter, will furnish music for the service.

Dr. Pritchard will speak concerning the approaching February Meetings. MC President Ralph W. Lloyd will speak at New Providence Church Sunday morning on the same topic.

Frosh, Sophs Plan Class Parties

The freshman and sophomore classes have set February 20 as the date for their combined class parties.

Following the party, the classes plan to have an all-campus round and square dance in honor of Valentine's Day.

IRC To Discuss Kenya

IRC is scheduled to meet Thursday evening, February 11, at 6:45.

Martha Jackson will lead the discussion on "Kenya, The Land and Mau Mau."

Pioneers . . .

Pioneer's Horn and Boyles was tremendous and eventually may have been the deciding factor. The score at the end of the period showed the Highlanders still in front, 53-49.

The final period was a real slambang affair as the invaders from upstate steadily crept up on the Scots. The Pioneer zone defense became increasingly difficult for the home team to solve. Bobby Statzer, reinserted in the lineup, teamed with Horn and Boyles to give Tusculum a tremendous backboard trio. The Highlander attack was sparked by the fine play of Dick Abbott. The slick forward dumped in four buckets to help keep the Scots in the game during its waning moments. The count at the end of the regulation time was deadlocked at 71-71. From that point on, it was just a case of Tusculum getting there first with the most.

Horn and Boyles led the Pioneer attack with 20 and 19 points respectively. For the home forces it was Abbott with 18 and Shelton with 17 who set the pace.

"UNITED IN CHRIST

In WORD

Dear Fellow Students,

Next Wednesday morning the 1954 February Meetings begin. The occasion will be of special significance now that we are meeting in the new chapel. Besides this, what will the Meetings mean to you? Let us examine ourselves—our attitude towards this spiritual emphasis and evangelization program—right now.

Our college community providese many opportunities for spiritual growth at the same time as we are increasing in academic knowledgee. The value of these opportunities is the measure of our participation in them. What does this mean to each of us now? Simply this: we must avail ourselves, in an earnest and positive way, of the Meetings. Essentially this means at least the following three things:

(1) Our prayers anticipating and requesting God's favor in the Meetings are of prime importance. ". . . all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." Prayer is an absolute necessity to the success of the Meetings. Success will be the sum of our spiritual growth; nothing more, nothing less.

(2) Our attitude must be positive and expectant. Don't be guilty of a "show me" attitude. God working through the Meetings cannot possibly reach us if we close our minds in this or any other way. Let us not mistake our selfishness, or prejudice, for our convictions. Here, with the help of God's servants, is a rare opportunity to examine and ascertain our convictions, and more definitely, our personal relationship to God. If we approach the Meetings seeking spiritual objectives, we will find them. Spiritual guidance, nourishment, and satisfaction may be ours. The significance of the Christian way for our day can, in some measure, be clarified for each of us in the course of the Meetings. May our chief concern be in what is said, not merely how it is said. When we commit this error our evaluations tend to be superficial and unjust. May our hearts and minds be open to the love and transforming power of Jesus Christ, and may we be willing to receive for ourselves that which God has to offer in the Meetings. "For I say to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith."

(3) It is, therefore, our privilege to have such a series of meetings. If we are going to them merely because we have to, our minds and hearts can't possibly be open and responsive as they should be. We trust that you will want to be present at the meetings—as many as you can possibly attend, morning and evening.

Together, along with our faculty and administration, we urge you to attend! The importance of the February Meeting lies not in the wonderful tradition or in the new Chapel, rather in their potential to make each of us better persons in Christ. It is our prayer that the Meetings will be an especially significant experience for us all, as we endeavor to be "UNITED IN CHRIST." Will you say with us, "Here am I, Lord, SPEAK"? "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

College Reveals Semester's Dean's List

New Town Night To Begin March 1

Student Council hopes to have the new optional Town Night in operation by March 1, Council president Bill Dartnell announced at Council meeting Thursday night in the Student Center.

Officially, the gathering was not a regular meeting because a quorum was not present, but the group took no action; Dartnell merely explained orientation and conveying of information to the student body about the new agreement passed before the beginning of February Meetings.

Orientation

Judy Burgos, member of the permanent Town Night Committee, said orientation meetings were being held in the women's dormitories this week-end and Monday night, and that elections for WSGA town night officials would be held February 24 and 26.

The new plan will go before the student body for ratification on February 25, Dartnell said. He added that an orientation meeting for men would be held in Carnegie early this coming week.

The reading of the minutes took an exceptionally long time, since the last meeting held was one at which council passed the new Town Night legislation. Virginia Smith read the minutes in the absence of regular secretary Barbara Chubb.

Committees

President Dartnell announced that the following council committees had still not handed in reports requested at the end of last semester: Athletic Board of Control, Senior Class, finance, program, Student-Faculty Senate, and the ABC committee.

Virginia Smith said she understood that coke machines, authorized by vote for the women's dormitories, were to be installed by the end of this week. Definite word will have to come from Jim Hunt (not present), who is in charge of placing of the machines.

Clara Joe Minarik and Carol Demler told the group that the MC program for World Uinversity Service, under auspices of the college Y's, was not yet definite. Miss Demler did say, however, that a movie on the Service was scheduled to be shown here March 6.

Approximately 17 council members were present at the meeting Thursday night. Possible reason for the lack of a quorum is the fact that Town Night was held on Thursday night this week. Usually this practice is followed on the day February Meetings end.

Test Application Deadline March 8

All eligible students who intend to take the Selective Service College Qualification Test in 1954 should file applications at once for the April 22 administration, Selective Service National Headquarters advised.

An application and a bulletin of information may be obtained at any Selective Service local board. Following instructions in the bulletin, the student should fill out his application immediately and mail it in the special envelope provided. Applications must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 8, 1954. Early filing will be greatly to the student's advantage.

Results will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student, according to Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test.

Bainonian To See 'Famous Lovers'

"Famous Lovers," Anthony and Cleopatra, on down through history to Rachael and Andrew Jackson. This is the title of the program Bainonian has worked up for presentation tonight at 6:15 in the Y-Room.

After the showing of "Famous Lovers" refreshments will be served.

Kinsler To Speak At Chapel Program

Francis Kinsler will address the student body and faculty at the morning chapel service on Wednesday, February 24.

Dr. Kinsler graduated from Maryville in 1925. He received the degree of Master of Theology from Princeton Seminary, and since 1928 has served as missionary to Korea.

At the beginning of World War II he was forced to return to this country but since 1948 has been back in the mission field. He is now teaching in the Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church of Korea, located at Taegu.

Dr. Kinsler's daughter, Helen, was a junior at Maryville last year.

Freshmen, Sophs Plan 'Heart Hop'

Tonight the freshman and sophomore classes will sponsor the "Heart Hop." The two classes will get together at 7:15 for an hour of games, varied entertainment, and refreshments.

Then at 8:15 the whole campus is invited to join the party. This is not a dating affair, so stags are expected. Kent Buser will call square dances. There will also be some round dances. Time for the party to end has not been definitely set, but tentatively it will last until 10:30.

Athenians To Hear Barrows Give Reading

Charles McFarland is in charge of Athenian's program tonight, for which John Barrows will give a reading, Charles Rogers, program chairman, has announced. Further plans will be made for the skating party Tuesday night.

Marine Officers To Serve 3 Years

All newly enrolled Marine officer candidates will be required to serve an extended period of active duty after being commissioned, according to General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps.

Current and future officer requirements of the Marine Corps, as they are presently indicated, make desirable longer periods of active service for all newly commissioned reserve officers, General Shepherd said this week.

Changed Policy

The Marine Corps has completed plans to make certain that a college man who enrolls in the Platoon Leaders Class after 1 July, 1954 will be required to serve three years of active commissioned service, instead of the present two-year tour.

Officer Candidate Course candidates enrolled subsequent to 1 February 1954 are subject to this new policy change now. This new obligated active duty service does not apply to OCC and PLC candidates who are currently enrolled or whose applications are awaiting approval; nor does it apply to reserve officers now on active duty.

General Shepherd also declared that the new additional service requirement for reserve officers does not apply to college women who apply for the Corps' Women Officers Training Course. The next WOTC course is scheduled for June 1954 at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.

Pre-Meds See Film

The Pre-Med Club held its regular meeting Thursday, February 18, at 6:45 p.m.

A film on anemia was shown and a demonstration of laboratory equipment was given.

Gallery Talk To Discuss Watercolor Exhibit

On February 25 at 7 p.m. a gallery talk in the Fine Arts Center art gallery will discuss the current exhibit of paintings—"Watercolor, the Versatile Medium."

It is an exhibit which rotates through the services of the Museum of Modern Art in New York. These watercolor paintings done in the latter part of the 19th century and in this century show a revival of the use of watercolors in finished paintings.

Paintings from eight countries are shown, with the main contributions from France, Germany, and America.

Everyone interested is invited to attend the gallery talk and to feel free to ask questions about the exhibit.

Y Radio To Air 'One God' Program

Y Radio will present "One God; The Ways We Worship Him," tomorrow night at 9 o'clock on station WGAP. This program has been adapted from the work of Mary Ellen Fitch and is directed by Nancy Rideout. It was originally scheduled for February 7, but was postponed because of the rebroadcast of the first service in the chapel.

"Someone You Know"

On February 28, another "Someone You Know" drama will be presented. This is the story of an elderly man's need for a place in society. Dick Jensen will play the part of Pastor Riggs.

Panel Discussion

Last Sunday evening, Ralph Moore moderated a panel discussion. Dr. Copeland, Dr. Magill, Dr. Barraclough, Carol Demler, and Hal Black served on the panel.

Darold Johnsonbaugh is announcing the programs for Y Radio this semester.

Bloy To Present Recital Next Week

James A. Bloy, instructor in music, will give a piano recital February 26 at 8 p.m.

The program will include the following: Sonata in A Major and Cat's Fugue by Scarlatti; Sonata in D Minor by Beethoven;

Bach's Prelude and Fugue in G Sharp Minor and Prelude and Fugue in B Minor;

Sonetto 104 del Petrarca by Liszt; Etude in C Minor, Op. 25, No. 12 by Chopin; Three Rondos on Folk Tunes by Bartok.

Bloy, a native of Wisconsin, has his B. A. from North Central College, his M. B. from the University of Illinois, and his M. M. from Eastman.

He came to Maryville College last fall, and teaches both organ and piano.

Frosh To Show Talent March 6

The annual Freshman Talent Show will be presented March 6, at 8 o'clock in the Alumni Gymnasium. There will be no admission charge.

Leads, cast, and theme will be withheld until later. It will include a chorus and fourteen hit tunes.

Hershel Netherton, freshman English major from Madisonville, wrote the play and is director. The cast was selected earlier by Netherton, Helen Davis, Sandra Booth, Edgar Drum, president of the class, Ted McDaniels, and Clara Jo Minarik, all officers of the class.

Rehearsals are being held in Bartlett. The chorus will rehearse this afternoon at 1:30 and it is essential that all members be present.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith told the Senate Foreign Relations Commitee Tuesday that senators need not fear that American ground troops will be sent to aid France in the Indo-Chinese communist war.

Secretary Smith said Communist victories were no more than "real estate" victories. Senators became apprehensive after they learned earlier in the week that several U.S. planes along with pilots and technical personnel had been sent into Indo-China as aid to the French.

Senators Walter George (D., Ga.) and Mike Moroney (D., Mont.) advocate continued American aid to Indo-China and a foreign policy designed to deal with such conflicts.

Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio) is planning to back a substitute for his "Bricker Amendment" if his plan is defeated. Senator Bricker has introduced a constitutional amendment stipulating that the president may make no treaty unless it is in agreement with existing constitutional law. The substitute or compromise bill Senator Bricker may back has been proposed by Senator Walter George.

Debate on the Bricker Amendment has been going on in Congress for several weeks. President Eisenhower announced at the time it was proposed that he favored no law limiting the executive department's treaty-making power.

Leaders For Week Of February Meetings State Their Views, Comment

Copeland—

By Kathie Chase

Perhaps the wisest adjectives one can use to describe Dr. Joseph J. Copeland briefly are sincere, honest and friendly, a man with a deep interest and concern in everyone he meets.

He was born in Ferris, Texas which is about twenty miles south of Dallas. While in third grade he and his family moved to Mexia, Texas, then a rough, booming oil town. He graduated from Trinity University with a B.A. degree for an English major and speech minor.

While at Trinity he was active in debate and drama and was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Trinity also bestowed an honorary doctor of divinity on him. He received theological training at McCormick Seminary in Chicago where he served as president of the student body his senior year.

Also while he was at McCormick he served as student pastor of the Archer Heights Presbyterian Church for two years. His first official pastorate was in Frederick, Oklahoma. He then served ten years at the First Presbyterian Church of Denton, Texas, home of two large colleges, North Texas State College and Texas State College for Women, having a combined student membership of 7000. He came to the Second Presbyterian Church of Knoxville two years ago.

He met his wife, the former Glenda Mullendore, also a native Texan, while a sophomore at Trinity and they were married in 1938, after he had been in seminary two years. They now have two children, Kirk, age thirteen, is an active Boy Scout and athlete. Karen, age four, is just now in nursery school. Dr. Copeland, in his spare time, enjoys hunting and golf.

He is "convinced that Maryville College offers the opportunity to receive a good education in a clear-cut Christian environment."

When asked his opinion of the February Meetings which he so adequately lead, he said, "The meetings have been the best arranged and the most adequately prepared for that I have ever experienced on any college campus and therefore I count it as the greatest opporuntity I've ever had in meetings of this nature on any campus. The students anticipated and expected and were prepared to receive inspirational guidance. I feel that the faculty and administration demonstrate a vision in the Christian framework and indeed are dedicated and contribute richly to the cause of Christ's kingdom."

Germans To See Movie

The next meeting of German Club will be held Monday night in the FAC Lounge. A movie will be shown.

German Club met last week in the FAC. President Iantha Peterson was in charge. Recorded music was played, featuring German composers.

Mike Connally was elected vice-president, succeeding Jane Jones, who did not return this semester. A program committee was appointed, consisting of Mike Connally, chairman, Ron Morley, Marian James, and Lois Speaker.

Disc Club To Hear Band

Pat Brendle will be in charge of the program for Disc Club Thursday evening at 6:45 in the Fine Arts Center lounge.

She will present recordings of "Fifth Symphony" and Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" made by her grade six high school band in Waynesville, N.C.

The Waynesville band played in the highest grade for high school band and received the top rating. These recordings will be the first by a non-professional group presented to the Club.

Theta Will Not Meet

Theta Epsilon will not meet tonight because of the freshman-sophomore class party.

Barraclough—

By Gail Purdy

Henry Barraclough, pianist for February Meetings this year, stated last week that he would like to plan to make these meetings his motive in making an annual visit to the college.

Dr. Barraclough has been pianist for the meetings before, but only to accompany for part of the time.

Living in Philadelphia now, Barraclough is a native of England. He was born and spent his boyhood near Bradford, where he received an education equal to that of a sophomore in an American college by the time he was 15 years of age. His father was a school master and he had "the urge and was given the push" to go ahead with his school work.

He had completed eight grades by the time he was ten years of age and received a scholarship to high school. Two years later he was given a scholarship to Bradford Grammar School, which is equivalent to a prep school in the U. S. Much more was covered in a school year there since there were only about five weeks vacation given during the entire school year.

Piano Lessons at Five

"I've played the piano as long as I can remember and have always loved music. I must have started taking lessons when I was five years of age." He also plays the organ, and while in London he played second clarinet in a private orchestra for two years. At this time he served as secretary to a member of Parliament and was also playing the piano for the YMCA weekly religious meetings.

Here it was that he met Charles Alexander, Evangelistic Singer, who was looking for a pianist. They then traveled to Scotland and in August 1914 visited British Army camps. On December 14, Barraclough's birthday, they came to the U. S.

Army Sergeant

Barraclough received his first papers as an American citizen in 1914 and was drafted into the army in 1917. He rose to be a Regimental Sergeant Major in the headquarters of the 78th Division. He went to France in April 1918 and came back to the states in July 1919.

He then worked in an insurance office for five years.

He held an organ position in Philadelphia from 1919-1921. In 1921 he married his wife. He was the choir master of the Tiago Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia for 16 years.

Barraclough is the Director of Bloomfield College and Seminary, from which he received his L.L.D. in 1946. He is also a trustee of Beaver College.

Music Students Give Recital

Music students of the division of fine arts presented this semester's second student recital Tuesday afternoon, February 16. The program was as follows:

Bach's "Three-Part Inventions" in E Major and D Major, Eugene Jenkins, pianist; Walther's "Variations on 'Liebster Jesu, wir sind hier'," Vierne's "Arabesque from 'Twenty-four Pieces in Free Style,'" Bach's "Der Tag, der ist so freudenreich," Henry Emmans, organist.

Mozart's Sonata in F Major, "Allegro" and "Finale," Laura Rainwater, pianist; Lotti's "Pur dicesti, O bocca belle," Mary Ellen Phipps, soprano, Jackie Speigner, accompanist; Cavalli's "Donzelle fuggite," Willie Sutton, soprano, Jackie Speigner, accompanist;

Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 10, No. 2, "Allegro" and "Allegretto," Maryel Vogel, pianist; "Jeune Fillette," Sally Butts, soprano, Louise Ogden, accompanist;

Secchi's "Lungi dal caro bene" and Mozart's "Porgi amor," Shirley Leever, soprano, Shirley Sharp, accompanist; Brahms' "Intermezzo" in A major, Op. 118, No. 2, and "Ballade" in G Minor, Op. 118, No. 3, Joyce Linginfelter, pianist.

Magill—

By Walt Elwood

"The student body of Maryville College is one of the most alert and responsive I have ever seen," said John Magill, song leader of the 1954 February Meetings. "Seldom does one get the opportunity to work with such a high-spirited and vivacious group."

This is Dr. Magil's second year as song leader. He served in the same capacity two years ago. Dr. Magill was also connected with the meetings during his student days at Maryville. While he was a student here he was very active in the music field, serving as choir director in New Providence Church.

"I am very impressed with the Fine Arts Division at Maryville. It has made tremendous strides since my own student days. The college has every right to be proud of their fine choir. They make a tremendous impression when they tour the country and certainly do a great deal to strengthen good will toward the school."

After leaving Maryville Dr. Magill attended McCormick Theological Seminary. Upon graduation he served as a pastor in the Chicago area for four years. He is presently serving as pastor of the Abingdon Presbyterian Church in Abingdon, Pa.

"I am very impressed with the new chapel. Its new and daring architecture adds a great deal to the campus. It meant a great deal to be able to hold services in the new building this year. I think it did a great deal to add a feeling of closeness. My job was a great deal easier than two years ago when the Meetings were held in the gym."

Mr. Magill is married to the former Louise Wells, also a Maryville graduate. They have two children, Carol, 10, and David, 6.

"Being asked to lead the singing at this series of meetings has meant a great deal to me. I hope I will be asked to return again in the future."

On Discipline

Everywhere in the world, it seems, where people are thrown together under the same circumstances and have something in common, there are those who find fault, no matter how well situated they may be. In fact, every one of us is guilty of this to a certain extent. This complaining might even be listed as one trait of the human personality.

So we say, "Well, good. That's what makes the world go round, and stimulates thoughts, and as a result we have improved ourselves and our living conditions." And there is something to that idea. We also, however, would be inclined to agree with someone who says, "We can have too much of a good thing." And it is the latter view-point which would apply to us here at Maryville.

The student body of Maryville College is certainly no exception to this matter of complaining. If anything, we are more guilty of this than usual. Perhaps we think we do have more things which do not suit us exactly, and we would really change a few things about this old place if we could just find some way to put it over to certain people.

If it's not Miss Ware's cooking, it's Ralph, signing honor reports, or the dating situation. We never pass up an opportunity to discuss and offer our suggestions for the betterment of our situation. And—sometimes someone does agree with us, and we get more privileges than we had before, and we are satisfied, for the time being, at least.

This past week during a discussion in one of the girls' dormitories, someone asked Dr. Copeland what he thought about the situation here at Maryville, and whether or not he thought a Christian should be disciplined and restrained, or whether he should be independent, to make his own choice in such matters. Dr. Copeland's answer added some new light to the whole subject.

Dr. Copeland said that he did think a Christian would be disciplined, to a certain extent, if not by the school, then by his parents, loved ones, and society in general. We can never be wholly independent. He also said that he had found something here on Maryville campus that he had not found at any other university or college (and he was not merely being polite.) He said that the atmosphere and the attitude of the student body was one of wholesomeness—and that this was achieved, to a large extent, through the discipline which we have here. Take away the discipline and we would lose this thing about Maryville which we value most. It is different, yes, but would we still have this if it were not?

Frankly, this attitude towards Maryville College had never entered our minds until that time—but now we wonder, and we think he may have something there.

—S. A.

Step Forward

Maryville College has taken a big step forward in cementing good relations between the student body and the faculty. Last week this paper heralded the event of optional town night, a long talked of improvement in the dating regulations. This, we hope, is just the beginning of a new spirit of cooperation which will be continued and strengthened in the future.

The actual changes in the Town Night agreement, liberal as they are, are not half so encouraging as the method that was used in working them out. The agreement was drawn up, for the most part, by a joint student-faculty committee working together to correct a situation that had not been completely satisfactory to either group.

In any college situation there are factors that must be realized in establishing policy. A college's prime function is to impart knowledge, therefore it must be organized so that it can fullfil this purpose in the best possible manner. Maryville being a Christian college must also take into account the propagation of the Christian faith and ethic.

Realizing these factors, which in themselves set limits on any program, we are aware that certain procedures must be followed. A college cannot be organized like a country club; it must set standards in our case not only academic but also religious, which it is assumed everyone connected with the school is interested in maintaining. Things like admission requirements, curriculum organization, and scholastic standing must be decided on and supervised by the faculty and administration.

There are, however, other facts of college life which can best be served by cooperation in planning and in joint acceptance of responsibility by both the faculty and the students themselves. Such things as dating regulations are an example.

Special programs like chapel speakers should be community projects. To mention a few others, disciplinary measures, athletic policy, and dorm regulations should also be agreed on and carried out jointly.

Our campus situation is ideally suited to such enterprises. We have a small workable group, interested and responsible people, and a Christian outlook. We also have the mechanics of such a program already set up in such groups as the Social Board, the Student-Faculty Senate, and the Athletic Board of Control. What we must develop is a mutual understanding and an acceptance of responsibility by everyone concerned. So hats off to the spirit behind the new Town Night agreement. May it be just the beginning of true community government on the Maryville campus in fact as well as in theory.

Well, here we are in the new "Chapel"—finally! And while some of you freshmen are eagerly perusing this infamous column, the juniors and seniors are being crushed to death in the aisles. I've heard several solutions to the situation, but the only safe way that I can see is to knock out the side wall. . .

And now the old gym stands forlorn—and even the underclassmen get to lean back during the services. During the last meeting in the gym, weeping and wailing were heard everywhere, and snatches of "Auld Lang Syne" floated all over the gym. The dogs turned out en masse to help us all bid our fond farewells and to add to our "fifteen jeers."

According to Aristotle, the cause of the artistic inspiration is the excess of black bile in the human body. "Too bad we don't still believe that," says Dr. Hunter. "You know—run down to the corner drugstore and buy a box of Brown's Black Bile Pills, then go home and write a beautiful poem."

At his Pearsons discussion meeting Tuesday night, Dr. Copeland threw in this bit of comic relief: seems that if one gets thirsty at night all she needs to do is reach under the bed and find a spring. "But," Sutton objected, "Our beds don't have springs."

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Barbara Wilkie

We didn't know water colors could be used in so many different ways until we visited the exhibit in the FAC last week. No matter what your preference, you'll find it represented in the interesting variety of paintings there.

One of the first ones to catch the eye (who could miss it!) was "Low Tide Seascape," by Laurence Kupferman. Splashes and washes of green, yellow, and brown with touches of red and blue make a pleasing combination which appealed to the imagination. We could almost see all those corals anemones, sponges and other squishy stuff we've been studying in biology! Maybe there is an octopus in there, too. It's fun imagining anyway.

For those who like their colors confined to simple lines, there's "Green and Red" by Georges Vantongerloo. No big splotches of color here! Just a few balanced lines arranged either for the purpose of being artistic or else to show the basic principles of plane geometry. We have no idea what they represent, though we're almost sure there's some significance to them or they wouldn't be there. (You can tell these are our own comments; we neglected to consult Mr. Beard about the subject.)

Had a good nightmare lately? Well, there's a nice surrealistic painting by Yves Tanguy (even sounds abnormal) that will give you plenty of scary ideas! We couldn't figure out whether it's a picture of conditions on Mars, Death Valley, or the world after an atomic explosion. (We're not much good at interpreting this type of art anyway.) While studying it, we became aware of an eye staring from the painting. Casting a furtive glance around, we moved quickly on to the next one.

"Suspense"—that's what we thought of when we saw "Magicians" by Emil Nolde. The mood is set with deep greens, blues, and purples. One of the yellow-orange faced men is holding something that looked like a snake. Very morbid.

There are just a few samples of what we saw; the other paintings are all just as interesting in one way or another. We suggest you take a half hour off some day soon to tour the art gallery in the FAC. Even if you don't know much about art, you'll feel more cultured for looking, anyway.

And in the way of music, don't forget Mr. Bloy's recital next Friday night. The program promises to be very good.

During February meetings Dr. Copeland mentioned several authors and books worth reading. For all of you who didn't get your questions answered during the discussion meetings, we'd like to join Dr. Copeland in recommending Harry Goodykoontz's inexpensive book "Christian Ways for College Days." It has some very helpful information on problems confronting college students. You may order it from the John Knox Press, Richmond, Va.

We have several books in the library by E. Stanley Jones, whom Dr. Copeland also mentioned. Among these are "Abundant Living," "The Christ of the Mount" and "Growing Spiritually."

Caldwell, Frei To Read At Workshop Monday

George Caldwell and Joan Frei will read at Writers' Workshop on Monday, February 22. The critics will be Joanne Edwards and Sheila Sutton.

Writer's Workshop heard Abby Crosby and Jim Kesler read on February 8, with criticisms given by Nancy Naylor and Abby Crosby.

Jim Fisher and Ken Wilkinson were elected to membership recently.

Lime To Speak At Vesper Service

The Rev. J. Clayton Lime, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Canton, N.C., is to speak at Vespers tomorrow night.

Lime is a graduate of W. and J. College and Princeton Seminary. He was minister to churches in Delanco and Trenton, N.J., before serving several years during the war as a chaplain in the Pacific.

His daughter, Carolyn, is a member of the junior class here at Maryville College.

Alpha Sig To Meet

Alpha Sigma will meet tonight at 6:15 in their usual meeting place for a very important business meeting and some entertainment.

Spanish To Play Games

Spanish treasure hunt and games are on the program for the next meeting of Spanish Club, Thursday evening at 6:45 in Senor Schwam's room.

The Big Four agreed in Berlin this week to hold a Korean peace conference in Geneva in April. Red China will not be admitted as a member, and Russia will not have the role of belligerent.

Socially Speaking

By Sue Brown

Many who could not join with us in the meetings sent good wishes by telegram or letter. We send our thanks to Maryville alumni in McCormick, Western, Louisville, and other seminaries. And also to Dr. Moody Morgan, who presided over last year's meetings, and numerous others, we say thank you and "wish you were here."

—o—

Two lucky students gave special attention during part of last week to their own guests on campus. Both Edgar Drumm and Lee Fowler received visits from their mothers. Congratulations to you!

It's good to see you back on campus, Kreole Dulany! We all send best wishes for a speedy recovery.

We'll be missing Edna May Stout this week-end. Have a pleasant trip home!

Sports Spotlights

By Malcolm King

A letter was given to me last week in answer to the comment made in this column two weeks ago about permitting the girls' basketball team to play outside competition. This was composed by some girls on campus, giving their frank opinion about the situation:

"The first game of the recently organized girls' basketball team seemed to be greatly enjoyed by both the players and the spectators, and it brought a few pertinent facts to our minds.

To begin, we have a wealth of basketball players among the fairer sex on our campus. This includes members of high school championship teams, one or two semi-pro players, and other all-around athletes. They looked good in the first game, and they have played together in practice; consequently, each team knew the characteristics and plays of the other team. If the best girls of the two teams played together against a team from somewhere else, the game would not be held down so much and would be even better.

If you have talked to any of these girls, you know how enthusiastic they are about basketball. These girls are willing to give their recreation time to practice, and are showing osme of the spunk and school spirit we like to see in people representing Maryville College in all its activities.

Why can't they have a chance to prove they want to carry on the traditions of our school by stirring up some school spirit and giving us osme good clean sport?"

Names withheld by request.

This letter shows the sincere interest that the girls have in the possibilities of a "fairer sex" basketball team on M. C. campus. Of course, it is too late to bring in outside competition this year and the plans have readily been frowned upon, but, if the interest keeps up and the idea is "pushed" enough between now and next cage season, maybe things will seem different in the sight of the "veto board."

Those having seen the game played by the girls will agree with the comment made in the letter about the spectators enjoying it very much. And the crowd accumulated was more than usually turns out to watch the varsity in action.

New Floor in Alumni Gym?

With the new chapel almost completed and all of us happy over the improvement, another "sore spot" on campus will become more prominent. That spot, as the varsity basketballers and intramural players can well describe to you in very descriptive phraseology, is the "temporary" Alumni Gym.

It is a known fact that a potential contractor was checked for a bidding price to fix the floor recently, but the sum was quite inconsiderably high for any school to pay to have one put in. Acknowledging this factor, there is still the dire need for repairs on the court.

The floor has numerous "dead" places in various sections of the court, an extremely bad one under the east end basket. Besides these bad places, there are many warped boards and in one spot the boards stick up. Improvements will cost money, and it is obvious that it is not too plentiful now, but something, whatever it is, should be done before someone gets seriously hurt. The condition also hurts the quality of basketball played on it as has been witnessed by by local fans.

Another year on that court will finish it for good unless some repairs are made soon. Then where will the basketball team play? Maybe it would be better not to play on the court at all instead of taking the chance of someone getting hurt on it. It hasn't happened yet and let's certainly hope that it doesn't.

Tiger, Buford Likely Champs

Wrestling Captain Tom Bugenhagen and scrappy Buford Miller entered the Southeastern Conference Wrestling Tournament at Middle Tennessee State College yesterday as possible top contenders in their respective weight division.

Both boys are sophomores in their second year as wrestlers for Coach John Davis' squad, and have increased their ability considerably since their debut on the Maryville mat. Neither of these grapplers has lost a match all season and they have faced all of the teams that are entered in the tournament with the exception of defending champs Auburn, who have dominated the tourney for the last several years.

Jimmy Cummings, who put in his first full year on the Maryville mat, is likely to have entered the tourney with a third place rating. Jim has come a long way this year in proving his grappling skill and is rated behind the 137-pounders from Emory University of Atlanta and Auburn. Jerry Waters of Maryville is another very strong competistor in whom Coach Davis has big hopes.

Regular heavyweight John Anderson will not be participating in the tourney because of a bad knee, but will be replaced by big Don Moore who made a fine showing last Saturday night on the local mat against the Knoxville Y in his grappling debut.

This corner predicts two SEC Champs from the Maryville Campus this year in the personages of Tiger Tom Bugenhagen and Buford Miller.

Baseball Around the Corner

On March 1 Coach Lombe S. Honaker will be looking for a fine crop of baseball talent to appear for a light workout on the college diamond to commence the '54 Maryville baseball season. Last year Coach Honaker had a very good season as is his custom with the baseball squad.

Missing from the lineup will be last year's standouts shortstop Jimmy Campbell and pitcher Sonny Short who graduated.

Grapplers Meet In SEC Tourney

Three MC Matmen Seeded In Matches

By Bob Jackson

Led by Captain Tom Bugenhagen and Buford Miller, the Maryville College Wrestling Team is taking part in S.E.C. Championship tournament at Middle Tennessee State College, this week-end.

Maryville has high hopes of capturing two and possibly three first places in the individual scoring, besides making an excellent team showing. In all probability, Bugenhagen and Miller are seeded number one in their respective classes while Jimmy Cummings, the Orange and Garnet entry in the 137 lb. class, received the second seeded position. "Tiger" Tom and Buford are top heavy choices to be crowned champions, as both finished the regular season undefeated, and last year finished in the runner-up spots.

Last year the Highlanders finished in a tie for fourth place. Bill Morse was the star and captain of the 52-53 squad, that included such grapplers as Paul Merwin, George Kipp and Bob Vandergriff.

Besides the boys already mentioned, Coach Davis has entered Jerry Waters in '23, Gene Garren in '47, Jack Renfro in '57, Bob Buchanan in '77, and Don Moore in the heavyweight class.

Emory Trips MC, 15 To 13

On February 8, the Scot matmen traveled to Atlanta to engage Emory University's grapplers in an afternoon match. The Maryville team was tired out from the morning-long drive and lacked their customary drive and power. Still the match was close with its outcome in doubt until the final match. The summary is as follows:

123—Dick Sans (E) pinned Clarence Norton (M) in two minutes of the third period.
130—Jerry Waters (M) and Bill Acherman (E) battled to a draw.
137—Buford Miller (M) decisioned Digger Duggen (E), 8 to 2.

Scots Mangle "Y" 24 to 5

In their final home appearance of the 1953-54 season the Maryville matmen crushed their favorite "whipping boys," the Knoxville Y.M.C., last Saturday evening. The match contained everything from good hard wrestling to a comical T.V. type performance.

Special mention should be given to Bob Buchana, who in his final home appearance of his career by pinned his man in 31 seconds of the second period. Also Don Moore and Jimmy Cummings were standouts in the Scottie victory. The summary is as follows:

123—Waters (M) decisioned Arnold (Y), 8 to 6
130—"Y" forfeited to Maryville.
137—Cummings (M) decisioned Clendenen (Y), 14 to 4
147—Garren (M) decisioned Adams (Y), 3 to 1
157—Jones (Y) decisioned Renfro (M), 5 to 2
167—Bugenhagen (M) decisioned Prucka (Y), 6 to 0
177—Buchanan (M) pinned Castell (Y) in 31 seconds of the second period
Heavyweight Moore (M) tied Corum (Y).

SNOWBIRDS EDGE MOSER'S TO WIN INTRAMURAL CROWN

After taking a 35-34 loss at the hands of the red and white clad Moser team in the semi-final round, the Snowbirds bounced back in the finals to defeat them two straight games to win the Intramural Tournament.

Thursday afternoon's final contest saw the Moser five start off with a bang, taking a 20-12 first quarter lead. In the second quarter, it looked the same until a "keen-eyed" referee handcuffed the red and white clad, calling four fouls on two players and three on another. From that point on the teams matched point for point, big Monk Johnston keeping the Moser crew in the game with numerous hook shots and excellent defensive play.

In the waning minutes, the Snowbirds pulled a few points ahead and turned on the freeze, running the clock out to win 58-54. Sharpshooting John Anderson and Chuck Dunn paced the victors while Johnston bore the brunt of the losers' scoring.

Last Saturday afternoon, the Snowbirds won the first of the double elimination playoff games by a score of 45-44. John Anderson, who was supposedly "suffering" from a bad ankle, contributed 17 points to lead the maroon clad to victory followed by Chuck Dunn with 12. It was again Monk Johnston who led the losers with 13.

In the semi-final battle, the two 24 points while Clarence Shepard, Chuck Dunn and Jim Saunders led the losers' in the scoring department.

Hot Shots Win Consolation

Class B League Hot Shots turned back the Ramblers 52-26 in the finals to win going away in the teams staggered through a low-scoring contest with the Moser five coming out by a one-point margin. Malcolm King paced the unusually "cold" Moser team with Consolation Tournament. The Hot Shots made a clean sweep of the tourney, going through undefeated paced by Harold Wallace, Bruce Ingles and Bob Basford.

Scuttled By Sabres 81-74

Never really in the ball game, the hometeam from the Hill fought valiantly to the final gun before bowing to the superior and vastly improved McGhee-Tyson Airbase quintet. The Scotties, yielding a great height advantage, were unable to control the backboards and in this little heeded factor lies the tale of the game.

The visiting five displayed a fine smooth-running attack built around capable center O'Toole. So well balanced was their play that four Sabres crashed into double figures. The Scots trailed throughout despite a Spartan-like effort on the part of Bob Patterson. The flashy Highlander guard continually harrassed the invaders and finished the contest with eighteen points.

O'Toole and Crabtree were the game's high scorers, dunking in 25 and 21 respectively.

Rout Railsplitters 88-68

The Scots hit the winning side of the ledger for a change by smashing a hapless Lincoln Memorial U. five, 88-68. The Railsplitters from upstate just didn't have enough guns as the spirited home club repeatedly found the range.

From the spectator standpoint the contest had little to offer in the way of genuine excitement as Bob Shelton and Bob Patterson both crashed the L.M.U. defense at will. Scot regulars got a rest as Coach Honaker emptied the bench.

Shelton, turning in one of his finest performances, led the scoring parade with 21 points. Patterson followed closely with 20. Jordan contributed 18 in a losing cause.

Miss Molly Gives Good Advice To Girls From Yellowed Pages Of 'Chilhowean'

(Reprinted from the 1906 "Chilhowean")

The little bell in the dining room is always responsible for them. It rings out clear, imperious, and the manager's deep voice announces, "All the young ladies are called to meet in the back parlor at six-thirty." A moment's painful silence follows: then sympathetic glances are passed across the tables, for some of the girls turn pale; only an incorrigible or two shrugs her shoulders and says, "You'll not see me there."

When the echoes of the study-bell are dying away, one hundred and twenty-five eager faces are ranged around the central figure between the portals of the parlors. One hundred and twenty-five did I say? No. no; there might be one or two who, fearing the kind censure or tearful advice of the Matron, had crept guiltily up the back stairway to their rooms.

"Now girls," it begins, "I don't want to take much of your time tonight, but there are a few things I want to speak about. In the first place, girls, I want to thank you for the way in which you have conducted yourselves. It is remarkable that there has been so little trouble among so many. You violated the rules very little, and for the most part you have conscientiously tried to do what you thought was right. But there are just one or two things that I must speak about.

"Now, we do not want to make these rules; it is not for our pleasure, but only for your good, and some day you can see it so. I tell you, girls, it is when the experiences of life come to you, when you have seen life as I have seen it, that you realize the importance of building a good, solid character. So these rules must be enforced.

(Reads): "Let nothing be thrown out of the windows." You can see the importance of this; I do not need to dwell upon it. No lady would be guilty of disfiguring our beautiful campus; it is only thoughtlessness, girls, I know, but still I must speak of this. Suppose, for instance, every girl in Baldwin—as, I am sorry to say, a few have done—should sharpen her pencils out of the window; in a few days the air of immaculate neatness about our buildings would be changed. So girls, let me insist that this first rule be kept.

(Reads again): "No girls shall be seen moonshining on the campus, on the stile, on the steps of the library, below the brow of the hill at the foot of the campus, under the persimmon tree, in the laboratories, on the walk to Professor Gilman's, back of Science Hall, in the new chapel, or any other place, with the co-eds, except with written permission from parent or guardian.' Remember, girls, you have only your own actions to count here; you are making a reputation, and you must determine what that reputation shall be. Can you afford, girls,—can you afford to have your fair name sullied? Think of the father and mother at home, think of the care you have had from them all these years from your childhood up (tears), and, oh, I beg of you, do not add one gray hair to those heads (more tears). Let not this, the second rule, be broken.

"And right here, girls, I must speak of something which pained me deeply. To think that any girl should so far forget her womanhood! Oh, what would your good name be worth if it should get out? What if people in town should know of this, and if it should be reported abroad? Would mothers send their daughters to Maryville College if this digression should be known? Ah, girls, you beyond expression of words if you knew what room it was and what girls they were; for, girls, (the air is thick and of a lurid hue, and breathing is almost suspended,) girls, strings have gone down from the windows and things have been pulled up!" The occupants of Room — cringe with bitter remorse; tears course down their fluked cheeks, and they cover their guilty faces with trembling handkerchiefs, and a sob that is almost a hysterical laugh bursts from one sitting just before the speaker—a smile? Ah, no; a groan!

Unmindful of the weeping penitents, the Matron continues: "But that is not all. Girls, a professor was pasing Baldwin at half past eleven last night, and he heard windows thrown up, and plainly discerned two of our young ladies sticking their heads out of the window and crow, crow, CROW! What is the reputation of you girls worth if this should be known? It may have been done only in fun—I hope it was—but there were boys beneath the cedars, and what if they had answered?" The tension or horror is too great; one awful sob breaks from the one hundred twenty-five at once, all except two. They looked is if they could testify that not only was it "only fun", but it was rare fun—fun that was equalled only by the joy of pulling up roasted rabbits, buns, boxes of Kern's, yes, persimmons and chocolate cakes, on the disgraceful, the heinous, the dishonorably mentioned string.

After handkerchiefs and promises to seek out and quell such immoral sentiments have been freely in evidence, the trembling voice of the speaker brightens up for a new appeal. "Now, girls, I see that you are in sympathy with order and discipline, and just a word will be sufficient in regard to an evil which has stealthily crept into our midst, the habit of borrowing. This habit of wearing another girl's gown, of borrowing a collar or a waist, is common, and far below the standard for you girls. So, from this time any girl seen wearing any other girl's garment will be given demerits. No questions will be asked. If there is any place where a girl shows her rearing, it is at the table. No lady would permit, in her presence, loud laughter at the table, the throwing of bread, or such rudeness as has been suspected in our dining room; and no lady—she may be hungry, but simple physical ills must be disregarded and only the character cultivated—no lady would carry so much as a crumb from the dining room. So any girl seen taking from the dining room anything to eat, either in her hands or otherwise, will be demerited. Only a few days ago I saw a sight that, if your mothers could witness, would make them blush for shame. As he was leaving the table, one of the boys—I cannot call him a young gentleman—actually pulled a girl's hair!

"Need I impress upon you the virtue of neatness — neatness in dress and neatness in the condition of your rooms? Last night, while the girls were at the concert, I had occasion to step into a certain room—I will mention no names—and, girls, I saw three dresser drawers hanging open, with collars, ribbons, gloves, and neckwear streaming out of every one; every chair in the room was buried in billows of gowns; one was overturned; three pairs of shoes, a mirror, two powder boxes, and fifteen books—not all astronomies or ethics—were on the floor. I am sure there was dust in places on the study table. The pin- cushion was under the dresser; other small articles under the radiator; behind the trunks, which stood wide open, were too many articles for me to enumerate; the rugs rolled up, and really the whole room not in pulpit order. Remember that a lady never hurries, and always leaves her room immaculate.

"Now, girls, there are two or three other things I wanted to speak about, but I will not take any more of your time tonight. Go quietly to your rooms, for it is study hours."

'UNITED IN CHRIST'

In WORD

BELIEF is the most essential thing in the world. What we believe is very close to it. Though some foolishly say, "It doesn't matter what we believe, as long as we do right," what we believe about God and His teachings is very important. Beliefs do matter. What we believe shapes our thoughts, our deeds, our lives. As a man "thinketh in his heart, so is he." "I believe" is the great beginning for Christian life and should be the answer to every temptation and doubt.

Tonight Freshmen Will Show Talent

'Apple Blossom Time' To Come

By Pat Brendle

"Apple Blossom Time" by Hershel Netherton will open tonight at 8:00 in the Alumni gym. This Freshman Talent Show is open to all the campus and there will be no admission charge.

Shirley Leever, a music major from Oak Ridge, and Phil Muir, an English major from Seattle, Wash., will have the leads as Gloria DeWitt and Michael Stevens.

Story of Theater

"Apple Blossom Time" is a story of the theater. It revolves around the production of a springtime show, the rehearsals, the party before "show night", and the final production of the show.

The cast members include the producer, Ray Sammons and his wife, Helen Avakian; the "lead" understudies, Mary Ellen Phipps and Sidney Tedford; the showbacker, Sue Burton; chorus girl, Nants Harvard; the maid, Judy Ross; the valet, Hershel Netherton; and Gayle Forrest, Clara Joe Minarik. Pianist is Laura Rainwater.

The chorus girls are Margaret Gilmore, Anne Brown, Pat Brendle, Jean Dildy, Joan McClain, Katie Dycke, Bernice McCullogh, Emma Lou Arnold, Elaine Bowman, Yvonne Huskey and Margie Wilkinson.

Solo dancers are Katie Marston and Lavinia Lee. Violinist is Margie Jones. Soloist is Marion Hina.

21 Hit Tunes

The "misleading" titles on the posters for the show, which have been up over a period of weeks, have actually been titles of the twenty-one hit tunes which will be sung.

Ushers for the show are Rick McNeal, Bob Finerti, Ray Williams, Bill Deerfield, Bob Basford, and Dick Henderson.

Pianists between acts are Polly Tranawski and Guy Selander.

Committees

The committees include the following: Stage crew—Rodger Clowes, chairman; the Lighting crew—George Hardy, Toni Clark, and Harold Wallace.

Bruce Ingles is in charge of the props. Natalie Richards, Ann Yater and Isabel Easley are in charge of set and scenery.

The costume committee has Lila Crance as chairman. Members are Nancy Marshall, Sandra Fox, Peggy Packard, and Elinor Bass.

Publicity

Pat Brendle was chairman of publicity. Working on that committee were Kip Spang, Sylvia Bolick, Mar Jean Fredrickson, Peggy Packard, Sandra Booth, Jane Robinson, Emily Swanton, Natalie Richards, Jane Kirkpatrick, Margaret Gilmore, Ann Yater, Grace Guider, Ann Fulton, and Mary Moranville.

Make-up

Kip Spang was make-up chairman. Her committee included Sylvia Bolick, Shirley Mayfield, Laura Teague, Marian James, Carol Lee Lacy, Elaine Bowman, Gayle Martin, Ann Henderson, Bernice McCulloch, Martha Nelson, Virginia Beebout, Nancy Jones, and Polly Tranawski.

The program committee was headed by Rick McNeil. Members on that committee were Pat Brendle and Kip Spang.

The director for the whole show was Helen Davis, vice-president of the class. Other class officers are Ed Drum, President, Sandra Booth, Ted McDaniels, and Clara Jo Minarik.

Bainonian To Hear 'I've Got A Pet Peeve'

There will be a brief business meeting of Bainonian society tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall.

After that Iota Chapter will present a program called "I've Got A Pet Peeve," Those on the panel, who will try to guess what the "peeve" is, are as follows: Joan MacNaughton, Betty Cutler, Sandy Motsinger, and Rae Graham.

Craven Readies Drama 'Lady's Not For Burning'

Edwards, Caldwell To Star In Play

By Walt Elwood

The cast of "The Lady's Not For Burning" is entering its sixth week of rehearsal in preparation for the opening on March 19. The play is under the direction of Kathleen Craven, associate professor of dramatic art.

Caldwell

In the leading role of Thomas is George Caldwell, senior drama major from Seattle, Wash. Caldwell has appeared in the Playhouse productions of "Macbeth," "The Heiress," 'Two Blind Mice," and last spring played the part of Matt Cole in "Good-By My Fancy." Caldwell has attained the rank of Master Player in the Maryville Playhouse and is a member of Theta Alpha Phi.

Edwards

Co-starring with Mr. Caldwell as Jennet is Joanne Edwards, senior English major from Hawthorne, N.J. Miss Edwards has also appeared in many Playhouse productions and like Caldwell is a Master Player and is a member of Theta Alpha Phi. She is president this year of the Maryville Delta Chapter of that organization. Miss Edwards played the leading role of Agatha in "Good-By My Fancy."

Cast

Others appearing in the play include Nancy Rideout as Margaret, Marcia Williams as Alizon, Bill Deerfield as Richard, Arthur Fryer as Tyson, Dave Gates as Nicholas, Ronnie Pearson as Humphrey, Herb White as Tappercoom, Preston Bogia as Old Skipps, and Walt Elwood as the Chaplain.

Witch Hunt

"The Lady's Not for Burning" was written by Christopher Fry. The setting is a small English town in the 15th century. The action of the play takes place all in one night, the night the town is extremely excited by a witch hunt. Jennet, the supposed witch, goes to the Mayor's house seeking protection. Also at the Mayor's house is a strange man about town, Thomas, who is tired of the world and insists on being hanged.

The much befuddled Mayor, Tyson, and his cronies try desperately to untangle the conflicting stories of Jennet and Thomas, who claims he's the Devil. The confusion that ensues produces a comic situation that is enhanced by Fry's mastery of the language and his poetical qualities.

Unusual, Entertaining

"The cast has ben working hard and devoting a great deal of time to the play," said Miss Craven. "With two more weeks of rehearsal we should have a very presentable and well polished production. I think the student body will like the play because it is unusual and highly entertaining."

Tickets will go on sale on campus and in town beginning next week. The price for both student and non-student tickets is fifty cents.

Students Give Tuesday Recital

The regular student recital last Tuesday, March 2, had the following program:

"Three-Part Invention in C Minor," by Bach, and "Sonata, Op. 2, No. 1," by Beethoven, Myrna Ginevan, pianist, in partial fulfillment of sophomore requirements;

"Nina," by Pergolesi, Mrs. Fred Young, soprano, and Henry Emmans, accompanist; "Rugiadose odoreose," by Scarlatti, Yvonne Huskey, soprano, and Gayle Martin, accompanist;

"Nocturne, Op. 55, No. 1," by Chopin, Shirley Sharp, pianist; "Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 1," by Chopin, Laura Rainwater, pianist;

"Berceuse, Op. 57," by Chopin, Eugene Jenkins, pianist, in partial fulfillment of sophomore requirements;

"Vittoria, mio core," by Carissimi, Virginia Zwicki, soprano, and Jackie Speigner, accompanist; "Ich Liebe Dich," by Grieg, Faith Nollner, soprano, and Jackie Speigner, accompanists;

"Francaise" and "Movements perpetuels," both by Poulenc, Louise Ogden, pianist.

Mrs. George E. Brown, assistant professor of biology, is a woman who has lead an active life and has enjoyed it.

Mrs. Brown was born near Carthage in middle Tennessee. She acquired her elementary education there and received her high school diploma from the Tennessee Polytechnic Institute.

Her freshman year of college was spent at the Montana State Normal College. While in the West she taught third grade in Kellog, Idaho, and all grades in a tiny one room school in the Rockies, near Missoula, Mont.

Maryville Graduate

In her sophomore year Mrs. Brown came to Maryville where she became a biology laboratory assistant, a member of the choir, the president of Bainonian, and did special work in piano. She entered Maryville with the idea of becoming a high school English teacher but was honored by being asked to prepare herself for a position on the staff of the biology department.

After graduation she taught English for a year at Alpine High, a Presbyterian mission school in Tennessee and then spent another year doing graduate work at the University of Tennessee.

Returned On Faculty

Mrs. Brown returned to Maryville in 1929 and became a member of the faculty. She has remained here since that time with the exception of a two year period during the last World War, when she was granted a leave of absence. During this time she taught general science and biology at Maryville High School. She then returned to the college campus and resumed her instructorship in general biology, botany, and bacteriology.

Since 1936 Mrs. Brown has been ocupdied not only with teaching but also with home-making and church work, for in that year she married the Rev. George E. Brown, who is almost as familiar a figure on the Maryville campus as is his wife.

Interest In Nature

Mr. Brown, who is also a Maryville graduate, shares his wife's enthusiasm and enjoyment of the mountains and of botany hikes, for Mrs. Brown has entered into the study of this subject not only as an occupation, but also as a hobby.

Mrs. Brown feels that her life has been a full one. She says that she is happy in what she is doing, and to Mrs. Brown true happiness is a thing of primary importance.

Duff Announces Sale Of Senior Invitations

Seniors may order graduation invitations at a table to be set up in Thaw lobby on Monday, March 8, Bob Duff, senior class treasurer, has announced.

Prices are 20 cents per single card invitation, 45 cents per single booklet invitation, and 80 cents per single leather-bound invitation.

Name cards are $3.65 for 100.

Orders will be taken at the same time for class rings. These require a $5 deposit.

SC Delegates Attend Collegiate Government Meet

Bill Dartnell, MC student body president, this week termed "partly successful and partly not successful" a collegiate government meeting at Carson-Newman College, which he and six other students attended last Saturday.

Dartnell's reason for the ambiguous opinion was based on the fact that the representatives from Maryville were the only ones to show up for the meeting to which 12 to 14 other schools had been invited.

Plans For Meeting

"However, we did make plans for the state meeting to be held there around April 1," he commented. Dartnell addd that the Maryville delegates—in addition to eating "a good meal, free"—discussed with Carson-Newman students such matters as college social life, fund raising, and comparison of MC and C-N student governments. Also the group heard talks by student leaders and faculty advisers at the Jefferson City school.

Seven Attend

After discussion of the meeting at student council last week, the Maryville council decided to invite any interested non-council member students to attend along with regular delegates. Persons who attended the meeting were Dartnell, Judy Burgos, Carol F. Moore, Marilyn Kiefer, Joanne Edwards, Barbara Chubb, and Ted McDaniels.

IRC President Attends Model UN Meeting

"The United Nations offers young people the best chance of living out their lives in peace." This statement was made by D. F. Fleming, professor of history at Vanderbilt, when he spoke to the Model United Nations last week.

The purpose of this group, which met on the campus of David Lipscomb College in Nashville, was to gain an understanding of nations' motives and of the problems facing the General Assembly of the U.N.

Similar groups of college students meet annually at various places in the nation to encourage interest in and understanding of the U.N. The convention in Nashville was the second of its kind held in the Mid-South.

The plan is to approximate on a small scale the actual proceeding of the General Assembly, each college representative presenting the views of the delegation from one country. It is designed to help in one country. It is designed to help the understanding of problems of carrying on business in an international assembly.

Margaret Hanna, IRC president and Maryville's delegate representing the country of Lebanon, will report to International Relations Club about the Model United Nations at its next meeting, March 18.

Ernst To Attend Presbyterian Meeting

Bryan Ernst, MC student from Ceylon, has been nominated by the Dutch Reformed Church in Ceylon to be one of two representatives to the 17th General Council of the World Presbyterian Alliance to be held at Princeton, N. J., from July 27 to August 5 this year.

Athenian To See Film

Tonight at 6:15 Athenian will hold its regular meting. The program of the evening will be a film from the Naval Reserve. This film will show some of the famous battles which have made history.

March Comes In With Snow

March came in Monday with a six-inch snowfall that covered the campus, but melted rapidly. This picture, taken at 6 a.m. on March 1, shows the entrance to the college at the steps.

Glee Clubs To Present Operetta 'Fortune Teller' Friday, Saturday

Cunningham, Sutton To Sing In Junior Recital

The Division of Fine Arts will present Sheila Sutton, soprano, and William Cunningham, baritone in a junior recital on Tuesday, March 9, at 4:30 p.m. in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Miss Sutton will sing the following numbers: Mendelssohn's "Hear ye Israel!" (Elijah); "Liederkreis, Op. 39," by Schumann, including "In der Fremde," "Intermezzo," "Die Stille," "Mondnacht," and "Schoene Fremde";

"Dich, Theure Halle" (Tannhaeuser) by Wagner.

Cunningham will sing the following: "It is enough" (Elijah) by Mendelssohn;

"Romanzen aus Magelone" by Brahms, including "Keinen hat es noch gereut," "Traun! Bogen und Pfeil sind gut fuernd Feind," "Sind es schmerzen, sind es Freuden," and "Treue Liebe dauert lange."

Thirty inches of snow was reported in the Smokies this week.

Art Gallery Shows Dutch Children's Work

Dutch children's paintings will be on exhibit in the Fine Arts Center gallery until March 19. These drawings are part of an exchange made between the children of Memphis and those in Holland under the auspices of the AAUW.

It was out of appreciation for the relief sent to Holland by the AAUW during the recent flood that the Dutch sent the pictures. The next exchange planned will be with India. Drawings that will be sent will be chosen in a children's contest to include all of Tennessee.

TKC Elects Members

Sheila Sutton, Maryel Vogel, Wayne Shelton and Lora Kinsinger are the newly elected members of Tau Kappa Chi. Their initiation took place last night in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Tau Kappa Chi is an honorary fraternity whose purpose is to maintain high acadmic standards for all students interesed in music, to promote trained musicianship, and to further the understanding of all styles of music.

Sellick Directs Combined Groups

By Joe Gilliland

Edrie Sellick, director of the forthcoming production of Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" by the combined glee clubs, this week announced the two groups of soloists who will sing on Friday and Saturday nights, March 12 and 13, respectively.

Soloists who will sing both nights include Joyce Linginfelter, Eugene Jenkins, Morgan Biggs, and Bob Brand. The Friday night cast is composed of Cary Valentine, Mary Nichol, Sylvia Liles, Ruth Billingsley, Kent Toomey, Bob Patterson, Peggy Purdy, and Faith Nollner. On Saturday night, Don Craig, Virginia Zwicki, Ann Daniel, Susan Cook, Tom Fairhurst, Adlai Boyd, Laura Rainwater, and Carol Lee Lacy will be the stars.

Alumni Gym

Both performances will be presented at 8:30 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. Tickets went on sale during this past week on campus and in drugstores and restaurants downtown. The price for seats is 60 cents.

Setting In Livonia

Victor Herbert laid the action of this operetta in a country called Livonia, where the government is about to go bankrupt. High officials in the government lose a lottery ticket which would save Livonia from ruin, and so the entire country is upset.

Parallel to this comedy plot is a love story of a gypsy girl who almost becomes a countess and leaves her gypsy band.

In addition to music by the soloists and chorus, dancing is also an element in "The Fortune Teller." The dances are performed by the principals and a chorus of ballerina girls. Other chorus groups are the gypsies and the hussars.

Well-Known Songs

For the past two years, the combined glee clubs presented Gilbert and Sullivan works for a springtime production. This is their first show not of that type. Two well-known songs from "The Fortune Teller" are "Gypsy Love Song" and "Romany Life."

Accompanists for the program are Louise Ogden and Jane Robinson.

College Observes World Day of Prayer

World Day of Prayer was observed ysterday with a brief special chapel service. A moment of campus-wide silent prayer was observed at 11 a.m.

Seniors Through Years Leave Gifts To Improve, Adorn MC

By Faith Nollner

"Gone but not forgotten" seems to be a favorite epitaph for tombstones. A similar phrase might be appropriate on the plaques which are scattered here and there around campus. It seems that all the classes since 1902 have had a burning desire to commemorate themselves to posterity by leaving something lying around with the date on it.

Now, for instance, of what value is a stone in the ground with 1902 on it? But that seems to be the chief contribution of that class. A similar mystery is presented by the class of 1903 which placed a plaque on the wall of the bookstore (which was then a library) with the names of the class on it (eight in all).

Strips of Sidewalk

Doc Griffitts, our chief source of information, was at a loss to explain it, but he was happy to point out the value of the several strips of sidewalk which the class of 1925 presented to the school. (By the way, he is a member of '25). Oops! excuse me if we've told your age Doc!

Several other classes have also presented pavement as their farewell gifts, for which we are all duly grateful in this nasty weather.

Spring Fever?

Those stricken with Spring Fever or smitten with Love send aloft praises to that "thoughty" class which left behind a bench in front of Thaw. (Incidentally, didn't said bench used to be the boundary to which couples could stroll in their fifteen minutes after dinner?)

The classes through the years have presented gifts which are of value, beauty or both. Perhaps we don't have an artistic soul, but we can't see either value or beauty in that prickly, thorny tree outside the Intramural gym. Maybe those kids weren't so appreciative!

Part of the gate entrances to the campus were donated by classes. Also, one class helped build the steps which come by Carnegie from Court Street.

"Living Endowment"

A few membrs of classes beginning about '42 started a "living endowment" fund. Through this, they present a sum to the college each year throughout their lives.

During the war, the practice of leaving gifts to the school was dis-

On Change

As we all know, during the past year the student council has taken steps toward reducing the uneasiness and the dissatisfaction so widespread on the campus the last two or three years. The most recent of these, of course, has been the well-advertised Town Night Proposal, now unbelievably a reality.

But important as this has been, it is not the only change we have seen this yar. One of the commonest complaints heard in the women's dorms has been, "Well, Carnegie has a coke machine—why can't we?" A week or so ago coke machines were installed in all three women's dorms, the result of the work of a student council committee.

Alone the same general line, but not necessarily the work of the student council, several other changes contributing to a healthier campus atmosphere may be noted. Some of these have been made this year, others late last year. The Interclub Council has taken several small, but nonetheless notable movements toward this end. Initiations have been reduced to two or three days, putting an end to the extremes often imposed by upperclassmen on the already bewilderd freshman. This year the Council has expanded and now membership includes a permanent member from each of the clubs and organizations on campus, bringing different fields and interests into closer accord.

WSGA, too, has taken an interest in this general attitude change. This semester Pearsons girls were granted permission on Saturday nights for twelve o'clock hours corrsponding to the weeknight eleven. The parlors are open for "boisterous" parties from 10:30 on, enabling the extra energy to find an outlet there, rather than creating a disturbance in a sleepy hall.

It is true, however, that there are many changes yet to be made. Some seem necessary; others would be just for our personal convenience. The general change noticeable to many of us is the result of a more mature outlook on campus life, which in turn is the result of a more mature responsibility placed on the student by himself, by the faculty and the student council. It is this attitude that has made the changes at Maryville, and it is this attitude which will continue to make the many changes yet to come.

Small Colleges

An institution is not great because it is large or because of huge enrollment. It is not great because of its new gymnasium or its large legislative appropriation. It is not great because of its unbeaten teams or because of its new gymnasium. Indeed, there are many colleges in this country that command far higher respect than many large universities.

Invariably one finds there a faculty composed of men who love learning and delight in teaching Thir salaries may not be high but they know that the institution has first in its mind their welfare. They are satisfied to invest their lives in such an institution.

A few men leave, tempted from time to time by higher salaries, but more often, perhaps, to become associated with universities whose finer libraries and excellent scientific equipment are indispensable for proper cultivation of some abiding intllectual interest. It is always a surprise, however, to witness the holding power of the really first rate small college.

Such colleges, too, where there is to be found in abundant measure the things of the spirit, have a tremendous drawing power among parents and studnts extending from generation to generation. It is an honor itself to win admission to such institutions.

On Gossip

An ida which occurs frequently in sermons and discussions is the matter of "talking about people." Most of us protest that we did not begin to indulge in such conversation until we came to college. Perhaps many of us honestly desire to avoid it but find it next to impossible.

Surely in our moments of clearer thinking we can all agree that we as Christians have no business cattily hashing over the peculiarities of our friends and associates. The most important objections to this activity have already been summed up in the theory that this unkindness can be murderous to the others' reputations.

Even when we manage to lay aside adverse criticism and unkind remarks about people, we need to take care how often we talk about them. Have you noticed how prone we are to form our opinions of other students and faculty members on the basis of the two or three statements we hear concerning them in bull sessions? On a campus this size this is quite natural, but likewise it should not be too difficult to get to know these people for ourselves. Indeed we must be careful what we say, good or bad; and we must weigh carefully the opinions of others before we make them a part of our concepts.

What then should we talk about? It has been said many times that small people talk about people, average people converse about events, and great people discuss ideas. This, of course, is not a hard and fast rule. At a time, however, when we as college students are attempting to examine, reorganize, and vitalize our concepts and beliefs, it is especially important for us to discuss such matters. We need not always avoid talking about people; events must necessarily be discussed; these conversations often aid us in forming our ideas.

Perhaps these statements can be summed up by saying that what is most essential is alertness about our conversations. An energetic attempt on the part of each of us to be careful what we say, to make the major part of our conversation worthwhile, should give us less to regret and do much toward creating an atmosphere in which we can trust our friends.

During the course of the Carson-Newman game the other night, one of the referees blew his whistle loudly and in loud tones announced about 30 seconds' worth of wrongs done by both teams. And that's when the voice of Jerry King came out of the bleachers: "Good guess, Ref!"

And a few minutes later in the same game when the same referee picked a uniform number of one of the locals out of a free-for-all, another disgruntled loyal let fly with, "Pick a number, Ref!"

From the pages of a religious bulletin known as Cross Ties:

A minister was known by a few of his parishioners to be fond of cherry brandy.

One of them, in a mischievous frame of mind, offered to present him with a bottle on the condition that the gift be fully acknowldged in the next issue of the church bulletin. The offer was promptly accepted; and in due course the notice appeared in the Sunday bulletin: "The pastor thanks Mr. Smith for his gift of fruit—and the spirit in which it was given."

Mr. Bushing must think now that he has five little evil-minded sinners in an eighteenth century literature class. Not so long ago he made the remark: "Sometimes I think I'd feel a lot better myself if I had another quart or so in me." (He was talking about blood, in connection with the outmoded practice of bleeding a person to improve his health). Anyhow, the remark stuck in the students' minds with a different connotation. Too bad he doens't ask such spot quotes on tests, isn't it?

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Elizabeth Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Jim Hopkins

Well now, according to all traditions, this is a column for the upper-crust students, the very elite of dignified and artistic temperament. It's read by those who delve into the cultural opportunities offered here, and look as if they thoroughly understand and njoy it all. Naturally, in getting this column together, it was necessary to interview some of the more polished element who know just what it's all about. And according to them, we have some "elegant" productions 'coming-off' soon.

Things Theatrical

About next Friday and Saturday, Victor Herbert's "Fortune Teller" will be here. (My informant made it clear that Victor Herbrt himself would not be able to come). Seems like this is a story all about a bunch of gypsies and soldiers up North somewhere, who get all involved over the king's lottery ticket. Irma—that's the martyr—she's the one who stole the ticket, so the count has to marry her. (All this time, everyone is singing away) Irma's lover (he's not the count—just a friend) comes and sings to her ever once an' awhile, too. The best part is when they go looking for gold in a cave run by pygmies.

If you think that's "crazy, mixed-up," wait'll you hear the plans for the following week. The playhouse group is going "ape" on Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning." No singing in this one—it all takes place in England, about the 15th century. Everyone starts thinking some woman (she's the heroine—can't think of her name) has changed some man into a dog! Well, she just about flips. She doesn't know which end is up for awhile. Then, all of a sudden, some man comes along who says he's the one who got rid of the other guy. Only he's crazy too, because the fellow everybody's so worried about is not even a dog, or dead, or anything. And somehow they work in a love angle! Remember how good the play was last semester?

Tonite's the one, though. The freshman class and MC's own Hershel Netherton are responsible for this one—"Apple Blossom Time." His plot may be easier to follow. It's summertime in the stock company and people tryout for parts. That gives you about 30 minutes of singing, dancing and stuff. When the leads (didn't get their names) are finally chosen, they are given two understudys. In the third act, they all fall in love—the lead with the lead, the understudy with the understudy. Convenient. There's a minor dilemma right in the middle of the second act that will move the well-bred young student. All in all, it's very refined—not one shady joke.

Lee Fowler and Myrna Ginaven visited Emma Brown, ex '56, at her home in Powell last week end.

Madlon Travis and Marian Hina visited at Marian's home in Knoxville last week end.

Those who have never indulged in the finer aspects of Maryville College offerings have their chance now in the current theatrical season.

Bookworm Browsing

The polished set recommends some new books lately arrived, setting forth some of the niceties of life. If all the plays improve your taste, there's a "Select Collection of Old Plays" compiled by Richard Dodsley, "Lorna Doone," by Blackmore, "Your Income Tax," (how did that get in here?) and a new book of "Japanese Color Prints." For those of us who like their entertainment "straight," there's "Movies," a psychological study, by Wolfenstein.

The Popcorn Circuit

And speaking of movies, even the high-brow among us will enjoy this week's line-up.

For the girls of all tastes, there's Burt Lancaster at the Capitol on Monday and Tuesday in "His Majesty O'Keefe." Next three days, Shelley Winters takes over in "Tennessee Champ." Who needs a plot—huh? Across the street on Monday, there's "Unknown Island," "Champ for a Day," (Tuesday and Wednesday,) and John Wayne finishes out the week in "Island in the Sky."

Well, there it is—the chance for the discriminating student to "live it up," the chance for the uninitiated to find out what it's all about. Maybe she will turn some man into a dog; maybe Irma's count will catch her with her lover. You never can tell.

Ruth Nelson is a guest of Jim Laster at his home in Harriman this week end. They will meet the Vesper Choir tomorrow at its concert there to return to Maryville with them.

Hank Van Hassel visited his home in Paterson, N. J., last week.

Grace Guider visited her sister in Louisville, Ky., last week end.

Carol Cramblet and Kathie Chase are visiting Washington and Jefferson College in Washington, Pa., for the Pan-Hellenic week end at the college from March 12 to 14.

John Glanville, ex '55, was a campus visitor recently.

George Kipp, '53, was also a campus guest recently.

David Cunningham, ex '56, was a visitor here recently.

The journalism class of the Fort Smith Senior High School, Fort Smith, Ark., will visit the campus tomorrow on their way to New York. They will be accompanied by the principal, Mr. Earl Farnsworth.

Pat Jones is spending the week end at her home in Elizabethton.

Jodie Weaver, ex '55, is spending the week end here.

Cornelia Force is going to Presbyterian College, Clinton, for the week end and a dance on March 12.

Abbott "Fades Away"

Richard "Dick" Abbott bowed out of his Maryville College basketball career in fine fashion several days back as he helped down the Scots' most heated rival Carson-Newman, 93-77. Dick bucketed 18 points in the battle to boost his season's total to 297. This culminated a successful four-year duty on the Maryville hardwood.

It wasn't until Dick's junior year that he came into his real form, reaching his peak and carrying it through to the latter part of this season. This year he had an "up-and-down" season, falling off into slumps brought about by a handicap that plagued him most of the year.

The fans and the players gave Dick a fine "retiring" applause and a salute to a fine hoopster for a very good season. Best of luck in the future

"Weaker Sex" Wows The Fans

Playing in the annual Bainonian-Theta Epsilon basketball game, the top female cagers of the campus gave the student-faculty crowd their "money's worth" by providing a thriller last Saturday night, the Theta's nipping the Bainonians, 38-37, in a three-minute overtime period.

T'was a nip and tuck contest down to the wire save for a second-period plunge by the Bainonians when they moved as much as eleven points ahead. But the Thetas battled back to make it a narrow margin at halftime.

Emma Curtis, previously known only as a guard to Maryville students, made everyone stand up and take notice as she played a stellar game at the forward position. She ripped the cords with a variety of shots, but mainly with an arching two-hand set passed the key. For her splendid performance, Emma deserved the top laurels of the evening.

Along with Emma as bright spots in the offensive department were Mary Brasfield, "Liz" Murphy and Junior Davis. Mary contributed some very timely points with several of her "round-house" shots to aid Emma in the Bainonian scoring department. Junior and Liz, the one-two combination of Theta, carried the scoring burden for the blue and white, displaying a nice "drive-and-handoff" play. A rather skillful bit of ball handling and dribbling was displayed by Junior. Nancy Priest and Sonya Sweat also played commendable ball for their respective teams.

In the defensive department, it was Jeannine Thompson who deserved the honors with Sandy Chilcoat in the second spot. Both girls played excellently, thwarting many of the opposition's plays. These are just some of the fine ball players that displayed their talents. All of the girls played a very good game and gave the basketball fans one of the best games that they have witnessed on campus this year.

Lyn Sexton Injured

Though this is a little late, Lyn Sexton, one of the ace guards on Coach Lombe Honaker's basketball team, was injured in a car accident outside of Knoxville returning from a game at Carson-Newman. It's good to see him around campus now in pretty good condition.

Against Carson-Newman in the season's final game, Lyn played a fine floor game though burdened with bandages. He showed an excellent spirit and love for the game by donning the uniform to help the Scots down their most heated rival.

Johnson Seeks To Rebuild Track Team

Coach Ken Johnson has announced that he is going to try to re-establish track as a varsity sport on the campus of Maryville this year—if he can get enough boys who are interested in participating. He has listed thirteen or fourteen events that he would like to have to compete against other small colleges.

A tentative schedule has already been worked out and, if enough boys show interest, it will be put into effect. The schedule includes three home meets and three away with the first one being April 3. Included on the schedule list are W. J. Bryan, T.P.I., Chattanooga, Emory & Henry, Emory University of Atlanta and one other. 'Tis time that the fine sport of track was returned to the campus of Maryville, so let's have a good turnout to support the rekindled spark that Coach Johnson is trying to get started.

Spring Football In Full Swing

The gridders have donned their pads for their annual Spring workouts under the guidance of Coach John Davis. They had just gotten well underway when old man weather took a bad spell and chased them inside where they have been most of this week, taking light workouts of calisthenics and tumbling.

To date there have been about 25 to 30 boys participating in the drills, given a slight boost this week by the basketball boys with most of them soon departing to commence baseball practice. A scrimmage is planned before they leave for the diamond.

Baseball Starts for Newcomers

Coach Lombe Honaker has started daily baseball practice for all Freshmen who wish to try out for the team. The veterans will join the newcomers Monday and practices will get into full swing with 1954 season just around the corner. Coach Honaker will announce the schedule soon, but it is not completed as yet.

Congratulations to the Matmen

For their fine showing in the Southeastern Conference Tournament at Middle Tennessee State College two weeks ago, the wrestling team and Coach John Davis deserve a hearty congratulations. Their efforts gained them a fourth place in the tourney behind Auburn, Middle Tennessee and Chattanooga.

Special notice goes to Captain Tom Bugenhagen and scrappy Buford Miller for winning their respective weight divisions and acquiring the title of SEC Champ for the year of '54. Both Tom and Buford went through this season without being defeated.

Scotties Stomp C-N In Final, 93-77

Abbott 'Bows Out', Keny Scores 38

By Robert Bruce

Displaying the finest brand of ball they have exhibited all season, the college hoopsters closed the current campaign with a stinging 93-77 victory over arch-rival Carson-Newman. Center Jack Keny paced the Scot attack, dumping in 38 big points.

From the opening buzzer the game held all the promise of being a real crowd pleaser. Quick shots by the Eagles Bivens and Ayres were matched by two rapid fire hooks by Keny. Bivens punched a long one-hander for the visitors but Dick Abbott fired right back with a driving layup. Throughout the entire first period the teams traded buckets evenly, the Scots holding a 26-8 lead as the buzzer sounded.

It was obvious from the beginning that Keny was going to have a "night"—and what a night it was—Time and again the tall pivot man circled through bewildered defenders to dump one in. Tribute must be paid to the fine backcourt game of the Highlander guards, whose timely passing into the pivot was largely responsible for many of the gangly center's shots.

The scond period was a continuation of the hot pace set during the first. Bevins, the fine Eagle forward was hot and giving Keny plenty of competition in point production. It was in this quarter that the Scot floor game began to tell. Spirited play on the backboards and sharp ball-handling enabled the home club to keep possession of the ball more often than not. Once the sphere crossed mid-court it became a very potential two points as the Highlander shooting percentage was way up. When the clubs retired at the halfway point the count read 45-39, the local five on top. Keny had already tallied 21.

Abbott, playing his final game in a Highlander uniform, opened the second half with a farewell salvo of three consecutive blasts. The Eagles never again threatened. Shooting for both clubs slowed down considerably during this period, but it was only the lull before the final great storm as Keny and club again found the range in the fourth and final period to nearly break the century mark.

The victory was a golden triump after an otherwise mediocre session. Though Keny's phenomenal shooting was the feature of the evening, the performance of his teammates is equally worthy of praise. It has been a long time on the Hill since a Scot five played a game so well as a unit. Abbott, in his farewell performance, was splendid. Forced to leave the game on personal fouls in the fourth quarter, his 18 points were all timely and his hustling floor game invaluable. The ovation accorded him by the crowd was one of the finest tributes paid a local athlete in recent years.

The Scots finished the '53-'54 campaign, winning 10 while dropping 12.

Moser Five Wins Over "B" Team

In a closely contested, evenly matched, court battle the Maryville College "B" squaders lost out to a "never say die" Moser five, 48-45. The lead swayed back and forth throughout the contest, and it was not until the final seconds that the result was decided. George Henry and Phil Clapp were high scorers for the Scots, with 12 and 14 points respectively. The victors were led by John Driscoll, who had 13 and "Monk" Johnson, who tallied 11.

Intramurals....

Volleyball season is drawing toward a close now, and the spotlight shines on the undefeated Bartleteers team. There was a lot of action in the league last week in the battle for first place. Monday opened with the Athenians winning by a forfeit over the Swashbucklers. The last game on Monday saw the Bartleteers and "Y" Spikers, the only two undefeated teams meet. The Bartleteers upset the highly rated Spikers by scores of 15-5 and 15-8. In the second game, Bartlett overcame an 8-4 lead and went on to get 11 straight points to win. Wednesday's games saw Athenian take two straight from the Pre-Min. I team and the Ramblers won the first two from the Sinners. However, the big upset of the day came when a strong and fighting Faculty team aided by Jerry King beat the second place Spikers two games to one. Volleyball will continue next week to decide the final leader, and then will be followed by a tournament.

NOTES

The Intramural Wrestling tourney started Thursday and ended Friday.

This afternoon a badminton tournament will be played in the Bartlett Gym.

Next Saturday a handball tourney will be held in Bartlett. All those interested sign up at the Intramural office.

NEALE PEARSON

Neale Pearson, MC '52, and former sports editor of the Echo, is now serving with the U.S. Army in Japan.

Pearson, who served as sports editor for two years, frequently included his own verse in the weekly "Sports Echoes" column. His poetic title was "The Barber of Sevierville."

He served as a reporter on this paper before he became head of the sports staff.

Also, Pearson was on intramural manager and a member of the cross-country team.

BUGENHAGEN, MILLER WIN CHAMPIONSHIPS IN SOUTHEASTERN TOUNAMENT

By Jim Demer

Maryville Finishes Fourth

Tom Bugenhagen and Buford Miller led Maryville to a fourth place finish in the Southeastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Tournament this past February 19th and 20th.

Auburn won the tournament as they have done for the past six years. Middle Tennessee State pulled a surprise and took second place followed by Chattanooga, Maryville, Emory and Vanderbilt.

Boys Come Through

Miller won the 130 pound class and Bugenhagen, last year's 157 pound runner-up, took the 167 pound crown. This was the final match of an undefeated season for both men.

Maryville went to Murfreesboro home of Middle Tennessee State, with a 4 won, 5 lost record. It goes without saying that this losing record will be improved on next year. Both Miller and Bugenhagen are sophomores, along with Clarence Norton, Jim Cummings, and Don Moore. Jerry Waters, Gene Garren and John Anderson are freshman with Herb Catlin the only junior. The Scot grapplers gained valuable experience this year and will lose only one man, Bob Buchanan, by graduation.

Maryville Host Next Year

Local fans will have a chance to see the best wrestling in the Southeast next year as Maryville will be host to the SEC Championships. This is the first time that Maryville has had this honor and will be a golden opportunity to watch matmen from Vanderbilt, Auburn, Middle Tennessee State, Emory, Sewanee, and Chattanooga compete with the Scots for the coveted awards.

Back to this year's bouts. Maryville did not enter a man in the 115-pound class so Jerry Waters was the first MC man to go into action. Jerry got a first round bye and then lost to Bob David of Auburn in the quarter-final, 6-0. David went on to win the 123 pound title.

Beautiful Buford

Buford Miller got a bye. In the semi-final bout he wrestled John Zigler of Auburn and won on a referee's decision after both boys were tied 11-11. Buford beat Elliott Ackerman of Emory in the finals 9-0. Ackerman kept away from Miller the entire bout to the dismay of the Scotties who wanted a pin in the 130 pound class. One could say that if Ackerman had not been "shy" and mixed it up with Buford, Miller would have had a chance to get the most valuable wrestler award.

Jimmy Cummings likewise got a bye in th 137 pound class, but lost to Ray Downey in the semi-finals. Downey won the 130 pound class last year and moved up a weight to take the 137 pound crown.

Gene Garren held out until the third period when he was pinned by Pat Bucles. Bucles lost in the finals to Dick Goetz of Chattanooga.

Jack Renfro lost to Fred Shaw in the 157 set-to after drawing a first round bye. Rnfro picked up fourth place in spite of a consolation loss to Douglas McDonald of MTS.

Tiger Roars

Tom Bugenhagen faced O. L. Davis and pinned him in 4:38. In the semi-final bout Tom beat a tough Vanderbilt man, Jim Gilliland, 6-9. The final was a real bout as Tom took a tight 3-2 decision over Al Myers of Auburn. Neither man had a first period takedown. Bugenhagen got an escape and takedown in the second period. The third period saw Myers pick up his 2 points with a reverse.

Bob Buchanan lost a first round decision to John Nickens, winner of the outstanding wrestler award, 6-0. Bob beat Raliegh Thompson of Emory 2-1 to take third place.

MC had no man in the 197 pound class. Abe Cohen of Chattanooga took the crown.

Here's That Man Again

Don Moore drew Bill Hix, 280 pound giant from MTS. Don did a fine job with Hix. He was ahead

Experimentals Give Showing Of Theatre In-Round

Experimental Theatre last evening presented its second production of plays in-the-round in Bartlett Gymnasium. This semester's presntations were George Bernard Shaw's "Dark Lady of the Sonnets" and "Suppressed Desires" by George Cramcook and Susan Glaspell.

Two performances of each play were given, following the usual custom of Experimental plays. Martha Horton, Don Thiel, Anne Buckley, and Bob Reed starred in the Shaw play. Herb Catlin, Annie Bucher, and Carol Sleight were the stars in "Suppressed Desires."

The theater-in-the-round production given last semester was "Scenes from Shakespeare."

Student Council Meets, Discusses

Student Council held no regular meeting this past week, after it had difficulty in securing a quorum for the meeting held Wednesday, February 24. The starting was delayed until 8:45, when a sufficient number of members arrived.

The greatest amount of discussion at that meeting concerned the regulation under the new optional town night provision which stipulates that men shall be out of the parlors of the women's dormitories by 10:15 each week night.

Under the new provision, passed last Thursday, February 25, couples going to town are late at 10:30, but during the period of time between 10:15 and 10:30, men coming in with a date must leave immediately.

President Dartnell said he had talked with Miss Massey, dean of women, and had made clear the "all-out-at-10:15" rule. Dartnell said he had been told that "a 'normal good night' is three to five minutes."

Council dealt with probably the last Town Night violation under the old Tuesday night system. Barbara Chubb reported a girl seen talking in front of Pearsons obviously after 10:25. (Miss Chubb was returning home after having checked the sign-out sheets in Memorial, she said.) She was three minutes late, the monitor reported.

Council voted a two-week penalty.

Westminster Fellowship

In other business, council expressed a general opinion that the Westminster Fellowship plan as now operated continues to be counted as a Town Night until other adjustment is made.

Council discussed the student government meeting at Carson-Newman, which was held last Saturday, and decided to invite interested underclass students and others to attend.

Dartnell reported that a previous council discussion on difficulty of getting in and out of chapel had been referred to the administration.

Exchange Chapel

Jim Kesler reported that the exchange chapel program with Tusculum was "still in the air."

Judy Burgos said that nominating for WSGA members to care for sign-out boxes in the dormitories was going on. Elections were held last week.

Tom Bugenhagen and Jack Maxwell were asked to be in charge of the campus program for the World Day of Prayer.

Sally Butts Chosen Sig Sweetheart

Sally Butts, junior elementary education major from Waterloo, Iowa, was presented as the 1954 Alpha Sigma Sweetheart at the annual Sweetheart Show Saturday, February 13. Bob Duff, Alpha Sig president, made the presentation.

Miss Butts' attendants were "cupids," who included Lavinia Lee, Kay Leath, Martha Jackson, and Ann Daniel.

The musical portion of the show consisted of songs from the years 1910-1950, intended to portray Sig sweethearts through that period of time.

Presenting songs for each year were Hershel Netherton, 1910; Jim Laster, (who did a Charleston), 1920; Bob Finertie, 1930; Adlai Boyd, 1940; and Charlie Greathouse, 1950.

Bill Davis was master of ceremonies, Bob Lorenz and Guy Sealander were pianists: John Borter and Sealander wrote the show; and scenery was done by Bob Brand.

Jean Maxwell was chosen Alpha Sigma sweetheart in 1953.

Summer Study Abroad Listed

Foreign summr schools open to U.S. students are listed in "Summer Study Abroad 1954," pamphlet published by the Institute of International Education, 1 East 6th Street, New York City.

The 30-page leaflet lists educational institutions in 24 countries which offer summer programs. It tells where to apply and gives helpful information on credits, living arrangements and costs, transportation, and passports and visas. Scholarship information is given. Early application should be made for the few awards available.

European Study

European countries where American students may enroll for summer study are Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Eire, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland.

In Latin America courses are offered at schools in Costa Rica, Cuba, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico, and Peru. There are also summer study opportunities at a number of Canadian universities and at the American University of Beirut in Lebanon.

Civilian Courses

The majority of courses offered to summer visitors are designed to give insight into the language, history, and culture of the host country. In addition to such "civilization" courses, instruction is offerd in art, music, world affairs, and other subjects.

"Summer Study Abroad 1954" names only those courses which are sponsored by foreign educational institutions. Reference is made to other publications which discuss study tours, work camps, student travel, or other opportunities for a foreign summer.

The summer study pamphlet was prepared by the Institute's Information and Counseling Division. Each year this service department answers over 100,000 queries about foreign study and educational exchange programs.

The Institute of International Education is the central private agency in the U.S. in the field of exchange of persons. Each year approximately 4,000 persons from eighty countries study or train in a country other than their own through Institute programs.

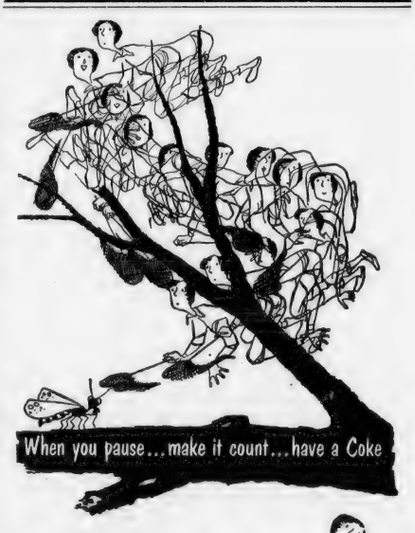
Pledge After Graduation

Most gifts are made on the basis of a pledge to be paid after graduation and are entirely voluntary.

Without doubt, the gifts which have been left behind are immeasurably valuable, not only through their practical value, but also from the standpoint of sentiment. Each person in those classes left a little bit of himself here to improve and beautify the campus which he loved so much.



Both the Bricker amendment and the substitute proposed by Sen. Walter George (D.-G.) have been defeated in the Senate. There will probably be no further action on the treaty proposal this year.

Societies To Compete For Skit Night Award

By Shirley Armstrong

Next Saturday night, March 27, the four societies will present their talent at Skit Night. This is an annual event, and a trophy is awarded to the skit which is judged to be the best.

This year, Skit Night will operate under new regulations which have been set up by the Social Board. Inter-Club Council will appoint three judges, who will judge the skits for originality, performance, and appropriateness. They will vote by ranking the societies first, second, third, and fourth, and thus the society receiving the least number of points will win the trophy.

The society that wins the Skit Night trophy will retain it until the following year, or, the trophy shall be given to the society that wins it three successive years, to keep permanently.

Rules

Each skit must be participated in and written only by active members, must be approved by the Student-Faculty Committee on Student Programs, must not exceed 20 minutes in length, and must have a maximum budget of $5.00. The president of each society will meet with the master of ceremonies and the Inter-Club Council chairman immediately before starting time to draw for the order in which the skits will be presented.

Theta Epsilon now holds the Skit Night trophy, having been the winner for the past two years.

Skit Night chairmen for the societies are Buz Fryer, Athenian, Harry MacCall, Alpha Sigma, Ethlyn Cathy, Carol F. Moore, Theta Epsilon, and Peg Fisher, Betty Messer, Bainonian.

YM Acquires New Chairs For Bartlett Auditorium

The folding metal chairs in Bartlett Auditorium are the property of the college and are under the custodianship of the YMCA, YM president Hal Black has announced. Through an agreement made between the association and the college administration, these metal chairs may be borrowed by any association or organization for various activities as long as such use does not conflict with any YMCA meeting. When borrowed, they must be returned to Bartlett immediately following the activity, and in time for the regular YM meeting at 1:30 on Sunday.

The new chairs are part of the extensive improvements that have been made in Bartlett Auditorium recently. The old seats have been taken out; the floor has been sanded and refinished; and the folding metal chairs have been installed.

A sign-up sheet has been posted in Bartlett Auditorium for the convenience of all. Those wishing to use the chairs may consult it or any member of the YMCA Maintenance Committee for futher details.

Carol F. Moore Flies To Nashville To Work On 1954 Chilhowean

Carol F. Moore, 1954 Chilhowean editor, flew to Nashville Wednesday to work on the yearbook. She read the final proofs and made final corrections.

Printing was to start this week and should take about three or four weeks, Miss Moore said.

The annual will not be distributed until May 1, or later, if bills have not been paid by that time. When the Chilhowean is given out, the boy and girl of the year will be announced in chapel, and the first yearbooks will be presented to them.

On March 25 Miss Moore and Chilhowean business manager Doc Jennings will meet with the sophomore class to explain about the election of next year's editor and busines manager.

Faculty Members Indicate Choice Of Favorite Books

In a quite unusual poll taken recently by the college library, 24 faculty members recorded their choice of a favorite book read in 1953. This week the library arranged in a bulletin board display the collected "faculty favorites."

Carolyn Symmes, reserve librarian, and staff member in charge of bulletin board displays, said that several persons indicated more than one choice, and that in such a case one book had been used.

By classification the books total eight fiction and 16 non-fiction, and as one might expect, the choice of books does not always consistently agree with the faculty member's field.

Here is the list of faculty members, each name followed by the book chosen and its author:

E. R. Hunter—"Under the Sea Wind," Carson; Jessie Heron—"A House Divided," Williams; John D. Buchanan—The Bible, RSV;

Ingeborg Rodemann—"Die Heilige und Ihr Narr," Guenther; John A. Davis—"A Man Called Peter," Marshall; Amelia Jo Wier—"From Beowulf to Virginia Woolf," Myers;

Mrs. A. F. Pieper—"Lelia," Maurois; K. P. Johnson—"A Soldier's Story," Bradley; Commodore Fisher— "Strange Lands and Friendly People," Douglas;

Gertrude Meislwitz— "Desiree," Selinko; Richard E. Beard—"Dr. Faustus," Mann; Evelyn Guss—"Ships That Pass in the Night," Harriden;

George D. Howell—"The Silver Chalice," Costain; Arda S. Walker—"Fire in the Ashes," White; D. L. Engelhardt—"Grain of Wheat," Kagawa;

H. E. Orr—"What is Religion?", Widgery; James A. Bloy—"Kristin Lavrensdatter," Undset; Lincoln Barker—"Religious Perspectives in College Teaching," Fairchild;

Ralph T. Case—"Your God is Too Small, Philips; Arthur S. Bushing—"The Making of the Modern Mind," Randall; A. F. Pieper— "The Caine Mutiny," Wouk; Jessie K. Johnson—"Cry the Beloved Country," Paton; and David H. Briggs—'Human Behavior," by Cole.

Students Hear Korean Visitor

Taisik Synn, the Korean visitor who spoke in chapel on Wednesday morning, March 10, on Korea and the Far East and Asia's problem, is in the United States for graduate study on a scholarship awarded by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. He is studying school administration at the University of Pittsburg, and also taking some work in Christian education and applied theory at Western Theological Seminary.

Boys' School

For the past eight years Mr. Synn has been principal of the Presbyterian Mission Boys' Academy in Taigu (Korea), and was a teacher on the faculty for several yars before becoming head of the school. He kept the school going without interuption during the R. O.K. army as a hospital, and the students lived and worked in shacks and tents on their own campus. There are now enrolled approximately 1,500 boys from 13 to 20 years of age.

Mr. Synn is one of Korea's outstanding Christian educators. He is a member of the Taigu City Board of Education, and of the National Education Committee of the Republic of Korea. In 1950 he came to this country under the sponsorship of the U.S. State Department to observe secondary education. He spent eight months traveling over fourteen states and visiting a number of American schools.

Educated In Korea

Mr. Synn is a graduate of the academy which he now serves as principal. He took his undergraduate work at Union Christian College, Pyengyang, Korea, and earned his Ph.D. at the University of Pittsburg. While he is in the U.S. his wife and four children remain in Taigu. Mrs. Synn, who is a trained nurse, worked in the Presbyterian Hospital in Taigu before her marriage.

Upon completion of his studies in the U.S. Mr. Synn will return to Korea to take up again his responsibilities at the Taigu Boys' Academy.

Workshop To Hear Sutton, Fisher Read

Sheila Sutton and Jim Fisher will read at Writers' Workshop on Monday, March 22. The critics will be Lora Kinsinger and Jim Kesler.

On March 29 readers will be Nancy Naylor and Herb White; critics, White and A. S. Bushing.

Writers' Workshop heard Sarah Pledger and Barbara Chubb read on March 15 with criticisms given by Dorothy Wells and Bob Lorenz.

'The Lady's Not For Burning' Shows Promise In Rehearsal

By Joe Gilliland

A Wednesday night rehearsal preview of a play one has purchased tickets for does not seem worthwhile to the individual nor does it suggest itself as being fair; nevertheless such an experience is enlightening, interesting, and entertaining at the least It was in the case of "The Lady's Not For Burning."

On this particular night before dress rehearsal night, the actors were roaming around the gym (if they were not at work on the stage or painting scenery) waiting for the practice to begin and generally admiring one another's appearance in costume.

Hair Styling

Dave Gates and Ronald Pearson were temporarily being pointed up in the realm of admiration as those with the most effective hair styling. "Oh isn't it wonderful!" "I'm very serious—Ronnie, —you look so sweet!" After Mr. Gates had costumed himself and appeared, complete with a bangle like effect to his hairdo, he crept away for the time being to avoid comment on his unnatural mop, which has drawn stares toward him and about six others for these many weeks.

The run-through of the first act for me was very enjoyable and added strength to my belief that one's appreciation is much greater in seeing a play enacted than in reading it. The acting of the entire group added to the marvelous Christopher Fry language, which is immeasurably more enjoyable when you are able to see the action Fry put into the play to express the speeches. I hope last night's audience felt somewhat the same.

Confusion

Varied un-opening nightly things were going on all this time. While Thomas was loudly pleading to be hanged, Miss Kathleen Craven, director, was sitting on the floor in the foul circle taking notes; people were mopping stained spots on the gym floor; prompter Lora Kinsinger was offstage seated on a pile of rags instead of a more exalted steel folding chair; Herb White studied far back at the other end of the gym; and Abby Crosby just sat and watched while she was not doing a little of everything.

By inspection around the set, I find that the "cellar" where Jennet is taken is actually real. Steps

Council Meets Last Week

Student Council did not meet last Wednesday, March 17. The group gathered, but there was no business to take up so president Dartnell did not call the meeting to order.

A. C. McWilliams, however, announced to the assembled members that Y elections will be held on April 2.

March 9 Meeting

At last week's meeting on March 9 Council approved a new Student Center agreement, changing the times that the Y Store and the Student Center will be open. The agreement also provided for closing the student center on Tuesday nights now that the new Town Night system has gone into effect.

Dartnell announced that some reports have still not been handed to him.

Bills

Bills for $6.65 for the trip to Carson-Newman and one for $3.37 for Town Night boxes were given to treasurer Jim Hunt.

The question was raised as to whether Tuesday night meetings at Highland Church count as Town Nights. It was decided to take the matter to Student-Faculty Senate.

Chapel Programs

Hal Black said that students have brought up the matter of student participation in chapel programs. Dave Ramsey, who was visiting Council, spoke about the subject, saying that such participation would be of interest to the student body and would provide good experience for those leading chapel. Council voted to take the matter to Senate.

Dartnell announced that freshman class president Ed Drum is now a member of the steering committee.

Also discussed, without any action being taken, was procedure handling Town Night violations. It was mentioned that there has been some question about student Council's acting both as a legislative and as a judicial body. The alternative to that might be a special committee set up to handle such matters.

It was also pointed out that under the present system Town Night offenders may come to Student Council to defend themselves if they so wish. It was suggested that many persons do not know that it is possible to do this. Another suggestionw as that those who have ideas on the subject could write up positive proposals containing concrete plans, if they have any to offer.

Again brought up was the question of whether the College Hill Grill will be open at night. Any action on this was also put off, pending information from the Grill.

Debate Team Members Journey To Contests

Maryville's debators won first places in individual contests at the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament at Lenoir Rhyne College in Hickory, N.C., March 4 to 6, although the team as a whole lost more debates than it won.

Sarah Pledger took first place in Women's standard oratory; Jo Brooks won first place in situation oratory, and in newscasting. Lavinia Lee was first in extemporaneous speaking.

Miss Arda Walker and Mrs. A. F. Pieper accompanied the group which included Sarah Pledger, Jo Brooks, Dave Williams, and Charles Rogers, affirmative, and Lavinia Lee, Betty Messer, Bob Clark, and Don Young, negative.

Mississippi

At the Magnolia Forensic Tournament at Mississippi State College for Women March 5 and 6, the affirmative was represented by Sue Binnion and Bob Duff, and the negative by Jeannine Fiori and Naomi Burgos. Faculty member on the trip was Newell Witherspoon.

Miss Fiori and Miss Burgos won four out of five debates, giving them a record for this year of ten wins and two loses.

Ratings of superior were won by Miss Fiori in oratory, Duff in extemporaneous speaking, and Miss Burfos in after dinner speaking. Miss Burgos was also rated excellent as a debator.

Miss Fiori, Miss Burgos, Young, and Clark debated for the Kiwanis Club Tuesday noon.

Concert Band To Play Friday

The MC Concert Band will present a concert Friday night, March 26, at 8 p.m. in the FAC auditorium. Ralph Moore is director.

Featured is a clarinet quartet consisting of Walt Hiller, Emma Lou Arnold, Preston Bogia, and Harold Jones. They will play Hayden's "Sonata in C," Strauss' Pizzicato Polka," and Mozart's "Variation and Fugue on a Theme."

The band will play the following selections: Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnol," Bach's "If Thou Be Near" and "All Glory Be to God." Also the band will play, "Second Suite for Military Band," "A Trumpeter's Lullaby," "American Folk Rhapsody," "Malaguena," selections from "South Pacific," and the march, "The Gladiator."

Student Treasurers

Dr. L. L. Williams has announced that mid-semester financial statements by the treasurers of all student organizations are due.

They may be handed in to the faculty advisors or to Dr. Williams in Fayerweather Hall.

Y Store, Student Center Change Open Hours

Several changes in Student Center and Y Store hours will go into effect Monday, March 22, Social Board chairman Pat Halstead has announced. Following are the changes in the times they will be open:

Y Store

Week Days—Y Store will be open from 8:30 (or after chapel) until 10 o'clock every morning.

Saturday Nights

A. If the Saturday night event is over before 9:30 the Y Store will open from 9:30 to 10:15.

B. If the Saturday night event is over between 9:30 and 10:15 the Y Store will open immediately for 45 minutes.

C. If the event is not over by 10:15 the Y Store will open from 10:15 to 11 o'clock.

Student Center

Tuesday Night—The Student Center will no longer be open from 7:15 to 9:30. It will open at 9:30 as usual.

Saturday Nights

A. If the Saturday night event is over before 9:30 the Student Center will open immediately and close at 10:15.

B. If the event is over between 9:30 and 10:15 the Student Center will open immediately for 45 minutes.

C. If the event is not over by 10:15 the Student Center will open from 10:15 to 11 o'clock.

Athenians To Gather In New Meeting Place

Athenian will convene at 6.15 tonight in its new meeting place. The room, which has been redecorated, is in the end of the offiee annex facing Memorial Hall.

The nature of the program to be presented has not yet been revealed.

Freshman English Students Take Poll On Honor System

By Bill Deerfield

One of a series of forums held recently in assistant professor A. S. Bushing's freshman English classes concerned the question of the honor system. In addition to several reports that were given as to how the system has worked elsewhere, the results of a poll taken of several faculty members and ten percent of the student body were presented. Eight women and eight men from each of the four classes were questioned making a total of 64 students.

Advantages?

The first question asked was What advantages (or disadvantages) do you think there are in the honor system? The main advantages that are to be gained, it was felt, are that the system tends to build character and develops a sense of responsibility in students. The main disadvantage suggested was that students fail to report cheating that they observe. (This last point was supported by the fact that the great majority of those questioned said that they themselves would not report cribbing among their friends.)

Unproctored Exams?

Another question asked was: Could you do better work in an unproctored exam (one that allowed short "breaks")? Some replied that they could do better work if the exam were a very long one, but most of those questioned thought that it would make no difference at all and that it might even prove distracting if peeople were moving about the room. A few thought there would be less pressure if the watchful eye of the proctor were not on them.

Sunday Honor Reports?

One of the most interesting questions asked, concerning the effectiveness of the Sunday honor-report system, received a wide variety of answers. Many rated it as fairly effective and felt that though there is certainly some dishonesty present, it is the best method of checking attendance at Sunday worship services. Some thought that it definitely did not work among the men, but then one young lady admitted that she had no scruples about signing a false report.

Society Chooses Honor Students

By Lora Kinsinger

Alpha Gamma Sigma, Maryville College's Scholarship Society has elected twelve seniors to membership, it was announced this week by E. R. Hunter, secretary of the society.

The new members are Carolyn Beatty, George Caldwell, William Dartnell, Janice Eakin, Joan Frei, David Gates, Glenn Gentry, Roderick McMillan, Homer Rickabaugh, John Strand, Henry Van Hassel, and Robert Young.

A service in recognition of these students will be held at chapel April 22. There will be a guest speaker.

Only a limited number, not more than ten per cent of the senior class, may be elected. Those eligible must have at least a 6.5 average, possess a high character, and contribute actively to campus life.

Present officers of the organization are president, Dorothy Vawter; vice-president, Mrs. Shirley Jackson Hurst; and secretary, Dr. E. R. Hunter.

Beatty, Caldwell

Carolyn Beatty is a home economics major from Dayton, Ohio. She is a member of Vesper Choir, Madrigal Singers, and Opera Workshop.

George Caldwell is a drama major from Seattle, Wash. He was a member of Opera Workshop for two years, was on the YM cabinet his junior year, and is a member of the Vesper Choir. A member of the Inter-club Council, he is president of the MC Playhouse, a Master Player, and Chairman of the Governing Board of Writer's Workshop.

Dartnell, Eakin

William Dartnell is a political science major from Dover, N.J. He is president of this year's Student Body, and last year was the Chilhowean Business Manager. He is a member of Who's Who.

Janice Eakin is an English major from Butler, Pa. She was Nu Gamma Chairman last year, having been a Nu Gamma leader the year before. She was secretary of Student Council last year, and is on the YW Cabinet. She was secretary of Bainonian her sophomore year and is a member of Who's Who.

Frei, Gates

Joan Frei, is an English major from Manila, Philippines. Her junior year she was treasurer of the French Club, a member of the Pearsons House Committee, and managing editor of the Highland Echo. She is editor of the Echo this year, and secretary of the Governing Board of Writers' Workshop. She is a member of Student Council.

David Gates is a physics major from Fulton, Mo. He was treasurer of Student Council last year. During his sophomore year he was vice-president of his class. He has been a member of the Band and Orchestra and is vice-president of Athenian. He has been secretary of MC Playhouse and is now vice-president. President of French Club, he is also a member of Who's Who.

Gentry, McMillan

Glenn Gentry, a biology and music theory major from Donelson, was a member of the Band, Orchestra, and Vesper Choir. He was secretary of Tau Kappa Chi and on the Highland Echo staff for two years. A December graduate, he is now studying at Vanderbilt.

Roderick McMillan, economics major from Los Angeles, Cal., is a member of the Vesper choir, the Men's M Club and the Cross Country team.

Rickabaugh, Strand

Homer Rickabaugh, philosophy major from Montoursville, Pa., is president of Student Vols, has been secretary of Pre-mins and a member of the YM cabinet and sang in the Men's Glee Club. He is captain of the Cross-Country team, a member of the Men's "M" Club, and on Inter-Club Council.

John Strand was a physics major from Maryville. He was a member of the German Club. He graduated

On Academic Freedom

Very recently articles have appeared in certain newspapers and magazines describing the aims and methods of student underground, subversive-fighting elements in some large universities and colleges in this country. The chief purpose for such organizations is that of finding "anti-American" college faculty members and working to have them put out of their positions because of the views they express in their classes.

Students at the University of Virginia who sought to become officially recognized as such a group were wholeheartedly opposed by the Virginia student council. We hope this and stronger disapproval will be found wherever such un-American tactics attempt to wear a guise of respectability because they are "hunting out the Reds."

The action in Virginia referred to above is reportedly not the common practice of these groups because their usual dvice is not to seek public recognition but to act as a sort of loyal underground ready to pounce upon any person who speculates on or expresses an opinion related to anything not currently popular or traditional.

Student agents who would sit in class and be ready to report to their superiors any "unusual" ideas expressed by an instructor in class are reminiscent of similar agents in Nazi Germany. Hitler placed his spies in educational institutions throughout Germany after he came into power, and they reported anyone who expressed views not entirely consistent with the Nazi party line. What followed ultimately was the breakdown of Germany's educational system, with the eventual withdrawal of most of the best German thinkers to countries where their opinions were respected.

The United States is supposedly a nation which respects man's right to think as he pleases and express his opinions accordingly. Mainly this principle still holds true, but a dangerous tendency of attack against those who would not be traditional has developed within a period of a very few years. If this tide of reckless accusations and mistrust is not checked a more general feeling of fear and pessimism will come, more than is now present.

College students primarily need to be concerned with the attacks upon the schools they attend and the professors who instruct them, and they should thereby assume the practice of carefully examining any set of opinions rather than becoming a follower merely on the basis of a wild, sensational charge. With elimination of a college's purpose of teaching young people to think for themselves intelligently, an institution of learning would be better out of existence. Controlled thought offers nothing new, nothing intellectually stimulating, and nothing worthwhile for future citizens.

Educational freedom has been attacked many times before by factions and cliques outside schools, but a student police system of thought is more vicious and undermining. It is time these often-called "super Americans" realized what a truly American attitude is. Such an attitude is definitely not an imposition on persons' intelligence.

On Art

It is gratifying to note the good attendance at the art department's openings and gallery talks. Students and faculty members alike are taking the oportunity to see and hear about the works in the gallery. Some of those who visit the gallery are persons one would hardly expect to find there, but they appear and seem to find enjoyment in it.

The art department is frequently neglected in the attention we pay to other areas of the fine arts. The work of its teachers and students and the exhibits that they offer are something that we may all appreciate and enjoy.

Sometimes we hear comment on the fact that Maryville does not provide the cultural attractions of a large city—numerous concerts, lectures, museums, art shows, and so forth. It is true that a small college cannot provide all that a big city can in the way of entertainment, but we can avail ourselves of what is offered here. We can enjoy what we have, and perhaps in so doing prepare ourselves for further opportunities in the years to come.

Scots & Soda

By Jim Hopkins

Y' know, all you got to do in getting this column up is shag around campus for awhile with your eyes and ears open. Heard something like this th' other day—

"Whoever told that guy he was a professor? He doesn't know how to teach this stuff. Everybody hates him. Every time he gits up to explain something, he disagrees so much, no one knows what he's talking about. Why doesn't he quit trying to teach and go back to raising butterflies?"

"Yeah, I flunked too!!"

* * * *

Overheard in Baldwin—

He: "Will you marry me, sweetheart?"

She: "No, but I'll always admire your good taste!"

* * * *

Another one—

"There's a certain reason why I like you."

"My Goodness!!!"

"HA-A!"

* * * *

And this—

"Have you heard all the things they've been sayin' about me?"

"Why else would I be here?"

* * * *

Seen in Carnegie—

Dear Pop,

Everything here at school is fine. I'm getting plenty of fresh air, scads of sleep and I'm really studying hard.

Incidently, I'm enclosing my laundry bill.

Your son,
Ignatz

Dear Ignatz,

Don't buy any more laundries.

Love,
Pop

* * * *

Charlie Rogers and Jim Fisher had a little 'deal' tacked up on their door. Read something like this—

"Notice to all those who have relieved us of all our records, books, magazines, ties, socks, shirts, underwear, etc. It's not that we particularly want to hear, look-through, read, or wear our stuff—it's just that we have a long waiting list of those who do!!"

* * * *

Some guy was complaining about his room th' other day, (can you imagine!) So some other good-hearted fellow piped in with: "Well, as a whole your room is nice." Guy says: "I know—but, I want a place to sleep!!"

* * * *

By the way, they say a good way to stop your roommate from snoring is by thoughtfulness, kindness, cooperation, and sticking an old towel down his big mouth.

* * * *

In passing th' new service station—

Maryville faculty member: "I want a glass of water in the radiator, a teacup of oil for the crankcase, and a pint of gasoline. That will be all."

Station attendant: "Aw! Couldn't I please cough in your tires?"

* * * *

Few conversations here an' there—

Prof: "I'm letting you go ten minutes early today. Now please go quietly so you'll not wake any other class."

* * * *

"Where do you go to school?"

"I go to Maryville College."

"Have you ever been kissed?"

"I go to Maryville College!!"

* * * *

Please note the purity in the spaces between these jokes.

* * * *

And now, our thoughts for today—

They say if you don't drink, smoke or date girls, you live longer—Actually, it only seems longer.

* * * *

A guy is never so weak as when a pretty girl is telling him how strong he is.

* * * *

And a dead atheist is a person all dressed up with no place to go.

Socially Speaking

By Faith Nollner

Seems as how when Spring rolls around, that people just have to get out and go somewhere, and MC is no exception judging from all the coming and going around campus. Last weekend the joint was really jumping what with the operetta and the visitors it brought. Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Faust visiteed their daughter, Annette, and Annie Bucher's sister, Priscilla, was down from Warren Wilson College in North Carolina.

* * *

Tom Fairhurst's mother was here to see Tom play "Ladislaus" in the Fortune Teller. Mary and Martha Murphey were here from Springfield visiting their sister Liz.

Clara Gowan's parents were up from Nashville for a visit and from the same direction came Mrs. James Nollner and Mrs. Mae Kent to visit Faith Nollner.

Several people were lucky enough to be able to go home last weekend also or to visit friends. Betty Ham went home to Decatur, Ga., and Margie Haynie went to a dance at Presbyterian College.

Eleanor Bass visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Bass at her home in Rice, Va. Larry Posey visited his sister in Atlanta, Ga.

Right here on campus Jean Maxwell had an engagement shower for her roommate, Helen Miller, last Saturday night.

Atlanta-bound are Jean Kemper who is to visit her ex-roommate, Vrea Driscoll, ex '56; Callie Mitchell, who will visit her parents; Elizabeth Enloe who will have as her gusts Mary Brasfield and Bill Wheatley; and Esther Lerch who will visit her sister.

Carol Jean Summers left Wednesday for Washington, D. C., where she will visit her family.

Aleen Williams is going home to Arden, N. C., this weekend. Betty Harrill is going home to Madisonville.

Madlon Travis will spend this weekend with Marion Hina at Marion's home in Knoxville.

Sandra Miller is coming home today from Blount Memorial Hospital where she has been recovering from an appendectomy.

* * *

Mrs. J. A. Ferguson will spend this week end with her daughter.

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Elizabeth Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Abby Crosby

Voices will be hard soon over WGAP. Y Radio's presentation will be "The Well-To-Do Young Judge," an original radio script by Kathy Kerns, a modern adaptation of the rich young ruler of the Bible story. It will be accompanied by a commentary by John Graulich. Featured in the cast will be Sarah Pledger, John Graulich, Nancy McCammon, Ken Wilkinson, Margallen Hanna, and Eon Morley.

The next Sunday night the same program will present a narrative poem based on the same Biblical story. This work was written by John Graulich. The narrator is Darrell Johnsonbaugh and the cast features Bill Deerfield and Arthur Fryer, plus other minor characters.

The writing of both of these radio scripts was begun last year in English 104D under the direction of Miss Carolyn Blair, and was finished by the authors this year for presentation on Y Radio.

Due to technical difficulties there will be no program tomorrow.

Masks: were not quite seen last night, nor will they be seen again tonight, but a full house was drawn to the opening performance of "The Lady's Not For Burning," and a full house is expected again tonight. Joanne Edwards and George Caldwell are doing admirable jobs in their roles of Jennet Jourdemayne, the accused witch, and Thomas Mendip, the world-weary soldier who has just been discharged, and now wishes to be hanged. "The Lady" is a delightful comedy, and has many memorable lines, some of them seen on campus in the form of publicity posters the last week or so. The cast has done an excellent job with this play by Christopher Fry and is to be commended for its work, both individually and collectively.

Shadows are the order of the week in the downtown theaters of Maryville. Showing at the Park tonight (in case you saw "The Lady" last night) is a typical Saturday double feature. The first showing is Tim Holt in "Robbers of The Range," followed by "The Big Break" starring James Lipton. Monday night movie-goers will fare no better with "The Fighting Dorseys," featuring, quite naturally, the Dorsey brothers. Tuesday and Wednesday the screen will be showing Martin McClain in "Captain Scarface," and Thursday and Friday the call will be for Ray Milan in "Jamaica Run."

Across the street at the Capitol, Saturday, of course, features the double-feature Western, this week's pickings being Gene Autrey, in "Gold Town Ghost Riders," plus "Port Sinister," starring James Warren and Lynn Roberts. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, John Wayne hits the screen in a three dimensional movie called "Hondo." Arlene Dahl, Fernando Lamas, and Gilbert Roland are the stars of Thursday and Friday in their movie, "The Diamond Queen."

In the FAC, things will be busy, as usual. There is currently an exhibit in the Art Gallery, which has already been covered by this column. But if you haven't seen it, I recommend it. The exhibition is that of some paintings from Holland by Dutch artists, plus the results of a local art contest among grade school children. On March 23, there will be a new art exhibit, opening at 8 o'clock in the evening, plus a reception for the artists. The exhibit features paintings and sculpturing done by the faculty of Agnes Scott College. This exhibit will be in the Art Gallery until April 16.

On March 26 the band will present its annual Band Concert, and rumors from the Fine Arts Center tell me that this concert will be different from most. Plus the traditional band music, the concert this year will feature pops and music on the "lighter" side.

Miss Edrie Sellick will present her Faculty Recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 8 on March 29. Her accompanist is Miss Dorothy Vawter.

A much-discussed topic among students and faculty lately has been the storm with which Dylan Thomas has been hitting the nation. The work of this poetic genius, who met his untimely death when he left his native Wales for a trip to the United States a few weeks ago, appears in an almost-unabridged form in the February "Mademoiselle." It is a drama entitled "Under Milk Wood," and it draws its chief claim to greatness from the images which it creates in the mind of the reader. Dylan Thomas is a true poetic genius, and one soon discovers that the "world of his poetry is a real world."

The sucess of the East Tennessee Solo and Ensemble Festival was the topic for discussion at Music Ed Club Thursday evening. The club also adopted a new constitution. Jackie Speigner, president, presided at the meeting.

Alpha Sig Observes 'Mr. Mac' Day

Last Thursday was "Mr. Mac" day, an annual observance here on the campus. Alpho Sig's planned their banquet to spotlight this "honored brother" who has been an Alpha Sig for many years.

During the course of the meal, a tribute from all his 'loyal sons' in the form of an Alpha Sigma tie clasp was presented to him.

Clyde B. Emert, editor of the "Maryville Times," spoke in the Chilhowee Inn to the group that had gathered to prove its esteem for Mr. McCurry and for all he's done for Maryville.

Time For a Change

This is my first attempt to try something along this line, but there is a definite need for some kind of action on this problem I am to discuss. Usually we give you a character sketch or some doing on campus, and no one gets mad reading this column. Once in a while the editor comes out in favor of some radical change such as having a girl's basketball team representing Maryville. But we have something on our minds and want to know what you feel about it. The problem as put before you is what should be done about the system of letter grading here at Maryville.

Point Basis

In wrestling cross-country and tennis there is a definte system of letttr awarding on a point basis. But in the so-called major sports—football, basketball and baseball letters are determined only by the coach. The question is asked what function does the Athletic Board of Control serve? The answer is given in one simple word—None. How many students know that there is an ABC (and these initials don't mean Athenian-Bainonian Calenader). This could be seen in last year's election to the board. Two girls ran on the ballot without even knowing what they were running for, with one actually winning. It's taken for granted that she now knows what she ran for, but, at the time of the election, her knowledge of what the A.B.C. does and is was nil.

If there were no mistake seen in letter awarding there would be no need for this editorial. But what about the story of this year's basketball manager being deprived of a letter sweater. I don't want to mention any names, but we all know this junior economics major from Salt Lake City, Utah. It seems that he was doing two jobs at once due to the lack of a "B" team manager. But nothing can be done because he did not receive the coach's recommendation for a letter. Imagine this young man's surprise when he heard that, after serving as "B" team manager last year and varsity manager this year, he would not receive a sweater for services rendered .This also surprised a member of the varsity team who did a fine thing in giving our mutual friend one of his sweaters. Take heed ye who will be asked to be manager next year. This is one example of something which could have been avoided with a stronger A.B.C.

Then there is the story about one of this year's stars who didn't letter last year because coach felt that he wasn't "putting out" all he had.

Too Close

Earlier I mentioned that football letters are not awarded on a point basis. This is not quite true. Actually one needs 16 quarters to letter, but this is still up to the discretion of the coach. I know personally of two men who had 15 quarters but did not letter. If coach had wanted to, he could have lettered both of them. One was a freshman a few years ago from New Jersey who, for some strange reason, did not play in the last two games. This so lifted his spirit that he played intramural football for the next three years. The other man waited until his senior year to go out. Coach felt that he should have come out sooner and kept his letter on that basis. He propably didn't know that this man from Florida had a previous illness which kept him away from football.

The coming around of baseball season reminds me of a pretty fair ballplayer we used to have around here. He lettered for his first three years as a pitcher and was such a good hitter that he roamed the outfield on days he didn't pitch. His senior year he was elected Y.M.C.A. president and felt he had an obligation to attend the Y retreat one weekend. He did, and turned in his uniform the next Monday on Coach's request. He didn't letter his senior year.

New Constitution

Talk was heard during last year's student body elections of revising the A.B.C. You could call it a campaign promise. It is now in the middle of March and work has just been started. Of course, an important constitution takes some time for, after all, it took all of five months to write the constitution of the United States.

This new constitution contains some fine points and will solve most of the problems if it ever passees the executive council of the faculty. Like all good programs, it contains three chief points. One is the campus wide election of the pep committee chairman instead of having him or her chosen by the president of the A.B.C. This is to try to raise the spirit on campus by having the student body decide who will be in charge of the "rah, rahs" for the coming year. The second is to have the intramural program come under the control of the A.B.C. The faculty member in charge of intramurals and the senior manager will join the board. Some type of intramural award will be given similar to varsity letters. The third and most important change is the overriding of the coach's recommendation by a ¾ vote of the board. This change in the constitution is something vital to the athletic program at Maryville and should pass a fair executive council.

Mistakes Are Made

Don't get the idea the feeling is that the power to give letters should be taken away from the coaches. There is no one who is better informed as to who should letter and who should not. But once in a while, sometimes too frequently, there is a mistake made. In this case, either the Athletic Board of Control should be given the power to go against the decision of the coach, or it should be done away with as a useless organization.

Kind of Small

Another point which should be looked into by the A.B.C. is the size of letters given for the various sports. At Maryville the tradition is to give larger letters for the major sports. Football is given the largest letter and so it should be because it is the major sport on the campus. But who can deny that wrestling, while classified as a minor sport draws as many students, if not more than basketball. Yet, how many letter men in wrestling do you see wearing a letter sweater with a letter about half the size of the football one. On the same vein of thought, who can deny that wrestlers, cross-country men and tennis players work as hard as football, basketball and baseball players. So it seems that not only the system of letter awarding but also the system of the size of letters needs reevising.

To whom it may concern:

The preceeding discussion about the Athletic Board (correctly called) has not been done to "slam" anyone in particular, but to present to the students some past occurences at the hands of this board to show the real need of a better organization in the interest of the college athletes. Pointed out in the article are some of the most severe cases of unnecessary action. Occurrences of this type are what tear down the interest, spirit and over-all attitude of the athletes and fans on campus.

We know that athletics are minor to studies, but, if a school is going to have athletic participation, awards should be made in a fair manner.

The new Athletic Board constitution which is now being written would provide a much better Athletic Board and unburden members of the Athletic Department as far as intramurals are concerned.

Members of the Echo Sports Staff will be very happy to receive any outside opinion or comment, from students or faculty, which will be printed in this column for the campus to read if wished.

Yours truly,
Echo Sports Editor

Spring Practice Ends For Gridders In Squad Game

By Bob Jackson

Spring football drills were climaxed yesterday when the Scot gridders engaged in the annual Orange and Garnet clash. Twenty-six boys have been participating in the workouts that have been directed by Coach John Davis.

Because of the small number of boys turning out for practice and some unseasonly cold weather, the team has been somewhat handicapped. Nevertheless several veterans and a couple of high school boys have given some standout performances in recent drills.

Bill Wheatley, a two-year letterman at tackle, has been moved in to the guard slot and has performed very well in the new position. Wheatley is being groomed to take over the hole that will be left in the Highlander forward wall due to the graduation of Captain and Little All-American guard Jerry King.

Big Jim Saunders, who caught the game-winning TD pass against East Tennessee State last season has shown a great deal of improvement and will probably be a valuable cog in the Scot attack come next fall.

Jack Renfro is another one of last year's lettermen who should really find himself in the coming campaign. "Crow" has added to his already-standout defensive play an excellent understanding of the blocking back assignment. He has been mixing his plays very well and has been carrying out his blocking assignments with surety and dispatch.

Two Everett High School boys who have been working out with the Scots have impressed Coach Davis very favorably. One is Ron Phillips and the other Dale Patterson. Both lads are backs and will add some power to the locals' attack should they decide definitely to enter Maryville next September.

Some of the newcomers that turned out for the team are Phil Clapp and James Hill. But a real surprise was the candidacy of wrestling Captain Tom Bugenhagen. The "Tiger," whose previous football experience is almost nil, could possibly become a "champ" on the gridiron as well as in the "grunt and groan" sport.

John Anderson Elected Captain Of 1954 Scot Tennis Squad

Senior John Burke Anderson was elected by his tennis associates Wednesday afternoon to captain them through the 1954 campaign. John gained the majority approval over the other two returning lettermen, Kent Buser and Marshall England, in the eight-man vote.

Originally from Maryville though now living in Alabama, John is familiar to people in this area and noted for his skill on the clay courts. This year marks his fourth season as a Scot racqueteer, and, as captain, he moves up to fill the captain's shoes vacated by Ed Breitbach who graduated from Maryville last semester.

This is the second time that Anderson has had the distinction of being captain of the Scot netters for in his sophomore year he was elected leader of the squad.

In Daily Workouts

Coach Ken Johnson has been putting the racqueteers through daily workouts in preparation for their first match when they play the powerful University of Tennessee team, who have boasted one of the best tennis teams among Southern competition in the last few years, on the Maryville courts.

These first matches will be a season warm-up preceding both school's regular season. Last year the Vols took two different matches from the Scots as has been the custom while the Scots lost to only one other school in regular season play, Sewanee. Coach Johnson's crew boasted a record of nine wins and three losses while finishing fourth in the State tourney during the '53 campaign.

Buser, Anderson, England

Three lettermen, all seniors, return to compose the nucleus of this year's team and who have been standouts in their previous years, of competition. Kent Buser, Marshall England and John Anderson, all strongly seasoned veterans, give Coach Johnson three top men who should be battling for Number One position all season.

New Candidates

New faces appearing on the courts for the Scots this year will be those of Bob Nier who shows very good promise, Jerry King, Sonny Shackleford, Dave Williams and Bill Baldwin.

Breitbach Gone

Missing from this year's team by graduation and one who will be sorely missed is little Ed Breitbach, captain and Number One man along with Buser for most of the '53 season. Also graduating from last year's squad was Dick LeBold.

12-Game Schedule

Coach Johnson has arranged a schedule of twelve games for his '54 netmen, including two with the University of Tennessee. They will also compete in the State Tournament the first week in May. The schedule is:

March 30—Univ. of Tenn.	Here
April 6—Univ. of Tenn.	Away
April 8—Milligan	Away
April 13—Tenn. Wesleyan	Away
April 16—L. M. U.	Here
April 21—Carson-Newman	Away
April 24—TPI	Here
April 27—East Tenn. State	Away
April 30—Chattanooga	Away
May 3—Carson-Newman	Here

May 11—East Tenn. State	Here
May 15—Sewanee	Here

MC Alumni Become Officers In Navy

Clyde McCampbell, '53, a lieutenant (j.g.) in the Navy, is serving as officer in charge of the transportation section of U.S. Fleet Activities in Yokosuka, Japan.

Before being called to active duty he was coach and physical education instructor at Fulton High in Knoxville. He is from Knoxville.

William Faulkner, economics major who graduated in 1952, recently completed the eight week indoctrination course at the Navy's Officer Candidate School in Newport, R.I. The 195 men in the group will report to the service schools of their corps for further study and training in their specialties.

Curtis Wilbanks, 1952 MC graduate and psychology major, was in a group of 770 newly commissioned officers in the Naval Reserve who graduated from the Navy's Officer Candidate School. They have taken an intensive four months course in naval science. Most of the new ensigns will go to sea, but some will take specialized training.

SPIKERS UPSET BARTLETTEERS TO WIN INTRAMURAL TOURNEY

Going into the final game of the tournament as the underdog, the YMCA Spikers won two straight games from the first seeded Bartletteers, 15-11 and 15-9, to cop the Intramural Tournament Championship last Saturday afternoon.

The second-seeded Spikers, paced by Bob "Monk" Johnston, Herb White and Hank Van Hassel, overcame a 11-3 deficit in the first game to win it and then the second with less difficulty to notch the victory for the crown.

To reach the finals, the Spikers "sneaked past" the Faculty and then doused the Boobers very handily to gain the berth. The Bartletteers drew a first-round bye, and then trimmed the Pre-Min I team to meet the Spikers. The tourney finals was the first defeat of the season for the Bartletteers.

Sinners Win

In the Consolation Tournament, the Sinners (basement boys of Carnegie) squeezed by the first-seeded Swashbucklers to win the tourney championship. The Sinners downed the Pre-Min II team to gain the finals berth against the 'Bucklers.

Bartletteers Victorious

Breezing through the regular season of nine games, the Bartletteers won the Intramural Volleyball League trophy with the Spikers finishing second with two losses. The Spikers received ribbons for winning the tournament.

Members of the Bartletteer League Champs are: Kent Buser, Allen Grippo, Bugs Ebright, Hal Black, Max Sockwell and Marshall England.

Spikers, the tourney champs, are: Bob Johnston, Hank Van Hassal, Herb White, Mike Connally, Ron Morley, Ronnie Pearson, Bob Patterson, Phil Young, and Don Williams.

Softball Starts

Intramural softball teams swing into action Monday with the culmination of the Spring football session. Two fields will be in use—Wilson diamond and the golf course diamond.

Tracksters Given One Meet In '54

Track will be scarce on the campus of Maryville for the '54 season with only one intercollegiate meet in the offing for the youthful and hopeful Scot cinders group with the annual Intramural Track meet also scheduled.

The intercollegiate meet is against W. J. Bryan College on the 29th of April with the Intramural Meet on the 22nd. The opening date of April 3rd of the pending schedule drawn up by Coach Johnson was considered by the Athletic Department as too short of notice to permit the tracksters to get in the proper condition, which led to all but the one meet being cancelled.

Having a barrelful of primed and potential talent, this year would be a good time to relaunch the sport of track on the Maryville campus. If the material and interest tides over till next Spring, the outlook is much brighter for a full slate of track meets.

As for interest, it can be plainly seen by the boys who have taken on their own initiatives to begin practice when time permits knowing that the possibility of a track team this year was doubtful. Maybe the year of '55 will be much brighter for many athletic minded people around the campus.

Church Circles To Meet On Maryville Campus

Christian Education opportunity for giving this year in the Presbyterian Church is a fund which will be used for the construction of a new girls' dormitory here on the campus. Because this is the aim of 1954 the Women's circles of New Providence Church have chosen this campus as the location of their regular meeting on April 1.

Four of the circles will be on campus in the morning and three will meet in the FAC in the evening. They will hold their regular meeting, then tour the campus and see the site which has been chosen for the new dormitory.

Work Continues On Chapel Building; Theater Portion Receives Attention

By Barbara Wilkie

Maryville's mammoth construction project (i.e. the chapel) is rapidly nearing completion, a fact indicated by all that hammering and sawing which reaches its peak each morning at 8:05. Some of us will almost regret not being able to wander around through it, climbing over lumber, ducking pipes, poking into nail kegs, advising the workmen, and criticising its architectural points. (This latter really should be done only after consulting Dr. Lloyd, who has all the specifications down pat.) But quite a few more Saturday afternoons can still be spent at this pleasant pastime before the last nail is driven and the last bolt fastened in place.

As you have probably noticed, Dr. Lloyd strolls through it about once a day now, gladly answering any questions one might have. The other evening after supper he could be seen busily shoveling dirt into mud puddles on the walk. Needless to say, a small crowd was gathered, watching attentively.

Theater

The theater seems to be the center of operations right now. You've probably noticed the lighting-heating combination fixtures in the ceiling. The stage is still a network of steel beams, but work appears to be progressing at a reasonable rate.

Since the inside of this remarkable edifice is probably so well fortified with concrete that it would collapse if any more were poured, they are now concentrating on paving the surrounding landscape. (Anyhow, it appears that way to this uninitiated reporter.)

One final thought on the subject: the chapel may not really be so modern as it looks. Probably some ancient Pharoah would have been only too proud to be interred in its clammy depths.

Clemens, Hickman To Give Recital

On Tuesday, March 23, Janice Clemens, pianist, and Floyd Hickman, tenor, will give their junior recitals. Hickman's accompanist is Louise Ogden.

The numbers to be offered are "Solomon", the recitative, "Imperial Solomon," and the air, "Sacred raptures cheer my breast," by Handel as sung by Hickman;

Fantasia in C Minor, (K. 475), played by Miss Clemens;

"The Early Horn" by Galliard, "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind (As You Like It) by Thomas Arne, "Under the Greenwood Tree" (As You Like It), also Thomas Arne, sung by Mr. Hickman;

From "Fifteen Children's Pieces, Op. 27, No. 1" by Kabalevsky, "A Sad Little Tale," "Toccatina," "A Short Story," and "Etude," to be played by Miss Clemens.

Hickman will sing for his last selections "Sehnsucht" and "An Strom" (Mayerhofer) and "Meeres-Stille" (Goethe), all by Schubert; and Miss Clemens will play "Concerto in D Minor, Op. 23," by MacDowell, Katharine Davies, professor of music, will play the second piano during Miss Clemens' last number.

Linginfelter Plans Senior Recital

Joyce Linginfelter will be the pianist in a senior recital to be presented Friday evening, April 2, at 8 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. The program include the following numbers:

Mozart's "Sonata in F Major," (K. 533 and 494); Ravel's "Valses Nobles & Sentimentales;" "Etude" in E Minor, Op. 25, No. 5," by Chopin; "Intermezzo in A Major, Op. 118, No. 2," by Brahms; and Ballade in G Minor, Op. 118, No. 3." by Brahms.

The Maryville branch of the American Association of University Women will hold a reception for senior women on Monday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

Music Teachers To Give Recital

Three instruments will be featured in a recital given by members of the faculty in the Fine Arts division. Katherine Crews will play the violin, Ralph Moore will play the trumpet, and Anna MacMillan will play the piano.

Mr. Moore will begin the recital with "Intrada and Riggadoon," by Henry Purcell as a fanfare. He will also play "Concerto No. 4" by Mozart. Mrs. Moore will be her husband's accompanist.

Miss Crews will play an entire "Sonata for Violin and Piano" by Cesar Franck. Accompanist for her will be Miss Jane Johnson.

One of Miss MacMillan's selections will be Beethoven's "Opus 2, No. 3." Another selection will be "The Four Anniversaries" by Leonard Bernstein. This last piece honors four of Mr. Bernstein's friends with caricatures of themselves on their birthdays.

Artists To Attend Showing Of Work

Tuesday, March 23, is the opening date of the Art Gallery's next exhibition, which will last until April 23. It consists of the paintings and sculpture done by two members of the faculty of Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga.

Ferdinand Warren, who is head of the art department at Agnes Scott, does work in encaustic, a method of painting in wax which was used by the Egyptians and has been recently revived. With it he achieves luminous tones.

Marie Huper's main field is sculpture. In addition to working with stone and wood, she makes mobiles and stabiles.

Miss Huper was formerly on the faculty at UT, and both she and Mr. Warren had a show there last year.

The art department is expecting to have the artists on hand personally Tuesday night at the opening for students and faculty. All interested are invited to come at 8 p.m. to see their art and find out about them.

Walt Elwood was puzzling to watch as he came onto a 15th century setting waving a T-square about, but by last night it turned into a violin. And isn't it amazing how well these college people turn into elderly types via their speech, hair powdering, and appropriate make-up?

I certainly hope all of you who attended the first performance last night were intensely pleased by "The Lady" (to borrow an expression from Miss Crosby)—even more than you had anticipated.

Warning

However, to make this piece fittingly moral and didatic in tone, here is an experienced word of warning. Beware all who stick their heads into the Alumni Gym any afternoon of a week that a play is being given. He, she, or what-have-you will hear "Oh, will you be busy for the next 20 minutes?" Then helpfully the curious one becomes a laborer, straining, leaning, and pulling on ropes trying to hoist a piece of a set such as a ceiling (which has a sag in the middle).

But if one is able to dream of a satisfactory excuse for leaving and a rope should accidentally break, he might escape. It is all quite true, however, that such experience "doesn't hurt a bit."

Congratulations to Miss Craven and the cast of "The Lady's Not For Burning" for a fine job.

Would Honor System Work?

When asked if they thought an honor system extending to the area of examinations (barring tailing) would work at Maryville, most of those questioned thought that it would but that it would have to come about gradually. It was felt that the optional town night program is a step in the direction of educating the students toward a more complete honor system. It was also the general opinion that since Maryville is a Christian college, composed of a select group of young men and women, an honor system could work here as well as it has in some state schools.

Curtis Names 1954 Daisy Chain Girls

Chain To Appear At Graduation

Emma Curtis, junior class vice-president, has anounced the names of the girls who will represent the class in the Daisy Chain at the Commencement exercises.

The girls are chosen on the basis of being a representative cross-section of the junior class. Miss Curtis, as vice-president, is automatically a member of the Chain.

14 Girls

The 14 girls are Billie Lester, Rosa Bauerle, Lyn Kiefer, Henrietta Laing, Nancy Rideout, Grace Harrison, Pat Jones, Sarah Pledger, Mary Ann Thompson, Peggy Fisher, Barbara Buttrill, Emma Curtis, Barbara Chubb, and Carol F. Moore.

Lester, Bauerle, Kiefer

Billie Lester is a home economics major from Chattanooga. She was a Nu Gamma leader and is in Bainonian.

Rosa Bauerle is a Bible major from Elkins Park, Pa. A former Nu Gamma leader, she is a member of Bainonian. Miss Bauerle has been active in Student Vols and is a member of the Y Cabinet and the Glee Club.

Lyn Kiefer is an English major from Easton, Pa. She was a Nu Gamma leader, and has been in Girls' Choir and Vesper Choir. She is program chairman for Student Vols, has been a member of Writer's Workshop, and is a Bainonian officer.

Laing, Rideout, Harrison

Henrietta Laing, a biology major, is from New Rochelle, N. Y. She was a Nu Gamma leader last year, and is an oficer of "M" club. She is a Bainonian.

Nancy Rideout, from Buchanan, Va., is majoring in Drama. She is a member of Playhouse and Bainonian, and is on the Y Cabinet.

Grace Harrison, an education major, is from Lansdowne, Pa. Her activities include the College Parish Project and YWCA. She is a Theta, having held various offices.

Alcoa Honors Huddleston With Banquet At College

On Tuesday evening, March 30, a testimonial banquet was held in Pearsons Hall in honor of A .D. Huddleston, who retired April 1 from the Alcoa Aluminum Company of America. He had been with the company for over 40 years, and since 1934 has held the position of Manager of Public Relations for Tennessee Operations. Mr. Huddleston, who is a former student of his school, was one of the most widely known officials of the company. Since 1949 he has been a member of the board of directors of Maryville College.

Approximately 140 persons attended the dinner, which began at 7:30 and lasted until 10:30.

Dr. Lloyd spoke briefly, and the string ensemble, composed of Miss Katherine Crews, Wayne Shelton, Sidney Tedford, John Graulich, and Joyce Linginfelter, pianist, provided dinner music for the pleasure of the guests.

Disc Club To Hear Mozart's 'Requiem Mass'

Disc Club will hold its regular meeting on Thursday, April 8, at 6:45 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center. Mozart's "Requiem Mass in D Minor, K. 626", performed by the R.C.A. Victor Orchestra and the Robert Shaw Chorale, will be presented.

At 4 p.m. on Good Friday, the Disc Club will present "Christ Lag In Todesbanden" ("Christ Lay In The Bonds Of Death"), by J. S. Bach. This is the Passion Section from the "B Minor Mass" by Bach.

All members of the faculty and student body are invited to hear these recordings in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Coming Spring Formal To Feature Sea Theme

Choir To Sing Tonight In Knoxville Church

The Vesper Choir will sing at the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Knoxville tonight. Two groups of anthems will close the church's week of evangelistic services.

On Wednesday, April 8, the choir will present a program at Maryville High School during their morning chapel program. The selections for this program are Brahms' Motet, which is derived from three verses of the 51st Psalm, two negro spirituals, "Jesus Walked This Lonesome Valley" and 'Were You There;" Eastern Lenten number, "Go to Dark Gethsemane" by Nobel; and Easter anthems by William Billings.

Sunday, April 11, the choir will travel to Oak Ridge to give an afternoon concert at the First Presbyterian Church. From there they will go to the Graystone Presbyterian Church in Knoxville. At both churches the choir will present for the first time the complete works that will be sung on the forthcoming spring tour. This will include all of Randall Thomson's "Peaceable Kingdom."

Complete Concert

Tuesday, April 13, they will give another complete concert at White Pine, supported by the Presbyterian Church of Morristown and in cooperation with churches in Dandridge and White Pine. This concert is made possible by the cooperation of the Rev. Donald Barker, son of Dr. and Mrs. Barker of the Maryville faculty.

The last concert to be given by the choir before going on tour will be the home concert to be presented in the chapel at 7 p.m., Sunday, May 9. This will be the only chance for the student body to hear the complete choir concert.

Theta Epsilon Wins Skit Night Trophy

Theta Epsilon society won the annual skit night competition last Saturday with its presentation of Maryville alumni in a "crazy house." The skit was directed by Carol F. Moore and Ethelyn Cathey, who also wrote the script.

Running a close second were Bainonion girls with their portrayal of the exotic, though boring, life of an Abrabian prince and his "happy harem." Their skit, written by Joanne Edwards, was directed by Peggy Fisher and Betty Messer.

Athenians presented "Five little rumors and how they grew," which was written and directed by Arthur Fryer. The little rumors in their odd little costumes displayed some real talent.

Alpha Sigma's skit, a humorous satire on everything Scotch (and just about everything else) was written by Charles Partee and directed by Harry McCall. Jack Barber was in charge of the effective scenery.

Jack Rorex acted as master of ceremonies. Judges were Miss Blair, Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, and Dr. Verton M. Queener.

Spanish Club To See Pan American Program

Spanish Club will meet April 8 in the Language Laboratory at 6:45. A radio skit for "Pan American Day" will be presented to the group and selections of participants will be made.

The last meeting was held March 25. Miss Meiselwitz showed slides from her trip to Mexico with Miss Davies.

Dance To Go Under Water

The Spring Dance, sponsored this year by Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma, will feature the theme of "Undersea Fantasy." It will be a program dance, to be held in the Alumni Gym April 10 from 8 to 11:45 p.m. Tickets are $1.25 a couple and will be on sale until Wednesday, April 7.

Libby Parrish and Bob Brand are chairmen in charge of the dance. The gym will be decorated with fish hanging from the ceiling, a coral reef in the center of the room, and anchors, star fish, and treasure chests scattered around. Green, blue, and pink spot lights will shoot toward the ceiling.

People will enter the gym through a coral cavern, and backdrops will add further sea effects.

Intermission Show

During the intermission Theta and Alpha Sig will present a five minute skit to fit in with the dance theme.

"It's really going to be a fantasy," co-chairman Brand said.

Committee chairmen for the event include Betty Watson and Betty Ham, refreshments; Jim Shields, publicity; Mary Jim Bevan, tickets; Madlon Travis, reception and invitations; Fred Wyman, orchestra; Tony Clark, lighting; and Doris Glad, intermission show.

Dorms To Hold Open House Today, Tomorrow

Immediately after dinner tonight MC will stage an "Open House." Faculty, students, and all connected with the college are invited to come in and inspect the dormitories, which will have been especially cleaned and ready to show.

The girls' dorms will be open tonight from 7 to 10, sponsored by WSGA. Memorial will be the first recipient of guests from 7 until 8. Guests will proceed to Baldwin from 8 to 9. The last dorm to be visited is Pearsons, where refreshments will be served.

Sunday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:30 Bartlett and Carnegie will be open, with no set hour for either. Refreshments will be served in Carnegie.

Holy Week To Have Services

At least three different types of Holy Week services will be held on campus during April 12-18. Special observance of the Easter season will be made in daily chapel services, services will be held Monday through Friday after lunch, and the annual Easter sunrise service will be held in the amphitheatre Easter Sunday morning.

The daily services after lunch are under the supervision of Pre-Ministerials, and will be held in the Y-rooms from 1 to 1:15 p.m.

These daily services have been an annual part of the college holy week observance for the past several years.

Also during the week, Tuesday through Saturday mornings, the ministers on the college faculty will lead regular chapel services and the Vesper Choir will sing a special number each morning.

On Good Friday, Mrs. Margaret Cummings, E. R. Hunter, and Arda S. Walker will be the faculty members who will speak at the Good Friday service. President Ralph W. Lloyd will preside, and the choir will sing the seven last words of Christ after the leaders have given their meditations. Also the choir will sing special anthems.

The Easter Sunrise Service is scheduled to begin Sunday, April 18, at 5:59 a.m., the time of sunrise according to the U. S. Weather Bureau. Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd will preside at that service also, and the choir will provide music.

That evening, the special Easter Vespers, mostly musical, will be held in the Samuel T. Wilson Chapel. Dr. Lloyd will present a brief meditation, and the college choir will sing several Easter anthems.

Members of Pre-Ministerials who will conduct the five early-afternoon meetings are Gary Baker, Homer Rickabaugh, Dick Thompson, and Ray Sammons.

Debate Members Attend PKD Meet

Maryville College was represented at the Pi Kappa Delta Regional Debate Tournament held from March 18 to 20, at Georgetown, Ky.

MC sent two teams. Naomi Burgos and Jeannine Fiori made up one, and Bob Duff and Donald Young the other. Each team won four debates and lost three. Miss Burgos reached the finals in after dinner speaking. Both she and Young received ratings of excellent in group dicussions, which handled the difficult question of how Congressional investigating committees can be improved.

Freshman Debate

On April 6 and 7, the debate society will sponsor the preliminaries of a freshman debate tournament on the question of the Bricker Amendment, and on Thursday eevning at 7 it will conduct the finals in the philosophy lecture room at Thaw Hall. All those who are interested are invited to attend.

Moore To Reign Over May Day Festivities

Choir's Spring Travel Schedule Announced

Harter Reveals Tour Personnel

By Abby Crosby

The 1954 Maryville College Choir tour was anounced recently by Business Manager Fred A. Griffitts. The dates for the tour are May 20 until June 6. The itinerary takes the touring choir first to Detroit for the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, USA, and closes with concerts at the Quadrennial National Meeting of the National Council of Women's Organizations of the Presbyterian Church, USA.

The choir will leave immediately after Commencement on May 19 and will arrive in Detroit, Mich., for its first concert on Thursday evening at the popular meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions at the General Assembly.

"The time is too close to be ideal," according to Dr. Lloyd, "but it is unavoidable if the choir is to accept the invitation there."

Women's Meeting

The second appearance of the choir will be at the women's meeting of the General Assembly held the next day in the Masonic Temple of Detroit, which seats over 5,000 persons. After this appearance, the choir will begin its tour of churches in Detroit and other cities of the middle west.

The first of these will be May 23 at the morning worship service of the Bethany Presbyterian Church of Detroit, followed by an afternoon appearance at the Drayton Avenue Presbyterian Church in Ferndale. That evening the choir will perform at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Winsor, Ontario, in Canada. "But," as Dr. Griffitts says, "it's only one mile over the line."

TV Appearance

Monday afternoon, the choir will make a TV appearance in Toledo, and that night it will sing at the First Presbyterian Church in Mt. Vernon, Ohio. The next day a concert is scheduled for the Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church of Columbus, followed on the next day by one at the Kennedy Heights Presbyterian Church of Cincinnati.

May 28, the choir will make its second TV appearance over WKLO-TV, Louisville, Ky. That evening it will sing at the Warren Memorial Presbyterian Church, also in Louisville.

Y Nominations Announced

The Y's have selected nominees for the different offices to serve next year. Nominated for president of Y.W.C.A., are Lynn Kiefer and Jean Morgan. Nominees for vice-president are Barbara Chubb and Emma Curtis; for secretary are Betty McKinney and Jackie Speigner; for treasurer are Margaret Hanna and Grace Harrison; and for Nu Gamma Chairman are Lynn McMillian and Ethelyn Cathy.

Officers nominated for Y.M.C.A. are: president, Jim Fisher and Dave Ramsey; for vice-president, John Graulich and Doug Stubblefield; for secretary, Malcolm Bonner and Don Williams; for treasurer, Don Thiel and Herb White; and for freshman representative, Ronnie Pearson and Graeme Sieber.

Spalding, Nollner Run For Editor Of Chilhowean

Candidates for the major Chilhowean staff positions were announced at a meeting of the Sophomore Class Thursday morning.

Announced candidates for editorship of the yearbook were:

Bud Spalding, history major from Georgetown, Ind., and Faith Nollner, English major from Carthage, where she edited her school paper at Smith County High. Miss Nollner is a band majorette and a member of Theta Epsilon. Both Spalding and Miss Nollner are members of the Echo staff.

In the running for the post of business manager of the annual were John Borter, sociology major from Springfield, N.J. Borter is a member of Alpha Sigma and the Pre-Ministerial Association;

Bob Jackson, political science major from Philadelphia, Pa. Jackson is a Pre-Ministerial and a member of Alpha Sigma, as well as a representaitve on the Student Council;

Charles Rogers, a chemistry, pre-med major from Fort Smith, Ark. Rogers is an Athenian member, treasurer for the sophomore class, and a member of the debate team.

In the run-off, necessary to narrow the field to two candidates for business manager, Jackson and Rogers won out.

The election was scheduled for Friday, with only juniors-to-be voting. Results came in too late to be published in the Echo.

The yearbook is a project of the junior class.

Recital To Have Varied Program

At the April 6 Student Recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center, the program will be as follows: Bach's "Gavotte and Musette," Margallen Hanna, pianist; Bach's "Three-part Inventions in B minor and C minor," Jane Robison, pianist;

Duparc's "Extase," Carol Sleight, soprano, Wayne Shelton, accompanist; Godard's "Berceuse," John Graulich, violinist, Laura Rainwater, accompanist: Faure's "En piere," Joyce Linginfelter, soprano, Jackie Speigner, accompanist;

R. Strauss's "All Souls' Day," Op. 10, No. 8, Martha Freeny, soprano, Sheila Sutton, accompanist; Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in B Flat Minor," Louise Ogden, pianist; and R. Strauss's "Zweignung," Myrna Ginaven, soprano; Wayne Shelton, accompanist.

Court To Rule With Queen

By Joe Gilliland

Carol D. Moore, senior psychology major from Buechel, Ky., was elected May Queen in all-campus elections held Thursday. She will be escorted in the May Day Festival by senior class president, Jack Maxwell.

The other school classes elected the following persons as members of the May Court:

Juniors—Jean Morgan, sociology major from Mathiston, Miss., will be escorted by Bill Davis, business administration major from Morristown, N. J.;

Sophomores—Mary Nichol, education major from Hendrum, Minn., will be escorted by Harold McIntosh, from Black Mountain, N. C.;

Freshmen—Margie Haynie, Atlanta, Ga., will be escorted by Dick Jensen, who is from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Miss Moore, who was a sophomore transfer from Union College, Ky., is a member of Bainonian and has been a member of Girls' Choir since she has been at Maryville.

Runner-up in the election was Peggy Evans, elementary education major from Trenton, N. J.

May Queen last year was Evelyn Fields.

Jack Maxwell is a history major from Clinton, S. C. He was president of Athenian last year, and is a member of Pre-Ministerials. He has also been on the YMCA cabinet, in 1952 was one of the Ten Key Men, and was also secretary of Y.

Out of 650 students eligible in these elections, 217 failed to vote, a tabulation Thursday night showed.

The May Day Festival at Maryville College is an annual presentation sponsored by the Physical Education Department. The show is held in the amphitheatre in the College Woods, and consists of the presentation of the May Court and a pageant or entertainment, with dances and acting performed largely by members of the women's physical education classes.

For the past several years, elementary school children from Blount County have been brought to see the festivah In other years, no classes have been held on the afternoon of May 1, but this year the event is on Saturday, when no afternoon classes are held.

Council Discusses Athletic Board

Student Council this week met Thursday night, because of the holiday Wednesday. A. C. McWilliams reported that May Day elections had taken place that day, and that Chilhowean and Y elections would be held the following day, Friday.

Before the main topic of discussion was brought up, President Bill Dartnell mentioned the subject of the grass on campus, which Student-Faculty Senate had discussed informally. Various methods of inducing students to keep to the walks were mentioned, and Dartnell appointed the entire Student Council a committee, with himself as the chairman, to work on the problem. He stated that he would confer with Mr. Black and report back to Council about possible improvements for the "bald campus" situation.

Athletic Board Report

Walt Elwood, chairman of the committee set up to investigate the Athletic Board and recommend changes, presented his report in the shape of a revised constitution. He stated that the committee had disucssed the matter with Dean McClelland and Coaches Johnson and Honaker before coming to a decision.

The Athletic Board proposal was submitted to Student Council only for discussion, and not for a vote. It was to go before Student-Faculty Senate as the next step.

Chapel Designers Schweikher, Elting Visit Maryville, Explain Modern Architecture

By Lora Kinsinger

Recent guests on campus were Paul Schweikher and Winston Elting, designers of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel and of the Fine Arts Center. Partners, they are in association with Barber and McMurray of Knoxville on this building.

When questioned about their MC projects, Schweikher, Elting, and Ben McMuray, Jr., all urged that each of us should judge for himself. They are very happy with the Chapel and consider its progress satisfactory.

Although the men have visited MC periodically, this was the first time they had seen the Chapel in its nearly complete form. They were here primarily to settle matters of detail. Under discussion were such questions as the color of the walls in the little chapel (probably off-white), the finish of the concrete, the unsqueaking of doors, the furniture for the platform, the soundproofing, and the color for theater curtains.

Yale Professor

Schweikher, chairman of the department of architecture at Yale University, defines this art as "the simultaneous action of creating and enclosing space and projecting that enclosed space, which is form, into space." In the processes of the art certain disciplines must be employed. These are simplicity, proportion, and scale. Here Schweiker referred to the "Journals" of Andre Gide, who berates those who demand more than simplicity.

Scheikher and Elting employ these principles in all their designs, moving in the direction of unity which is "that which is immediately apprehensible," according to Schweikher. In the case of the Chapel this unity is of rectilinear form.

Lattice Work and Steps

Questioned about the lattice work or wooden grill on the chapel platform, the men replied that this serves several purposes. It is decorative, breaks up the light, adds depth, and provides a visual relief. There is a possibility that there will be more finishing on it.

The steps leading to the chapel are explained in this way: there will be rectangular marble slab steps in the area where the metal prongs now protrude. The steps are to be considered a piece of sculpture, at the same time serving a utilitarian purpose. The architects expect students to want to sit there and have provided the steeper levels for this purpose. They are not worried about the danger of someone's stepping off in the wrong place. "Students could walk in front of a car, too," says McMurray.

Place of Worship

McMuray went on to suggest ways in which the chapel is a place of worship. In his opinion the designs have successfully used the modern idiom to express the dignity and honesty found in all good church architecture. Effective in

It's So Easy To Publish A Newspaper . . .

It's so easy to publish a newspaper . . . . You never get tired. You never need a vacation. Your head is always clear. You're always bright as a silver dollar. Everybody writes in beautiful letters telling you what a nice paper you have. Everybody phones in news. You never have any trouble getting paper.

Everybody pays you on time. You never have to remind people over and over again that their subscriptions are due. If you're late paying a bill, they say it's all right, let it go. You never make people mad at something you have written or have not written.

Your proof reader never makes a mistake. The front page always looks nice. The ads are always eye-catching. You just sit at your typewriter and and write beautiful lines.

People never say your paper is political. They never insist you are taking sides. They always agree that you're independent.

Everywhere you hear the people say you're a good guy. They always say you work hard. The waste baskets never fill up, so nobody has to empty them. The pressman never needs a helping hand to slip a new roll of paper into the press. Rolls of paper you receive are not torn, and you don't get any waste. Your mail galley never gets pied.

People never think of asking you for favors that are entirely out of your reach. After every issue, advertisers call up and say. "Say, that was a honey of an ad you ran for me last week. Thanks." If an advertiser gives you copy announcing a week-end special, it's always sunny that week-end and very warm, and the buses are sure to run on time.

You always have plenty of time to spend with your family. Your little boy never asks, "Mama, have I really got a daddy?". . . Never do you place an ad upside down. When you misspell a person's name, he calls up and says, "Forget it. It's all right". . . . Oh, it's wonderful to be a newspaper publisher. It's so easy. So simple.

It has occurred to me that this column has, heretofore, been presented in an extremely disordered fashion. That might be excused if we were in any other school beside Maryville College—but we're not (or hadn't you noticed?) Anyway, leave us brush up a little on our Systematic Discourse. (systematic?)

* * * * *

A. Introduction: This column should consist of choice bits of Wit and Humor. Therefore, I shall henceforth do my derndest to be both Witty and Humorous.

B. Theme Statement: Wit and Humor!

C. Discussion: Having put forth a concerted effort to be either Witty or Humorous or both, I find that I can do neither; therefore, I shall have to resort to Wisdom. (I must have some!) This consists of

I. Definitions:
  1. marriage: a wonderful institution—but who wants to live in an institution?

II. Ideas:
  1. Then there was the Freshman who, in "ye olde research paper" stated that one of the causes of deafness was "faculty teeth." (Clacking, no doubt!)

III. Suggestions:
  1. Said research papers to be done on Farley Granger (for dolls) and Marilyn (for fellas). Of course, special studies would go into the matter in more detail.
  3. Why not serve salt water at the Spring Formal—to lend atmosphere?

IV. Organizations
  1. Notice to all girls: A women's division of the Foreign Legion is being established in Baldwin. Further announcement of details will be made in the near future.

V. Jokes:
  1. The ol' "Column" just wouldn't be the same without a corny, so here goes. This one courtesy of Shirley Armstrong.

Socially Speaking

* * *

By Pat Brendle

My goodness! Looks as if everyone was either going or coming last week-end.

Visiting from the class of '53 were Sally Brown, Jay Spenser, Nancy Ferguson and Phyllis West. Visiting from the class of '52 were Doris Somerville and Mrs. Charles Mabry (Barbara Blum).

Also visiting were Andy Clark, '51, Jeannette Hurst, ex '56, Patty Arterburn, ex '56, Peggy Williams, ex '56, Mr. and Mrs. Don Etheridge, ex '55 (Elaine Barker, ex '55) and Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Short, '53 (Kathy Morrison, ex '55). Dave Helwig '54 and Dick Hughes, 'ex '55 were here, too.

* * *

Carolyn Lime's sister, Betty Lou, was here from Canton, N.C. Pat Halstead's mother spent the week-end here, and Ann Taylor's mother came for several days.

Larry Tate, ex '57, spent his spring vacation from an Ohio college here as guest of Ross Franks. Pat Brendle's sister, Betty, was here from her home in Waynesville, N.C.

* * *

And then there were the people who went home! Gene Van Buskirk went to her home in Atlanta. Doris Taylor went to her home in Blue Ridge, Ga., and had as her guest Sonya Sweat.

In Knoxville with Ann Brown were Kip Spong and Joan McLain. Polly Trnavsky was in Maryville spending the week-end with Virginia Marshall.

Ann Hudson was the guest of her roommate, Julia Stubblefield, in Hartsville. Jane Kirkpatrick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kirkpatrick, and her little sister, Joy, visited here from Wisconsin.

There seem to be some people left who are taking this week-end off!

Aleen Williams left by plane yesterday afternoon for Raleigh, N.C., where she will attend the North Carolina State College R.O.T.C. Military Ball as guest of her fiance, Don Calhoun.

The Maryville fleet seems to be arriving in Atlanta! Ann Daniels will have as her visitors Doris Glad, Beve McCarty, and Sandy Chilcote. Cornelia Force is spending the week-end with her mother and brother, Ralph.

In Perry, Ga., Nants Harvard will be visiting her parents with guests, Caroll Powell and Helen Davis.

1868 General Assembly Commends MC

In the minutes of the Presbyterian, USA, General Assembly for 1868 Malcolm Bonner found a commendation of Maryville College.

The committee on Bills and Overtures reported on a memorial from the Presbytery of Union in reference to Maryville College as follows:

"The Synod of Tennessee has been tried and found faithful in the midst of the divisions and calamities of the past years of conflict. This has been owing in a great degree to the influence of Maryville College, established more than fifty years since, and which has sent forth over one hundred and twenty ministers. The destitution of the region, devasted by the late war, is very great. Many feeble churches are without pastors. These cannot be supplied from our Northern institutions; they must be the sons of the soil, trained there for its needs. Already the college has sixty-two students, eager to learn, and two hard-working professors. It urgently needs sympathy and aid from without; for that Synod, though faithful and erect is struggling with narrow means. In the future it will be a most important centre of influence for the best interests of learning and religion. The last Assembly recommended Maryville College to our churches. We are persuaded that it deserves a renewed and more earnest indorsement. Therefore,

Resolved, That this Assembly cordially commend Maryville College, in East Tennessee, to the liberal aid of the friends and patrons of good learning and of our Presbyterian fai h and order.

The report was adopted."

'UNITED IN CHRIST'

In WORD

THANKFULNESS. How much we have to be thankful for, but how seldom do we pause to thank God for all His good gifts! Thankfulness is not just a polite utterance of our lips, but a warm feeling of gratitude that stems from the innermost recesses of our hearts. To be thankful is not only a duty, it is also a privilege. Christ was always thankful to God, even at Calvary. How thankful are you? —Bryan Ernst

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Elizabeth Frei

If your plans went "smash" for the spring holiday there's still plenty you can do in your spare time this coming week.

The Park Theatre is featuring "Five Angels on Murder'," starring Jean Kent and John McCollugh, on Monday; for Tuesday and Wednesday "Wild Heart" starring Goeffrey Jones will be showing. On Thursday and Friday, the thriller, "Man in the Attic" starring Connie Smith and Jack Palance, the man who can give the audience just one glance and they begin to realize that this is one movie which is not a comedy.

At the Capitol Monday thru Friday "The Glenn Miller Story," with James Stewart and June Allyson, will be showing.

If you haven't already stopped by the FAC to see the Art Exhibit of paintings and sculpture done by the faculty at Agnes Scott College, why not spend a few minutes seeing this unusual exhibit?

Perhaps you would like to curl up in a corner some evening and read a book purely for enjoyment. The library has several books that would come under that category. One is "The House That Nino Built," by Giovanni Guereschi. It is a nonsensical story about very casual things, revealing much about the author's life.

Another book that should prove interesting is Louise Baker's "Snips and Snails." As you might imagine, this is abou small boys, and is the story of the author's experience teaching in a boys' school, with resulting confusion and fun.

This week in the library we find several books attempting to explain difficult subjects to the laymen. Sigmund Spaeth's "The Art of Enjoying Music," might be of help to those who want to learn to appreciate music, even if they can't be musicians themselves. In a different field, George Harrison's "Atoms in Action" is an up-to-date guide on modern science.

The library now has, too, the final volume of Winston Churchill's history of the last war. Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Peggy Packard

If your plans went "smash" for the spring holiday there's still plenty you can do in your spare time this coming week.

The Park Theatre is featuring "Five Angels on Murder'," starring Jean Kent and John McCollugh, on Monday; for Tuesday and Wednesday "Wild Heart" starring Goeffrey Jones will be showing. On Thursday and Friday, the thriller, "Man in the Attic" starring Connie Smith and Jack Palance, the man who can give the audience just one glance and they begin to realize that this is one movie which is not a comedy.

At the Capitol Monday thru Friday "The Glenn Miller Story," with James Stewart and June Allyson, will be showing.

If you haven't already stopped by the FAC to see the Art Exhibit of paintings and sculpture done by the faculty at Agnes Scott College, why not spend a few minutes seeing this unusual exhibit?

Perhaps you would like to curl up in a corner some evening and read a book purely for enjoyment. The library has several books that would come under that category. One is "The House That Nino Built," by Giovanni Guereschi. It is a nonsensical story about very casual things, revealing much about the author's life.

Another book that should prove interesting is Louise Baker's "Snips and Snails." As you might imagine, this is abou small boys, and is the story of the author's experience teaching in a boys' school, with resulting confusion and fun.

This week in the library we find several books attempting to explain difficult subjects to the laymen. Sigmund Spaeth's "The Art of Enjoying Music," might be of help to those who want to learn to appreciate music, even if they can't be musicians themselves. In a different field, George Harrison's "Atoms in Action" is an up-to-date guide on modern science.

ECHO FORUM

Maryville College
Maryville, Tennessee
March 25, 1954

Dear Editor,

Now that spring is here Maryville students begin some serious thinking about baseball, Commencement, Baldwin Beach, and most important—elections. Who are we going to elect as leaders for the next year? The first of all campus elections is for YM and YW officers. That means these two organizations have first choice so they should pick the most outstanding of all students here on campus. These shriveled organizations certainly deserve the very best that MC has to give in order to bring the shake-up so badly needed.

For the past few years YM and YW have been suffering from a malady that no one has succeeded in diagnosing. It is a serious problem that all should be concerned about, because our most important campus group is just about dead.

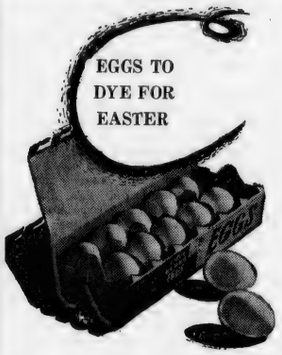
What is wrong? It's hard to say, and I'm sure you could find a different answer with every student asked. However everyone seems to agree that there is a lack of interest. Why? And what can be done about it? These are two big questions which must be answered before the problem is solved.

In my three years here at Maryville I have discovered that one reason why people are not interested in Y is that they are scared away by the purely evangelistic program which is stressed. Few people actually realize that Barnwarming and the Artist Series are sponsored by the Y's. These seem to be the only purely secular activities that these organizations put on. The rest of the time most of the students are asked to come to the meetings and that is all. From the very beginning of the year freshmen, especially, and everybody else is urged to become active members of Y. "You don't have to do anything but come to the meetings." Now, is that anyway to "win friends and influence people?"

When you are very anxious that someone become your friend, what is the first think you do? I dare say very few people would ask that person to pray with him as the first gesture of friendliness. What you are more apt to do is to give that person something to do whereby the two of you could work together. After the two of you have become friends you would no doubt want to worship together.

Every student who pays an activity fee is a member of Y. And as I see it the organizations have only themselves to blame for the small number who become active members.

At the YWCA conference I was privileged to attend last fall, I found out (and to my surprise!) that Y includes just about any phase of life that a person can be interested in. Our groups here are too narrow in the sense they do not include enough activities to interest all the students on campus. And the tendency seems to be shrinking in size to fit only those who attend Sunday meetings rather than expanding to include everybody.



A program of expansion would be a big undertaking and certainly could not be completed in a year. But I think it is a goal worthy of some thought and work.

Sincerely yours,
Ruth Orr

Sports Spotlights

By Malcolm King

Murmurings are drifting around Maryville campus lately that track will be in full bloom next year with the bud (one meet with W. J. Bryan) developing this Spring. With this fact in the back of my mind, I happened across some fairly complete track records dating back to the year 1912. Up till that time track at Maryville College had been on an interclass basis.

In 1912 Maryville took the step into intercollegiate track competition rather gradually, having one meet with Tusculum College and winning it (scores not on record). The Scots' track debut was a success!

For the next two years, the Scot cindermen competed in the East Tennessee-Virginia Invitational Meet at Bristol, Virginia. In 1913 the Scots placed second, but the results were not given for the 1914 meet.

The years 1915, '16, '17 saw the Orange and Garnet thinclads engage the Tusculum tracksters in home-and-home meets with the Scots gaining the victory in each account. In '15 the East Tennessee-Virginia Meet and one with the University of Tennessee were also held, but the outcomes were not listed in the records available.

From 1918 through 1921, the Maryville College track went into temporary retirement, but in '22 they dashed out of seclusion to face two opponents. In the initial meet again the University of Tennessee the Scots lost 78½ to 52½ and in the second encounter they bowed to Centre College.

The '23 team faced the Praying Colonels and the Volunteers and reversed the decisions of the previous season. Maryville broke more finish-line tapes to down Tennessee, 78 to 52 (one of the few times of the two schools' meets that the Scots won), and proved too speedy for Centre, winning 81 to 49.

Records of the next three years are vague, but the schools and some scores are given. In 1924 the Scots faced University of Tennessee, Centre, Georgetown and Chattanooga. They beat Georgetown, 59 to 57, and Chattanooga, 89 to 28. Scores of the other two meets aren't given. For the next year, a win over Chattanooga is the only meet on record though there were more. The '27 season was a successful one for the Scots as they won three and lost one. The single loss was dealt by the Volunteer fleetfeet while the wins were over Lincoln Memorial, Emory & Henry, and Chattanooga.

Striding high, the Scot tracksters duplicated the '27 record of three wins and one loss over the same opponents the following year. A close meet with U-T, losing by a 57 to 55 score, almost gave the Highlanders a perfect season.

After posting a regular season's record of two wins and one loss in '29, the Scot trotters entered the Smoky Mountain Conference Meet and won easily, amassing 79 points to their closest opponent's (Emory & Henry) 38. The regular season meets were against Chattanooga, LMU, and Tennessee, losing again to the Vols.

In '30 and '31, the Maryville cindermen downed LMU and Chattanooga while losing to U-T in dual meets, Tennessee Tech (TPI) was added to the schedule in '31 and was subjegated by the Scots.

Maryville had one of their best seasons the following Spring, winning four of five meets. The loss was a 60-57 setback at the hands of the Vols. Opponents for this year were Centre, TPI, Emory & Henry and LMU. In '33 the Scots recorded a three and one record, competing against the same teams except TPI. They renewed their Smoky Mountain Conference Meet championship of '29 by edging Emory & Henry, 63-37.

The following year Maryville entered the State Meet for the first time posting a regular season record of two wins and one loss, and placed second behind their unbeatable foe, University of Tennessee. In '35 the Highlanders chalked up a three-and-one record against their traditional rivals of U-T, Chattanooga, LMU and Emory & Henry. They duplicated their State Meet performance of the previous year and again reclaimed their Smoky Mountain Conference title of '33.

The Spring of '36 saw the Scot thinclads successfully defend their Smoky Mountain Conference Title and hold second place in the State behind U-T. Their season's record was three wins and two losses, bowing to a new foe, Davidson, as well as U-T. Spring fever hit the spiked-shoe crew the following year as they posted a 2-2 season record, placed second behind Milligan in the SMC Meet, and dropped to third in the State.

Davidson and U-T again outsprinted the Scots in '38 while they won three meets but Maryville redeemed themselves by "scaling over" Milligan to win the SMC Meet and by moving back into second in the State standings.

A year of glory arrived in the Spring of '39 when the Highlanders showed true Scottish scrap by winning the Smoky Mountain Conference Meet again and annexing the Tennessee State Crown for the first and the last time since, placing ahead of Vanderbilt and U-T 40½-36-32½ respectively. Davidson was the only team to conquer the Scots that year, but only by a 68-62 score.

The next two years the Scots dropped below par though holding Number Two spot in the State Meet both years. In '40 Maryville won two and lost two while, in '41, they lost two and won none.

During the war years of '42 through '46, the Maryville tracksters put the track apparel in moth balls and under lock and key. In '47 two meets were scheduled with UT and TPI, and the Scots split. No dual meets were held the next year, but the Scots participated in the Milligan Relays, placing fifth. TPI tied Maryville for seventh place in the State Meet that same year.

In the '49 season, the Orange and Garnet Thinclads notched two wins, annexed the Milligan Relays crown and placed fourth in the State behind U-T, Vanderbilt, and Sewanee. The next year the Scots beat Chattanooga, lost to East Tennessee State and participated in the Milligan Relays. In 1951 they again ran in the Milligan Meet while losing to ETSC, 82-39.

This year's meet with W. J. Bryan will be the first since '51 and may mark the comeback of the Scot cindermen.

Scot Netters Bow To Vols

By Bob Jackson

The Maryville College Tennis team opened their 1954 season last Tuesday by losing to the Orange of UT, 9-1, on the local courts.

The only Maryville triumph was the doubles victory of Kent Buser and Marshall England over Kyle Testerman and Bud Toomey of UT, 8-6 and 7-5. The best individual showing for Maryville was Sonny Shackleford, the team's No. 5 man, as he bowed before Tennessee's Ed Fisher in two close sets, 6-4, 6-4.

Kent Buser, Maryville's No. 1 man, found himself overmatched as he lost to Jim Robinson, UT's precision machine, 6-1, 6-1. Robinson's game was practically flawless he played "the big game."

Bud Toomey of UT had little trouble defeating the locals' No. 2 man, Marshall England, 6-1, 6-2. In the third singles match of the afternoon, John Anderson, the Maryville captain, threw a scare into Kyle Testerman before dropping his match, 6-4, 6-3.

In the other single competions, Maryville also lost out as King dropped his match, 6-2, 6-3; Williams lost to Davis, 6-1, 6-2; and Brackney defeated Nier, 6-0, 6-1.

In the other two doubles matches, Maryville again went down to defeat when King and Anderson lost to Robinson and Farrow, 6-2, 6-3; and Shackleford and Williams weer defeated in three sets by Davis and Fisher.

Baseball Squad Opens '54 Season Against U-T

Coach Lombe Honaker's baseball team swings into action next Monday afternoon as they cross bats with the University of Tennessee Volunteers on the Knoxvillian's diamond at three o'clock. The Scots had a game scheduled for Thursday afternon with Middle Tennessee State, but it was called off because of wet grounds.

The Honakermen are out to better last year's record of 14 wins and 3 losses which will be a big task. Backing up the try for a better record will be seven lettermen with only one regular pitcher returning in the personage of Harry "Lefty" Robinson.

Bob Shelton, one of last year's leading sluggers and best infielder, will be the mainstay of the Scot line-up. Last year Bob was the regular third baseman, but this year he will be alternating at shortstop and second base with Earl "Rookie" Lawson who is also a returning lettermen and standout infielder.

Four outfielders will be returning from last year's starting line-up—Bill Van Benthuysen, Lynn Sexton, Bill Anderson, and Bob Ramger. Van Benthuysen will be doing double duty as an outfielder and catcher, sharing the behind-the plates duties with returning letterman Don Moore. Ramger will be doing partime outfield work and partime pitching duties to bolster the weak mound staff that the Scots are faced with this year. Lyn Sexton, the best of Honaker's outfielders, will hold down his regular left field position which he has played for the last two years. Anderson will be touring either center or right field.

Ken Yunkers, who played under Honaker for two years before entering the Army, has returned and is assigned the third base duties. He is labeled as an excellent fielder and hitter by those who saw him perform previously.

Dick Henderson, a freshman, is expected to see some hill duty for the Honakers along with slender Jack Crouch who is toeing the mound for the first itme due to the shortage of pitchers. Kyle Petree, who has seen limited duty the last two years, will be on hand to strengthen the otherwise inexperienced staff.

Harry Robinson will be Honaker's only "reliable" because of his past showing and experience. Last season Harry posted a six-win and no-loss record to lead all Scot hurlers. He is also a very prominent man at the plate.

Jim Campbell and Sonny Short, ace shortstop and pitcher for the '53 baseball squad, will be sorely missed by the Scots this year. Each have had four years of experience on the Scot diamond.

Chuck Dunn, who saw limited duty at first base last year, will be Honaker's Number One man at that position this year. He showed good promise in the contests that he appeared in last season.

Big Don Moore will be the main backstop for the horsehiders this year where he saw regular duty last year. He is an excellent catcher and a power hitter.

Three new faces (two freshmen) out this year show the possibility of giving the regulars some tough competition most of the season for starting berths. Larry Posey is showing very good promise at third base and may move Yunkers out before the season's over.

Clarence Shepard is looking excellent at the second base slot and will see plenty of action there along with Lawson and Shelton. Shepard shows lots of natural ability around the keystone spot. Bill Dent, a freshman outfielder, shows good promise and should see considerable action. Pinch-hitting Charlie Partee will be back with the Scots this year, also.

This year's schedule is:

April 5—Univ. of Tenn.	There
April 9—King College	Here
April 12—L. M. U.	Here
April 15—E.&H. College	Here
April 24—L. M. U.	There

LEFTY HARRY ROBINSON TO LEAD '54 SCOT NINE

By Jim Demer

The Scot Nine finished up the 1952-53 baseball season with a fine 14 won, 3 lost record. Six of the 14 wins were registered by a little lefty who didn't lose a game. He goes by the name of Harry Robinson and is back this year to carry Maryville's diamond hopes on his capable left arm.

Harry hails from Roxborough, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia. He is 21 years old and a senior at Maryville. A Greek major, Harry hopes to enter the ministry. As far as marks are concerned, he has made the honor roll every seemster.

Maryville missed Harry his freshman year when he attended West Chester State Teachers College, West Chester, Pa. This is a college noted for, as Maryville is, its fine baseball teams. Several major league clubs send future stars there to play under Coach Killinger believing that it will be better for the boys to play at West Chester than to compete in minor league play. Harry played the outfield his first year at college pitching only at the close of the season.

"Dead" Arm

Funny as it may sound, Harry didn't pitch his last 2 yr. at Roxborough High, but instead roamed the outfield. He pitched his freshman and sophomore years until his arm went "dead". In his senior year, Harry was the team's leading hitter with a .391 average.

I asked Harry where he gained all his pitching knowledge, and I got a variety of answers. It seems that he read a number of books on how to play baseball and pitch. Also important was his attendance at the Philadelphia A's baseball school conducted in the summer. Harry went to this school the summers before his junior and senior years in high school. His brother, who pitched for Centre College for 4 years, was a valuable help in learning the art of getting the ball by the batter.

You really have to hand it to this 5'8", 150 pound lefty for coming through as well as he has done in the past. Harry has a tough job this season as he is the mainstay of an undermanned pitching staff. Lots of luck to this little guy whose arm has come "alive" again much to the joy of the Scots and Coach Honaker.

Orange Down Gar. In Spring Finale

In the annual Orange and Garnet football game that ends the Spring practice session, the Orange team downed the Garnet eleven by a score of 12 to 0. The game was played on the Monday following the regularly scheduled day of Friday when it was rained out.

The quality in backfields made the big difference in the contest with Wayne Newman, Ted Sparks and Jim Renfro leading the victorious Orange to big gains.

Sparks passed to end Phil Clapp early in the game for the first tally with Newman's attempted plunge for the extra point being stopped. The second score was the doings of Newman as he battered through the Garnet line for the second and final score of the game.

Both lines were of equal strength. Big Bill Strickland was the prominent member of the Orange team in the line until he reinjured his knee and played only defense. Bill Wheatley, shifted from tackle to guard by Coach Davis to replace Jerry King who will graduate in the Spring, played an excellent at the right guard position both on offensive and defense.

Tom Bugenhagen, donning the pads for the first time in his life this Spring, looked very promising, playing very commendable on defense especially.

Sparks showed some of his old high school form in the scrap for the first since entering Maryville College. He ran well, and passed well also. If he keeps it up, he will see much action next season for the Scotties.

Intramurals....

In the first week of Intramural softball, the Alpha Sigma Hammers hold a slim lead of two wins and no losses with the Pre-Mins, Diablos Rojos and the Smokies all tied for third place. The Athenians hold down second place with one win and no losses.

Meiselwitz Teaches Home Economics During Years At Maryville College

By Nancy Marshall

About the middle of each afternoon, a friendly, neat woman is usually seen hurrying towards Thaw Hall. Gertrude Meiselwitz, professor of home economics, is very active and it was difficult to find her in one place long enough for an interview.

Miss Meiselwitz earned both her B.S. and M.S. degrees at the University of Wisconsin. She has also studied at Michigan State.

She first taught Home Economics at Antigo High School in Wisconsin. This was a city school with about 1200 students. Later she instructed adult vocational classes in Green Bay, Wis. In 1928 she joined her sister, who had come two years earlier, at Maryville.

Home Ec Improvements

Miss Meiselwitz is proud of the many improvements made in the home economics department. The dietetics course, for which Maryville is well known, has been developed. Also the "brides' course" and the "grooms' course" have been added to the curriculum.

Her home is in Wisconsin. She has lived on a farm, in a town, and at the lake.

Enjoys Travel

She enjoys traveling and has visited both the West Coast and the East Coast, as well as many other sections of the United States. Last summer Miss Meiselwitz made her first trip out of the country when she spent a month in Mexico. Although she has no immediate trip planned, she is ready to go whenever the opportunity presents itself. She plans, however, to spend this summer at the family cottage by one of Wisconsin's lakes.

French To Hear Music

According to program committeeman Cary Valentine, the program for this week's meeting of the French Club will consist of the same program as originally scheduled for last week.

"Symphonie Fantastique" by Berlioz, as recorded by Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra, and Offenbach's "Gaite Parisienne," as recorded by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra, , will be among record selections to be played.

The meeting is scheduled for Thursday evening at 6:45 in 101 FAC.

Pre-Med Club Discusses Euthanasia Question

Thursday night the Pre-Med Club had a group discussion led by Lois Speaker, Alva Garrett, and Adolph Kunen. The group discussed the controversial point of euthanasia, more commonly known as mercy killing.

At the last meeting Dr. Robert Wright, Maryville dentist, gave an illustrated talk using slides. Afterwards refreshments were served.

Mary Ann Thompson is a physical education major from Maryville. She was a Nu Gamma leader, and is in the "M" club. She is in the band, Girls' Choir, and Bainonian.

Fisher, Buttrill, Curtis

Peggy Fisher is an education major whose home is in Maryville. She is a member of Writers' Workshop and Student Council. A Nu Gamma leader last year, she was a rush week chairman for Bainonian this year.

Barbara Buttrill is an elementary education major from Decatur, Ga. She was a Nu Gamma leader two years ago. She is a member of Bainonian.

Emma Curtis is a physical education major from Friendsville. Vice-president of her class, she is a member of Vesper Choir and has been on Student Council. She was a Nu Gamma leader last year. She is a Bainonian.

Barbara Chubb is a sociology major from Athens, Pa. She is secretary of Student Council and is a member of Writers' Workshop, serving this year as editor of its publication, "Chips." She has been in Girls' Choir and was a soloist in the "Mikado." She was a rush week chairman for Bainonian. She is also a member of Y Cabinet.

Carol F. Moore is a history major from Waukesha, Wis. She is editor of this year's Chilhowean and is a member of Student Council. She was on the Echo staff for two years. She has been in Vesper Choir, and is an active member of Theta Epsilon, having directed several of its shows.

Council . . .

Elwood's new Athletic Board would have a smaller number of members, with the pep committee chairman elected directly by the student body. The pep committee would act as a subcommittee of the Athletic Board.

The coach would be required to explain the reasons for awarding or not awarding letters, although the Board would not be able to over ride his decision. Elwood explained that this must be so if Maryville is to continue as an accredited college. It is necessary for athletics to be under the control of the faculty if the school is to be approved.

Practical Value?

The question was brought up as to whether there is any practical reason for having an Athletic Board at all if it is simply to discuss matters without having any authority to take action. General opinion at Council was that such a board still has value.

Carol F. Moore asked why there is no provision for women's intramurals. She pointed out that Women's Varsity is usually thought of as intramurals, but really corresponds to men's varsity. There is no program for girls like that of intramural sports for men.

March 24 Meeting

As a result of his editorial column commenting on the Athletic Board in the last paper, Echo sports writer Jim Demer was invited to attend the March 24 Student Council. meeting where the matter was first discussed. Dartnell then appointed Demer a member of the committee which was to look into the matter of the Athletic Board.

Walt Elwood, chairman of the committee all year, also attended the meeting and spoke of the difficulties involved in getting its members together for work. Other committee members are Horace Beckwith, Bill Van Benthuysen, and Judy Burgos.

Elwood pointed out that what Demer said in the Echo was substantially what his committee would recommend. He was asked to have his report ready for presentation to Council the next week.

Church Meetings

Naomi Burgos reported that Student-Faculty Senate had decided that attendance at Westminster Fellowship and Highland Tuesday night meetings definitely count as town nights. There was no conclusion reached on the proposal for students to lead chapel occasionally.

WSGA president Mary Jim Bevan was asked to take care of clarifying for senior girls the question of where and how to sign out for trips to Knoxville or other cases involving special permission.

Another question raised was about the after-supper dances in the intramural gym. Opinions expressed were that attendance is poor because of the music played, the formal atmosphere, or perhaps the coming of spring. Pat Halstead said that the Social Board would discuss ways to improve the situation.

CHOIR . . .

Concerts In Indiana

The afternoon of May 28, the choir will appear before the Todd-Dickey Larger Parish in southern Indiana, and that night a concert is scheduled for the Hutchinson Memorial Presbyterian Church in New Albany. Sunday morning, the choir will perform in the morning worship service at the First Presbyterian Church of Seymour, followed by afternoon and evening concerts in Columbus and Connersville. May 31 it will sing at the First Presbyterian Church of Kokomo.

Presbyterian Group

From June 1 to 6, the choir will stay at Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., where it will sing before the National Council of Presbyterian Women. It is of interest to note that it wil be singing in the Music Hall at Purdue, which was designed by the same architects who designed Radio City Music Hall in New York, and is a replica of that building, seating more than 6,000 persons. The Council will be attended by several thousand Presbyterian women from all over the world.

The reason for these particular appearances in Detroit and West Lafayette is that during the year of 1954, a new women's dormitory at Maryville College is the object of the Opportunity Gifts for Christian Education by Presbyterian women. In a statement made by Dr. Lloyd for the "Echo," "The National Women's Organization, which represents more than 500,000 women, is anxious to have these student representatives from the College and because of the high reputation already made by the choir they are featuring it in their principal meetings in Detroit and on the campus of Purdue University."

Harter Announces Personnel

The touring choir is under the direction of Harry H. Harter, professor of music at Maryville. The business affairs are handled by Dr. Griffitts, who has scheduled the various appointments between Detroit and West Lafayette. The touring choir personnel consists of sopranoes: Sally Butts, Nancy Dodge, Martha Freeny, Kathy Garrison, Ruth Orr, Helen Seay, Alice Kelly, Nita Ann Baylor, Sheila Sutton, Maryel Vogel, and Ann Buckley; altos: Carolyn Beatty, Margaret Blackburn, Annie Laurie Cureton, Diana Evans, Dorothy Wells, Grace Benham, Lora Kinsinger, Jean Morgan, Liz Murphy, Anne Shimomura, and Emma Curtis;

Tenors: Jim Kesler, Harry MacCall, Sidney Tedford, Jim Daniel, Don Moffett, Doug Stubblefield, Perry Fuller and Jim Aikin.

Basses: George Caldwell, Bugs Ebright, Charles Cureton, Forrest Amidon, Malcolm Bonner, Jim Cummings, Bill Howell, Jim Laster, Bob Lorenz, and Bill Cunningham.

Lloyd To Attend

Dr. Lloyd will have a part in the program of the General Assembly in Detroit, and is one of the principle speakers at the National meeting at Purdue. Mrs. Lloyd is the leader of one of the discussion groups at Purdue, and it is expected that many other Maryville College people will be present at both these meetings.

Architects . . .

this respect is the beautiful aluminum and glass pattern in the contemporary form which corresponds to the narrow, verticle windows of traditional churches.

The screens and panels, added Schweikher, also carry out the rectilinear motive. He feels that a prime function of the church is to be a haven. To be such, a building must give a sense of composure and repose, not necessarily have an awe-inspiring effect. The chapel auditorium is designed to give this feeling and to seem not at all restless. Elting also suggested that the whole building has a great serenity.

Return for Dedication

Schweikher and Elting both intend to return for the dedication of the chapel on May 16. By then they expect the basic form of the building to be quite apparent. The finishing of surfaces should be complete; partitions should be intact. Still there are more details than meet the eye, and many of them need further attention. For instance, the men were unable to promise that the theater would be ready for full operation until June. "It is possible, but not promissable," said Schweiker.

No Comparison

Under no circumstances would the visitors compare the chapel with the FAC. "That is for the students and others to do for themselves," Schweiker insisted. He went on to say that there will for several years be those who are opposed to the chapel's style. But if it jars their senses it will accomplish a great deal in the direction of developing a "caring eye."

All the architects emphasized most especially the importance of Dr. Lloyd in the building of the chapel. Said Schweikher, "The story should be on that little man. He is the one who built the chapel, not we. We are simply the craftsmen. It is men like Dr. Lloyd who accomplish great things."

Rideout To Play Lead In 'Family Portrait'

Play In Theater May 14, 18

By Nancy Marshall

Nancy Rideout, a junior drama major from Buchanan, Va., will play the leading role in the commencement play, "Family Portrait." She will portray Mary, the mother of Jesus.

Some of the other members of the large cast are Walt Elwood, Joseph; Ethelyn Cathey, Naomi; Arthur Fryer, Juda; Joan McNaughton, Mary Cleophas; Anne Buckley, Reba; Ronald Pearson, Simon; Preston Bogia, James; Don Thiel, Mordecai; Martha Horton, Selima; Jim Laster, Eben; Bill Howell, Amos; Bob Brand, Mathias; Mary Virginia Ferguson, Customer; George Caldwell, Judas; Grace Guider, Hepzibah; Herb Cartlin, Appius Hadrian; Ruth Orr, Anna; Bob Read, Mendel; Bill Howell, The Rabbi; Betty Messer, A Woman of Jerusalem; Joanne Edwards, Mary of Magdala; Hershel Netherton, Nathan; Abby Crosby, Esther; and Lora Kinsinger, Beulah. Also a great number of extras, who have not yet been chosen, will take part.

Family of Christ

"Family Portrait" is a play in three acts written by Lenore Coffee and William Joyce Cowen. It is a "Portrait" of the family of Christ during the last three years of His life. The play tells of the resentment of His brothers because He left their carpentry business, of the capitalization on His popularity by tavern keepers, how the attitude of the fickle crowd changes from workshop to hatred, and ' of the feeling of disgrace which His family bears. Although the story is Biblical, the costumes are not because the spirit of the play is timeless and dateless.

In New Theater

The play will be presented on May 14 and on May 18. Both performances will begin at 8:30 p.m. 'Family Portrait" is the first play to be given in the new theater. Since the play demands four different sets, the facilities of the theater will be used to their utmost.

Those who are connected with MC dramatics feel that this is a great event. They hope to make it a memorable occasion, and special activities are being planned for intermission. Further details concerning the play will be announced later.

Dr. Raymond Paty To Talk Thursday For AGS Service

Dr. Raymond Ross Paty, chairman of the board of the Tennessee Valley Authority, will be the guest speaker at the special chapel service next Thursday morning recognizing the 12 new members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, MC scholarship society.

Home in Knoxville

Dr. Paty, who makes his home in Knoxville, served from 1942-46 as president of the University of Alabama, as chancellor of the university system of Georgia from 1947-48, and has been a member of the TVA board of directors since 1952. At present he is director of public relations for Rich's, Inc., of Atlanta.

He has attended and received degrees from various universities throughout this country. Dr. Paty holds a LL.D. and an A.B. from Emory University; A.M., Columbia University; LL.D., University of Chicago; and L.H.D., Birmingham Southern College. Also Dr. Paty is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Sigma Chi.

MC Honor Students

Maryville College students who will be recognized as members of Alpha Gamma Sigma include Carolyn Beatty, George Caldwell, William Dartnell, Janice Eakin, Joan Frei, David Gates, Glenn Gentry, Roderick McMillan, Homer Rickabaugh, John Strand, Henry Van Hassel, and Robert Young.

Nollner, Rogers Named To Head '55 Chilhowean

Rest Of Staff To Be Picked

Faith Nollner, sophomore English major from Carthage, will edit the 1955 Chilhowean. In the voting by the sophomore class Charles Rogers, chemistry major from Fort Smith, Ark., was chosen business manager.

Miss Nollner and Rogers have not as yet announced their staffs for the coming year, but expect to choose them by next week.

A member of the Echo staff, Miss Nollner has been a majorette and was editor of her high school paper. Rogers is a member of Athenian, sophomore class treasurer, and on the debate team.

Outgoing Chilhowean editor and business manager are Carol F. Moore, history major from Waukesha, Wis., and Ronald Jennings, business administration major from Salt Lake City, Utah.

Two '53 Alumni Become Ensigns

Two Maryville College alumni were among approximately 700 young men who received Naval commissions as Ensigns of the Line in ceremonies at the Navy's Officer Candidate School at Newport, R. I., recently.

They are Richard Y. Kerr of Fair Lawn, N. J., and Robert A. Mizelle from Arlington, N. J. Both are members of the class of 1953.

Kerr received his B.A. degree in Spanish at Maryville and was president of Athenian Society. Mizelle, who received a B.S. degree in business administration, was a member of Alpha Sigma.

Other Alumni

Two other MC graduates, Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Cameron of Eastman, Ga., and Etowah, have been appointed to evangelistic service in the Belgian Congo for the Presbyterian Church, U. S. Mr. Cameron, who will graduate from Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Ga., in May, is at present student pastor of the Panthersville Presbyterian Church in DeKalb County, Ga.

Mrs. Cameron, the former Wilma Davis, has taught in the public schools of Georgia. After going to Montreat, N. C., this summer, they will proceed to Belgium for study prior to their service in Africa.

CORRECTION

The Echo sincerely regrets the omission in the last issue of the names of Carol Cornell and Jim Hunt as senior attendants in the May Court at the May Day Festival.

Miss Cornell is a Spanish major from Groveland, Fla. She is a member of Balnonian and was president of Spanish Club last year.

Hunt, a psychology major from Uniontown, Pa., is treasurer of Student Council, a member of Athenian, and is a member of French Club. Last year he was vice-president of the student body.

Home Ec Styles To Show April 24

The home economics department will sponsor a style show next Saturday night at 8 o'clock in the Intramural Gym. Approximately 100 garments modeled by the girls who made them will be shown.

The garments will include examples of work in the various classes taught by Mrs. Sperry and Mrs. Fletcher: elementary dressmaking, costume design, textiles and tailoring, and advanced dressmaking.

Vocal Music

Vocal music is to be supplied by a group of girls from the music department, including Carolyn Beatty, a home economics major, who will be appearing for her fourth time in the show, which is an annual affair.

This will be an all-campus program, to which everyone is invited.

Fund Collects $1,439; Pledges Total $1,602

According to statistics, most of the money for the Fred Hope Fund, which was pledged Oct. 2 when the drive was launched, has been collected. Students and faculty made pledges totaling $1,602.15. To date $1,439.20 has been received, leaving a balance of $162.95 to be collected.

The fund will be used this year for a hospital in Ferozepore, India, headed by Dr. Dorothy Ferris, a Maryville graduate.

Persons who have not finished making payments can do so by seeing Mrs. K. P. Johnson in the Office Annex.

Eight MC Naval Reservists Learn Skills, Customs Weekly

If you have ever wondered about all the blue uniforms you see flashing through the dining hall every Monday evening, we have the 'inside' story now. They are worn by the reservists who are taking advantage of the Navy's offer to college young people who must face active duty, or who want interesting, practical experience in the naval forces. From MC we have Lois Tinklenberg, Jim Crawford, Charlie Rogers, Bob Duff, Darold Johnsonbaugh, Joel Fort, Tom Bugenhagen and Roger Clowes who are members of the unit.

At the base near Knoxville, they attend varied classes, train in Navy customs, routines and discipline. For two hours each week, they receive a full day's pay. After two weeks of boot camp—that's where Lois and Roger will be this summer—they may take a two-weeks cruise each following summer, again with pay. Charlie, Jim, and Darold plan to cruise from New Orleans to Portland, Me., with an extended shore leave in Portland this summer. Joel and Tom will probably go to Havana, Cuba, and it looks as if Bob will take to active duty after graduation.

When these reservists enter active duty in the Navy, they will receive the rating they have managed to attain during the resreve training period. And the experience and training is handy if they apply for commission as a naval officer.

Last year two Maryville graduates became ensigns—Hugh Walker and Paul Merwin.

So far as these people are concerned, the next time you see the blue around campus, you are seeing those who are sure they have found a "good thing."

Fine Arts Scholarships Awarded To Two Girls

On March 27 two scholarship awards were granted in music at the annual Fine Arts Division competition. Floice Smith of Knoxville won the piano award and Bobbye Carson of Madisonville received the voice scholarship.

Choir To Sing Harter's 'Requiem' On April 25

The 'Requiem for the Fall of Ninevah will be given on Sunday, April 25 at Vespers in the new Chapel.

This Requiem is an original composition by Harry H. Harter, director of the Vesper Choir. The text is taken from the book of Nahum, which tells of the decline and fall of the wicked city of Ninevah.

Soloists for the Requiem are: Edrie Sellick, director of the Women's Choir and Men's Glee Club, soprano; Lelia Leslie, voice teacher from Knoxville, alto; Richard Brothers, from the UT Fine Arts Division, tenor; and William Cunningham, a member of the MC Vesper Choir, baritone.

Katherine C. Davies, chairman of the Maryville College Division of Fine Arts, is the pianist.

Council Questions Representation

Student Council is planning to have a special committee look into the system of representation of different groups on the council as the result of a discussion about the Drama Board of Control.

George Caldwell, president of the Maryville College Playhouse, was at Council meeting both last week and this week at the request of president Bill Dartnell to make a report on the purpose and function of the Drama Board of Control with the end of trying to obtain Council representation for the group.

Long Discussion

Quite a lengthy discussion was held at last week's meeting after Caldwell had presented the organization and duties of the Drama Board. He brought out in the course of his report that student representatives on the Board are the officers of Playhouse and that the faculty Board members are appointed by the College president.

Some Council members then questioned the merit of Playhouse's having representation if other individual campus organizations did not. Caldwell's feeling was that Playhouse, through the Board, represented the drama activities, and thus was entitled to as equal representation as the Athletic Board and the Y's.

After more discussion—including comparison of Playhouse with the Vesper Choir—the general opinion of the Council was that the system of representation should be questioned.

Committee Appointed

Jim Kesler, at this week's meeting, said that since Caldwell had

Musicale Planned; Graulich Soloist

The Maryville College String Ensemble under the direction of Miss Katherine Crews wil present an after-dinner musicale at 7:15 this Thursday in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

John Graulich, violinist, will be the soloist in the group's presentation of Vivaldi's "Concerto for String Orchestra and Violin Solo."

Other Numbers

Other numbers on the program include "Eine Kleine Nachtmusick" by Mozart; "Adagio" by Handel; "Gavotto for Two Horns and Strings" by Martini (Judith Premo and J. B. Adams, French horns); "Two Minuets" by Brahms; and 'Waltz" from Tschaikowsky's "Serenade for Strings."

The String Ensemble was organized a year ago last December and has performed at Christmas Vespers, at various dinners, and on several school programs in Maryville, and has also performed in Oak Ridge. This will be its first public recital on the campus.

Members

Members of the musical group are: Violins—John Graulich, Margaret Jones, Esther Lerch, Richard Beard, and Virginia Lee Burk; Viola—Sidney Tedford; 'Cellos—Wayne Shelton, Thea Beard, and Marilyn Baumgartner.

There will be no admission charge to the musicale. The public is invited.

Easter Observances Slated For Week-end

Sunrise Service At 5:59 A.M.

By Faith Nollner

Easter will be observed this year with the usual services opening with the Sunrise Service at 5:59 in the Ampitheater of the College Woods. Dr. Lloyd will present the meditation "They Both Ran," and the Choir will sing the anthems "Christ is Arisen," "Resurrection," "The Lord Is Ris'n Indeed," and 'O Magnify the Lord with Me."

Dr. Lloyd will also present the meditation at the Vesper service and the Vesper Choir will sing.

Holy Week Observance

During Holy Week six different ministers on the College faculty have presented appropriate scripture selections and the Choir has sung Easter hymns. This observance was climaxed on Good Friday with meditations upon the seven words from the cross. Mrs. M. M. Cummings, instructor in Bible, presented a meditation on the first three words spoken: Arda S. Walker, instructor in history presented a meditation on the fourth and fifth words and Dr. E. R. Hunter a meditation on the last two words. The choir sang "Go to Dark Gethsemane" by Noble and "Tenebrae Factae Sunt" by Ingeneri.

An Original Drama

The annual Easter play will be presented tonight at 8 o'clock in the new chapel. The play, written by Joan Frei, is called "Another Easter," and has its setting in the present. The presentation is under arrangement of YM and YW. Annie Bucher is director.

Starred in the play are Preston Bogia, Dick Jensen, Bill Creamer, Nants Harvard, Ann Kelton, Faith Nollner, and John Graulich. There will be no charge for admission to this drama.

Kiefer, Fisher Chosen As YW, YM Presidents

Joe Gilliland, Herb Catlin Edit, Manage This Issue

Joe Gilliland, junior English major from Harriman, is editing this week's Echo. Acting as business manager is Herb Catlin, junior German major from Ogdensburg, N. Y.

It is customary for those interested in the position of editor or business manager to try out by taking charge of an issue of the Echo.

Committees Given For May Day

Committees have been announced for the college May Day Festival, scheduled for May 1 at 2:30 p.m. in the Amphitheatre in the College Woods.

The children chosen for this year's procession are Julia Ann Honaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Honaker, Jr.; and Sylvia Jane Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyden Patterson, who will be flowergirls, and Kerch Englehardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Englehardt, who will be crown bearer.

Co-chairmen in charge of the event are Elizabeth Murphey and Emma Curtis. Committees include: Publicity—Shirley Axley and Nancy Morrell; properties — Barbara Gregory, Joan Herschelman, Helen Davis, and Natalie Prinzing; Flowers and children—Helen Drinnen; court — Betty Watson; dances — Mary Ann Thompson; electrical work—Kay Leeth; and costumes—Sarah Carpenter, Rita Rosenbalm, Bettye Harrill, Nan Spivey, and Mary Kay Allison.

The presentation is sponsored by the women's Physical Education department.

Hanna Again Heads IRC

Margaret Hanna was re-elected president of International Relations Club at its last meeting. She has been head of the organization throughout this school year.

Other officers elected include Virginia Burk, vice president; Martha Jackson, secretary; George Hardy, treasurer; Maryel Vogel, Inter-Club Council representative; and Nancy Kotz, publicity chairman.

At the next meeting on Monday night, installation of new officers and recognition of new members will be held.

Other Officers Also Elected

Marilyn Kiefer and James Fisher are the new presidents of YW CA and YMCA following elections held recently. Both are junior English majors and both are from Pennsylvania. Miss Kiefer is from Easton, while Fisher's home is in Milesberg. Fisher is also vice president of the Southern Area Student Council of YMCA at the present time.

Other Officers

Other YW officers include vice president—Emma Curtis, junior physical education major from Friendsville; secretary— Jacqueline Speigner, sophomore music major from Enterprise, Ala.; treasurer—Grace Harrison, junior elementary education major from Landsdowne, Pa., and Nu Gamma chairman—Ethelyn Cathey, sophomore English major from Fort Smith, Ark.

YMCA's new officers are, vice president— Douglas Stubblefield, junior art major from Springfield; secretary—Malcolm Bonner, junior sociology major from Buckatunna, Miss.; treasurer—Herb White, junior English major from White Plains, N.Y.; and the new freshman representative on the student-faculty Advisory Board is Ronald Pearson, English major from Knoxville.

The new Y cabinets are in the process of being selected. Retiring YW and YM presidents are Carol Demler and Harold Black.

Davis Elected President Of Business Club

Bill Davis is the new president of Business Club following elections held Thursday night. Other officers include Jim Crawford, vice president; Gordon Van Pelt, secretary; and Bill Wheatly, treasurer.

Outgoing officers are president, Bob Clark; vice president, Don Craig; secretary, Jim Crawford; and treasurer, Luis Cardoza.

Societies Enjoy Fashions

Balnonian and Theta held a joint meeting last night for the purpose of having a fashion show. The show was held in the Fine Arts Center Amphitheater.

Girls from each society modeled clothes which they owned. Jean Morgan, Sandra Motsinger, Madlon Travis, and Shirley Armstrong were in charge of the meeting.

Echo Poll On Evening Dances Shows Few Students Attend

By Abby Crosby

"Are the dances after supper successful enough to be continued?" is a question which has been under heated discussion recently in the Social Board, Student Council, and general conversation.

In view of the general arousal concerning this rather minor, yet time-consuming for those involved, social event, the Echo staff has taken a poll of the students concerned, and are presenting the findings. The poll was taken of a representative cross section of the student body living on-campus, a proportionate number of each of the four classes being polled.

Many Don't Go

Of the students polled, well over half never go to the dances. One or two of them were not aware of the dances as to when and where they are held. The reasons given for never attending the dances include, "I go steady, and would rather be in the parlor," "not a bit interesting," "there are things more imortant," "would rather have a smoke than a dance," "don't like the stiff formality—boys grouped at the door and girls lined up along the wall."

Of the students who do go to the dances, only a small minority could say Yes with no qualifications. They said they enjoyed the relaxation, liked to meet new people, and didn't have a "whole lot else to do."

Occasional Dancers

The majority of those who go at all, go only occasionally. They all feel that the atmosphere is too formal and that they can afford time for only one or two evenings there each week.

The many suggestions resulting from this poll include two widely expressed opinions. The suggestion received oftenest was to move the dance away from the gym. The Alpha Sig or Athenian Hall were both suggested frequently, along with an idea of having it in the Y-rooms. One person said, "It ought to be in the Student Center.

Rickabaugh Wins Bible Oratorical Contest in Chapel

Homer Rickabaugh, senior philosophy major from Montoursville, Pa., won the finals of the T. T. Alexander Oratorical Contest held in chapel last week. Runner-up in the contest was Dick Jensen, freshman from St. Petersburg, Fla.

The prize is divided between the two finalists, the winner receiving 60 percent and the runner-up 40 percent. Rickabaugh spoke "Resurrection" and Jensen spoke on "Faith."

The annual contest is under the supervision of the Bible and Religion department, and is held alternately each year for men and women students. Last year's winner was Barbara Clark.

The fund for the contest was established by an anonymous donor, who asked that it bear the name of a Maryville College foreign missionary.

Preliminaries are held before the college Bible faculty, who select the finalists to appear in chapel. A list is prepared from which contestants must choose a subject.

Wells To Read April 26

Dorothy Wells will be the reader at Writers' Workshop's meeting on Monday, April 26, in Dr. E. R. Hunter's classroom. Joe Gilliland will criticize. Elections for new members are forthcoming.

"Chips," the magazine of the best writings of Workshop members is now being printed and should go on sale next week, editor Barbara Chubb said. Further announcement will be made concerning sale and price.

Athenian To Hear Jaynes

Mrs. Hugh Jaynes, college circulation librarian who is from Hawaii, will present a special program at the Athenian meeting tonight.

Regular business will also be taken up, president Dave Ramsey said. The meeting is at 6:15 in Athenian Hall.

An Easter Message

Tomorrow is Easter Sunday, a day celebrated by the Christian faith in remembrance of Christ's resurrection from the state of the dead after He had been betrayed, despised, and crucified. Easter is a time of triumph and gladness, offering hope and reminding us of the Christian belief that we always have a better life to expect.

We think it timely to remind you of the Easter season's meaning in this respect of hope and optimism. In these times we hear gloomy and pessimistic opinions, and become disheartened and sad overselves, frequently without a consideration of any other point of view. Fear has been a predominant impression throughout our nation in recent months and continues so.

We ned a new feeling of good will and cheer in the Christian manner because of this fear which many of us possess. We should put from our thoughts feelings of hatred, envy, and mistrust and consider a more kindly approach through understanding. Only in this way, we believe, will the problems of any group, nationwide or worldwide, come near a solution.

Individuals are the first ones who must practice this method before its effects can spread widely enough to bring a noticeable indication. By beginning to practice Christian relationships in our more or less ordinary lives, we are taking that necessary first step toward forming a public opinion of that sort.

And from another angle, our dedication to the highest principles while we as students are young, assimilating learning, and forming attitudes, will go with us when we leave school and step into a society where at least many of us will be in a public position.

Christian beliefs naturally inspire hope, and where hope is fear cannot dominate. On this Easter of 1954, we should each decide to use principles of tolerance, understanding, and patience as foundations for our efforts in making our world better.

The Highland Echo extends sincerest Easter greetings to everyone.

On Elections

In a few days the campus student body will be called upon to exercise its democratic privilege and vote in the all-campus elections for next year's student body officers. Already there has been much political talk on campus.

Student Government is becoming increasingly important at Maryville and therefore it is more important now than ever before to choose capable and well qualified people to lead you. Your vote should not be cast lightly.

In past years the campaigns have fallen below decent standards. Gossip and rumor have ruled the day, making intelligent voting impossible.

In past years, also, pressure groups and undercover cliques have raised their ugly heads at election time to make sure the "right" people were elected.

We are not condemning the temporary campaign groups that rally around a candidate. They are perfectly legitimate and necessary in any political campaign. They are out in the open and above board and are automatically dissolved after the election.

We do strongly oppose, however, the malicious operation of undercover groups permanently banded together for the purpose of controlling campus politics. This, we maintain, is definitely anti-democratic and has no place on the campus, let alone this one which professes to be Christian.

These groups do a great deal of harm to campus life in general. Any time you have a group who puts its own interests above those of the general good you have a dangerous situation.

The problem is a frustrating one, because it is almost impossible to weed such organizations out or to discover the candidate they are supporting.

With this situation in mind it becomes doubly important to vote with discretion. Each and every student should be aware of the fact that such groups do exist.

We call on you to think before you make up your mind whom you are going to support, and when you vote make sure your vote is in the best interest of yourself and of the college.

The Oppenheimer Case

The Atomic Energy Commission this past week announced it had suspended Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the brilliant scientist who was one of the key men in the development of the United States' atomic project. Dr. Oppenheimer is charged with affiliation with Communists, having Communist views, and hiring Communists for positions in the AEC. Investigations of the case are now proceeding in secrecy.

It is unfortunate that such cases have been brought to light recently because it is an indication of the precarious position which a public figure occupies in these times. Political views, associates, certain periodicals a man reads are too frequently regarded as proof that one is a "security risk" or a "subversive."

It is our hope that the investigation of the Oppenheimer matter will be conducted with fairness and without reckless, unproved accusations made with the purpose of trying to force the victim to step from his post.

Perhaps if this investigation is carried on minus the degration and bad taste which has come to be a characteristic of the infinite "investigating committees," it might be an indication of a return to fair principles. We certainly hope so.

Scots & Soda

By Bud Spalding

Doc Griffitts, turning off the lights for a Physics experiment, to his class:

"Now just because the lights are out, don't go to sleep."

An optimist? He's the golfer who runs up and looks in the cup every time he loses a ball.

Then there was the wise, all-knowing senior who was asked by a young freshman a Thursday morning long chapel, "What schedule are we on?" Replied the sagacious senior, "W schedule, sir."

Now that the originality is lagging in this thing, we now switch you to station ECHO. The time is February 25, 1950. Come in, Fran Moore. Scots and Soda is all yours:

THE GOOD OLE DAYS

When? When girls had three town nights a week. . . when boys couldn't converse with the gals from 8:20 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.—during classes . . . when segregation extended into chapel and the library. . . when dating was allowed only at sports events. . . and when the Dean of Women was called the Demon of Women.

Back to Fran Moore and Scots and Soda in just a minute. But first, a word from our sponsor.

Filler quoted from "Quote"

A little girl decided to draw a picture of the Nativity. First she drew the stable at Bethlehem, and Mary and Joseph, then a few shepherds and farm animals. After some consideration she added a roof to the stable, a tree, and a star.

Still the picture seemed incomplete. There was a lot of white space at the top of the paper. This was a problem, but she solved it. In large but neat letters she filled in the legend. "Drink Molson's Beer."

. . .Thank you, Miss Moore.

Before you let your applause die, harken to this worthy scrap: Now that the new monster—pardon, chapel—is near completion, it may be untimely to bring up this excerpt from an immortal work of an old grad. Nevertheless, it runs, in part,

"The chapel burned one April night.
Now buses leave from the chapel site."

GRAMMAR AS SUCH

We've found the most versatile word in the English language, called to our attention by one of these new freshman students. Naturally, it is the word 'kiss," which may be used as all parts of speech.

It is a noun, because it is common and proper.
It is a verb for it may be passive or active.
It is an adverb when it makes an explanation.
And an adjective, when it denotes attention and sense.
A kiss is a pronoun because "she" stands for it.
It's a conjunction in that it brings together and connects.
An interjection because it shows a sudden and strong emotion.
And last of all it is a preposition because it must have an object.

Speaking of Chaucer's use of the word "hairs" in place of our modern collective use of "hair," Dr. Hunter said, "Nowadays we say, 'I'm going to have my hair cut,' but of course in cases like mine, that leaves the question of what to do with the other one."

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Elizabeth Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Joan Frei

Comprehensives, special studies, and term papers don't leave much time for other reading, but the library has a number of new books which look interesting.

Max Shulman's "Barefoot Boy with Cheeks" is called a satire on college life. It may not be referring to college life exactly as Maryville knows it, but the reader may recognize the references to higher education at other institutions of learning.

"Mr. Speaker, Sir," by Graham Cawthorne, is about the British parliament. It is full of amusing anecdotes of events in that actually took place in the House of Commons.

There are in addition, numerous intriguing-looking volumes in French on the new book table in the library. They probably can provide hours of amusement for those few fortunate ones who can read them. Maybe translation of them can be a new special studies project.

Culture For The Week

Holy Week has enabled us to hear the choir every morning at chapel, and we shall hear them again early tomorrow at the sunrise service and then at Easter vespers.

Recitals at the Fine Arts Center go on as usual for all who care to attend, or as music students are required to be present.

The big event of the coming week is the presentation of an original composition by choir director Harry Harter. It is a requiem entitled 'The Fall of Nineveh," and from all reports should be well worth hearing.

Farther in the future is Brahms' 'A German Requiem," to be presented by the Men's Glee Club and the Girls' Choir, directed by Edrie Sellick. It will be given May 2 in connection with the dedication of the chapel.

Incidentally, the chapel seems to be making more progress every day. The theater, especially, has shown a great deal of improvement recently. Before we know it, we may even be able to write, "A Tree Grows in Maryville."

MOVIE OFFERINGS

For those who can spare the time next week from exams and tests of one kind and another, picnics, and other entertainment, the theaters in town are still showing movies.

At the Park on Monday there will be "The Great White Hunter," starring Gregory Peck. Tuesday and Wednesday moviegoers may see "Calamity Jane," with Doris Day and Howard Keel. Finally on Thursday and Friday the Park will show "Sea Devils," with Yvonne DeCarlo and Rock Hudson in leading roles.

Across the street on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday (in other words, most of the week) the Capitol offers "Saskatchewan," with Alan Ladd and Shelley Winters. Friday and Saturday movie viewers will get more for their money with a double feature at the Capitol, "Canadian Pacific," featuring Randolph Scott, and "Destroyers of the Sun."

Echo Forum

Dear Editor:

All of us are familiar with the initials YW and YMCA wherever they may appear, in small town, teeming city, or on the college campus. But are we fully aware of the spirit and purpose for which these letters stand?

Regardless of the locality, the members of the community, or the emphasis which the particular environment places upon the program of the local association, the third letter of the four is always the same—"C"—for Christian.

The city or small town YW or YMCA is different in many respects from its blood relative on the college campus, both in organization and objectives, and it is not the purpose of this writer to compare them in this article. However, a few words need to be said concerning the local associations here on our campus.

Any well-run organization, like a well- governed country or state, needs a written body of law or principles, stating the functions of the organization and its purpose or reason for existing. As an illustration, the following is quoted from the first article of the Maryville College YMCA Constitution:

The object of the Young Men's Christian Association of Maryville College shall be to unite all men of the College who desire to strengthen the spiritual life and influence of the College; to promote growth in Christian character and fellowship on the campus and in Christian work, particularly by and for the students; to train its members for active Christian service; and to encourage them to devote their lives to Jesus Christ where they can accomplish the most for the extension of His Kingdom.

In the last issue of the Echo, a letter was published, written by a member of our student body making broad generalizations and sweeping criticisms concerning the general effectiveness of the YW and YMCA program here on campus. Most of the statements made were of such a nature as to be obviously quite ludicrous. Several, however, merit comment and additional consideration.

First of all, any organization other than the Student Body itself, which included enough activities to "interest all the students on campus" would indeed be an unusual organization — an organization that has never existed for the simple reason that no one organization can ever hope to meet the needs of all members of a student body. That is why different clubs, societies and interest groups exist on a campus, to furnish an outlet for the various interest and abilities there represented.

Taking a particular organization as an example again, it is not the primary purpose of the Maryville

Sports Spotlights

"PRAYER CHANGES THINGS"

Every year in intercollegiate sports as well as in others there is a lot of talk of poor officiating, dissension among teammates which causes them to have a poor season, and many types of unpleasant talk of teams, athletes and coaches. Suppose everyone in the athletic field turned to prayer. Would that help things? Let's take a look at possibilities.

"Prayer changes things." A short prayer before a game, either whispered to oneself or said with the other members of the team will make one more humble which will lead to that person being more respective of his opponents, of the officials' decisions, of his teammates' play, and will keep some, those of superior capabilities, from ostentatious ways.

A Christian on the field of play is easy to recognize. It seems as if he is an easy-going chap, never arguing with an official's decision though he may at times question his interpretation of the rules, slapping his opponent on the back side in a friendly gesture after a play, helping an opponent off the ground after a block or a tackle, or other similar "out-of-the-way" gestures. Of course, a well-disciplined athlete bears the same qualities, but, more often than not, the two go together.

These actions will not take away from the "ruggedness" of an athlete's play. Big Don Moomaw, an All-American and Pre-Ministerial student at UCLA in '53, was the finest lineman of collegiate football in the country that year; yet, from reports, one will not find a finer Christian. There is Reverend Paul Richards, the pole-vaulting minister, who is one of very few athletes ever to clear the fifteen-foot mark in track history. These two prominent examples live by the Scriptures and thrive on prayer.

On the football field, body contact is very frequent and, at times, not too clean as tempers sometimes get a little "warm". Maybe a fist in the teeth or nose, a knee in the ribs, an elbow in the gut, a "clean" clip, or a face mashed into the dirt causes tensions to mount and tempers to reach the boiling point. This is the time that it takes more of a man to forget the incident with a feeling of pity instead of hatred for the offensive person than to use vulgar language or duplicate the dirty play to get even—" . . . Whosoever shall smite thee on they right cheek turn to him the other also."

Prayer not only helps the athlete in competition against others, but helps to build unity among him and his teammates—a feeling of oneness, of respect for each other. With such a feeling, the best possible teamwork is bound to come—no dissension, no envy—just a unit functioning as one to obtain a goal, striving toward it in a disciplined, Christian way. Dropped by the wayside are the individual stars, the "glory boys."

When an athlete prays, it shouldn't be just for himself, but for his team, for a good, clean game, for good competition and a willingness to accept the win or the loss with good sportsmanship.

A personal example:

A friend played three years of basketball in a nigh school of over 2000 students. Two of those three years he was one of the best players in the state, being named as one of ten players to the conference team which included the best Class AA schools in the state with one exception. During those three years, I saw that basketeer whisper a prayer before each game, and I can't remember a time that he argued with the officials unjustly or didn't play an excellent teamgame. His team didn't always win; he wasn't always top man in the scoring column; he accepted the losses as well as he did wins; he respected and gave the credit to the opposing player. He was a well-disciplined athlete, but he knew the value of prayer.

The coaches should be included in this presentation also, because they are the ones who have the greatest influence on the athletes. They coach them day after day and are their teacher. He sets the example. A coach who is constantly "hawking" the officials will have a team that is undisciplined in its attitude toward the officials.

In reference to one factor, that of officials, of games in home-and-home contests between schools, coaches should be aware of the Biblical passage: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." The passage doesn't read ". . . that men did to you," but "that men should do to you." It is evident in some high schools and colleges that if a coach believes he was slighted by partial officiating while playing at another school, he will return the "favor" by employing biased officials at his school. This doesn't happen often, but it shouldn't happen at all. A person with a Christian attitude and who believes in the Word would try to avoid partiality.

It is very true that prayer changes things in all cases and in every phase of life. A prayer would be a big factor in ameliorating a person's, coach's or team's sportsmanship and attitude toward the game.

An athlete has a right to ask for a certain amount of prestige, for glory is short lived, but remember the others—the teammates, the opponents—also.

A look at The Athlete's Prayer:

Be with me God and help me win
The contest of today
But let me hear with humble heart
The praises people say
Let me be perfect in my form
And let each aim be true
And let me take a certain pride
In everything I do
But fill my soul with honesty
And listen to my prayer
That everytime I play the game
I play it fair and square
Because the glory of this world
Can only last so long
And there is bound to be an end
To every magic song.
And every victory I gain
Belongs at last to You
Because You give me all the strength
To see each struggle through.

Notice the "hear with humble heart the praises. . ." The lack of humbleness is the downfall of many good athletes who fail to realize that they are or should be playing to help their team win, not just to boost their individual scoring, and, in most cases, he wouldn't do as well if it were not for the other four men.

"Take a certain pride" in the way you act on the court toward your opponents and the officials, and, mainly, control the emotions. Be honest with yourself as well as others. When you foul a person and know it, accept the fact and do not argue with the referee. When you lose, do not rationalize, but face the real, honest truth that the other team played better than you, otherwise, you wouldn't have lost.

"Play it fair and square" no matter what the win or loss may mean. Always abide by the rules and learn to accept them. Last but certainly not least is the phrase, ". . . every victory I gain belongs at last to You." A good example is again Paul Richards when he cleared the cross bar at the mark exceeding fifteen feet. The first thing he did after he hit the sawdust pile was to leap with joy and thank the Lord for giving him the strength and ability to accomplish the feat.

Let us never be too good to pray because we never are. Always remember: 'Prayer changes things."

Scot Baseballers Down U T Volunteers 4-1

By Bob Jackson

Behind excellent eight-hit pitching by Harry "Mighty Mite" Robinson the Maryville nine hung up their first victory of the current campaign on April 5 at the expense of the UT Volunteers, 4-1. The victory was not achieved without mishap, however, because in the sixth inning Scot third baseman Ken Younkers broke bones in his ankle sliding into second base.

The Vols' lone run came as a result of a miscue on a single over third base. The leftfielder let the ball hop by him, enabling the runner to circle the bases before it could be retrieved.

With one out in the fifth inning, Maryville scored their first run by means of a single by Bill Van Benthuysen, two walks, and an attempted triple steal. On the play VanBen was out at the plate and pitcher Robinson was trapped in a run-down between first and second, but during this action Chuck Dun scooted home from second with the tying tally.

In the visiting half of the sixth Robinson walked, but was out attempting to go to third on star-crossed Younkers' base hit. On the throw which nabbed Robinson, Ken dug in for second and made it safely, but on the slide his spikes caught in the dirt and the aforementioned injury resulted. After Younkers had been removed from action, Bill Dent went in to run for him and scored when cleanup batter Bob Shelton singled.

This was all the scoring until the Maryville half of the ninth when the locals added two insurance runs. Shelton hit safely for the third time during the contest, Lawson walked, and after a strike-out, VanBenthuysen strolled to load the sacks. Don Moore promptly singled to right field chasing Shelton and Lawson home with the third and fourth runs.

Shelton was the big man in the Scottie attack with three for four while Nick Mahalki got three for three to pace Tennessee. Left-hander Robinson, the Scots' mound mainstay, scattered the losers' hits effectively while striking out and walking four during the game. Using his sidearm crossfire very effectively, especially on lefthanders, Maryville's answer to Bobby Shantz proved to be the complete master of the big bad boys from Knoxville.

A return game is slated for Monday afternoon, when Coach Buzzy O'Neill brings his Vols to the local diamond.

Scots Flay King For Second Win, 9-1

Two boys bearing the monaker of William hammered out two home runs over the Honaker Field fence in left field to lead the Maryville baseballers to a 9-1 triumph over the King College nine last Friday afternoon on the Scots' diamond.

Center-fielder Bill Anderson lined one of pitcher Sommerville's fast balls into the football field bleachers with one teammate aboard to give the Scots a first inning lead of 2-0.

In the fourth inning, Bill Van Benthysen, Scot rightfielder, duplicated Anderson's feat with none aboard to move the Highlanders' lead to 3-0. Van Benthysen later followed with a double to take top batting honors for Maryville.

Slender Kyle Petree hurled the first five innings for the Scots and received credit for the win. He pitched very commendable ball, allowing King no runs and only a couple of hits.

Speedballer Bob Ramger took his turn on the mound in the sixth and wowed the fans with a blazing fastball which helped him to retire six men on strikes in the three innings that he pitched. Jack Crouch, pitching the last inning for the Scots, gave up the only King run when Anderson misjudged a fly with men on base.

Line score:

King	000	000	001	1	6
Maryville	201	101	22x	9	11 4

Sommerville, Stoessel (6) and Hollar; Petree, Ramger (6), Crouch (9) and Moore. W—Petree, L—Sommerville.

MARYVILLE TENNIS SQUAD TRIMS MILLIGAN, TENN. WES.

By Jim Demer

On April 8th the Scots traveleled to Johnson City to take on Milligan College in a tennis match. The Scots from Maryville took all nine matches, losing only one set in the number four singles. Jerry King lost his first set 1-6, but came back to win over Gullmore 6-4, 6-3. Marshall England and Bob Nier were impressive as they each scored love victories over their opponents.

Last Wednesday the Scots went to Athens to meet Tennessee Wesleyan Junior College. Once again the netmen took a nine-to-nothing win, this time without losing a set. Captain John Anderson, playing in the number three spot, beat Gerald Gulley, 6-0, 6-0.

The Rains Came

Rain interrupted the U-T Maryville return match on April 6th. With U-T leading 3-1, the Scots were making a better showing than in their first match. At the time, both Sonny Shackleford and Bob Nier had a chance to win in the remaining singles matches. No doubles matches were completed.

Maryville does well against teams in their own class, but against teams like U-T they are hard pressed to win. Tough matches are in store for the Scots as they meet Carson-Newman, East Tennessee State, and the University of Chattanooga in the near future.

Summary:

Maryville vs. Milligan

Singles: Buser (M) beat Roush (Mil.), 6-1, 7-5
England (M) beat Fox (Mil.), 6-0, 6-0.
Anderson (M) beat Williams (Mil.), 7-5, 6-2.
King (M) beat Bullmore (Mil.), 1-6, 6-4, 6-3.
Shackelford (M) beat Hughes (Mil.), 6-3, 6-3.
Nier (M) beat Hund (Mil.), 6-0, 6-0.
Doubles: Buser-England (M) beat Roush-Fox (Mil.), 6-1, 6-2.
Anderson-King (M) beat Gullmore-Williams (Mil.), 6-2, 6-3.
Nier-Shackelford (M) beat Hund-Hughes (Mil.), 6-4, 6-4.

Maryville vs. Tenn. Wesleyan

Singles: Buser (M) beat Kirk (TW), 6-3, 6-1.
England (M) beat Ledford (TW), 6-1, 6-2.
Anderson (M) beat Gulley (TW), 6-0, 6-0.
King (M) beat McQuain (TW), 6-1, 6-4.
Shackelford (M) beat Watkins (TW), 6-3, 6-3.
Nier (M) beat Hayes (TW), 6-1, 6-0.
Doubles: Buser-England (M) beat Kirk-Gulley (TW), 6-3, 6-3.
Anderson-King (M) beat Ledford-McQuain (TW), 9-7, 6-3.
Nier-Sackelford (M) beat Watkins-Hayes (TW), 6-3, 7-5.

Campbell Seeks Army Team Post

Jimmy Campbell, former ace shortstop for the Maryville College Scot baseball team, is trying out for the second base position on his crack regimental team at his station in Germany where he is serving with the Army occupation troops.

It is reported that Jimmy is showing standout fielding skill, as he did on the Scot diamond last year and the years previously, and is hitting the ball well. From all indications, the report said, Jim has won the position from the other tryouts. It must be a very good team if Jim is being pressed considerably for a starting berth.

The news came from Herb Palmer, former guard on the Scot football team in '51 and captain of the wrestling team the same year. He wrestled in the 177-lb class in his senior year. Palmer is in Jim's regiment in Germany.

Campbell, who played four years of baseball here at Maryville, showed the local fans some fine baseball last year and played with the Maryville-Alcoa Twins last summer before going into the Army. Jim was also Honorable Little All-American in football last year for the Scots, being nominated and elected mainly for his superb punt returns. He also was a prominent member of the Scot basketball team.

Thanks to Miss Jessie Heron for the letter from Palmer which enabled us to publish this story.

Intramurals....

At the end of the fourth week of the Intramural Softball League, the Alpha Sigma Hammers and the Athenians are tied for the league lead with three wins apiece and no losses for either.

Following the Hammers and Athenians is the Pre-Min team at a close pace, having a record of three wins and one loss. The Diablos Rojos, who have played the most games to date fill in the Number Three spot with three wins and two losses.

The Athenians dropped the Rojobs into third place Tuesday afternoon when they dumped them by a score of 8-3 and also pushed the Athenians into a first place with the Hammers. The Pre-Mins downed the Hapless Doobers on the same afternoon by a score of 19-4.

On Wednesday afternoon, the Pre-Mins moved into undisputed second place as they trimmed the Boxers, 13-4. Thursday afternoon the Dobers and YMCA battled to see who would climb out of the cellar, and the Y inherited "hapless" label as they gave way to a superior(?) Doober squad, 22-4.

Standings:	W	L
Hammers	3	0
Athenians	3	0
Pre-Mins	3	0
Diablos	3	2
Smokies	1	2
Doobers	1	3
Boxers	0	3
YMCA	0	3

Maryville Loses To L.M.U., 8-6

Committing thirteen errors afield, Coach Lombe Honaker's base ballers all but gave LMU an 8-6, ten-inning victory on Maryville's diamond Monday afternoon.

Lefty Harry Robinson hurled a commendable game, but it proved ineffective because of the poor support.

Joe Doaks Plays In Faltering Five

(By Charlie Williams, reprinted from a 1949 Echo)

Joe Doaks, 613 Carnegie Hall, awoke with a start. Gad, this was the day! Poor Joe had known for some time that this day was coming, and he had made plans. He was ready to go.

Arter the day's classes were over, he returned to his room. He wrote his parents and girl friend (the one back home) a letter, propped a will leaving his suit to his roommate on the table, donned his gym clothes and sallied forth. Today, Joe's Faltering Five basketball team was starting the intramural season against the Muscle-bound Maulers.

At the gym, Joe was met by his team captain who welcomed him with a what-a-pity-and-so-young-too expression on his face. "Joe," he said, "You're new at this game, so you'll guard their smallest man. His name's Sluggo McGurk. That's him over there. Go on over and get acquainted."

Joe ambled over, looked at Sluggo's seven-foot, eight-inch 267-pound frame, and promptly regretted his part in the whole thing. He shook hands and went back to his team, absently counting his fingers.

It was game time! The teams lined up and the referee tossed the ball. As the ball went up, Joe went down before Sluggo's body block. He picked himself up, murmuring, "I thought they outlawed the flying wedge," and returned to the fray.

Up the floor! Down the floor! Ride the backboard! Switch off! Block that man! Once Joe was sqeezed between two opposing men, but returned to the struggle thinking, "Oh, well, I could use a few more inches in this game anyway."

Hit 'em, bite 'em, smash 'em, crash 'em, YEA, team! Our hero was in there on every play. For 28 minutes the battle raged. Just as the final whistle blew, Joe was fouled. "OK, Joe, here's your chance to be a hero!"

He staggered up to the foul line. With bleary eyes he sighted on the rim. With every bit of his waning strength, he tossed the ball. It was good! The game was over and the Faltering Five had won! The score was 113 to 112—all the points being scored on foul shots.

Later, Joe was visited in the infirmary by one of his friends. As the friend surveyed the black eye, his bruised ribs, his skinned knee, and his sprained ankle, he was movd to ask, "Joe, why do you do it?" Our down-but-not-out hero smiled bashfully and replied, "Aw, shucks! I just figure a fellow owes it to himself to keep in shape."

Comps And Co-ops Set For This Week

Senior Comprehensive examinations and the National Co-operative Tests for Sophomores will be held on the afternoons of Tuesday and Wednesday, April 20 and 21, beginning at 1:30.

On those days Seniors are excused from attendance at Chapel and all classes. There will be no classes on those afternoons, but morning classe will meet on regular schedule.

Comps Required

Comprehensives are given each Senior as a part of his required procedure in ualifying for the degree. These examinations deal with subject matter of the student's major field and the prescribed related subjects. The design of these examinations is (1 to encourage and develop retentiveness throughout the student's entire college course, and (2 to test the student's ability to integrate the subject matter of his field.

All Sophomores registered either this or both semesters this year are required to take a national cooperative test. The only exception is if they have taken it before. This is part of the National Sophomore testing program in many of the better colleges of America.

Check Sophomore Progress

The purposes of this test, which will be given in the new Chapel to all Sophomores, are (1) to enable the college to check on the standards and qualities of its own work, (2) to compare this class with previous ones, and (3) to make it possible for the college and the student to evaluate his own progress as compared with his own class and Sophomores everywhere.

The results of the test will be available to the students themselves next fall.

Frosh Hold Debate Meet

Last week debate teams representing various freshmen English classes debated the question, "Resolved: That Congress Should Adopt the Bricker Amendment." The debate was sponsored by Pi Kappa Delta and the preliminaries were judged by its members. The final debate meet, held on the evening of May 8 was judged by Jessie Heron, Arda Walker and Newell Witherspoon.

Awards for best individual debaters went to Graeme Sieber, first place; Lavinia Lee and Isabell Easley, runners-up. Awards for most outstanding teams were captured by Bob Finertie and Charles Gale, first place; Lavinia Lee and Ellen Colwell, second.

Pianists, Singers Perform In Student Recital

A student recital was given Tuesday afternoon, April 13.

Performers were Maryel Vogel, Myrna Ginaven, and Eugene Jenkins, pianists, and Albert Rule and Mary Brasfield, vocalists. Accompanists for the singers were Sheila Sutton and Sylvia Liles.

Maryel Vogel played Preludes, Op. 28, Nos. 1, 9, 10, and 21, by Chopin. She also played, as a duet with Myrna Ginaven, "Scaramouche," by Milhaud. Eugene Jenkins played two numbers by Prokofeill, "Gavotte, Op. 12, No. 2," and "Visions Fugitives, Op. 22, No. 6." Also he played a Polka, "The Golden Age," by Shostakovitch.

Mary Brasfield, soprano, sang 'Eye Hath Not Seen," from "The Holy City," by Gaul, and Albert Rule, tenor, will sing "N'appari tutta amore," from "Martha."

Forum . . .

College YMCA to have enough activities to interest all the members of the student body, nor yet is it the primary purpose of the association to have enough activities to interest all the men of the college, but as stated in the constitution, to unite all the men of this campus who are genuinely interested in four basic and specific objectives of the Christian life. This is made possible in a number of ways to all who are interested in partaking of the work and program carried on by the various committees which exist within the general framework of the association structure. The YMCA cabinet includes the following committees: Artist Series, Athletics, Community, Devotion and Discussion, Fellowship, Inter-racial, Missions, "M" Book, Maintenance, Publicity, Radio, Worship, and through the student help program of the college, a major service to the student body in the "Y" Store.

Within these committees lies the opportunity for all who are interested in subscribing to the spirit and purpose of the YMCA, to find a satisfying and stimulating experience through active participation.

That the YW and YMCA are limited entirely to a "purely evangelistic program" is of course ridiculous. A look at the above committees and the activities in which the YW and YMCA participate throughout the year such as the freshman welcoming and freshman discussion program, the faculty reception, watermelon pow-wow and hen party, the "Y" hikes, World University Service, etc., clearly shows that such a statement as appeared in the last Echo was a complete distortion of the existing facts.

Though not centered exclusively on the spiritual, this side of the associations' program is certainly not to be neglected. Indeed this is one of the vital contributions that the YM and YWCA do make to student life here on the campus; filling the spiritual and inspirational needs met by our various church fellowships at home, but without the divisiveness that would result from the existence of such denominational groups on a small campus such as ours. If the 'C' is to be kept in Christian, certainly one of the best means to this end is through the medium of the spirit, i.e., through communion with and worship of God. If any apparent emphasis in program is shown, should it not be to meet this need, and in keeping with one of the basic principles and major policies on which Maryville College itself was founded, namely, that of "positive Christian emphasis and program?"—

Lest it be implied that there is no room for improvement in the YW and YMCA, may it be said that there is always room for improvement in any association and that many students in previous years have searched for this very thing—constructive ways to make the total program of our respective associations more effective and applicable to the spirit and purpose of the associations themselves and to the needs of the community around us. Many additions and improvements have been made. Many more are needed certainly. But as any fully informed person knows, this "malady" or need for improvement, is not a problem peculiar to the YW or YMCA alone, but is campus-wide reaching into all organizations. That improvement is needed throughout the entire campus program is generally agreed upon. How to achieve this is something else again. It is one thing to sit back and simply criticize a program, and something quite different to suggest positive and concrete ways for improvement.

A questionnaire has been circulated in the past few days for just such a purpose. Through the thoughtful and careful answering of these questions we of the YW and YMCA sincerely hope that our program can be made more effective and applicable to the student situation here on campus.

"A goal worthy of some thought and work?"—most assuredly. But a goal not to be achieved by bickering and petty criticism, but a goal to be attained through mutual help and cooperation in the love and spirit of Jesus Christ.

Hal Black

Dear Editor,

Y has now elected its officers for the coming year. It is now evaluating its past work and planning for the future. Since Y should play a vital part in the life of every Maryville College student, we are always grateful for any comments and suggestions as to how we can improve and expand the organizations. Our desire for closer contact and participation by each student has already led us to take definite steps to find out each students' ideas and attitudes toward Y. Evaluation sheets have been distributed for this purpose.

The symbol of the YWCA is a balanced triangle—spirit, mind, body, with Christ at the apex. Our present program attempts to achieve this balance through its committees. The spiritual is mainly emphaiszed in the Worship and Devotions Committees. The mental side is developed through community service, the missions, Artist Series, educational programs, and Y Radio. The physical aspect is reached through our social program, the House Committee, and Barnwarming. Y helps students to adjust to college life through the M Book, the Big-Little Sister and Nu Gamma programs. Our Sunday meetings are a drawing together of this triangle. Three typical programs have been—current events, the Jewish religion, and the Knoxville Quartet. It seems evident though Christ is and should be integrated into this entire program that Y has not been making a one-sided appeal.

The need to expand this program to more fully meet the needs and interests of a larger group of students is realized; however, the success of such a program depends on each individual. As an all-campus organigation, the Y deserves and appreciates your concern and cooperation. We sincerely hope that each girl will always feel free to express her criticism and suggestions so that an even stronger integration of students may be realized in the YWCA.

Sincerely yours,
The YWCA Cabinet.

Dancing . . .

Not many people sit at the tables, and it wouldn't take the fellows five minutes to shove them back and set them up again. Then we'd be right there in a "dancy" atmosphere—pleasanter, more crowded, food, ping-pong, or cards, if we got tired of dancing."

Lengthen The Time

The other chief suggestion received was to lengthen the time of the dances, but to have them only once or twice a week. "For the people who work in the dining hall," reported one waitress, "it just isn't worthwhile to run over there every night for only one or two dances." The ideas for making these dances less frequent, but longer also included the necissity of making them more interesting, by introducing a little more variety. Several mixers were suggested, such as a balloon dance, a broom dance, a shag-drag, a sock hop, and ladies' choice. A few people suggested an occasional square dance; and there was a practically demand for new records.

Should Follow Suggestions

Most of the students polled, especially those who attend the dances occasionally, seemed to feel that if these preceding suggestions were followed, it would arouse an interest and consequently draw more students. Eventually, then, the dance would resume its lost position in the campus social life.

Council . . .

presented his report with explanations to the Council, the group should thank him and pass on to consideration of further business. Kesler's motions to thank Caldwell formally and then for the president to appoint a special committee to investigate representation on Student Council were both passed. Dartnell did not indicate any specific time for report or action of the committee.

Campaigns and other preliminary actions for all-campus student elections will begin this coming Wednesday, and actual voting will begin following that, elections committee head A. C. McWilliams announced at the Wednesday night meeting.

Council decided last week that it would be better to hold the elections during the week of comprehensives rather than the first week in May. Officers of the student body, Athletic Board, the classes, and the WSGA will be elected.

Town Night Violation

One Town Night violation was reported this week. The case was one of a senior girl who came in two minutes late Saturday after having been to Knoxville with a date. The monitor reported that the girl had stopped to look in at the dance before going to the dormitory to sign in. Council, after short discussion, voted to reduce the maximum four-week penalty to two weeks.

Remaining Business

In other business, the group, upon recommendation by president Dartnell, decided to postpone the matter of repairing worn paths on the campus until after comprehensives. Jim Kesler was commended for his job of reorganizing and clearing out the Student Council file in the Office Annex. Council secretary Barbara Chubb passed out mimeographed sheets showing official form for the reports to comprise the Book of Law, which Council is compiling.

Robert Frank To Present Commencement Address

Moore To Preside Over Next Year's Students

By Shirley Armstrong

Carol F. Moore, a history major from Waukesha, Wis., was elected president of the Maryville College student body for the coming year, 1954-55, in the recent student government elections.

Elizabeth Murphey, a physical education major from Springfield, was elected vice-president, and Harry McCall, a political science major from Morris Plains, N.J., was elected social board chairman.

Miss Moore was editor of the 1954 Chilhowean, served on the student council, particularly on the committee for installing coke machines in the girls' dormitories, was a skit night chairman for Theta Epsilon, as well as holding other offices and positions in various organizations on campus.

Her platform consisted of efforts to inaugurate an extension of the senior Sunday dating privilege to all classes, an honor system for tests and examinations, an activities fee which would give to each student admission to all Playhouse productions, the Chilhowean, and give student government a working fund of approximately $500., in addition to what is now offered, an intra-mural program for girls, an extension of the application method to include other fields, and membership in the National Student Association (Student Council on a national basis).

Miss Murphey is a member of the vesper choir, the Women's M Club, Theta Epsilon, and YWCA.

MacCall, too, is a member of the vesper choir, has served on student council, and is a member of Alpha Sigma.

Committee Promotes Echo Staff Members

At a meeting of the Publications Committee this week members of the Echo staff were promoted for the coming year.

Rising seniors promoted were Abby Crosby, Jim Demer, and Joe Gilliland. One sophomore, Jim Hopkins, was added to the staff. Next year's juniors promoted were Shirley Armstrong, Jim Hopkins, Bob Jackson, Malcolm King, and Bud Spalding.

Three freshmen were approved as additions to the staff. They were Nancy Marshall, Marian Hina, and Bill Deerfield. Rising sophomores promoted were Pat Brendle, Bill Deerfield, Marian Hina, Nancy Marshall, Gail Purdy, Barbara Wilkie, and Ray Sammons.

Election of next year's Echo editor is to take place next week. The business manager will also be chosen in the near future.

Y's To Retreat May 7, 8 To Lake

The Y Retreat—an outing into the mountains the YMCA and YWCA take each year—is scheduled this year for May 7 and 8 at Laurel Lake.

The retreaters, made up of old and new cabinet members and new and old officials of the organizations, along with any interested advisers, group throughout the week-end to discuss and evaluate the past year's work and to plan work for the coming year's activities. Also under consideration will be the theme around which the presidents of the organizations plan to build their whole program.

Saturday morning, the various cabinet meetings will discuss the questionnaires recently filled out by the student body.

Saturday afternoon will see Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Pieper, Mr. A. S. Bushing, and Mrs. Margaret M. Cummings leading discussion groups.

Experimentals Give 'Intruder'

The Intruder, a one-act play by Maurice Maeterlinck, was given last night by the Experimental Theatre. The entire cast created a mood of the mysterious, with their dark costumes, coupled with the dark scenery.

The blind grandfather, played by Bill Deerfield, was a central part of the play, with the rest of the cast trying to calm the old man who was feeling a presence coming into the room, which no one else could see, much less feel. At last the Grandfather felt the presence leave, and immediately the people received word that the daughter of the family had just died. All the built-up suspense was designed to make the audience feel as though Death were truly sitting beside them.

The play cast, along with Bill Deerfield as the grandfather, consisted of Tony Clark as Father; Sarah Davis, Nancy Marshall, Ginger Colwell as the three daughters; Gavin Douglas as the Uncle; Elaine Bowman as the servant; and Barbara Clark as the Sister of Mercy.

Students To Give Recital Tuesday

Music students will present one of the regular student recitals on Tuesday afternoon, May 4, at 4:30 in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Mary Brasfield, organist, will play, in partial fulfillment of her sophomore requirements, "Diferencias sobre el canto del Caballero" by Cabezon; "Aus meines Herzens Grunde segen" and "Vom Himmel hoch," both by Karg-Elert; and Bach's "Fantasia and Fugue in C Minor."

Elizabeth Murphy, soprano, will sing 'La cieca" by Ponchielli, accompanied by Martha Jackson. Sidney Tedford, will present "By the Waters of Babylon," by Dvorak, with Jane Robison as accompanist.

Louise Ogden, pianist, will play Chopin's "Preludes, Op. 28, Nos. 13, 15, 18." Shirley Leever, soprano, will sing Rosa's "Selve, voi che le speranza" and Beach's "Ah, Love, But a Day!" with Shirley Sharp as accompanist.

Eugene Jenkins will play Rachmaninoff's "Prelude, E-Flat Major, Op. 25, No. 6," and Myrna Ginaven, pianist, will present Chopin's "Nocturne, Op. 15, No. 1" and Turina's "Sacre-Monte."

Movement on Foot To Nominate Lloyd Moderator

Within the past two weeks, stories in daily newspapers and other relevant publications throughout the United States have indicated that MC president Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd is being nominated for Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, USA.

Recently the Maryville College Alumni Magazine carried an article by Joe C. Gamble, Maryville attorney and member of the college Board of Directors, telling of the move toward Dr. Lloyd's nomination. Here, with permission from Mr. Gamble, is the article:

"As this issue goes to press, there comes word of a spontaneous movement springing from several widely scattered points in the country, to place Dr. Lloyd's name in nomination as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA. The following is a reprint from the April 12 issue of "Monday Morning", a magazine for Presbyterian pastors.

'In preparation for the year of decision with regard to the reunion of three great Presbyterian denominations in the the United States, the General Council of the Presbytery of Union, Synod of Mid-South, has taken action to present the name of the Reverend Ralph Waldo Lloyd, D.D., LL.D., of Maryville, Tennessee, in nomination for Moderator of the 166th General Assembly. Dr. Lloyd is chairman of the Joint Negotiating Committee of the three churches which has prepared the present Plan of Union. He has been a member of the Permanent Commission on Interchurch Relations throughout the period of negotiations with the Presbyterian Church in the US and has been chairman of the Commission since 1941.

'Dr. Lloyd is a native of Tennessee and is a graduate of Maryville College in that state. He served as pastor of churches in In-

Seniors To Attend Breakfast At Lloyds'

President and Mrs. Ralph Waldo Lloyd have sent out invitations to the members of the graduating class to attend a breakfast in their honor at Morningside, home of the Lloyds.

Dates have been set for May 3, 4, and 5. Time is 7:30 a.m.

Nollner Announces Staff

Faith Nollner, 1955 Chilhowean editor, has announced her staff for the coming year. Copy editor will be Sadie Davis. Tom Paton will serve as sports editor. Lynn McMillan will be class editor, and staff assistant will be Dee Woods.

Museum Contains Numerous Strange Objects, Collections

By Faith Nollner

Yes! We have a museum! So you're surprised? No more than I was when I found it out. Wait a minute; I believe I did, once in the dim and distant past, hear about a museum, or something like that. I was much too busy to investigate, though, and so it languished, just waiting to be discovered. Now I've found it, I'll give you directions and let you get the surprise I felt when I first walked in: go in the library door, turn left; before you get to the first table, turn right, go through another door and there you are. Simple, enough, isn't it? But it wasn't that easy when I tried to find someone who knew something about it. After asking all around, I finally ended in the Student Help office, talking to Miss Miles, who gave me some very good information.

Dim and Distant Past

There is no definite date which can be quoted as the beginning of said museum. Contributions just started coming in from alumni who had migrated to the far corners and wanted to show the old place where they had got to. In this way have been acquired articles from China, Japan, Persia, India, the Philippines, Turkey and on and on.

Prexy I

In one case, carefully preserved, is a communion set used by the Rev. Isaac Anderson in his early pastorate. (For those who don't know, the Rev. Anderson is our worthy founder.)

There is also a collection of rare books which were from Dr. Lamar's private library. Dating as far back as 1810 is a series of bound magazines, the Quarterly Review.

Mother Earth

Donated by above is a rather large geological collection of doubtful value (I'm no judge). The arrowheads prove quite interesting, though. Perhaps a hundred types are together. It would prove interesting to find out what each kind was used for.

May Program To Use Theme Of Cinderella

By Barbara Wilkie

"The Story of Cinderella" will be presented as a feature of the annual May Day festival this afternoon at 2:30 in the amphitheatre of the college woods. The playlet, adapted by James L. Shields, will feature Ethelyn Cathey as narrator, Roberta Myers as Cinderella in Rags and Kip Spong as Cinderella in Finery.

Others in the cast include Stepmother, Jo Brooks; Dracella, Margaret Gilmore; Prudella, Shirley Leever; Fairy Godmother, Lavinia Lee; Town Crier, Sue Burton; Prince, Ann Daniel; Prime Minister, Alva Garrett; Court Personnel, folk dance class; and Young Ladies of the Court, folk dance class.

Queen Court

The processional will feature Carol D. Moore, queen, and Jack Maxwell, king, with Margie Haynie, Dick Jensen, Mary Nichol, Harold McIntosh, Jean Morgan, Bill Davis, Carol Cornell and Jim Hunt attending.

The traditional May Pole dance will be performed by Mary Kay Allison, Shirley Armstrong, Emma Lou Arnold, Sarah Carpenter, Lila Crane, Carolyn Dyer, Martha Jackson, Marian James, Lavinia Lee, Esther Lerch, Charlotte Linde, Virginia Marshall, Ruth Nelson, Laura Teague, Ann Yater, and Jean Van Buskirk.

Dancers

Ballroom dancers include Nancy Barton, Marilyn Baumgartner, Mildred Beard, Ruth Billingsley, Sandra Booth, Elaine Bowman, Sue Brown, Virginia Burk, Joan Davis, Nancy Dodge, Jane Gore, Clara Gowans, Helen Hasenstab, Elizabeth Henderson, Betty Nell Hitch; Yvonne Huskey, Helen Jackson, Margaret Jones, Jean Kemper, Nancy Kirk, Elizabeth Knott, Nancy Kotz, Shirley McNiell, Clara Minarik, Tommy Moose, Wilma Morton, Jane Rusk, Polly Trnavsky, Mary Ann Worley, MarJean Fredrickson;

Barbara Beavers, Jean Dildy, Peggy Graham, Elizabeth Howze, Carol Lacy, Shirley Mayfield, Alice Rowe, Evelyn Blackburn, Alice Draving, Pat Hall, Jane Hussey, Beverly McCarty, Ann Shimomura, Janet Whitmore, Pat Brendle, Katie Dyche, Nants Harvard, Nancy Jones, Mary Morrell, Willie Sutton, Margaret Wilkinson, Sara Min Davis, Elizabeth Enloe, Elizabeth Hoaster, Katherine Kerns, Gayle Martin, Louise Ogden, Madlon Travis, and Sally McKee.

The festival is sponsored by the Women's Physical Education Department under the direction of Mrs. Verton M. Queener and Mrs. William O. Largen. In the event of rain, the program will be postponed until Monday.

Council To Send Carol F. Moore To Convention

Student Council Wednesday night named next year's student body president Carol F. Moore to go as delegate from Maryville to a state collegiate association convention to be held at Carson-Newman College May 7.

Miss Moore will also enter as a contestant in a "Miss Campus" contest at the convention if she can do so without appearing as chosen entrant of the entire school.

Other elected officers will be asked to attend the convention also, it was indicated at the meeting. Council president Bill Dartnell is not attending because he plans to remain on campus for the High School Day program that Friday.

Invited to Meeting

A letter inviting Dartnell and Barbara Chubb, council secretary, to the convention requested that Dartnell be co-chairman of a group on campus social life, and that Miss Chubb act as secretary of a similar group on campus religion. The letter was read at the meeting.

In other business, council campused a Town Night offender one week for being a minute late. Maximum penalty is four weeks, and council reduced the period of time because of the nearness of the end of the semester.

One member said the girl was late because she was "gauging her time by the couples on the porch." "Good watch," commented president Dartnell.

Conduct Poor

Also in connection with Town Night, Dartnell said he had been told by the dean of students that the dean thought student conduct

German Club Elects Next Year's Officers

Last Monday elections were held to decide who would be next year's German Club officers. The members chose Ronald Morley for president, Guy Selander for vice-president, and Marion Jones for secretary. Morgan Biggs was re-elected to the office of treasurer.

Officers being replaced are Iantha Peterson, president; Michael Connolly, vice-president; and Barbara Cech, secretary.

There will be no more meetings of the Club this semester.

China Missionary To Speak In Chapel

The Rev. John D. Hayes, D.D., returned missionary, will speak in chapel Tuesday morning. Having been in China from 1917 until very recently, Dr. Hayes is now traveling for the Board of Foreign Missions.

He has been speaking at "World Affairs" assemblies in several cities. He is coming here from Chattanooga and will speak Tuesday night in Knoxville.

Theta, Alpha Sigma To Picnic Tonight

There will be no regular meeting of Theta tonight. Theta and Alpha Sigma will attend a picnic at the Manning Farm this afternoon, directly after May Day celebration. Members of both organizations are urged to attend.

Annual Presents Its Choice For Senior Girl, Boy Of Year

By Ray Sammons

Every year one boy and one girl from the graduating class are selected to be featured in the Chilhowean as the Boy and Girl of the Year. They are chosen as outstanding students who represent qualities of leadership and character.

This year those chosen as Boy and Girl of the Year are Naomi Burgos and Henry Van Hassel, called "Ni" and "Hank" by their friends. Curious as to why these two received the yearbook's distinction, your reporter dug into some facts and figures for the answer.

Burgos

Miss Burgos, a political science major, brought with her from New York City a winning smile, a warm personality, and friendliness.

She was writer and director of the 1953 Barnwarming show, a job requiring long hours of work, ability to handle people, and much patience. This was during the busiest period of a senior's life, just before special studies were due. She is an active member of student council and is on Student-Faculty Senate.

Miss Burgos is not the first nor the last of her family to attend Maryville. She was preceded by an older sister, class of 1953, and succeeded by a younger sister, Judy, a member of the sophomore class. It was the election of Ruth to the office of President in YWCA that gave "Ni" her biggest thrill while on this campus. Next was her own election as Girl of the Year. Even then however, she felt that others should have received this title.

Van Hassel

Hank Van Hassel, Boy of The Year, is a tall lanky guy with a happy grin, an English major who comes from Patterson, N. J. He has one great desire in life and that is to learn. He has averaged eighteen to twenty hours per semester, yet he still has had time and energy for Writers' Workshop, YMCA Cabinet, of which he was Vice-President, Student Council, and Student-Faculty Senate.

Because of his desire to learn everything he possibly can, "Hank" has tackled every challenge with determination. This same desire has led him to search both sides of any story before making his final decision. His forthrightness has earned him the respect and admiration of many.

Some of the outstanding things of college life that have made an impression upon him are the opportunities to enter into every field, and the opportunity to make friends.

Both the Boy and the Girl of the Year were selected earlier to have their names appear in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Neither has as yet decided on any definite plans for the future.

Seminary President To Speak May 19; Gates To Preach At Baccalaureate

By Faith Nollner

The college year will close with graduation exercises on the morning of Wednesday, May 19. The commencement address will be given by Dr. Robert Worth Frank, of Chicago, President and Professor of Philosophy of Religion and Ethics, McCormick Theological Seminary. Dr. Frank is a graduate of Wabash College, Ind., and of McCormick Theological Seminary, holds a master's degree from Harvard University, a Ph.D. from Northwestern University, and honorary degrees from various institutions.

The sermon at the Baccalaureate Service Sunday morning, May 16, will be preached by President Lloyd. There will be three other events on Baccalaureate Sunday. The Senior Music Hour will be in the Music Hall at 4 p.m., the Chapel dedication service will be in the chapel at 4 p.m. and the Commencement Vespers will be in the chapel at 7:30 p.m.

Speakers

The principal address at the dedication service will be made by Dr. E. Ray Campbell, of Philadelphia, Secretary of the Presbyterian Division of Higher Education. Dr. Campbell was formerly, for many years, head of the Christian Association work at Yale University.

The commencement vespers sermon will be given by Dr. John A. Gates, Professor of Bible and Religion at Westminster College, Fulton, Mo., formerly a member of the Maryville College faculty. His son David is a member of the graduating class.

In connection with the dedication of the Chapel, it is hoped that there will be present members of the family of Dr. Samuel Tyndale Wilson and of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Voorhees, who gave the Elizabeth R. Voorhees Chapel which the new Chapel succeeds.

Theater

One of the anticipated events of the commencement season is the first use of the new theater. It is expected that "Family Portrait" will be presented there both on Friday, May 14, and on Tuesday, May 18. The stage equipment is now being installed.

In connection with the dedication there will be at the chapel service Monday morning, May 17, a recognition of the architects and builders, with short addresses by Mr. Paul Schweikher of the firm of Schweikher and Elting, Architects, and Miss Kathleen Craven, of the Maryville College Faculty. Mr. Schweikher is now head of the Department of Architecture at Yale University, as well as a practicing architect.

At the Tuesday morning chapel, there will be a special music program and distribution of prizes.

The annual alumni dinner, to which all seniors are invited, will be on Saturday night, May 15, and will be followed by the annual commecement band concert.

On Tuesday afternoon, May 18 President and Mrs. Lloyd will hold their annual reception for seniors, parents of students, alumni, faculty, and other guests.

Combined Choirs To Present Brahms' 'Requiem'

On Thursday evening, May 6, the Girls' Choir and Men's Glee Club will present Brahms' "Requiem," at the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, under the direction of Miss Edric Sellick.

The production has been in rehearsal since September and features Joyce Linginfelter as soprano soloist and Tom Fairhurst as baritone soloist. Jane Robison will be the piano accompanist and Darrel Johnsonbaugh will play the timpani.

The performance of the "Requiem," which is considered to be one of Brahms' most beautiful compositions, will begin at 8 p.m. and will last about 45 minutes.

Seminar Group To Visit On Campus Next Week

Thursday and Friday, May 6 and 7, the Southeast Seminar will visit Maryville College. This group, which is sponsored by the Presbyterian Church, is traveling through this part of the United States, seeing mission work carried on here and in various other colleges and rural parishes.

Thirty-five persons will arrive sometime Thursday afternoon, when they will be conducted on a tour of the campus, will have dinner in the dining hall Thursday night, and will attend Brahms' "Requiem."

Will Conduct Chapel

Chapel will be conducted Friday morning by the Rev. Paul Heath, from Buffalo, N. Y., the Rev. Allen R. Winn, from Trenton, N. J., and the Rev. Frederick C. Maier, from Long Island, N. Y. Immediately after chapel, they will leave for Big Lick, which is a rural parish project, led by the Rev. Eugene Smathers. From there, they will travel to Barber-Scotia College, Concord, N. C., and Warren Wilson College, Swanonoa, N. C.

Athenian To Choose Next Year's Officers

Athenian Society will meet in Athenian Hall at 6:15 tonight to approve a slate of officers nominated for the first semester of the year 1954-1955.

Lloyd Travels North

Last Tuesday, April 27, President Ralph Waldo Lloyd traveled by plane to New York City where he attended a dinner meeting held by the Maryville College alumni organization at the West Side Y.M.C.A. After dinner Dr. Lloyd showed the group colored slides of the Maryville campus.

On Wednesday he flew to Philadelphia for a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Western Section of the World Presbyterian Alliance, and on the next day completed some business in New York and Philadelphia before returning to Tennessee on Thursday night.

No Vespers Tomorrow

There will be no college vesper service tomorrow, because of the dedication at New Providence Church.

On An Old Theme

Certain themes seem to recur in editorial writing, both in the Echo and in other school papers. When the writer has wracked his brains and can think of nothing, absolutely nothing, to say, he sits down at the typewriter and compoes a little essay on school spirit or on appreciating all our advantages or why we should all get out and vote or how we can better support our Student Council. These are all topics that come around at least annually, if not more often than that. Frequently the writer is as discouraged with one of them as is the reader who opens his paper hoping to find material that is new and different.

At the risk of being repititious, but with the feeling that in this case we do have something to say, we want to reiterate our belief that students should know their Student Council, should be familiar with what it does, and should know those who make it up.

In line with that last statement, several weeks ago Student Council was faced with the matter of representation on Council. In connection with a recommendation that Drama Board of Control send a representative to Council, a member asked why it should do so. Subsequent discussion led to the question of why any particular group should have someone on Student Council. The student body president then appointed a committee to investigate the matter and to study it over the summer.

Such an investigation would be of considerable value. As the Student Council now stands there are, basically, two kinds of representatives. Some are directly elected to hold office in student government and to represent the students who choose them. Others are elected, perhaps by a small group, to do a certain job, and Council membership comes to them automatically. The primary concern in electing them is their ability to hold a definite position rather than their interest in politics. On the other hand, it has been felt that they as campus leaders deserve a place in the organization that provides a cross-section of the cmpus.

Part of the consideration is whether or not certain groups have outlived their usefulness. An organization that was very important some years ago may not deserve a place on Council today. And something that did not even exist in the past may have great influence now.

Another aspect is the fact that nearly all of Council's ex officio members are seniors, with a sprinkling of juniors. They, of course, are more familiar with conditions at Maryville and presumably have more experience as leaders, but they tend to dominate Council by sheer numbers.

Whatever the outcome of the committee's deliberations, whether some action is taken or whether the result is a confirmation of the present set-up, we think that the project will be of value. Examination of a situation rather than unthinking acceptance of it is a good thing.

Student Participation

For the third time we have had student leaders in chapel. Yesterday morning Homer Rickabaugh, president of Student Volunteers, presented the scripture, short devotional, and prayer. The presidents of YW and YM have been leaders previously.

We wish to commend those who initiated the idea, the legislative bodies on campus which speedily approved the idea, and those who have taken part. As the backers of the movement suggested, the practice seems to be proving beneficial to both the individual leaders and the student body.

It is good to see that an interest in increased student participation in religious services has come with increased student responsibilitiee in government and administrative matters. The growing custom of student chapel leaders is perhaps of prime importance in this respect.

A notice appeared this week on the Carnegie bulletin board that we think is worth sharing with those who do not ordinarily see this public news place. Quote:

"Certain definite signs have been observed to indicate that some person in the building has had and used a master key in entering rooms since last year. About five weeks ago some person took my master key on a ring with three or four small keys from my desk. I do not see how this party can make use of this key without a number of people in the building knowing about it. If he has the same attitude concerning your property and money that he had concerning my key, then it would seem that your greatest caution may not prevent your property from being removed without your consent."

HAS ANYBODY SEEN MY DOG?

There's a desperate plea from one of our otherwise unsentimental reporters:

Lost or strayed: one Scotty dog, slightly the worse for wear. (Poor thing! He's already been through Maryville College twice before.) When last seen, he was wearing plaid bloomer-britches, and plaid paws, ears, and shoe soles.

For a short time he graced the shelves of the toy-maker's shop at the ABC Show. Scotty failed to come home after the show, and if anyone has information leading to the recovery of said animal, his sentimental owner would appreciate it if he is returned to Baldwin Hall sometime before Commencement.

Theta Alpha Phi Elects Four Persons Members

Members newly elected to Theta Alpha Phi this week are Abigail Crosby, junior English major from Columbia City, Ind.; Arthur Fryer, sophomore English major from Bridgville, Pa.; James Shields, junior English major from Maryville; and Marcia Williams, sophomore drama major from Peekskill, N.Y.

Formal initiation for these neophytes will be held May 8. Theta Alpha Phi is a national honorary dramatic fraternity. The local chapter was organized in 1947.

Officers of the organization are Joanne Edwards, president; George S. Caldwell, vice-president; Martha Horton, secretary; Bob Read, treasurer; and Dorothy Crawford, historian. Other members are Anne Buckley and Walter Elwood.

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Elizabeth Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Joe Gilliland

In line with our policy of putting first things first, here's what information we have about the coming week's movies in downtown Maryville.

The Park Theater couldn't tell us anything about what was on their schedule for Monday, but across the street (at the 40-cent place) "Veils of Bagdad" starring Victor Mature and Mari Blanchard, is playing Monday and Tuesday.

For the remainder of the week the Capitol is having "The Boy From Oklahoma" on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. This movie stars Will Rogers, Jr., and Nancy Olson. Will's son seems to be continuing in his acting career after he portrayed his well-known father in the filmed biography. On "Saturday only" the double-feature program offers "Cowboy and Girl" (1), and "big hit number 2" (as their circular says) is "Yukon Vengeance" with Kirby Grant and Chinook, 'The Wonder Dog." (He doesn't whimper.)

The Park's incomplete schedule has "Donovan's Brain," starring Lew Ayres, playing Tuesday and Wednesday, and a technicolored "Sweethearts on Parade" with Ray Middleton and Lucille Norman on Thursday and Friday.

Although we know nothing about any of these shows, the latter group sounds the most appealing.

Requiem

We could hardly add to the tribute which the audiences gave to Mr. Harter's "Requiem for Fallen Nineveh" last Sunday night. The performance seems to have begun a series of musical programs on campus. Within the next few weeks up until the end of the semester various bands and special programs will be presented.

And remember the combined glee clubs' presentation of Brahms' "Requiem" this Thursday evening in the chapel. Soloists are Joyce Linglnfelter and Tom Fairhurst.

It seems that we have an orchestra concert very soon, too. It's a very cultural program we have on hand (probably intended for the seniors who are brilliant enough to be exempt from finals and who have nothing else (i.e., term papers and such) to bother them).

Experimentals

News of the Experimental Theatre's presentation of "The Intruder" was not spread widely around campus for as long a time as such things usually are, but nevertheless we hope many of you got a chance to see the production. It was sponsored by the class in religious drama.

We have a real subversive, communistic thriller to lead off the discussion of new library books. It's a red-bound "History of the Community Party of the Soviet Union (Bolsheviks)" which is an unofficial publication authorized by the central committee of the "C.P.S.U.(B.)"

The scope of the book is from pre-revolutionary conditions in Russia near the turn of the century, up to 1937 or 1938 just before the outbreak of World War II in Europe.

This book was published in New York in 1939, and traces the history of the Bolshevik movement from the point of view of the revolutionists themselves. It is definitely information from the mouth of the party.

Another quite interesting title on the new book table is a Theosophist discussion, "Reincarnation, The Hope of the World" by the Rt. Rev. Irving S. Cooper. This 121-page explanation of the doctrine of reincarnation is a gift from the Theosophist group in Wheaton, Ill., and was published by the Thesophical Press in the same city. It treats the purpose, process, and proofs of reincarnation.

Rare Book

In a more familiar field of study, the library has received one of the first copies of a new edition of Shelley's Prose, edited by David Lee Clark, a professor of English at the University of Texas. It was published this year by the University of New Mexico press, and, according to Dr. Hunter, the library had the book on order even before printing was completed.

The author's introduction states that Mr. Clark's edition contains "all the known original prose of Shelley" except for some letters and two romances. Complete collections of his prose have been very rare.

Not So Bad

One can learn even more information about Maryville College from two publications, Lovejoy's "College Guide" and the U. S. Department of education's pamphlet on fall enrollment in colleges in the United States. The Lovejoy compilation says that MC ranks 254th in 'Who's Who in America" with 17 names listed (presumably of graduates). The government statistical information book shows that the man-woman situation is not quite so bad as some of us might think. According to the figures, 323 men and 347 women enrolled at Maryville College last September.

Several books on music studies and music education books are new also. An example of the former is "Domenico Scarlatti" by Ralph Kirkpatrick, which is a study of Scarlatti's life, works, his family, and specific aspects of his composition.

Keep in mind too that our library has a copy of Morton Thompson's "Not as a Stranger," the novel that has been on the best-seller list for about 14 weeks, and has been on top for at least a month. (It's checked out right now.)

All places—Maryville included—must have their share of nonsense and fun, and we seem to have done

Musings of a novice sportswriter:

If the showing of Bob Ramger (half of a typical MC couple, it sez in the yearbook) in the intramura l track meet the other day means anything in stiffer competition, and if interest in the thinlies' doings does kindle, as rumor says it will, perhaps the alma mater can come up with a surprisingly good outfit even as soon as next year. The transplanted Floridian cooped four first places—100—and 220 yard dashes, low hurdles and jump—to race the Sophomore class to a win in the meet. He took each of his victories with apparent ease and even had time to look around in search of pressing competition. On the broad jump, Rammit jumped clean out of the pit. He could prove to be Number One Rely-On Guy to a winning track team.

And in the same meet, Bugs Ebright was met at the triumph line after his mile run by a crowd of well-wishers, including speculators whisper, tombstone salesmen who thought they had a sure customer after watching the Bugs gasp and stagger down the homestretch.

Umpires are of a species of human animal that are supposed to have more buddies than anyone else in the world one minute and in the next, to be a foe of mankind. One Clarence Shepard of our own baseballers is acquiring a like description at an early stage of his career. Only his luck probably works out better than most umpires'. Clarence can make three bobbles in a row at his second base post, then he'll pull one of the slickest putouts you'll ever hope to see. And the crowd, ten seconds ago on the verge of cutting off his C ration for a month, will howl with unmitigated glee and want to run him for Mayor of Knoxville.

Happy tidings for many was the news that amiable Buford Miller had been elected captain of the rasslers for the coming year. Buford probably hasn't got an enemy to his name, and with his easy manner probably couldn't make one if he tried. His senior year at local Everett High School got his picture in his annual as the Friendliest Boy in his class. Possessed with natural ability and a great competitive spirit, Buford will tackle anything. The story about his total ignorance of the wrestling game when he came to college is well known. And just lately he has taken to wielding golf clubs for fun. He can stroke a mean iron shot, too. All of which adds up to: 10 to 1 you can't find a single person displeased with the new cap'n of the wrestling team.

For changes in the tennis ladder's top six, E. P. Shackleford has replaced Jerry King for the No. 4 notch, whereby Shack and J. Burke Anderson will pair for doubles. And Bob Nier has been demoted a step on the ladder after suffering defeat at the hands of Philip "Woody" Young, placing King and Young in No. 3 doubles spot. As of this writing, the catgut boys have a record of 2-2 for matches completed. The rest have not been played or finished as a result of the weatherman's shenanigans.

MILLER TO CAPTAIN '55 MATMEN; SEC TOURNEY TO BE AT MC

By Bob Jackson

At a recent meeting of the wrestling team, Buford Miller, the present 130-pound wrestling champ of the SEC, was elected to captain the Scot grapplers during the 1954-55 season. He succeeds another reigning champion, Tom "Tiger" Bugenhagen, who was tops in the 167-pound division.

At the same meeting, Coach John A. Davis announced that Maryville College has been chosen as the site of the loop's championship tournament next February 18 and 19. Because we have been so honored Coach Davis is issuing a call that boys interested in any team position should be sure to turn out next fall when the first call for candidates is issued. Two classes in addition to the usual weight divisions will be added to the team. They are the 115 class and the 191, or light-heavyweight class.

Miller, a local boy from Everett High, has been a mainstay on the Scot wrestling squad for the past two years. Before coming to Maryville College, Buford had never seen a wrestling match, but, as a participant in the first one he ever saw, the new captain pinned his man in the first period. The easy-going, quick-smiling Miller has the inspirational ability and skill to make a fine leader for next year's grunt and groan boys.

The schedule of next year's matches has also been announced and in addition to the teams listed, Knoxville YMCA, Vanderbilt and Carson-Newman will be engaged during December. Carson-Newman is a newcomer to the Scots' wrestling schedule, and, if the high-spirited rivalry that characterizes the other athletic contests with the Eagles is any kind of criterion, there should be some torrid mat battles between the two schools.

The schedule, besides matches listed above:

Jan. 18—Univ. of Chatta.	There
Jan. 22—Univ. of South (Sewanee)	Here
Jan. 29—Auburn Univer.	There
Feb. 5—Univ. of Chatta.	Here

Bryan Thinlies Outpace Highlanders

STRICKLAND WINS THREE EVENTS TO LEAD SCOTS

Trying for a comeback into the track circle since bowing out in 1951, the Maryville College Harriers bowed graciously to a well-seasoned W. J. Bryan squad as they won all of the running events and one of the field events to win going away, 87⅔ to 46⅓.

Shades of Jim Thorpe

Big Bill Strickland looked like the old Carlisle athlete Jim Thorpe as he won three first places for the Scots, added a third and ran on the half-mile relay team which was nosed out by the Bryan team at the wire. Bill won the discus, shot put, high jump and placed third in the javelin to account for 16 points.

Three boys for Bryan—Bensinger, Boyce, and Meessner accounted for 35 of the visitors' points. Bensinger won the 100-and 220-yard dashes and the 220-yard low hurdles. Boyce chipped in with wins in the mile- and two-mile runs. The third man, Meessner, won the 440-yard dash and the 880 yard dash.

Little Jerry Waters, noted to most of us as a wrestler, won one of Maryville's five first places in the pole vault event, clearing the bar at 10 ft. 6 inches. Barthe and Pickering, both of Bryan, placed second and third respectively.

Senior Tom Fairhurst unlimbered a lofty toss of 132 feet to win the javelin with Bryan's Kaiser missing Tom's contribution to the cause by a foot and a half. Strickland was six feet off the pace.

In the broad jump, the Bryan crew made a clean sweep, winning all three places. Kaiser won first place with a leap of 18' 10¾", coming on his last try. Teammates Park and Gould placed second and third respectively.

Senior Rod McMillan turned in a good afternoon's work as he placed second in the 120-yard high hurdles and also in the 220-yard low hurdles. Sophomore Carpenter of Maryville turned in fine second place run in the 880-yard dash.

Results (in order of finish):

100-yd. dash—Bensinger, Kaiser, Hall (M). Time: 10.7

220-yd. dash—Bensinger (B), Gould (B), Hall (M). Time: 25.2.

440-yd. dash—Meessner (B), Gould (B), King (M). Time: 55.1.

880-yd. dash—Boyce, Meessner (B), Carpenter (M), Ebright (M). Time: 2.18.

120-yd. high hurdles—Barth (B), McMillan (M), Park (B). Time: 20.4.

220-yd. low hurdles—Bensinger (B), McMillan (M), Bartha (B). Time: 30.0.

One Mile Run—Boyce (B), Romers (B), Rickabaugh (M). Time: 5.01.

Two Mile Run—Boyce (B), Romers (B), Rickabaugh (M). Time: 11.40.

½ Mile Relay—Bryan (Bensinger, Gould, Kaiser, Meessner). Time: 1:45.5.

Pole Vault—Waters (M), Barth (B), Pickering (B). 10 ft. 6

Shot Put—Strickland (M), Mashburn (B), Wheatley and Bugenhagen (M), tie. Distance: 39 feet.

Discus—Strickland (M), Kiaser, (B), Mashburn (B). 122' 10".

High Jump—Strickland (M), Boyce (B), Pickering (B), 5' 4".

Javelin—Fairhurst (M), Kiaser, (B), Strickland (M), 132' 2"

Broad Jump—Kiaser (B), Park (B), Gould (B)——18' 10¾".

Twins Wallop Scots In Exhibition Game

T'was a damp and dismal night indeed for the Maryville College Scots last Friday night when they dropped a lopsided contest to the Maryville-Alcoa Twins on Hunt Field by a score of 17-5.

The Scots had trouble getting the Twins out as they scored in every inning, accounting for 10 markers in the fifth and sixth frames. Jim Saunders and Kyle Petree were completely ineffective against the pro boys, giving up 16 hits between them.

Twins' second baseman Giles and catcher Shulis were the big guns for the home team with Giles going five for five, two of them doubles, and Shulis getting two for three, one a round-tripper in the first inning.

Scot shortstop Earl Lawson found his batting eye for the first time this year and collect-

Bucs Hand Scots Season's 3rd Loss

For five full innings, the Scots looked like a flawless ball club, but came the fateless sixth and the boys looked like the erroring wonders. This was the picture Tuesday afternoon when the Scots dropped an 8-5 decision to the ETSC Bucs on Maryville's diamond.

Tow-headed Bob Ramger held the highly rated Bucs scoreless until things fell apart at the seams in the sixth. Bob issued a walk, and uncorked two wild pitches to set the stage for three errors by his teammates, allowing the visitors to score four runs. Harry Robinson came in to relieve but proved ineffective.

The Scots had tallied three runs in the third thanks to the poor playing of the Bucs. An error, a fielder's choice and two groundouts gave the Highlanders their tallies. Another was added in the fourth when Van Benthysen singled, was sacrificed to third and scored on an error.

In the seventh, the visitors scored two runs when Hyder tripled with a man on third, and then crossed the plate as the next batter singled. State's catcher Fry accounted for the final Buc run when he homered in the eighth inning.

Clarence Shepard scored the final Scot run in the bottom of the ninth inning in the Highlander's last vain try to win the game.

The loss marked the third for the Scots of their regular scheduled games.

Sophomores Win Interclass Meet

"Fleet-foot" Bob Ramger and broad-shouldered Bill Strickland, two fair-haired versatile athletes, amassed 34 points between them to lead the Sophomores to a 58-43 trimuph over their closest rival, the Junior class, in the Interclass Track Meet on Honaker Field last Friday afternoon.

Ramger won four firsts—100 yd. dash, 220 yd. dash, broad jump, 220 yd. low hurdles—and Strickland had two firsts, a second and a third—shot put, discus, broad jump, two mile run—to keep the Sophomores ahead for the duration of the meet.

The Freshmen finished in third place with 31 points while the Seniors trailed in the cellar slot with 18 points, Rod McMillan earning 11 of those points. He won the high hurdles and placed second in the mile and two mile runs.

"Ace" McWilliams paced the Juniors with two firsts—the mile and two-mile runs—and Jim "Fingers" Demer added 7 points with a second in the 100 and 220-yd. dashes and a third in the high hurdles.

Juniors Herb Catlin and "Bugs" Ebright won the 440-yd. and 880-yd. dashes respectively. Catlin finished a second ahead of Sophomore Malcolm King and Ebright finished a full seven seconds better than Freshman Carpenter.

In the field events, Bob Berong tied with Bill Wheatley for second place honors in the shot put behind Strickland. Freshman Sam Clifton bested Senior Tom Fairhust in the javelin with a toss of 124 ft. 8½ in., a foot more than Tom's toss.

Sophomore Jim Saunders cleared the high jump cross bar at 5 ft. 3½ in., half inch better than Smiley Erickson, to win the event. Freshman Jerry Waters vaulted 10 ft. 3 in. to out-leap Junior Snell Mills.

The Junior 880-yd. relay team of Bob Shelton, Demer, Catlin and McWilliams sped around the track in 1:47.2 to beat the second place Freshman team and add ten points to their team's total.

This was the first time in many years that the track meet has been on an interclass basis, and it proved very effective.

The results (in order of finish): 100-yd. Dash—Ramger, Demer, Hall. Time: 10.9

SCOTTIES LOSE BITE, BOW TO UT VOLS, 6-5

By Robert Bruce

Avenging an earlier setback by the Highlanders, the University of Tennessee diamond squad eked out a 6-5 victory over the home club in a game played at the college. The Vols came from behind and coasted in on the strong relief hurling of Bill Walsh to gain the triumph.

A good crowd turned out to witness the hard-fought tussle and the Scots quickly satisfied their wants with two quick runs in the opening frame. After Shepard walked, Lynn Sexton beat out a bunt advancing Shepard to second. Van Benthysen then sent a shot to deep short and though tossed out at first, Shepard scored on the play. Sexton advanced to second. Shelton promptly followed with a sharp single to left-center scoring Sexton with the second run of the innning. The Scot threat died, however, as Dunn and Ramger failed to connect.

Harry Robinson, who started on the hill for the Highlanders, ran into a bit of difficulty in the second frame. B. Jones opened with a loud single to right and advanced to second when Dick Jones drew a walk. Wells took the count to 3-2 before drilling a single to left and B. Jones scored easily on the play. "Robbie" settled down, however, and retired the next three hitters in order.

U.T. had found the range, though, and in the third frame the bottom dropped out of the Scot bucket. Archer singled to left to start the uprising and was sacrificed to second by Mahalko. Belcher then beat out an infield roller and Archer moved to third. The fleet Vol outfielder promptly stole home on a close play as part of a well executed double steal which sent Beicher to second. B. Jones connected with his second straight single to right which easily scored Belcher. Dick Jones followed with a smash to center and B. Jones ripped home all the way from first as the throw came to second in an attempt to nail the Vol keystoner who slid safely in. Wells was safe on Lawson's poor throw to first and Jones moved to third, but the scoring ended when Marlowe flied out to Sexton in left who threw Jones out at the plate.

The Vols added the winning counters in the fifth when Belcher reached second on an overthrow

The Rev. Charles T. Leber, General Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, will speak at the Service of Dedication of the New Providence Presbyterian Church on Sunday, May 2, at 10:30 a.m.

Also participating in the service will be Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd and Dr. Horace E. Orr

At 7:30 on Sunday and Monday evenings the historical pageant, "A Goodly Heritage", written by Mrs. Hamilton Traylor and directed by Mrs. C. V. Morton, will be presented in the sanctuary with a cast of 54 persons.

The Maryville College Vesper Choir will furnish the background music. Transportation will be provided for college students. Buses will leave the campus at 7:15. There will be no Vesper Service held on campus that evening. There will be a reception in Westminster Hall following the pageant each night.

Pre-Med Meets

Pre-Med Club held its regular meeting Thursday night. Nominations for next years officers were made and plans were made for the coming social.

"M" Club Initiates 16 New Members

By Nancy Marshall

Sixteen new members were initiated into the Women's "M" Club last week-end as was noted by the strange garb seen on campus. Saturday afternoon these girls hitchhiked to Laurel Lake where they obeyed all the commands of the old members for the rest of the day. Chaperons for the week-end were Mrs. Edith Largen, Miss Jessie Heron, and Miss Edrie Sellick. In the evening Helen Drinnen led the formal initiation, which was by candlelight. The new members initated are Emma Lou Arnold, Marghi McClure, Lila Crane, Nancy Marshall, Nancy Priest, Bettye Harrill, Rita Rosenbaum, Judy Ross, Shirley Armstrong, Ka Leeth, Helen Davis, Nan Spivey, Jane Kirkpatrick, Nancy Morrell, Roberta Myers, and Shirley McNeill.

The officers elected to serve for the 1954-55 year are President, Mary Ann Thompson; Vice-President, Emma Curtis; Treasurer, Shirley McNeill; Secretary, Sarah Carpenter; Publicity Chairman, Nancy Priest; and Program Chairmen, Ka Leeth and Shirley Axley.

The retiring officers were President, Helen Drinnen; Vice-President, Joan Herschelman; Treasurer, Mary Ann Thompson; Publicity Chairman, Barbara June Gregory; and Program Chairmen, Cornie Force and Henny Laing.

The present project of the "M" Club is to secure a "scotty" as a college mascot. The proceeds from the concession operated on May Day will go toward this project.

To be eligible for "M" Club membership, a girl must have earned at least 400 points during the year in Women's Varsity. These points are earned by obeying health rules, swimming twice a month, hiking, and participating in the other Varsity sports.

Two members who had earned 500 points before, received at least that many again this year and were awarded a chevron, a sweater, and a large M. They are Helen Drinnen and Mary Ann Thompson.

The girls who earned at least 500 points for the first time and will receive a sweater and a large M are Shirley Armstrong, Shirley Axley, Lila Crane, Betty Cutler, Helen Davis, Ka Leeth, Liz Murphy, Rita Rosenbalm, Sarah Carpenter, Emma Curtis, Roberta Myers, Betty Watson, and Natalie Prinzing.

The girls who earned between 400 and 499 points will receive a small M. These include Emma Lou Arnold, Bettye Harrill, Joan Herschelman, Marghi McClure, Nancy Marshall, Nan Spivey, Cornie Force, Jane Kirkpatrick, Charlotte Linde, Shirley McNeill, Judy Ross, and Nancy Morell.

Intramurals....

Going into the final week of the Intramural Softball League, the Alpha Sigma Hammers still hold on to the first place spot with a 5-0 record, having a possible tie with the Athenians who have a game with the Smokies under protest.

Monday afternoon the Pre-Mins notched a 10-3 win to keep their second-place position of 4 wins and 1 loss. The third place Diablos Rojos lost to the surprising Doobers by a score of 13 to 6. They now have a record of 4 wins and 3 losses.

Tuesday afternoon the first place Hammers won by forfeit over the Boxers when they failed to show for the game. In the other game, the Smokies downed the Athenians, 14-12, but the Athenians protested on the grounds that the Smokies used two illegal players.

The Athenians jumped back into the win column Wednesday as they trimmed the Y by a score of 11-6, giving the Y a record of no wins and five losses. The Smokies won over the inconsistent Doobers.

by Lawson and moved to third on B. Jones' third straight hit. Dick Jones' long fly scored Belcher and B. Jones scored the game-winning run when, after he had stolen second, Wells singled to right.

The Scots added a single tally in their portion of the fifth as Sexton beat out an infield hit, stole second and third, and scored when Belcher overthrew first on Van Benthysen's grounder.

Ramger now assumed the mound duties for the Highlanders and chucked the next four innings yielding only two scattered singles. Meanwhile the home club tallied twice more in the bottom of the seventh when Anderson and Shepard were both safe on errors by Dick Jones and first sacker B. Jones. After Sexton had gone out bunting on a third strike, Van Benthysen walked to load the sacks. On one of the wildest squeeze plays seen here in quite a while, Anderson and Shepard were both safe at the plate when Shelton was out bunting, pitcher to first.

Never again did the Scots score, though, as big Bill Walsh completely befuddled Scot batters in both the eighth and ninth frames. The snappy righthander struck out no less than six of the seven hitters he faced to put the game firmly on ice for the Vols. The winning Volunteers garnered nine hits off Scot hurling; the home club could muster only three. Schegel gets credit for the win, lefty Robinson takes the loss.

The field was very slippery and wet, and the poor footing of the fielders aided the batters with their hits, such as Feimster's triple which came about when Ramger moved in to field the ball and slipped.

In the final inning the Scots made a game comeback as they tallied four of their five runs before being retired by the Twins.

COUNCIL . . .

has recently been getting poorer. He asked council members to "keep an eye" on that matter.

Individual class elections will be held either Thursday or Friday, it was decided. A. C. McWilliams is to check with the Personnel Office on the best day to hold them.

The president reminded the council that all assistance possible would be needed in carrying out High School Day next Friday.

Activity Money

Carol F. Moore, who presented a plan for raising student activity fees at council last week, said she was adding to her recommendations one that would assess each student 25 cents additional each semester for publication of the Echo. Miss Moore arrived at this figure, she explained, after speaking with Echo business manager Bob Read.

A. C. McWilliams and Jim Hunt began presenting specific proposals for clarification of election procedure, but time ran out before the entire proposal could be given. This discussion was tabled until next week.

Last Week

Other provisions of the recommendation for a unified student activity fee presented last week named the yearly fee at $25. Present activity fee is $6 per semester or $12 per year.

Such a fee, Miss Moore pointed out, would give each student admission to all Playhouse productions, a yearbook, pay the class dues, provide more funds for athletic equipment and use, and set up a student treasury from which the council would draw money for "the general welfare."

The council voted to pass the proposal on to Student-Faculty Senate.

Also at last week's meeting president Dartnell appointed a committee consisting of Jim Kesler, Herb White, Carol F. Moore, Barbara Chubb, Peggy Fisher, Bill Davis, and A. C. McWilliams to look into the entire student body constitution on the question of representation on council.

Creation of this committee grew out of a discussion at the council meeting three weeks ago.

Some of you may remember a selection in Harpers a few issues back in which Miss Kimbrough described the difficulties and obstacles which blocked her progress through a Berlitz language school. That delightful essay was taken from this book.

Art And Music

We would definitely like to urge those of you who have not viewed the student art exhibit in the gallery at the Fine Arts Center to browse through and look at the work that has been done in art classes this year. They don't just have plain, obscure, modern paintings in this show. Other objects called mobiles and stabiles are lying or hanging around as the case may be. Does that make you curious enough?

My final mercenary word is a reminder not to miss getting a copy of CHIPS (shades of capital letters in the chilhowean). You really would enjoy reading this year's edition if only to see whose proposal was the more modest—Jonathan Swift's or E. R. Hunter's.

Seniors To Entertain At Bainonian Meeting

Senior members of Bainonian will present the society's program tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall.

There will also be a short business meeting concerning the election of officers for next semester. Further announcement will be made in regard to the banquet to be held in the College Hill Grill, May 10.

Seniors Consider Gifts

The senior class is considering three possibilities for its annual gift to the college. Jack Maxwell, senior class president, has announced that a preference vote will be taken at a class meeting next week on the three gifts being considered. They are new lights for the library, an extension on the Student Center, and a $2,500 donation to the chapel fund.

Y Cabinets, Officers Go On Retreat To Lake

Committees Announced

"No Hands But Ours" is the theme of the coming year's Y program and of the annual Y Retreat, now going on at Laurel Lake. The event, sponsored by YM and YW, is for the benefit of this year's and next year's cabinets and officers. From 100 to 120 persons were expected to attend, according to presidents Lyn Kiefer and Jim Fisher.

YM Cabinet

In addition to the officers, who have already been announced, YM's new cabinet includes the following heads of committees: Artist Series, Bob Lorenz; Athletics, Bruce Ingles and Ted McDaniels; Community, Don Thiel; Devotions and discussion, A. C. McWilliams and Dick Jensen; Fellowship, Dave Ramsey and Arthur Fryer;

Inter-racial, Graeme Sieber; Missions, Dick Thompson; M Book, Buford Miller and Kent Toomey; Maintenance, Tony Clark and Andrew Loven; publicity, Charles Williams and Jim Conklin; Radio, Ray Sammons; Worship, Dave Williams and Don Williams; and Y Store, Bob Jackson.

YW Cabinet

YW's cabinet for next year includes these leaders: Artist Series, Sally Butts; Barnwarming, Judy Burgos, Peggy Fisher, and Barbara Chubb; Devotions, Toppy Lee and Margaret Hanna; Negro Church, Ruth Nelson; Home Avenue, Jo Brooks; Community Service, Billie Marie Lester and Madlon Travis;

M Book, Ruth Orr and Evelyn Blackburn; Pi Gamma, Roberts Myers; Publicity, Pat Jones and Nancy Jones; Social, Betty McKenny and Henrietta Laing; Worship, Jean Morgan and Martha Jackson; Y Radio, Sarah Pledger; Y Rooms, Mary Carol Coker and Barbara Cech; and Y Store, Lynn McMillan.

Nu Gamma Leaders

YW's Nu Gamma leaders, who will welcome and advise freshman and transfer girls in the coming year, are Lavinia Lee, Kay Leeth, Margaret Jones, Martha Nelson, Shirley Peterson, Ann Kelton, Louise Ogden, Laura Teague, Margaret McClure, Jane Robison, Isabel Easley, Kreale Dulany, Judy Premo, Virginia Marshall, Helen Hassenstab, and Nancy Priest.

Ten Key Men

Nu Gamma's counterparts in YMCA, the Ten Key Men, are A. C. McWilliams, J. B. Adams, Jim Kesler, Bill Howell, Bill Davis, Morgan Biggs, Paul Payne, John Barrows, Ed Drum, and Gordon Van Pelt.

Program

The officers and cabinet members left MC for the retreat yesterday, beginning the week end at Laurel Lake with recreation, a camp fire, and a worship service. For Saturday morning were scheduled morning watch, morning worship, and cabinet and committee meetings.

In the afternoon discussion groups are to be led by Mr. A. S. Bushing, Mrs. Margaret Cummings, and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Pieper. Mr. and Mrs. Pieper will be in charge of a discussion of the balanced triangle, symbol of YM and YW, and Mr. Bushing and Mrs. Cummings will lead a group on community outreach.

Recreation, supper and a campfire will follow this. The Rev. Donald Barker will speak at the consecration service, and the group plans to return to the campus tonight.

Athenians To Meet

Athenian Society will meet in Athenian Hall at 6:15 tonight for the formal [illegible] of all officers elected for the first semester, 1954-1955.

The officers are as follows: president, Jim Crawford; first vice president, Luis Cardoso; second vice president, Bill Bolton; program [illegible] secretary, Ted Watkins;

Joe Gilliland Elected 1954-'55 Echo Editor

EXAM SCHEDULE

Final examination schedules have been posted, and examinations will be given according to the following: On Wednesday, May 12, Seniors only will take A and B class exams. A4, A14, and A3 will meet from 9:30 to 11:30; and B4, B14 and B3 will meet from 1:30 to 3:30.

All other students will begin their final exams on Thursday, May 13, when C4, C14, and C3 meet from 9:30 to 11:30, and Cx3 class meets from 1:30 to 3:30. On Friday, May 14, at 9:30, D4, D14, and D3 meet. Dx3 and Bx classes meet at 1:30. Saturday, May 15, E4 and E3 classes meet at 9:30. Monday, May 17, F4, F14, and FF3 classes meet at 9:30.

All students, excluding seniors, have exams Monday, May 17, for A4, A14, and A3 classes at 1:30, and Tuesday, May 18, at 9:30, for B4, B14, and B3 classes.

Council Discusses Quorum Question

After some discussion as to whether a quorum was present, Student Council at its meeting this week decided that there was. The question was whether members with four unexcused absences had been dropped, since nothing has been done about this ruling in the past, and whether a quorum consists of a majority of the possible members or of the active members. It was finally pointed out that a quorum of possible members was present.

Council decided that since the time remaining this semester is so short it will pass the matter on to next year's council, with a recommendation that they take action to clarify the problem. President Bill Dartnell pointed out although there were only a few absences last semester, there have been a large number this semester.

Elections

Council took up again the recommendations for elections presented by A. C. McWilliams and Jim Hunt, vice-president and former vice-president. Their plan included keeping unauthorized persons out of the rooms where votes are being counted, notifying all directly of the results of elections, clarifying the code of ethics for elections, and keeping for reference a record in the files of the results and candidates of all elections.

Jennings Named Business Mgr.

Joe Gilliland, rising senior English major from Harriman, was elected editor of the 1954-1955 Highland Echo at a meeting held this week.

Gilliland has worked on the Echo since his freshman year, is a member of Writers' Workshop and Men's Glee Club, and has served as secretary of Athenian society.

Named by the Publications Committee as business manager for the coming year was Ronald Jennings, business administration major from Salt Lake City, Utah. Jennings was business manager of the 1954 Chilhowean.

Staff

Gilliland named Abby Crosby, rising senior English major from Columbia City, Ind., as managing editor. Miss Crosby has been on the Echo staff for three years, is a member of Bainonian, Writers' Workshop, French Club and Playhouse, and is a new member of Theta Alpha Phi, honorary dramatic fraternity.

Malcolm King, rising junior political science major from St. Petersburg, Fla., will be sports editor. He has been acting as sports editor all this year.

Vols Give Money

This year's Student Volunteers project was the Turner-Hodge School in Merida, Yucatan, in Mexico. They raised $75 from members to use for hymnals and chairs at the school. Turner-Hodge is a Presbyterian school founded 35 years ago by two North American missionaries named Turner and Hodge. It started with 13 pupils and now has 600 in the six elementary and three secondary grades.

Student Vols learned of the need at Turner-Hodge through Noemi Arjona-Leyva, a Maryville student who has taught there and plans to return when she graduates. "It would be a good help because children come from poor homes," she stated.

Chairman for the project was Joann Bash, whose committee consisted of Kay Powell, Doug Stubblefield, and Noemi Arjona-Leyva.

Student Vols also presented ten dollars for aid in expenses for Dick Thompson and Homer Rickabaugh, who went to the spring conference of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship at Toccoa, Ga., in April.

Case Reveals Reorganization Of College's Parish Project

By Walt Elwood

Dr. Ralph Case, professor of sociology and director of the Maryville College Parish Project, has announced that the program will be greatly enlarged and extended in scope and service next year.

Under the auspices of the Union City Presbytery and the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., a new larger parish has been created in the Blount County area. The Maryville College Parish program will be incorporated into this new parish, which is as yet unnamed.

The new parish will include four Sunday School missions, Keeble Chapel, East Mountain View, Home Avenue, and Sunny Brook. It will also take in five churches, Wo[illegible]ville, Mount Tab[illegible] Pine Grove and Ha[illegible] morial.

Full Time Worker

[illegible] two full time workers, a Sunday School missionary and a church director. Austin Van Pelt has been appointed to serve as the Sunday School director. He is a graduate of Maryville College and is working toward his B.D. at Louisville Seminary. He will spend his week ends here in Maryville. The Church director has not yet been appointed.

College students will be included in the personnel [illegible] a major role in it. From 30 to 35 students [illegible] to serve as [illegible] superintendents, peoples' directors. Also many more will be needed to preach on Sundays and to teach on week days in Children's View [illegible]

Choir To Give Home Concert

The Maryville College Choir will give its only home concert tomorrow evening at 7 p.m. in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. The concert will be made up of selections chosen from the four parts of the tour program.

Part One includes works based on Old Testament texts including "O Magnify the Lord with Me," taken from the Bay State Collection of 1850 arranged by George Lynn; "Evening Hymn" by Norman Lockwood; "Motet Opus 29, No. 2" based on the fifty-first psalm by Johannes Brahms.

'The Three Kings'

The second part will open with "The Three Kings," by the Canadian composer, Healey Willan. Also included in this group are "Tenebrae Factae Sunt" ("Twas in the Darkest Hour") by Ingengeri; the early American Easter anthem by William Billings, "The Lord Is Risen Indeed;" and the English motet "Methinks I Hear the Full Celestial Choir" by Dr. William Crotch.

'Peaceable Kingdom'

Highlighting the concert as the third part will be the performance of the complete "Peaceable Kingdom" by the American composer, Randall Thompson.

The closing group will consist of choral works centering about the life of Jesus and our adoration of Him. This group will open with "Jesus Walked This Lonesome Valley," a Negro spiritual; "Beautiful Saviour," arranged by F. Melius Christiansen; and "Lord Hosanna" (the Entrance Scene and Second movement from the Advent Motet) by Gustav Schreck.

Senior Non-Music Majors To Give Recital Tuesday

On Tuesday, May 11, three senior non-music majors will present a recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 4:30 p.m. Giving the recital will be Carolyn Beatty, contralto, Lora Kinsinger, contralto and organist, and Wayne Shelton, organist.

Miss Kinsinger will play "Das alte Jahr vergangen ist" by Bach; "Gelobet seist du, Jesu Christ" by Karg-Elert; and "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor" by Bach.

Miss Beatty, accompanied by Miss Kinsinger, will sing "Si, tra i ceppi" by Handel; "By the Waters of Babylon" and "I Will Lift Mine Eyes Up to the Mountains" by Dvorak; and "O don fatale" by Verdi.

James Laster will accompany Miss Kinsinger as she sings "O del mio dolce ardor" by Gluck; "Wie Melodien zieght es mir, Op. 105, No. 1" and "Liebestreu, Op. 3, No. 1" by Brahms; and "Gens duce splendida" by Horatio Parker.

Shelton will play "O mensch, bewein dein' Sunde Gross" by Bach; "Es ist das Heil uns kommen her" by an anonymous German baroque composer; and "Rhythmic Trumpet" (The Baroque Suite) by Bingham.

High School Day Welcomes Seniors

Maryville College and the Blount County Chamber of Commerce sponsored High School Senior Day which was held here yesterday. High school seniors from many near-by schools and a few from schools further away were invited. Among those represented were Alcoa, Everett, Friendsville Academy, and Friendsville High School, Greenback, Lanier, Maryville, Porter, Townsend and Vonore.

The day was begun by the registration of seniors and sponsors in the colonade of Wilson Chapel and by 9:15 the day's program got [illegible] Baker from the [illegible] merce presided at the assembly in which the Rev. W. L. Pickering and Harry Hart played introductory parts. Dr. Lloyd and Dr. Andrew Holt, vice president of U-T, were presented to the group. Playhouse To Present 'Family Portrait' Friday

May Queen . . .

Carol Deane Moore, senior psychology major from Buechel, Ky., reigned as queen last Saturday over the annual May Day celebration. She is shown here with her escort, Jack Maxwell, senior history major from Jackson, S. C., who is president of the senior class.

An estimated 1000 persons attended the program in the amphitheater in the woods. The event featured a pageant centered around the Cindrella story.

Orchestra To Give Concert Tonight

Big thing on campus tonight is the Orchestra Concert conducted by Ralph Moore. The program which begins at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center will include Overture to Rosamunde" by Schubert, "Symphony No. 1 in C" by Beethoven and "Concerto in D Minor" by Mozart, featuring Joyce Linginfelter, piano soloist.

Mr. Moore points out that one interesting thing about this concert is the fact that all the composers wrote in the same period. Schubert was a romanticist, Beethoven, a classicist and Mozart combined both tempers.

WSGA Elects Laing

Results of the Women's Student Government Association elections have been announced as follows: president, Henrietta Laing; Pearsons Hall chairman, Jean Morgan; Baldwin Hall chairman, Isabel Easley; and Memorial Hall chairman, Louise Ogden.

Peggy Fisher Elected Bainonian President

Peggy Fisher, elementary education major from Maryville, has been elected to serve as president of Bainonian for the fall semester.

Other officers are Barbara Buttrill, elementary education major from Decatur, Ga., as vice president; Kathy Garrison, secretary; Sadie Davis, treasurer; and Esther Lerch and Marcia Williams, program chairmen. The Rush Week chairmen have been appointed; they are Carol Sleight and Ducky Coker.

Alpha Sig Elects Bugenhagen Prexy

Alpha Sigma has elected the following officers for the coming year: president, Tom Bugenhagen; vice-president, Jack Barber, secretary, Tom Paton; treasurer, Dick Henderson; program chairman, Guy Selander; Inter-club Council representative, Jim Demer; rush week chairman, Bob Brand.

Play Planned For Theater

Members of the Maryville College Playhouse are working steadily to complete all arrangements for their commencement production of "Family Portrait" this coming Friday, May 14, and again on Tuesday, May 18.

All facilities of the new theater portion of the Samuel T. Wilson chapel will be required to stage the production. "We need as much help as possible," assistant director George Caldwell told the Echo yesterday.

Nancy Rideout, junior drama major from Buchanan, Va., is playing the leading role of Mary in the story about the family of Christ.

Four Sets

Four different sets are being constructed for the drama of seven scenes. Use will be made of the new scenery wagons, and "flying" scenery, dropped to the stage house, will be put into use.

"Family Portrait" is in three acts and is written by Lenore Coffee and William J. Cowen. It portrays the family of Christ during the last three years of His life, the resentment of His brothers because He left their carpentry business, of the capitalization of His popularity by tavern keepers, how the attitude of the fickle crowd changes to hatred, and of the feeling of disgrace which His family bears.

Modern Costumes

The costumes of the play are not Biblical because of the intended timelessness of the subject matter.

Kathleen Craven is directing the production.

The numerous persons connected with this traditional story demands a large cast, most of whom have small speaking parts. Of course there are extras for the crowd effects.

The play will be given at 8:30 p.m. at each performance.

Sophs To Honor Seniors With SSO

The sophomore class will light a special bon fire at 6:30 Tuesday night on the football field to honor this year's graduating class with a "Senior Sendoff" in the form of an all campus picnic.

The highlight of the evening will be the presentation of class skits. Each class will present an original skit, after which there will be group singing led by Dee Woods.

Judy Burgos and Jim Crawford are co-chairmen for the event. Alice Rowe and Elizabeth Enloe are in charge of publicity. Bud Spalding and Charlie Partee are working on the sophomore skit, and Barbara Chubb on the junior skit. Freshman committee members are Nantz Harvard, Emily Swanton, Virginia Marshall, and Kip Spong.

Last year's sophomore class held the first senior sendoff.

Seniors Plan Study, Marriage, Work After Commencement

By Abby Crosby

Commencement, with its caps and gowns, Daisy Chain, "Chopel" dedication, mixed emotions, and many, many relatives, is almost upon us; so in keeping with the custom of the Echo, the time seems ripe to publish an account of where the 1954 graduates will be and what they will be doing this summer and next fall.

On Student Government

As you are all, it is to be hoped, aware of the recent campus elections for our student body officers, this seems to be an opportune time to urge each student of Maryville College to give the 1954-55 administration the support which it needs and deserves.

The Student Council of Maryville has a big job on its hands, for it controls much of campus policy and sees that these so-called "policies" are carried out. The past few years have seen a multitude of changes, as any upperclassman will say. It is up to the governing body next year to continue these improvements and to lay the ground work for new ones.

No student body, no matter how powerful, can change things overnight. It takes months, often years, of proposals, plans, agreements, and discussions before any worthwhile change is effected. Many of the advances made under the leadership of this year's council had their seeds sown last year or the year before. A consistently good council is needed throughout the life of the college. One weak link can snap the chain of events, stop all progress, and set student government back five or even ten years.

A Student Council cannot let progress die; nor can it be content with accomplishing something already started. No Council is worthy of its position on the campus if it is content to rest on the laurels it has gathered from the plans laid by previous groups. It is therefore necessary that an administration look perhaps three or four years beyond its term of office. Any Council, not reaching the goals which it has outlined at the beginning of the year, but which has laid the ground work and has put any sort of recommendation or purpose into the minutes with sufficient force to keep the movement going, has every right to be proud of itself.

It is time the student body of this college took stock of itself and its relation to its governing body. Do we feel that the Student Council is just a name with lots of glory attached to it—or do we feel that our Student Council represents us—the individuals who make up this school? Are we willing to take an active interest in the functioning of that body and stand behind it, support it, and abide by its decisions?

Next year can be a milestone, just as this year and last year have been, for the Student Government at Maryville; but it is up to the student body to make it so.

Comps And Special Studies

For years students at Maryville look forward with dread to special studies and comprehensives. Some persons have even been heard to express the opinion that they will transfer somewhere else before they have to do special studies. In their view such projects are something to be looked towards with apprehension and suffered through painfully.

From the vantage point of a senior who has undergone the ordeals of special studies and comprehensives, there is, however, something to be said for them. Special studies provide valuable training in research and in individual study. Even the person who is not expecting to go on to graduate school benefits from the experience of undertaking his own project in his chosen field. Comprehensives, frightening as they are in anticipation, appear in retrospect as a worth-while review of one's work. They enable a person to gather together the facts and ideas he has learned in his various courses, and to relate them to the whole field of study.

These values may not be apparent at the time, but they become more evident when the ordeals are over. We would be sorry to see Maryville give up its programs for comprehensives and special studies.

Here it is exam time again! That means some of us are exempt (but those lucky souls are few and far between), and some of us will have to study, while other are going to have to cram. Here's how one person did it:

PROLOGUE

(This pile of books around me here
Is so formidable that I fear
I should have planned to sooner start
And memorize my notes by heart.)

Well, let's see, now, this history
Should be as easy as A B C —
Myron, Plato, Socrates,
Pindar, Pyrrho, Euripedes,
Maya, moksha, karma, too,
"Columbus sailed the ocean blue,"
Seljuk, Ottoman, Haroun-al Rashid,
(Mr. Fisher's tests are dillies indeed.)
When were the T'angs? What is a mu?
Where is Bactria? Who was Fu-Fu?
Whatever happened to Charlie's mane?
(Oh, this stuff could drive you insane!)

I'll switch to English and maybe here
I'll study hard and persevere;
Onomatopoeia, metonymy,
Loc. cit., op. cit., and euphony;
(Don't ask me what all that means,
But it's used by cultured human beins.)
Comma, dash, apostrophe,
Metaphor, ibid., hyperbole.
I seem to know that stuff pretty well,
But then, on a test you never can tell.

"Parlez-vous francais?" Oh, this is fun,
I'll study French till half past one;
Ceci; laquelle; je suis heureux;
(I'm really not, I should infer),
"Soeurs" is sisters and "freres" is brothers,
Nous sommes, vous etes, and all the others.
"Comment allez-vous?" Did you ask me?
I'm just as bored as I can be.
It's time to study my other stuff.
(Boy, these exams are gon' be tough.)

Biology's next, so let me see—
How many hairs on the leg of a flea?
Forty-six thousand five hundred and eight
Bricks in the chapel. But now wait!
Just how did that get into this rhyme?
'Pears to me I'm wasting time.
But why should I cram and get confused?
I think I'll curl up and take a good snooze!

Footnotes, too, from research theme,
A paper we hold in high esteem.

* * * *

Being as how we're in a poetic* mood, we might as well tell you about the lovely little animal Dr. Williams found on his F period class field trip (after he got home). Maybe this ran through his mind:

Ode to Lizard Found in Trouser Leg

Hail to thee, Oh Phylum Chordata,
Class Reptilia, and Order Squomata,
Hitch-hiking illegally thus; although
I've decided to let you go;
'Twould be so fitting for you to have died,
Pickled by me in formaldehyde!

*So that's what it is

* * * *

EPILOGUE

Now, father, dear, I tried so hard!
Don't hold me in such disregard—
I thought I knew it, but I forgot;
My pencil broke, and the room was hot;
I wasn't predestined, anyhow,
To make that dean's list just right now!

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Marian Hina

Anybody for the Cinema? I say, Jawn, you don't seem to be applying yourself to the text books with much energy. Let's stroll down to the village some evening and look over the attractions. The Druid Hill Drive-In isn't very popular with the campus crowd for some strange reason, so I hardly think it worth investigating.

At the Cawpital, a gay-sounding flicker called "Carnival Story," featuring Anne Baxter and Steve Cochran is playing Monday through Wednesday. Thursday through Friday, Jeff Chandler emotes on the screen in "War Arrow." Maureen O'Hara and Susan Ball successfully pretty up the scenery.

The Park is going all the way for Monday, and hiring an All-Star cast to sparkle up "My Heart Goes Crazy." There'll be a jolly time in town that night! "Sea of Lost Ships" plays Tuesday and Wednesday with John Derek casting his shadow across the screen. This Cinema is guaranteed to help you lose yourself and forget finals.

Thursday and Friday Leo Gregory and the Bowery Boys become Private Eyes in the attraction of that name. On Saturday, the Bowery Boys stay over for a return engagement, but to keep from becoming any more boring than they are, they'll present "Bowery Champs" in collaboration with a shoot-em-up, hero-jump-the-villain-on-a-horse, and roll-down-the-hill-exchanging-fisticuffs Western called "Bullets for Bandits" I say, Jawn! That last one sounds ver-r-y exciting.

And say, Jawn, have you sauntered down to see the art exhibit by the art students of Maryville College? Those things are interesting, what? There is such variety! I say! These American people are so individualistic. I don't see how many can be so different and yet all be good in their own way.

Did you see the odd displays of pictures made with scraps of everything? When you look close, they are simply cards with stuff pasted into a conglomeration. But look a little longer, and it becomes a logical picture right before your very eyes. The students have a name for them—collages.

[illegible] on the way by it[illegible] with all the aluminum [illegible] it looks like something really belonging to the atomic age.

This art exhibit has been about the jolliest, don't you agree, old Chop? I wonder if these could possibly go on tour and be shown in other colleges as those other exhibits have been shown here.

Maryville College leans towards Requiems this year, don't you think, friend Jawn? First was the Requiem for Fallen Nineveh, which was written by Maryville's own Mr. Harter. It was so different that it certainly took the campus by storm. Several days afterward, I overheard some students going down the road singing, "Loo hoot the silver! Loo-hoot the gold!" What a thing to sing on this fair campus out of its original text. What will visitors think?

Did you attend the performance of the Brahms Requiem by the men's and women's choirs, Jawn? It was an excellent presentation and an evening well spent. Do you not think so? Joyce Lingimfelter and Tom Fairhurst did a very remarkable job of their solos. I'll wager, Jawn, that if you had been asked to do such a thing, your mouth would have been locked shut.

Miss Sellick should be well rewarded for the hard work she and her singers put in on the production. There wans't a better night for the college to have distinguished visitors.

Didn't that lass Jane Robison do a fine job at the piano? I say, Jawn, I was afraid her fingers would truly have been worn down to the first nuckle.

Mr. Moore, Miss Johnson, and Mr. Bloy were interesting to watch. After the initial surprise at seeing them there, they seemed as if they belonged.

Though it may sometimes seem so, old chop, singing isn't the only thing Maryville College is known for. These students have rarely been known to give anything but a tremendously successful play, no matter what type it is. Take "The Intruder," for example. Experimental Theatre presented it, and if anyone had

Raymond Swartzback, MC Alumnus, Featured In Presbyterian Magazine

The Rev. Raymond H. Swartzback, Maryville graduate in the class of 1947, is the subject of a cover feature story in the current issue of Presbyterian Life, a church magazine published in Philadelphia.

Mr. Swartzback's picture is on the cover of the magazine, and the story inside tells of his leadership of a neglected Cincinnati church to a leading position in its community.

He went to the Robertson Memorial Presbyterian Church in Cincinnati after his graduation from McCormick Seminary in Chicago. He is a World War II veteran and was wounded while serving in Europe. He was a biology major at Maryville, and was elected a member of Who's Who.

When Mr. Swartzback first went to the Robertson church, the article says, membership was five families, and his first congregation was made up solely of his wife.

To combat the situation, he made surveys, paid visits to homes, and even preached on street corners. His main aim was to be seen enough around the community so that the people would accept him as a permanent resident.

After he had worked by himself and with the members of his congregation to provide a more efficient and attractive church program, he turned his attention to repair of the run-down church building.

Many of the members of his congregation are union-member craftsmen, so he had help from that direction, and he also procured assistance from fraternity boys of the University of Cincinnati. Mr. Swartzback, says the magazine feature writer, has helped by his ministry, "The Church That Nobody Wanted."

Seniors Choose Gift

The senior class voted yesterday on what it wished to leave to the college as its class gift. Gifts are usually bought with money pledged by the members to be paid over a period of five years.

Possible choices before the senior class in yesterday's voting were improving the student center or equipping and paying for a make-up room in the new theater.

so much as dared gasp, the whole house would have screamed and headed for safety.

Coming up is the Commencement Play, and I wouldn't miss that for a pound! Would you care to accompany me to the performance of Family Portrait, Jawn? I would be flattered to have your company.

I say, Jawn! You know the college is about to terminate its instructions until fall, so we'll be forced to go our respective ways for the next three months. How about a stroll around the loop for old time's sake? Well, bully for you! Let's go now!

Sports Spotlights

By Jerry King and Monk Johnston

As two outgoing seniors in the field of physical education, we have been asked to write a general appraisal of this field as we have seen it in our four years at school. Be it understood that the opinions here recorded are our own. Be it further understood that we ask no one to agree with us, nor do we feel that apologies are due anywhere. These are just our own humble thoughts.

To begin with, it would be proper to take a look at the major sports—football, basketball, and baseball. We feel, generally speaking, that the teams fielded by the college in these events are entirely adequate. This is not to say, by any means, that they are all that they could or should be. Baseball has been consistently good; there can be little complaint regarding our diamond squads. They and their coach are due much praise. Football has grown increasingly stronger and this is definitely as it should be. Maryville's number one spectator sport is entitled to a position of some prominence. Basketball, however, is in a stagnate state. Only once in four years have we witnessed a winning club. From our vantage point, it would seem that nobody particulary cares. We wonder why, for the necessary ingredients have always been available. Who is to blame?

Turning to intramurals, we again feel that the program is generally good. It fills a definite need. It is far from ideal, though, and no one should be satisfied with it as it is. The most consistent gripe that we have heard is that which concerns itself with the refereeing system. It is poor. We have both played on teams which have had their records ruined by bad calls. It isn't a good feeling. This should be seriously looked into by those in charge. There are several other phases of intramurals which bring much dissatisfaction, but space does not permit their mention and they are, we feel, somewhat minor. Generally, it is a good program. From our associations with other colleges there are few which provide a better intramural system.

We next give our attention to what we feel are three situations which need cleaning up. The first of this is school spirit. It is poor! Student support is not at all good. Is it because there are no "big winners"? We do not think so. We feel it is a reflection of the College's whole policy regarding athletics.

Why not hold sports at Maryville up to at least their rightful place? Both of us have sat through classes where teachers have taken upon themselves to belittle the value of college athletics. It strikes us that within the very core of he College community there is little pride in what takes place on the athletic field. It is no wonder school spirit lags.

Our second major gripe is aimed at the program entitled Women's Varsity. Without going into its general pros and cons, we offer the opinion that it goes too far when it awards letters and sweaters to its participants. Perhaps the intramural program should award them to those who share in it's system! We hold that herein is balance in the pysical education department upset. Girls, though they may deserve some sort of award, certainly do not merit the same award that the varsity athlete who spends hours upon hours of toil earning. It is strange that more girls win these letters and sweaters than varsity basketball and baseball players combined. The whole thing is ridiculous and, we might add, costly.

The final big fluke that we have witnessed for four years is the Athletic Board of Control. It does nothing! It's members are apparently the only ones in school who know what it is for, and they tell us it is worthless. A fine situation, huh? We say either revamp it or dump it. So much for the gripes.

In addition to the three complaints just mentioned, we make three wishes for the future. First, we would like to see a new gym, or at least a new floor, built. No doubt one or the other is coming. We sure hope so. Secondly, we look for the return of track on a large scale. As in other sports, the material is here. Interest in the cinder path is growing and its return to the campus would be both welcome and worthwhile. Finally, we would like to see some sort of intercollegiate athletic program set up for girls. An attempt was made last year to initiate a basketball team and a schedule. Caught in helpless infancy, it was easily killed by such excuses a "It would be too strenous for the girls." This is a lot of hogwash. Such a program would be inexpensive, easy to operate, and contribute much to campus morale, etc.

We have always been impressed with the great potential that this school has for athletics. Throughout the years we have witnessed the play of many fine athletes, such as Charlie Allen, "Meano" Shields, Jimmy Campbell, Dick Abbott, and others. It has been apparent also that plenty of potential has remained hidden within the student body. There is much unused talent. This is not as it should be. It is due, we feel, to an unwholesome attitude regarding sports at Maryville. This attitude was much more prevalent during our first two years here. Of late, however, it has changed considerably and improvement is noticeable. Let us see that it continues in this direction.

In summation, it is the opinion of these writers that the athletic system of the College, when considered as a whole, is adequate and doing a good job. We do feel, though, that there is much room for improvement. This improvement is not generally to be a material one; it is more a matter of developing a wholesome attitude both by students and faculty. The riddance of certain useless and foolish practices and policies would expedite this.

Maryville College, through a varied and balanced athletic program, has the opportunity to develop an important aspect of each student's life. . . So may it be.

Anderson, Shelton Lead Hitters, Petree Top Hurler

Center-fielder Bill Anderson, hitting .393, leads the Maryville College diamondmen at the plate with Bob Shelton, third baseman, in a close second with a .387 mark. Clarence Shepard, the hustling second sacker, is the other Scot batting over the .300 mark with a .303 average.

Tow-headed Kyle Petree, the slender southpaw of Coach Honaker's squad, leds the mound staff with a 3-win and 1-loss record, his only loss coming in an exhibition game with the Class D Maryville-Alcoa Twins. Another lefty, Jack Crouch, has the perfect record of one win and no losses while Bob Ramger has won one and lost one. Harry Robinson, last year's top pitcher, is having a bad season as he has compiled a record of one win and four losses.

SCOTS SPLIT WITH WASPS ON ROAD TRIP, 5-2. 6-1

"Hardluck Harry" Robinson lost his fourth ball game of the season against the Emory & Henry Wasps Tuesday afternoon, but teammate Rob Ramger hit his stride and won his first game of the season to give the Highlander baseballers a split on their mediocre road trip.

Big Chuck Dunn showed potent power at the plate for the first time this season, getting two hits and playing a major part in the Scots' only two runs. Chuck singled in the first Maryville run which was the first run of the game in the top of the second.

But the big boys from Emory & Henry delivered with a three-run bottom-of-the-second inning which broke the back of the visitors from the Highlands. The host squad combined two sharp singles, a double and a groundout to account for their three big tallies. The Wasps added one in the third and another in the fourth to "ice" the game. The Scots made a vain attempt in the fifth inning when they pushed across another run, Dunn scoring after his second hit of the game, but it proved futile.

In the second game, fastballing Bob Ramger benched seven Wasps on strikeouts and received excellent support from his fellow ballplayers, plus six Emory & Henry errors, to notch his first win of the season.

The Highlanders opened with a burst of speed as they scored three runs in the first frame. Wasp moundsman Pitta got off to a rather shaky start, allowing two singles and issuing four walks while getting two out, to give the Scots their three runs. Chapman trotted to the mound and Pitta headed for the showers with ⅔ of an inning towards his letter.

Emory & Henry added their only run of the game in the bottom of the third inning on two singles, a walk and an error. Maryville tallied a single run in the top of fourth.

Bill Anderson, with three hits in four trips, and Clarence Shepard, with two hits in four trips, led the Scots at the plate while Buchanan, the Wasp third baseman, had two hits in three trips to lead his squad at the plate.

In the seventh inning, the Highlanders insured their victory by adding two more runs on two singles, a sacrifice and an error to end the game's scoring.

Hammers Capture Intramural Crown

Alpha Sigma's Hammers downed Athenians and the Pre-Min teams this week to win the Intramural Softball League going away with a seven win and no loss record for the season. The Athenians finished in second place with a six-win and no-loss record.

Wednesday afternoon the Hammers played the league-leading Athenians in a thriller ,with the Hammers easing out the win with a 6-5, eight-inning victory. The Athenians tied it up, 5-5, in the top half of the seventh and the game extended into the eighth frame wen the Hammers bunted frame when the Hammers bunted was the leading hitter for the Hammers and Dave Ramsey led the Athenians at the plate.

Thursday the Hammers showed their championship form as they downed the then second place Pre-Min club by a score of 17-0 with Bill Wheatley and Bob Patterson joining talents on the mound to turn in a no-hit, no-run ball game, a rare ocurrence around this campus. Bob Navratil, Horace Beckwith and Bob Nier were the leading hitters for the victors although everyone chipped in with their slugs.

Earlier in the week the Athenians had trampled the Pre-Min club by a score of 9-3 to move into first place with a 6-0 record and put the losers into a deeper third place. Also the Y won a forfeit game from the Boxers to notch their only win of the season.

Yesterday afternoon the Intramural Softball tournament started its final round and will run through next Tuesday.

Scots Edge King In 6-3 Encounter

Playing against the elements (rain) as well as the King baseballers, the Maryville College diamonders trimmed the hosts by a score of 6-3 to make their debut of the road trip a success. It marked the fifth win against five losses for the Scots.

Southpaw Kyle Petree picked up his third win of the season against one loss as he limited the King batsmen to four hits and kept them scoreless for five innings. Bob Shelton, Bill Anderson and Don Moore each got two hits, one of Moore's going for two bases. Bob Ramger also chipped in with two-bagger in two trips to the plate. Maryville tallied one run in the initial frame and moved ahead by a three-run margin in the fifth. Two singles and an error were combined to give the Scots their twin scores in the fifth.

In the sixth Petree eased up and got into trouble. He issued a walk to start the inning; the next man doubled, but a fielder's choice killed one runner. The next batter, Catcher Hollar, unlimbered a sizzling liner that ended up as a four bagger to account for the three runs.

Maryville bounced back in the seventh with a single tally and in the eighth added two more. Doubles by Ramger and Moore and a sacrifice plated the two markers to end the game's scoring.

Scot Netters Play In State Tourney

Four members of the Scot net squad are participating in the state intercollegiate tourney this week at Sewanee University. Members of the team to make the trip were Captain John Anderson, Kent Buser, Marshall England, and Sonny Shackleford. Anderson, Buser, and England are all seniors while Shackleford is only a sophomore and should form the backbone of the tennis team for the next two years.

Coach Johnson's boys will close their 1954 schedule here during exam week with a strong Sewanee team furnishing the opposition.

Athletic Board Holds Elections

Maryville's Athletic Board held their annual election of officers yesterday for the coming year with Junior Bob Shelton and Sophomore Tom Bugenhagen on the ballot for president.

Shelton has been prominent in three sports—football, basketball, baseball—since entering Maryville in 1952. He has also maintained a "B" average in his studies.

Bugenhagen was this year's wrestling captain, and won the 167-lb. division championship in the Southeastern Conference Tourney this year. Tom is also president of the Sophomore class, and has maintained a "B" average.

Other offices: vice-president, secretary, treasurer, girl representatives (2), boy representatives (3), and two faculty representatives.

Senior Bill Van Benthuysen is the retiring president.

Scots Trim 'Buffs' In Twin Bill

By Jim Demer

The Scotties of Maryville College won both games of a baseball doubleheader on their home diamond Saturday, May 1. In the first contest, Maryville edged Milligan College 3-2, but in the second game the Scots opened fire to blast the Buffalos, 14-1.

The only extra-base blow of the initial game was a double by Milligan's Taylor. Jack Crouch was the winning pitcher and was relieved in the seventh by Bob Ramger. Ramger came in with one out and two on and got the first man he faced to hit into a double play.

In the second game Don Moore hit a homer for the Scots in the fourth frame with no one aboard. Chuck Dunn got Maryville's other extra base blow in the third with a double. Taylor for Milligan, hit a triple and Fletcher got a double in the fifth. Fletcher's double accounted for the Buffs only run of the game when Warnock scored.

Petree was the winning pitcher in the second game, relieved by Henderson and Raulerson. Gooch was the losing hurler, relieved by Fox, who started the game at second base.

Lynn Counts Wins Sportsmanship Cup

Lynn Counts, a junior town student, was awarded the Y.M.C.A. Intramural Sportmanship Trophy last Sunday during the regular "Y" meeting. Counts was selected by a vote of the college men who participate in the various intramural sports. The trophy was presented by Bill Van Benthuysen, president of the Athletic Board.

Lynn along with Allen Grippo was selected from all of the intramural athletes to "compete" for the trophy, and Lynn received the favor of the Y.

A very prominent member of the Athenian Squads, Lynn has proven many times in the heat of competition that he is not only a fine athlete, but a true gentleman as well.

Last year the trophy was awarded to George Roberts for his easy going manner on the intramural athletic fields of Maryville. George is now in the Army.

Rioting and revolts were reported in Paraguay, with reports that president Federico Chaves was ousted.

19th Century Story Reports Rigors Of Quarantine During Examinations

(This story from a Minneapolis paper of 1889 was submitted by Mrs. George E. Davies)

Down at Carleton college they have what is called a quarantine season, at least that is what the collegians call it. As everybody knows, Carleton is a co-educational institution. The young ladies, or many of them, live in a cozy dormitory in the college preserves, and there are various rules and regulations about the association of the young ladies and the young gentlemen together, all made with the end in view of keeping the young people in due social bounds, so that there will be none of the gentle dissipations which austere professors the world over are wont to consider inimical to good scholarship.

From Decoration day, May 30, until the close of commencement, the lines are still more closely drawn, and no young man may call upon a young lady during this quarantine season under any pretext. The sweet damosels are to be kept in their own delicious atmosphere, and no ugly, horrid man is allowed to accompany them on any of those delightful little rides or drives or walks which are so tantalizingly sweet in these first rare days of June. The professors, no doubt, have good, and, to them, sufficient reasons for this quarantine embargo, but the young people are none the less cumbered by its irksomeness.

Just a few days ago, right after Decoration day had ushered in the Carleton quarantine, a young man who was acquainted with one of the young ladies, a gallant fellow, who liked to make an occasional evening call and while the hours away in intellectual converse with a studiously inclined young lady, made up his mind he would run the blockade, would face and overcome the quarantine, even at the danger of contracting the heart-paining disease which the relentless young Archer spreads wherever he flies his sly shafts.

He dressed himself in a pair of resplendent duck trousers, a far different coat and vest from any he had ever been seen wearing, covered his downless upper lip with a patent mustache that would have fooled his own godmother, and, armed with the invaluable aid of Minneapolis, went forth to run the quarantine. Minneapolis was to aid him in affording a temporary home for him, as shown by his card, on which he had written this pleasant name:

Elmer Robinson
Minneapolis
Minnesota

He called at the dormitory hall in the edge of the evening, as debonnaire a young up-to-date as ever turned the heads of the girls in a stroll down Nicollet avenue.

"I would like to call on Miss Brown"—the name may be as well Brown as the real one.

"Miss Brown? Um, um, Miss Brown; and what is your name, sir?"

It was evident that the young man was not going to pass quarantine without a clean bill of health—the keen-eyed lady in charge was up to snuff.

"Here is my card, madam," with just the shade of dignified reserve which attaches to the well bred Minneapolitan.

Te keeper of the gates scanned the card and, taking it in her hand, left the young Minneapolitan in waiting.

She reached the room of Miss Brown—here was a chance for subtle detective work.

"Ah, Miss Brown, have you friends in Minneapolis?"

Yes, she had.

"Do you know a gentleman named Robinson?"

"Robinson? brightening up, "Elmer Robinson? Yes, indeed; he's a friend of mine."

That was conclusive proof, and the young Minneapolitan was allowed to pass up. Still all was not quietude in the breast of the faithful guarder of the gates, so she asked one or two young men who happened to be near the door if they had noticed the young man who had been waiting—did not they think it looked a good deal like young Jones?—it will not be necessary to give his third, and real, name.

The young man called on the young lady, and after a delightful evening in quarantine left for Minneapolis—via his college room.

Glee Clubs Give Brahms' 'Requiem'

The Girls' Choir and the Men's Glee Club presented Brahms' "Requiem" Thursday evening, May 6, in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. The 'Requiem" was directed by Miss Edrie Sellick.

Joyce Linginfelter, soprano, and Tom Fairhurst, baritone, were featured as soloists. Jane Robison was the piano accompanist and Darrel Johnsonbaugh played the tympani. Mr. Ralph Moore arranged the tympani part.

Barraclough To Award Prize For Outstanding Senior Choir Member

President Lloyd has announced the establishment of a new annual award given by Dr. Henry Barraclough, who was accompanist at the February Meetings this year, and by Mrs. Barraclough. The award will be made for the first time this year.

The new catalog will carry the following description: "The Barraclough Choir Award of fifty dollars is given annually at Commencement time by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Barraclough, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, to that senior who has been a member of the choir of Maryville College for at least two years and who, in the judgement of the Director of the Choir, the Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, and the President of the College, has been most outstanding in service to the choir and has also been an active Christian leader and a successful student."

French To Have Picnic

The French Club has no more regular meetings scheduled for the semester. A picnic will be held Wednesday, May 12, at the home of Miss Wilkinson. Installation of new officers is slated for the picnic.

French Club will honor its newly-elected members at that time. Those named to membership at a recent meeting include Adlai Boyd, Henry Emmans, Liz Frei, Margaret Gilmore, Rae Graham, Margie Haynie, Ann Henderson, Ann Kelton, Tommy Moose, Mary Morrell, Martha Nelson, Judy Ross, Marcia Williams and Barbara Wilkie.

Davis Gives Tests

Dr. Clifford Davis from the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., was a visitor on campus Wednesday of this week. A church vocation counselor, his duties are to give information about church jobs, needs, and the like; to give psychological tests to determine the real interests of the student; and to give personality check-ups.

While at MC Dr. Davis interviewed several students and gave psychological tests to nine prospective seminary students. He is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and of Western Seminary, and received his doctorate in psychology.

Fees Raised $10 For Each Hour Over 18

A change in the MC catalogue for next year will read as follows: "For each class hour over eighteen carried in a semester a charge of $10 is made. In applying this charge a private lesson for which an extra fee is paid is not counted as part of the eighteen hours. The total load is considered to be the sum of the class hours carried, even though some of the classes may not be taken for credit. A double laboratory period is considered the equivalent of a class hour."

Classes Hold Elections

Elections for officers of the rising sophomore, junior, and senior classes were held all day yesterday. Long chapel prevented these elections from being held earlier in the week.

Discussion of the matter was made in Student Council last week, and it was decided early this week that class approval of the nominations could not be considered until Thursday morning. That was when final nominations were made.

Workshop To Vote

Writers' Workshop members will vote for this semester's selections for Chips at the regular meeting Monday afternoon at 4:30 in Dr. E. R. Hunter's classroom.

Members are asked to bring 40 cents each for payment to Peggy Fisher for the picnic laist week.

Joanne Edwards and Joe Gilliland are scheduled to read, and Jim Fisher and Ken Wilkinson will be their critics.

Persons interested in purchasing a copy of this year's edition of Chips may still do so.

Diane Evans, '55, of Hyattsville, Md., is engaged to Marshall England, '54 of Dillwyn, Va. Definite wedding plans will be anounced at a later date.

SENIORS . . .

Buchanan, and Jerry King will also be UT graduate students next fall.

Marshall England will study dentistry in the Medical College of Virginia, as will Ken Tuck. Smiley Erickson will be enrolled in the University of Maryland Medical School. David Gates will also do graduate study there. Naomi Burgos hopes to go to Columbia University part time and work part time. Bob Navratil will be in graduate school at the University of Chicago Law School.

Bent Olesón will study at Indiana University, and Ran Pierce has a dietetic internship at St. Luke's Hospital in New York. Anne Yoakum has a graduate assistantship in chemistry at the University of Florida; and Edna Mae Stout plans to take a training course with the State Department of Public Welfare, after which they will send her to the school of her choice.

Teachers

Several of the seniors have prepared for the teaching profession and plan to go into their field this fall. After their commencement-time wedding, Dick Abbott and Peggy Evans will teach in Blount County. Martha Burgess will teach elementary school in Alcoa, and Carol Cornell plans to teach in Florida. Pat Halstead, Mary Virginia Ferguson, and Stan Ray will be teaching either in Atlanta, Ga. or Richmond, Va., and plan to live together.

Nancy Naylor will teach in the Norfolk County School System and Peggy Reed will teach in Long Island. Wilma Trumbull has a job in the primary grades of the Wilkins Township Schools outside Pittsburgh; and Hazel Timblin and Betty Jo Woody will live together and teach near Durham, N. C. Dean Styles will teach biology here at Maryville College and will continue as Dr. Griffitts' private secretary.

hour credit for their parish work and will attend weekly conferences under the direction of the two supervisors.

The administration committee is composed of the following people: the Rev. Donald Barker, chairman; Dr. Francis Prichard; Dr. Horace E. Orr; Dr. Case; Dr. Randolph; Dr. Jackmon and Dr. Mansell. When the parish is completely organized, representatives from the local churches will govern themselves according to Presbyterian law.

"It is hoped," said Dr. Case, that the students will take advantservice to the school and the community, and at the same time gain valuable experience in Christian field work."

COUNCIL . . .

Council accepted the report, which is to go to Student-Faculty Senate, and Dartnell asked Hunt to write up any recommendations for constitutional change he may have found in the course of his investigations.

No Town Night violations were reported.

More Elections

McWilliams announced that ABC and class elections were to take place this Friday. Dartnell reminded everyone about making visitors welcome on High School Day, and asked especially for persons to help with the program.

Next week's meeting is to be a joint meeting of the old and new Student Council, including a party and words from both the old and the new presidents.

Further plans were made for president-elect Carol F. Moore's trip to the conference at Carson-Newman. The other officers for next year are unable to go, and Dartnell said he would ask several more future members of council about their interest in attending the meeting.

Since Memorial has a very small profit from its coke machine, and since the house mother will not give up Student Council's share until the last day of school, Jim Hunt asked that Council permit Memorial to submit an IOU, so that coke machine finances can be settled before graduation day. Council authorized this to be done.

101 Seniors To Graduate Commencement Day

Choir To Leave Next Week For Annual Tour

By Jim Hopkins

The choir is making its concert tour after Commencement this year in order to meet engagements to sing at the Presbyterian General Assembly in Detroit and the Presbyterian Women's National Meeting in Purdue. The Choir will leave Maryville by bus immediately after the graduation exercises on Wednesday, May 19, travel all night, and arrive in Detroit at midday Thursday. One of the alumni who is a pastor there is arranging their lodgings.

On Thursday night, May 20, they will sing in the Foreign Missions popular meeting at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the USA. On the next day they will sing at the women's meeting.

Women's Meeting

They will begin on Saturday appointments that take them to different churches each day until they arrive at Purdue ten days later. For six days they will sing daily in the Women's National Meeting.

Playhouse members in the choir are planning to give a play there.

Harry Harter will be in charge of the tour. He will be assisted, as on the previous trips, by Dr. Griffitts, who has arranged the schedule and acts as business manager. From New Albany, Ind. and during the days at Purdue, Louise Lloyd, a recent instructor in music and formerly a member of the choir, will be in the party.

Chapel Dedication Ceremonies Set For Tomorrow

The Rev. E. Fay Campbell, secretary of the division of higher education of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, will make the dedicatory address at the dedication of the new Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel tomorrow at 4 p.m.

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd will preside at the service, in which many prominent persons will appear. The choir, the graduating class, and the faculty will take part in the program in the chapel on Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Wilson H. Yost of Knoxville, moderator of the Presbytery of Union, will give the prayer of invocation. The choir will sing "O Praise Ye God" by Tschaikowsky and "O Magnify the Lord With Me," arranged by Lynn.

Words of appreciation will be given by Jack Maxwell, president of the senior class, William Dartnell, president of the student body, and James N. Proffitt, M. D., president of the Alumni Association.

The Rev. Francis W. Pritchard, pastor of New Providence Presbyterian Church, representing the moderator of the Synod of the Mid-South, will read the Scripture lesson.

President Lloyd will give a historical sketch. "The Chapels at Maryville College." The Hon. Joe Caldwell Gamble, chairman of the directors of Maryville College, will name the building. The response of Dr. Wilson's family will be by Ruth Wilson Phillips, of Flandreau, S. D.

FTA Chooses Officers

Elected president of Maryville's Future Teachers of America organization was Grace Harrison. Other officers recently chosen include Eloise Gazaway, vice-president; Sue Hutson, treasurer; Evelyn Miller, secretary; and Donna French, Inter-Club Council representative.

Deposit Refund

The College Treasurer's office has announced that refunds of the $10 deposit will be made beginning next week. Returning students should also pay their advance deposits at that time.

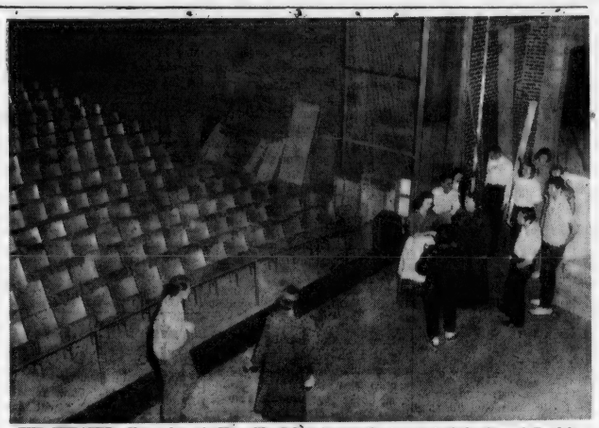
Second Showing Of 'Portrait' Set For Tuesday

The next performance of the commencement play, "Family Portrait," wil lbe Tuesdy, May 18, at 8:30 p.m.

Last night the first performance of "Family Portrait" was given to a full house in the new theater. The leading roles are being played by Nancy Rideout, junior drama major from Buchanan, Va., who portrayed Mary; Joanne Edwards, senior English major from Hawthorne, N.J., who had the part of Mary Magdelen; Joan McNaughton, freshman from Haddonfield, N.J., who portrayed Mary Cleophas; and Walter Elwood, senior history major from Paterson, N.J., who played Joseph, the oldest son.

Kathleen Craven is the director and George Caldwell is the assistant student director.

Sally Butts Installed As Theta President



Sally Butts was installed as president of Theta Epsilon at a meeting Thursday evening. The other officers who will serve with her are vice-president, Pat Jones; secretary, Ann Kelton; treasurer, Liz Emloe; chaplain, Judy Ross; program chairmen, Jo Brooks and Lavinia Lee; and rush week chairmen, Dixie Conner and Judy Burgos.

Bob Ramger was presented as the Bow. The Arrows were Bill Davis, Bob Johnston, Bob Jackson and Ronnie Pearson.

Amidon To Lead Pre-Ministerials

For the year of 1954-1955 Forest Amidon will lead the Pre-Ministerial Association as president. Serving with him will be David Ramsey as first vice-president, Don Thiel as second vice-president, and H. Roberts Lorenz as secretary-treasurer.

These new officers were officially installed in office by this year's president, Gary Baker.

Alumnus Completes Army Training

Pvt. Marion M. Campbell, of Mars, Pa., has completed the Medical Field Service School's 16-week Medical Laboratory Procedures Course at Brooke Army Medical Center and has been transferred to other military duties.

Medical laboratory technicians received instruction in parasitology, bacteriology, hemotology and laboratory procedures. The training a student receives in this course can lead to a future civilian career in the same field.

The Medical Field Service School is one of seven units at Brooke Army Medical Center, the Army's largest medical installation. The Center carries on virtually all phases of professional and technical training in military medicine as well as patient treatment and research.

Bauerle Chosen '54-'55 Student Vols President

On May 19, in a ceremony presided over by present Student Volunteers president Homer Rickabaugh, Rosa Bauerle took the office of president for 1954-1955.

She leads a cabinet consisting of John Barows as vice president, Donna French as secretary, Bill Deerfield as treasurer, and Alice Draving as program chairman.

Moore Elected TACSG Veep

Carol F. Moore, next year's Student Council president, was elected vice-president of the Tennessee Association of Collegiate Governments at a state meeting held last week-end at Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City.

As vice-president for East Tennessee, Miss Moore will be chairman of the ET division, which is to hold its division conference on the Maryville campus next fall.

Announcement of Miss Moore's election was made at the final Council meeting Wednesday night at which the 1954-55 council was officially formed.

Ruth Orr, senior class girl representative, was elected secretary of the new council, and Don Williams, senior class boy representative, was chosen next year's treasurer.

Peace Pipe

As part of a tradition begun by Sally Brown, council president before Dartnell, a wooden peace pipe, given by her to Dartnell, was given to Miss Moore.

In a summary message of the year's accomplishments by Council, Dartnell said the first consideration of the program last fall had been one of "putting our own house in order." The retiring president listed aims and accomplishments as individual responsibility, an emphasis on Student Council leadership on campus, efficiency in committees, performing of services, building an attitude toward Town Night (which he termed 'well done').

The eventual goal, Dartnell declared, was one of real "community government." "I want to thank all who have worked with me," he concluded.

Lloyd At Meeting

College president Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd was at the meeting, and was asked to speak. Dr. Lloyd said he thought the old council (retiring) had been "progressively good." He expressed the hope that the new group would be able to pick up from this point.

The place of council and the Student-Faculty Senate this year, he added, had had "very good progress in the whole campus life." "The whole program is more and more meaningful," Dr. Lloyd told the group.

The college president commented also on the frequent student reference to "the administration." "I never have been sure of what 'the administration' means," he said, "but the will and desire of the 'administration' is much more co-operative than people think." He then wished the new council good luck.

Other Business

Council president Bill Dartnell led the council in prayer before the meeting, and the invocation was closed by the group with the Lord's Prayer.

He thanked everyone who had assisted with the annual High

Playhouse Prepares For Use Of Theater In Performances

By Lora Kinsinger

"Let's fly this flat!" cries a voice from the "fly gallery," and the Playhouse stands by to watch a patterned grey wall raised high in the stage house at the pull of one rope. Visitors stare in frank bewilderment while the crew pretend to understand the mass of pulleys, counterweights, lines, and bars that nearly fill the stage in the new theater.

The gallery is the first catwalk on the side of the stage—the relaly breathtaking one is the loading platform. And those long bars are attached to the flats (scenery walls) in such a manner that whole sets can be stored (flown) in the upper region of the stage house and lowered at the proper time.

As soon as we think we have this much straight, George Caldwell, assistant director of "Family Portrait," yells, "We need some help pulling these wagons together," and we're confused again. Visions of little red carts fade, as we see the boys fastening together large platforms which are actually on wheels. Later, stairs, flats, walls, and even a carpenter shop are fastened securely on the wagons so that a house scene can be easily rolled onto the stage when needed. The wine shop rolls in this way, too.

Rehearsal

Soon it's rehearsal time. Nancy Rideout (Mary) is frantically looking for a pin to hold her costume together. In dashes Abby Crosby with a load of World War I chaplains' coats, her jeans peeking out below her demure blue dress. When places are called Martha Horton is still fixing little Stewart Bushing's britches. Then Ronny Pearson and Caldwell take turns applying their knowledge of child psychology. They must make sure the boy is prepared to run in at the right time, and must even pinch him so that his "ouch" line comes over with real feeling. It is obvious that his English prof father has been training him right, for Stewart does not say, as does the script, "Can I come too?" but "May I come too?"

Sets

With rehearsal underway work is still being done in the workshop on the sets. Margie Hainy, with Jack Keny's direction, is painstakingly painting the walls of the wineshop a lovely shade of green. She asks for another "dutch man," which term we are proud to understand. We hand her a long, narrow strip of unbleached muslin which she proceeds to glue and paint over the places where the flats are joined together. And Ginger Colwell is making fig leaves, of all things!

Back on stage all the props haven't been collected yet. Thus when Jim Laster, a peddler, comes

More '54 Graduates Announce Their Plans For After May 19

By Abby Crosby

A large number of the men in the class of '54 will be entering the armed services this summer or fall. Bill Baldwin will be a Marine; Hershel Nelson is joining the Air Force; Bill Van Benthuysen will be in the Army; and after a summer with the Oregon Shakespearean Festival, George Caldwell expects to be in the Army. Jim Hunt is planning to do personnel work until he is drafted.

Jo Bash will work as a secretary at the Protestant Service Bureau in Miami, Fla.; Jay Belcher is planning on work in Charleston, W. Va.; and Mary Jim Bevan has a job with the TVA in Chattanooga. Barbara Beavers is going into Y work in Atlanta, and Dottie Crawford hopes to find a job in this vicinity. Joanne Douglas hopes to work for the Air Lines.

Weddings

Joanne Edwards will be married on August 28 to Van Holland, '53, and will move to Bloomington, Ind., where Van is going to school. Jannie Eakin is considering several prospects for employment after graduation, but is still undecided. Helen Drinnen will work with the Girl Scouts in this area. Martha Horton is planning on social or personnel work. Connie Howell will be married in September to George Lowe '53, and hopes to work as a service representative for the Bell Telephone Company. Alice Kelly is being married on June 12 to Wayne Feehrer, a December graduate. After that she hopes to find employment in Knoxville.

Further Plans

Ruth King is going into Methodist rural work in Athens, Ga.; and Pat Laing will spend the summer working in a restaurant in New Rochelle, N. Y., and this fall hopes to work as a guide in Radio City.

Jean Maxwell is being married shortly after graduation and will live in Florida where her future husband is the pastor to the students at the University of Florida; Helen Miller will be married in the late summer and will join her husband, who is in the service. Carol D. Moore will be married in June to Jim Squires, ex '54, and Trig Mower will be married June 25 to Phil Zebley, '52. Trig and Phil will be counsellors at a camp for children from broken homes during the summer. Ethel Shockley will be married to Max Sockwell, '55, on June 5 and hopes to work here in Maryville until Max graduates.

Bill Stein has a job with the executive department of the YMCA in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Ann Taylor is hoping to work for the airlines in Memphis; and Dot Wells will be working in Oak Ridge.

R. Worth Frank To Address Group; Three To Receive Honorary Degrees

In Maryville College's 135th annual commencement on Wednesday 101 seniors are expected to receive their diplomas. The 14 who finished their work in December and several mor who may receive their degrees in the summer will also be included as part of the class of 1954.

This class has the distinction of being the first to graduate in the new chapel. The last seven classes held their commencement exercises in the Alumni Gym, and the one before that, the class of 1946, was the last to graduate in the old chapel, which burned in 1947.

Dr. R. Worth Frank, president of McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, will give the address at the commencement exercises at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in the chapel.

Five living members of the class of 1904 are scheduled to be awarded 50-year certificates. Of the five left out of the original class of 13, three live in Maryville, one in Atlanta, and one in New York City.

Senior Musicians Plan Music Hour

Members of the senior class will present a program of music Sunday afternoon at two o'clock in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Lora Kinsinger, organist, will play Toccata and Fugue in D Minor by Bach; Carolyn Beatty, contralto, accompanied by Lora Kinsinger, will sing O don fatale (Don Carlos) by Verdi; Joyce Linginfelter, pianist, will play Etude, Op. 25, No. 5 by Chopin and Intermezzo, Op. 118, Nos. 2 and 3 by Brahms;

Lora Kinsinger, contralto, accompanied by James Laster, will sing Wie Melodina Zieght es mir, Op. 105, No. 1 and Liebestreu, Op. 3, No. 1 by Brahms; and Wayne Shelton, organist, will play My Heart is Longing for a Blessed Death by Brahms and Rhythmic Trumpet from the Baroque Suite by Bingham.

Gates To Preach At Commencement Vespers

Tomorrow evening the 135th commencement vesper service will be held in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel at 7:30 p.m., with President Ralph W. Lloyd acting as presiding minister.

The guest preacher will be the Rev. John A. Gates, Ph.D., whose son, David, is a member of this year's graduating class. Dr. Gates, who is Professor of Bible and Philosophy at Westminster College, located at Fulton, Mo., will use Matthew 6:28 as the Scripture text for his sermon, "Where Is a Wise Man?"

The Vesper Choir will sing two anthems, "Create In Me a Pure Heart" and "O Cast Me Not Away," both by Brahms.

The remainder of the service will follow the usual order with the exception of two Scripture readings, one of which will be taken from the Old Testament and the other from the New.

Honorary Degrees

Besides the giving of diplomas to this year's graduates, the commencement ceremonies will include the granting of three honorary doctor's degrees to Maryville graduates. They are the Rev. Francis Kinsler, '25, who is a missionary in Korea; the Rev. James R. Smith, '35, who is pastor of Graystone Presbyterian Church in Knoxville; and the Rev. Robert J. Lamont, '41, who is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Commencement activities began last night with the first use of the new theater in the presentation of the commencement play, "Family Portrait." The theater is still lacking some of the equipment it will eventually have, but even last night it was considered to be one of the most complete theaters in the south.

The Maryville College Orchestra is playing for both performances of the play.

Alumni Day

Today has been designated Alumni Day, and began with the senior chapel service this morning. Tonight alumni and seniors will gather in Parsons dining hall for the annual alumni dinner, at which the president of the Alumni Association, Dr. James N. Proffitt, '38, will preside. The 25-year class, especially, has made an effort to get its members here, and will have various reunion events during the day.

Band Concert

A band concert will be held tonight at 9:30 in the chapel court. The audience is expected to sit on the chapel steps for the event.

Tomorrow at 10:30 will be the baccalaureate service in the chapel, with President Ralph W. Lloyd preaching on the subject, "Enlarge the Place of Your Tent."

At 2 p.m. on Sunday the senior music hour will take place in Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

At 4 p.m. seniors and faculty members will again take part in chapel services with the dedication of the new chapel. The Rev. E. Fay Campbell of Philadelphia will give the address.

At commencement vespers Sunday night in the chapel the speaker will be Dr. John A. Gates of Fulton, Mo.

Architects Will Speak

Another chapel program Monday morning at 8:30 will recognize the

Hail And Farewell

It is with a mixture of sadness and joy that an Echo editor comes to the end of the year, with the last paper and the last editorial. There is, of course, a certain pleasure in knowing that one's responsibilities are nearly over, at least in this realm, in realizing that next year one can objectively read the Echo as the product of someone else's work and worry. This pleasure is, however, outweighed by the senior's traditional twinges of sadness at leaving school and by the feeling that time has, in a sense, gone by too fast, that we would like to go back with our present knowledge and start the year again.

There is room for improvement; Echo editors and staffs in the coming years will find that there is opportunity to exercise their reforming zeal or their journalistic theories. We have attempted to present the news in an objective manner and in an attractive-looking paper. We have tried to set forth news about which our readers should be informed, and from time to time, other items that may entertain or amuse them.

Throughout the year the Echo staff has been very cooperative. Thanks are due to them for their hard work and for their willingness to help out in response to last-minute appeals. Not to be forgotten are those persons at the Maryville Enterprise who do the behind-the-scenes work that gets out the paper.

As the academic year closes Maryville can point to many changes. The campus itself looks different, with the new Samuel Tyndale Chapel emerging from construction and ready for dedication. When the present seniors were freshmen we were promised that our class would graduate in the chapel, and now that seemingly impossibility is about to become reality. In the social world a change has been made with the introduction of option[illegible] town night. In a little less tangible way, student government has been strengthened and efforts have been made toward better student-faculty relations. These facts have all been commented upon before. They are not the only changes that have taken place; they are perhaps the more striking and more easily discernible ones. These are not, either, the only changes that could be made; after spending four years at Maryville we think it is a fine place, but, like any other human institution, it does not have the perfection we might like to see. There are still goals left for others to achieve.

To next year's students we wish success. To next year's Echo editor and staff we leave the rewards and the problems that will inevitably come, hoping that they will do their best to give Maryville College a good paper and that they will find satisfaction in so doing.

Recapitulation

Another college year is drawing to a close; for many of us it will be the finish to our college career. At this time there are many things that could be said, most of them things which have been said before, and yet it is well to pause before the pomp and circumstance of commencement and reflect on the four years spent at Maryville.

As freshmen we were told that we were at college primarily to prepare to live. Of course it was important to learn facts, but our ultimate purpose was to learn the skills of living. During our stay at Maryville, we have unconsciously grown into the realization of the worth of this fact.

When we arrived on the Hill the whole business of life seemed vastly complicated and perplexing. But each of us, to a certain degree, has learned to djust himself and to face the problems life presents. What advances have we made toward this more mature outlook on life?

Dorm and campus living has afforded us the opportunity to gain an appreciation of individual personality. It was a hard lesson to learn that the qualities which make people different are often the qualities that give them value. And suddenly we discovered that we were not individual centers of the universe. As we began to see ourselves in relation to those around us, we also began to recognize our own limitations and potentialities. We have learned to adapt ourselves to group living and to limited resources, realizing that cooperation bears fruitful results.

We learned to appreciate the values of scholarship and the wide range of world knowledge we have not yet touched. Likewise we recognized the need to think deeply and systematically, to overcome prejudice and standard thought patterns and to keep our minds always open for new and progressive ideas, still without a disregard for the old ones.

We found opportunities to cultivate social skills through such things as dances, teas, and receptions. Plays, concerts, art exhibits, recitals, and similar events added to our cultural appreciation.

Participation in the various phases of student government, such as council, social board, student-faculty senate, and other organizations has given us some insight into the problems of government. Talking matters over with the faculty, even if it meant conceding a point, showed us that running a college is a man-sized job. We learned that those in the front offices are working with the best interests of the students and the college in mind.

Underlying all our learning has been growth in sensitivity to spiritual values. As the years have passed, our resentment of seeming religious impositions has lessened; and we have become aware that they do fulfill a majo[illegible] part of their purpose. Such institutions as chapel and February Meetings have served as guideposts in our spiritual development.

Now, as we prepare to form the last line of our college life, the commencement procession, we are sorry to be leaving what we have come to know as home, with all the security it represents. We are most grateful to Maryville for a firm base on which to stand. As we go forward to a new life with new opportunities, we are ready to apply the principles we have learned. How we do this, with open mind and a firm faith in God, will determine our success in life.

THE EDITOR'S LAMENT

or,

OUR LAST FAREWELLS IN VERSE

(doggerel, of course)

Our fair campus has been deluged with verse;
Some is poor and some is worse.
So, having nothing better to do,
Your editor decided to join in, too,
And add her voice to the lifted song
Of almost-rimes and lines too long

For the meter that they're supposed to use.
"Poems" that give all kinds of views
Are being exposed to the public sight,
So we shall endeavor to do our mite
To make some verses, however trite,
And see things from a lofty height.

After hearing our class history, true and witty,
You won't be likely to read this ditty,
So we'll be able to write as we please,
Free as the proverbial breeze,
To say adieu to all our friends
And hope that their good fortune never ends.

Elwood and Kinsinger join in rime,
Or rather, they would if they had the time,
As we say, "To the cold, cruel world we're being cast,
Oh boy! How much longer will this final week last?"
Note the poetic technique of the previous line;
It drags on metrically as we repine.
That's what we learned in English class,
Useful knowledge, though it can't surpass
Such arts as typing and waiting on table
For earning money as fast as one's able.

Well, to return from that little digression,
Here we are, the final session,
Before leaving the Echo in others' hands;
Then we can forget the demands
Of copy, news, and all such things
And enjoy the peace that graduation brings.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Barbara Wilkie

Now that the semester is drawing to a close, and most of us are getting our "culture" from textbooks, we'll mention a few good books for summer reading. From the list of well-known favorites you might pick "The Good Earth," by Pearl Buck, "An American Tragedy" by Theodore Dreiser, "Gone with the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell, "The Human Comedy" by William Saroyan, and "Look Homeward, Angel" or "You Can't Go Home Again" by Thomas Wolfe.

If these are already a part of your "repertoire," perhaps you would like something more recent. "Snips and Snails" by Louise Baker and 'Thurber Country" by James Thurber should prove satisfying for your lighter, gayer moments. Read these when the temperature is so high that any sort of concentration might prove fatal. Be sure to choose a comfortable hammock under two shady trees and have some ice water nearby.

Poetry is always good for cold, rainy days when you must stay inside your lakeside cabin. Maybe you'll have a fire in the fireplace, if it gets too chilly under those pines. Perhaps you are in the mood then for Carl Sandburg of Walt Whitman. Or maybe Robert Frost's poems or Edgar Lee Master's "Spoon River Anthology" would appeal to you.

If you aren't much of a poetry enthusiast, but feel like reading something deeper than a novel, try "Ambassador's Report" by Chester Bowles, "UN: Today and Tomorrow" by Eleanor Roosevelt and William DeWitt, or "The Struggle for Europe," by Chester Wilmot.

Next fall you'll be more at home in your history classes, and listen, future sophomores, remember those co-operative tests next spring. Don't leave current events out of your reading.

Have you noticed the new bulletin board in the library suggesting a cheap method of travel? "Stay at home and let your mind wander," it says, giving the titles of books on Switzerland, Canada, Mexico, Tibet, Greece, and even the Great Smoky Mountains. Good idea?

These have been just a few suggestions for enjoyable summer reading. Remember, you just mustn't get out of practice studying, so why not practice painlessly with several good books?

A new addition to the library is a set of Collier's Encyclopedia. A very modern, up-to-date publication, it is profusely illustrated and should prove very helpful to future "researchers" in the library next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie Ray Smith of Hardy, Va., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Emily Virginia, ex'54, to Albert Spencer Hoyer, ex-'56, of Dayton, Ohio. Miss Smith is at present a senior at the University of Cincinnati. The wedding will take place August 8 at Fairmont Presbyterian Church in Dayton.

Echo Forum

Dear Editor,

No doubt, this is a very unusual request, but one which I hope you can grant in one way or another.

As you probably already know, Bob and I are getting married this summer. Although it will not be till August, I have set the definite date already, in order that the many wonderful people we have met here will all know about it, and attend if they possibly can. We would like to send out personal invitations to all of them, but that seems almost impossible.

Therefore, we would like to, at this time, invite any and all of our student and faculty friends who will be, or can plan to be, anywhere near Haddonfield, New Jersey, on Saturday, August 21, at 3:00 p.m., to our wedding in the First Presbyterian Church, King's Highway East, Haddonfield.

I know that many whom I would like very much to come cannot possibly do so, but to those who can come, we want to extend a hearty invitation.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Annie Bucher

Esthetics Class Shows Projects

Today is the last day that the exhibit of projects prepared by the Esthetics class (Philosophy 314) will be on display in Dr. E. R. Hunter's classroom, Anderson 23.

Each student has undertaken to show in a graphic form of his own devising the various phases of artistic process represented in a recognized work of art. Represented in the studies are painting, architecture, music, poetry, drama, prose literature, and sculpture. Everyone is invited to look at the various projects.

Returned China Missionary Speaks To Students, Relates Experiences

By Bill Deerfield

On May 4 and 5 two missionary guests were present on the campus. The primary purpose of their visit was the Student Vols conference at which they spoke, but they also took part in the Tuesday morning chapel service and were available to all students for counseling. Both men have served faithfully on the foreign field.

The older of the two, Dr. John Hayes, was born in Shantung Province in China, of missionary parents. He received a very strict British public school education at the famous China Inland Mission Boys School, located at Che-Foo. He then continued his studies in America at Wooster College, and Princeton University, and through his work at Princeton, he was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship for study at Oxford University.

While abroad, he received seminary training at Edinborough, Scotland, where he met Barbara Kelman, whose father was a noted figure in the university town. They were married in 1916.

China Missionary

The following year Dr. Hayes returned with his wife to China as a missionary. He worked in Peking with young people and was instrumental in bringing the Christian Student Movement into existence.

When the Japanese invaded China, Dr. Hayes, as an American citizen, was permitted to continue his work, and although seriously handicapped, he carried on for two and a half years during the occupation. After Pearl Harbor, however, he was arrested and interned in the prison camp at Weihsin.

At the end of the war he returned to America and assisted in the work of the National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C., which he considers to be his home church.

Two years later, however, he was again sent by the Church to China, where he worked in the mountains of the southwestern area of the country.

Communist Control

When the Communists gained control, they offered him a position teaching in two government universities which he accepted. For a short time he taught Shakespeare, but quite suddenly he was removed from his post and sent to a Communist prison for ten months, during which time he was subjected to the notorious Communist "brain washing" ordeal. When this attempt to "convert" Dr. Hayes failed, he was brought to trial and condemned as an "imperialist spy." Unlike many others, he was not martyred, but was instead expelled from the country.

Speaker

Since that time he has been traveling throughout America, speaking to groups like Maryville students, about the Christian faith that has sustained him in all his trials and that he believes "can strengthen anyone to withstand Communist presure and will in the end bring China and any other country back again into the bonds of real fellowship in Christ."

Raymond Teeuwissin

The second of the two men, Rev. Raymond Teeuwissin (Taywissin), was born in Rockford, Ill., but when he was five, his father, a Presbyterian minister, accepted a call from a Flemish Protestant church in Bruges, Belgium.

Mr. Teeuwissin attended schools in Belgium for twelve years, and when he came to America in 1939, he completed four years of college in two.

He then taught in a one-room school in the Ozarks for a short time before entering Louisville Seminary, from which he graduated in 1944. After graduation he received a fellowship which involved traveling in the Southwest and West Coast, with the purpose of counseling young people.

Missionary To Europe

Within a year, however, he was appointed by the Board of Foreign Missions as the first missionary ever to be sent by the Board to Europe. He was assigned to Dunkirk, France, as a fraternal worker, where for eight years he served on a team that helped bring relief to this devastated area.

While in France he married Clair Conord, the daughter of the Secretary General of the French Reformed Church.

The Teeuwissins, who have two small daughters, and three adopted children, have been on furlough in this country, during which time Mr. Teeuwissin has completed post graduate work at San Francisci Seminary. Since April he has been on an extensive speaking tour, interpreting the Church's problems in Europe to various Presbyterian groups.

He and his family sail again for Europe on June 17, for their new assignment at the John Knox House in Geneva. As director, Mr. Teeuwissin will be working with the many students that attend the University of Geneva.

Lloyd To Preach For Baccalaureate

Sunday, May 16, 1954, the Baccalaureate Service of the 135th Commencement of Maryville College will be held in Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, president of Maryville College, will give the Baccalaureate sermon. The title of his sermon will be "Enlarge the Place of your Tent."

The Maryville College Vesper Choir will sing the anthems, "Beautiful Sviour" and "Lord Hosanna."

Continuing a long-time tradition the New Providence Presbyterian Church is uniting with the College in the Baccalaureate Service. The Highland Presbyterian Church, organized during the past year, also is uniting in the service.

The pastors of these churches, the Rev. Francis W. Pritchard, and the Rev. Douglas J. Elwood, will take part in the service.

The graduating class will form in front of the library, and go from there to the chapel. In case of rain, they will form in the theater of the chapel.

School To Start For Freshmen August 31

The following schedule will be in effect next fall, according to the office:

Tuesday, August 31—New students report (4 p.m.)

Wednesday and Thursday, September 1 and 2—Returning students report.

Friday, September 3—Convocation service, first classes, tentative deadline for payment of bills.

A MESSAGE TO GRADUATING ATHLETES

By Malcolm King

"Pomp and Circumstance," sweet and sentimental, will fill the air next Wednesday as the Class of '54 parade through the arch to receive their degrees, among them the hardened athletes of Maryville College performing their last as collegians. before the crowds. For these young gents—football players, wrestlers, baseball players, basketball players, tennis players, and cross-country men alike—an article written by the dean of American sportswriters, Grantland Rice, seems appropriate (composed in poetic form—quatrain stanza, in couplets, hectameter?). It was written for footballers, but the idea behind it is applicable to any and all seniors graduating.

Alumnus Football

Bill Jones had been the shining star upon his college team.
His tackling was ferocious and his bucking was a dream.
When husky William took the ball beneath his brawny arm,
They had two extra men to ring the ambulance alarm.

Bill hit the line and ran the ends like some mad bull amock.
The other team would shiver when they saw him start to buck.
And when some rival tackler tried to block his dashing pace,
On waking up, he'd ask, "Who drove that truck across my face?"

Bill had the speed—Bill had the weight—Bill never bucked in vain;
From goal to goal he whizzed along while fragment strewed the plain.
And there had been a standing bet, which no one tried to call,
That he could make his distance through a ten-foot granite wall.

When he wound up his college course each student's heart was sore.
They wept to think bull-throated Bill would sock the line no more.
Not so with William—in his dreams he saw the Field of Fame,
Where he would buck to glory in the swirl of Life's big game.

Sweet are the dreams of college life, before our faith is nicked.
The world is but a cherry tree that's waiting to be picked;
The world is but an open road—until we find, one day,
How far away the goal posts are that called us to the play.

So, with the sheepskin tucked beneath his arm in football style,
Bill put on steam and dashed into the thickest of the pile;
With eyes ablaze he sprinted where the laureled highway led—
When Bill woke up his scalp hung loose and knots adorned his head.

He tried to run the ends of life, but with rib-crushing toes
A rent collector tackled him and threw him for a loss.
And when he switched his course again and dashed into the line,
The massive guard named Failure did a toddle on his spine.

Bill tried to punt out of the rut, but ere he turned the trick
Right tackle Competition scuttled through and blocked the kick.
And when he tackled at Success in one long, vicious prod,
The fullback Dissappointment steered his features in the sod.

Bill was no quitter, so he tried a buck in higher gear,
But left guard Envy broke it up and stood him on his ear.
Whereat he aimed a forward pass, but in two vicious bounds
Big center Greed slipped through a hole and rammed him out of bounds.

But one day when across the Field of Fame the goal seemed dim,
The wise old coach, Experience, came up and spoke to him.
"Oh, boy," he said, "the main point now before you win your bout
Is keeping on bucking Failure till you've wore the piker out!

"And kid, cut out this fancy stuff—go in there, low and hard;
Just keep your eye upon the ball and plug on, yard by yard,
And more than all, when you are thrown or tumbled with a crack,
Don't sit there whining—hustle up and keep on coming back;

"Keep coming back with all you've got, without an alibi.
If Competition trips you up or lands you on your eye,
Until at last above the din you hear this sentence spilled:
'We might as well let this bird through before we all get killed.'

"You'll find the road is long and rough, with soft spots far apart,
Where only those who can make the grade have the Uphill Heart.
And when they stop you with a thud or halt you with a crack,
Let Courage call the signals as you keep on coming back.

"Keep coming back, and though the world may romp across your spine,
Let every game's end find you still upon the battle line;
For when the One Great Scorer comes to mark against your name,
HE WRITES—NOT THAT YOU WON OR LOST—BUT HOW YOU PLAYED THE GAME."

This piece by Grantland Rice holds an excellent message indeed. First of all he points out that a person must maintain confidence in him or herself when they go out to "buck the line of life." In college things come easy and one is not yet faced with the problems that come when you get out on your own—you have to face reality—look it square in the eye and smile.

No matter how many times you meet the characters Failure, Competition, Disappointment and Envy, one has to be able to come back fighting or they will drop by the wayside as so many do who lack the gumption to keep going. This world is a "mean ol' place" and life is far from being all "peaches and cream." Here's hoping you all (members of Class of '54) have the gumption to continue striving for your goal, and that you will have made this "cruel world" a little better place in which to live by the time we underclass members follow you across the threshold to enter Life.

Congratulations are in order to Seniors John Anderson and Kent Buser for their fine play in the State Tourney at the University of the South last week. They turned in their finest performance of the season to win the doubles crown in the annual meet.

Both boys have played four years on the Scot net team, and, by winning the State Doubles Title, bow out in fine fashion from their college tennis career.

The Sports Staff give their best wishes and sincerest regards to all of the Class of '54. May the future hold much happiness for you.

Bugenhagen Elected AB Prexy

Thomas Bugenhagen, the present S.E.C. 167 lb. wrestling champion and captain of the Scot matmen during the past season was selected during the Student Body elections to head the Athletic Board for the coming year. He succeeds Bill Van Benthuysen and will be the first president to take office under the revised board constitution.

Bugenhagen's leadership abilities have been proved sound during the past year as he has served as president of the sophomore class.

THREE FOOTBALLERS FADE AWAY—Captain Ken Shepard, Frank Garren, and Co-Captain Jerry King bow out of the Maryville College sports picture as they graduate with the Class of '54. All three players were standout members of this past year's squad and each played four years on the Scots gridiron.

SCOT TEAMS LOSE THIRTEEN ATHELETES WITH THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1954

By Monk Johnston and Bob Navratil

Graduation this year will find the school losing some of the finest of its athletes. In all there are thirteen who will leave and it is needless to say that all will be direly missed on next year's squads. The Echo takes this opportunity to offer a final salute to them.

Ken Shepard, 23-year old graduate of Maryville High School, earned his first varsity letter on the football field in 1949. Because his National Guard unit was soon activated, Ken was forced out of school for a period of two years, during which time he saw action in Korea. Returning in 1952, he helped lead the Scots to their first winning gridiron season in years. This past fall the little five foot six wingback was elected captain of the grid squad, and under his leadership the Highlanders turned in a very commendable season's performance. He is a major in the field of physical education.

Nominated for Little All-American honors, Jerry King will be sadly missed in the forward wall of the Highlander grid attack next fall. This chunky little (5'9"-180 lbs.) guard has been prominent in the opposition's backfields for the past four seasons. Jerry is also a graduate of Maryville High School and a major in the field of physical education.

A business major from Maryville, Frank Garren has the unusual distinction of having lettered four straight years as a member of the Scot football squad. The tall end was always a standout, both offensively and defensively, and no one of the most consistent performers on the team. In his senior year he was elected president of the "M" Club.

Another four year letter man, Dick Abbott, has proven hilmself to be one of the outstanding basketball players in the history of the school. Dick is a graduate of the local high school and strangely enough did not play on the court squad there. He learned most of his hoop skill while a member of the armed forces from 1947-1950. Dick is a major in the field of physical education.

Although he does not graduate until mid-semester of next year, Harry Robinson completes his varsity career this year. Hailing from Philadelphia, Pa., Harry has been the top twirler on the diamond squad for the past two seasons. A transfer from West Chester State Teacher's College in Pennsylvania, Harry compiled an outstanding record of six wins and no losses in 1953. He is majoring in Greek.

A product of Massapequa, New York, Bill Van Benthysen has been a member of the baseball team for the past four seasons. Alternating between the outfield and the catcher's slot, he has been a reliable and consistent performer always. A major in business, Bill served as president of the Athletic Board of Control this past year.

Bob Buchanan a heavy weight veteran of Coach Davis' wrestling squad, the personable big senior completed his fourth year of varsity mat competition this past season. Bob, a business major from Maryville, has also found time to be an active participant in campus affairs and usually could be found lending a helping hand in campus events.

Homer Rickenbaugh—The cross country squad will also lose a four year veteran and this past season's captain. The active and versatile athlete is also an honor student, being elected to Alpha Gamma Sigma, the school honor society. The philosophy major from Mon toursville, Pa. has also been president of the Pre-Ministerial Association and Student Volunteers.

Rod McMillan—California's contribution to the Maryville campus has been the long-striding harrier from Los Angeles. Rod, also an outstanding scholar and member of Alpha Gamma Sigma, has bolstered the cross country squad with regularly good performances in the gruelling distance runs. The busy economics major has also found time to sing in the Vesper Choir.

Bill Anderson—Coach Honaker's baseball squad will be minus a stocky ball hawk from Maryville, when next season rolls around. The hustling business administration major returned after a time out hitch with Uncle Sam to adequately fill one of Coach's outfield spots.

John Anderson—A four year mainstay of the tennis squad and this year's captain, the lanky athlete will be missed by Coach Johnson next year. John capped his career on the courts this year when he teamed with Kent Buser to take the State double's championship for Maryville at Sewanee just recently. The business major is a local product.

Kent Buser—A familiar figure around the campus is the number one man on the tennis squad for the past two years. The English major from Connorsville, Indiana, is also an honor roll student who has been elected to Writers' Workshop and Pi Kappa Delta. Kent's steady play helped to bring consistantly winning tennis teams to Maryville over the past four years and he combined with John Anderson to bring Maryville the State doubles' title this spring.

Marshall England—The depletion of the tennis squad will be complete with the loss of its third ranking member who hails from Dillwyn, Virginia. Marshall has found time from his chemstry studies to participate in Y.M.C.A. work.

KENT BUSER AND JOHN ANDERSON WIN T.I.A.C STATE DOUBLES TITLE

By Bob Jackson

John Anderson and Kent Buser, two game, determined Maryville tennis aces, pulled a major upset in the T.I.A.C. Tournament held at the University of the South last week-end, when they defeated Tom Crair and Burton Henry of Southwestern State Teachers at Memphis, 2-6, 9-7, and 6-4 to win the state chmpionship.

The local duo were only placed fourth in the pre-tournament seeding and had to play the complete role of the underdogs throughout the tournament.

Anderson and Buser took their quarter-final match without any trouble, 6-2, 6-2, but, in the semi-finals against the second-seeded Sewanee combination of Wilt White and Dick Briggs, the new champs found rough going. White and Briggs ran out the first set 6-3, and it looked like Maryville had little chance of reaching the finals, but in the second set, a long drawnout affair, John and Kent won out 11-9. In the third set, which was considerably slower, the local lads emerged victorious 6-4 and advanced to the pay off round.

In the finals Buser and Anderson finals, but in the second set, a son again fell behind one set when they dropped the first series of games, 2-6, but late in the second set, Captain Anderson, playing in the duece court, suddenly found an opening for his forehand volleys that enabled Maryville to win the next two sets, 9-7, 6-4 and the championship.

Maryville finished third in the four-team tourney, trailing Sewanee and Southwestern and ahead of Chattanooga.

Johnson Gives Hamburger Supper

Last night Coach Ken Johnson honored the '54 tennis team with a hamburger supper at his home. He presented the senior members of the team with tie clasps.

Heading into the tail end of the season sporting a six win and seven loss record, the Scot diamond squad bumps smack into the high flying Eagles of Carson-Newman today. The sluggers from Jefferson City have compiled a fine record for the season, dropping only one contest to date. Earlier this week, in a game played up in the Eagle's nest, the Scots lost a real thriller by a 3-2 count. Bob Ramger toed the mound in that encounter and though he permitted only five scattered hits, fielding errors by his teammates cost him the game. It is expected that "Lefty" Robinson with a one and four record will take over the hill duties when the Scots seek revenge today against their arch rivals.

Once-defeated C-N Nip MC Squad By 3-2 Score

By Bud Spalding

Behind the six-hit pitching of Charlie Lowry, Carson-Newman took a 3-2 decision from the traveling Scots from Maryville. Maryville's Bob Ramger and his whiplash arm let but five hits trickle through, but errors made the locals wish it had rained hard enough to stay home.

"Unearned runs" was the bad word of the day as the Eagles scored two runs in the second inning, without even bothering to get a hit, and followed up with yet another in the third to get the three they needed to make an afternoon of it.

Ramger struck out four men and C-N's Lowery whiffed three. The Scotties scored in the third and fifth innings and looked for a while like they would make a ball game of it, but the steam wasn't there.

Strickland To Letter

Bill Strickland will be the only Maryville College trackster lettering this year. Coach Johnson promised to letter any member of the team who earned ten points, and Strickland accounted for 16 of Maryville's 47 points.

The probable starting line-ups:

MC	C-N
Shepard, 2b	Henson, ss
Sexton, lf	Holt, 2b
Van Benthysen, rf	Conner, 1b
Shelton, 3b	Jollifee, rf
Ramger, cf	Maples, cf
Lawson, ss	Lambert, c
Dunn, 1b	Mad'ux, lf
Moore, c	Wallace, 3b
Robinson (1-4) p.
	Lowery (3-0). p

COURT ACTION

The local courts will be the scene today of what promises to be one of the season's best tennis matches. The University of the South is scheduled to furnish the opposition as the Scots seek to improve their weak record of two wins and six losses. The two victories were scored at the expense of Milligan and L.M.U. Sewanee's Tigers have been smashing their way to an impressive season's record, led by once-defeated state singles champ Joe White. John Anderson leads the Scot racquet squad with a comparable tally of seven conquests in eight meet starts.

During the past week and a half the Highlander doubles team of Kent Buser and Anderson blasted their way into the tennis spotlight by coping the state doubles crown. Due largely to this outstanding effort, the Scots were able to finish third in the tournament, runners-up to Sewanee and Southwestern by one and two points respectively. This fact, coupled with the opportunity to watch champs White, Buser, and Anderson in action, makes this afternoon's gut swinging show a real attraction.

Women's 'M' Club Acquires Scottie; 'Mac' Still Needs Good Highland Name

By Shirley Armstrong

By now everyone on campus has seen that black ball of fuzz leading Liz Murphey around on a leash. Well. . . that just happens to be "Mac." the official mascot of Maryville College. We really have no reason whatsoever for being jealous of UT now. Instead of a hound (don't get me wrong. . . I love hounds) we have a real, pedigreed Scottie. And he is really a doll! (I should know, he nearly bit my arm off the other day.)

"Mac" is five months old, is very, very full of pep and energy, loves to chew on suede shoes, is "Hamburger's" pal, and would appreciate it any time anyone would like to take him for a stroll. He expests to have a little more added to his name next semester, when the M Club will have a contest to see how original, clever and Scotch someone can be.

This name business will have to go "all out" to beat those tacked on to his Ma and Pa. "Tamara" sounds like an Egyptian dancer to me, but "American Earl Scotch Lord Laird" could be nothing but the straight stuff (no soda added!) Little Mike Dunn already had him named. . . after his favorite chemistry teacher (No, it wasn't "Hiro.")

New Home

This summer "Mac" will be boarding with Miss Heron, the Dunn's or Mrs. Largen, but next fall he will return to his humble abode under the Athenian's house. Also, Miss Ware will have another mouth to feed. (I could say something, but I won't.)

His official job next fall will be to step lively whenever the Highlanders don their kilts. Miss Heron says that when MC had a Scottie before, it attracted more attention than the band. That was B. K., Miss Heron. (Before kilts.)

The Women's M Club bought "Mac" for the college, but thanks are in order, also, to Mrs. J. C. Ridings. She's the one who made it possible for us to have him. .

And. . . I'll bet it won't be long until a certain president found here lets us in on "how many fleas on the new dog?"

Dartnell and Miss Moore both reminded incoming council members that a quorum for meetings shall consist of 14 members, and that members taking four unexcused cuts will be automatically dropped from membership.

Town Night Unchanged

The council reapproved the Town Night agreement and operating plan as both now stand without further change. Dartnell reported that Student-Faculty Senate, at its last meeting of the year, had taken recommendations from the Student Council on a new activity fee, and had referred to Senate committee the new proposals for the Athletic Board, the Inter-Club Council, and for the Book of Campus Law, originated by this year's council.

Writers' Workshop Picks Pieces For 'Chips'

At its last meeting of the year this week Writers' Workshop chose five selections by members to be included as this semester's contributions to next year's "Chips." Pieces selected were by Lora Kinsinger, Herb White, A. S. Bushing, Miss Jessie Heron, and Miss A. Jo Weir.

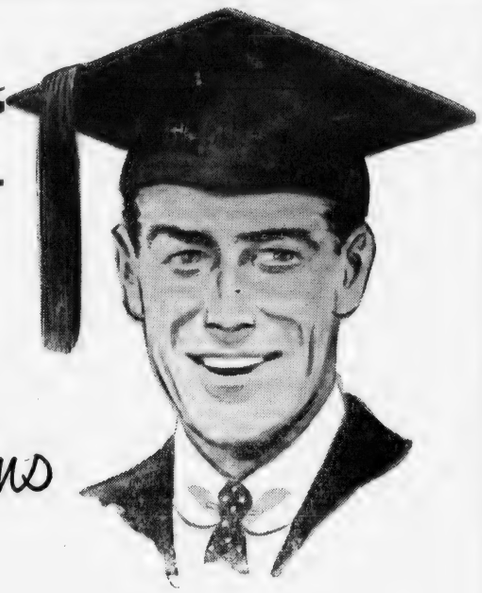
College Appeals For Funds To Alumni

The Maryville College Alumni Office has begun sending letters to college alumni as part of a drive initiated this year to provide $200,000 needed for completion of the new Wilson Chapel.

Seniors, Alumni To Go To Dinner Tonight

Nearly 400 seniors and alumni are expected to attend the annual Alumni Dinner, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock in Pearsons. James N. Proffitt, president of this year's Alumni Association, will preside over the program and business meeting. The class of '54 will be presented by Dean McClelland and will be voted into membership by the group. Jack Maxwell, president of this year's graduating class, will respond for the seniors.

The banquet will mark the reunion of the 50-year class, class of '04 and of the 25-year class, class of '29.



Newscaps . . .

The House of Representatives last week approved the plans for the St. Lawrence Seaway. Canada had decided to go ahead with the project, with or without United States aid. It is exepcted to cost the United States about $105 million, with Canada paying even more. Completion of the project will make Toledo, Buffalo, and Toronto into seaport cities.

Echo Reporter Wilkie Leads Honor Roll

Volume 40 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, SEPTEMBER 11, 1954 | Number 1

367 Attend Faculty Reception

Last Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, the Faculty Reception was held in the courtyard of Wilson Chapel. It was the first time in the past several years that this annual meeting of students and faculty was held outdoors, and although the night was extremely warm, everyone turned out dressed in his or her formal best.

The reception was so well attended that many students had to stand in the receiving line for two hours, the great majority of these being Freshmen.

In all, 367 persons attended the affair which lasted until 10:30. Of these, 110 were faculty members and 257 were students.

Refershments were served to all who were present.

Student Council Has First Session

At its first meeting Wednesday night Student Council took care of a number of opening routine matters, including the election of five members to Student-Faculty Senate, ratification of Town Night, and ratification of the Carson-Newman Peace Pact.

The latter two items must also be ratified by the student body in a meeting to be called this coming week.

Carol Moore, council president, called the meeting to order. Students elected to the Senate were Nancy Jones, Herb White, Barbara Chubb, Bill Davis, and Bill Howell.

Some revisions for the Town Night plan were discussed, pertaining to the election of town-night checkers in the girls' dormitories, but the council agreed to take extended action on any kind of revisions, thus leaving the present Town Night operation unchanged.

Henrietta Laing, WSGA president, said elections for checkers would be held in each dormitory next week.

No council committees were appointed, but Miss Moore said appointments of committees would be posted by Saturday on the Student Council bulletin board in Anderson Hall. She said she would like to keep up the system of committee reports begun last year, and that some attention would be given to explanation of what was to be included in the reports.

Elizabeth Murphey, elections committee chairman, said voting for officers who did not return would be done at junior class meeting, avoiding the necessity for holding a secret-ballot election throughout one day.

In recognition of special service to the council, the council is sending a letter of appreciation to Miss Ware for co-operation in serving supper on the baseball field for the student mixer. Harry McCall, who was in charge of the affair, said Miss Ware "went out of her way to serve the meal."

Miss Moore also told the council members of plans for the special chapel service held Thursday morning in recognition of President Lloyd's election as Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, USA.

Jim Fisher, YMCA president, said an election would be needed to replace two officers who did not return this year, and it was announced that the chairman of the pep committee and the dean of students were taking up the matter of students' going to an out of town football game.

The Council adjourned early. The meeting was opened with a prayer by Lynn Kiefer.

Barbara Wilkie's 8.8 Leads Spring Dean's List

College Names Honor Students

It is not often that a freshman heads the honor roll, but the unusual happened twice last semester when Barbara Wilkie lead the student body with an 8.8 average and Polly Trnavsky, another freshman, was a close second with 8.7. Dave Williams ranks third with 8.5.

The entire honor roll listed according to classes is as follows:

Rogers Names Business Staff For Chilhowean

Charles Rogers, business manager of the 1955 CHILHOWEAN, has named as members of the business staff James Crawford, Katherine Kerns, Lee Fowler, and Morgan Biggs.

Rogers said that anyone wishing to purchase or to make a deposit on the 1955 annual will have numerous opportunities to do so at a subscription table which will be set up frequently in front of Pearsons Hall before and after meals.

Dr. Lloyd Receives Degree At Lake Forest

President Lloyd received an honorary doctor's degree from Lake Forest College (Ill.) while he was at the meeting of the World Council of Churches, and at a special convocation on the college campus on August 22.

He received the honor as Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, USA, the office to which he was elected last June at the General Assembly.

Also at the convocation Maryville College awarded a degree to the Rev. Max Philippe Dominice, a leading pastor of Geneva, Switzerland, and Chairman of the European Area of the World Presbyterian Alliance. Maryville was one of six Presbyterian colleges awarding degrees at the ceremony. Dr. Lloyd was the only American religious leader so honored.

Band Personnel List To Be Up Next Week

The full personnel of the Maryville College band will be announced next week by the director, Mr. Ralph Moore.

Marching practice has already begun in order to have the band in top condition for the first game.

First Rush Week Comes To Close

By Jim Hopkins

The big card 'deals' this week have all been through the ingenuity and talent of Athenian-Bainonian societies. It began early Thursday morning when the sidewalks were 'decked' with all sorts of gambling equipment—cards, dice, and trumps in any suite. And all the card sharks watched that afternoon while Betty Cutler and Esther Lerch capered around in front of Pearsons' and announced their Joker's Jamboree for that night. It proved to be a square dance, planned by Dee Woods, Esther and Jim Conklin. By that time everyone knew the theme for this year's rush week—Card Capers.

Then the 'jokers' showed up again on Friday in their '26 Chevvy and shocked the entire campus. That was after the new girls had just been honored by a Queen's tea down in the Fine Arts Center. Planned by Abby Crosby; entertainment by Marcia Williams; refreshments by Jean Kemper.

It looks like the 'jokers' had a streak of good luck, because they'll be riding around in a brand new Chevrolet Corvette today, (Courtesy Davis Motor Company). That's because today is the great day, and tonight's the formal, the culmination of this rush week.

Program is titled 'Jack of Diamonds,' written by John Graulich. A show with a tinge of the modernistic, especially evident in the dances directed by Esther Lerch. It is being held in the chapel court.

Stars of the production will be Bill Howell, Myrna Ginavan, Helen Avakian, Ted McDaniels, Joan McNaughton and Don Thiel. There'll be an orchestra directed by Henry Emmons, and a mighty chorus under Marge Blackburn's direction. The setting will be an old time Mississippi show boat, with all the songs, gaiety and bright lights. And the feeling of the show boat age will prevail when dates gather in formal dress around card tables in the open colonnade and become a part of the card capers, the gambling boat.

Peg Fisher, president of Bainonian, and Jim Crawford, president of Athenian, invite everyone to the "grand slam."

General rush week chairmen this year have been J. B. Adams, Ducky Coker, and Carol Slate. Margie McClure has been campus chairman.

Five Majorettes Are Chosen

Five new majorettes were chosen in tryouts this past week. They are Faith Nollner, a junior, and June Kenny, Ann Henderson, Peggy Fricks, and Betty Lou Zimmerman, all freshmen.

They will perform in parades and in halftime shows at ball games this fall.

Tryout judges were Ruth Orr, head majorette; Ralph Moore, band director; Carol Moore, student body president; Ken Wilkinson; pep committee chairman; Walt Hiller, band president; and Mary Brasfield, drum majorette.

Germans To Meet Monday

German Club will hold its first meeting on Monday evening at 6:30 in Herr Reber's classroom.

All those students taking German and those interested in German culture are invited to attend.

Theta-Sig Rush Activities To Begin Wednesday

Formal Set For Friday

By Ray Sammons

The Rush Week program for Alpha Sigma and Theta Epsilon has been planned by Dixie Conner and Bob Baand. Their program begins Wedensday afternoon with a fashion show in the court of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel. On Wedensday evening at 8 o'clock there is to be a stag party in the Student Center for all Freshman and present members.

Thursday evening brings on the annual Splash Party to be held at the College Pool. First is the Underwater ballet and then swimming afterwards.

Friday night is the Rush Week Formal, so all guys who have a facorite girl should ask Bill Davis, Room 319 Carnegie, to fix you up.

Eleven New On Faculty

By Abigail Crosby

Eleven new faculty members, two of them recent MC graduates, and one a cousin of a May graduate, are on the campus this fall replacing those who have either resigned or are absent for advanced study.

With Assistant Professor of History Arda S. Walker on a leave of absence this year to do graduate study at the University of North Carolina, Thomas M. Cragan, Maryville, has been appointed as an instructor of history. Sally H. Brown, '53, has also been appointed as an instructor of history and as editor of special studies, to replace Carolyn V. Symmes, '53, who is doing graduate study at Princeton Seminary.

Arthur David Ainsworth, Washington, D. C., has been appointed instructor of political science to replace A. F. Pieper, who has accepted a secretarial position with the National Board of Presbyterian Men.

Dean Styles, '54, Cane River, N. C., instructor in biology, is replacing Ruth Blackburn Morgan, '53, who was married in June, and Matilda Cartledge, Knoxville, has been appointed as an instructor of Bible to replace D. L. Engelhart who has accepted a pastorate in Kansas.

James W. Hampton, recently of Johnson City, and formerly of New Jersey, has been appointed as Manager of Public Relations. Victoria Samburg, Montreat, N. C., is now serving as assistant secretary in President Lloyd's office, and Jane Huddleston, Maryville, is on the staff of the Personnel Office. Mrs. Luther Kennedy, Jr., Knoxville,

Plays Announced By Playhouse

Nancy Rideout, president of the Maryville College Playhouse, has fixed the date of the first meeting of the organization for Tuesday, Sept. 20. In announcing the date, Miss Rideout wishes it to be understood that the Playhouse is not an exclusive group and that all students are invited to participate in its many productions, both in acting and in backstage duties.

This year's dramatic presentations will begin with an Experimental Theater production on October 9. Exactly what the play will be has not yet been decided. Then, on Nov. 5 and 6, the Playhouse's major presentation for the semester, Elmer Rice's "Street Scene," will be given at the new theater, and on November 20, another experimental play will be staged.

Next semester's major productions will be "She Stoops to Conquer" and Shaw's "Pygmalion."

Frei, Graulich 'Chips' Editors

Liz Frei and John Graulich were elected co-editors of "Chips," the yearly publication of Writers' Workshop at the organization's meeting last week. Both are new members of Workshop this year.

Also elected were Bob Lorenz, Margaret Blackburn, who are to serve on the membership committee with Amelia J. Wier and A. S. Bushing.

Barbara Chubb, Abby Crosby, Herb White, and Dr. E. R. Hunter are members of the governing board.

At the meeting Monday at 4:30 p.m. in Dr. Hunter's classroom, Faith Nollner and Margaret Blackburn will read, and be criticized by Peggy Fisher and Bob Lorenz.

Pieper, Witherspoon To Coach Debaters

Mrs. A. F. Pieper and Newell Witherspoon will coach the Maryville College Debate Team this year, it was announced this week.

The team is debating the topic this year, "Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China."

Approximately 25 students attended a meeting Wednesday night in the Y-Rooms to inform all interested students about the college forensic program.

The first class meeting will be held in Mrs. Pieper's classroom Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Those unable to attend the first meeting last week should come then.

Tryout Results To Be Posted On Monday

Results of tryouts for the Vesper Choir will be posted Monday in the Fine Arts Center.

Quite a number of new and old students reported for individual auditions before Harry Harter last Monday and Tuesday. From those he selected approximately 40 to sing with the choir on Wednesday and Friday.

Staff Positions Open On Echo

Positions on the Echo staff are open for freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, according to Echo Editor Joe Gilliland. Persons wishing to try out are asked to be at Echo staff meeting Monday evening at 7:30 in the office in Thaw Hall.

Those interested in working on the business staff may speak with business manager Dock Jennings.

Subscriptions for the Echo are available at 50 cents per semester, the paper being mailed anywhere in the United States.

New Coaches Join Scottie Staff

Kenneth Shephard and Tom Cragen will assist Lombe S. Honaker and line coach J. D. Davis. Both men will work as part time assistants to work with the backfield.

Shephard, brother of this year's captain, tailback Clarence Shephard, was captain of the 1953 Scottie team. Kenny started at wingback and will be greatly missed this year. He is now working on his master's degree at Tennessee.

Cragen played blocking back and fullback at Maryville in 1940-41. He is an instructor in History at Maryville and is working on his doctor's degree in history at U-T.

The services of both these men will come in handy this year. They will give Coach Honaker a chance to give individual attention to his players which would have been impossible with only two coaches.

Dr. Pritchard To Speak At Vespers Sunday

Dr. Francis W. Pritchard, minister of the New Providence Presbyterian Church will be the Vespers speaker tomorrow night.

Dr. Pritchard is a well-known figure around campus, though he has been here little over a year. He came to Maryville from Amarillo, Texas. For several years he was college minister for North Texas Women's College. He also served as a Chaplain during the war.

Currently, Dr. Pritchard is a member of the Board of Foreign Missions in the Presbyterian Church, USA.

Music Ed. To Meet

The Music Education Club will hold its first meeting of the semester next Thursday at 6:45 in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center. The program will feature a brief explanation of the purpose and ideals of the club. Refreshments will be served.

All students, especially those interested in teaching music, members of the music faculty, and visitors are invited. The club is a student chapter of the Music Educator's National Conference.

Students' Summer Weddings Keep Ministers, Shops Busy

By Abigail Crosby

The usual number of weddings and engagements were reported this fall as the old students came back with their traditional queries of "Who got married?" and "Any engagements?" This summer, as in the past, the church bells have been ringing all over the country for Maryville weddings.

EVANS-ABBOTT

Peggy Evans, '54, and Dick Abbott, '54, were married May 18 in the Little Chapel of our own chapel here in Maryville. The Rev. S. Graham Frasier of Nowata, Okla., father of Carol Frasier Trotter, '54, was the officiating minister. The couple visited the campus recently, and are now teaching school in Greenback.

BURGOS-LYNN

Naomi Burgos, '54, became the bride of Robert Lynn, '52, in an evening ceremony August 28 in the West End Presbyterian Church of New York City. The bride was attended by her sisters, Ruth, '53, as maid of honor, and Judy, '56, bridesmaid. Newell Witherspoon, '52, served as an usher. Bob and Ni are living in Knoxville where Bob is working on his masters degree, and Ni is working.

CORNELL-HUNT

Carol Cornell, '54, and James Hunt, '54; will be married this afternoon in the Union Methodist Church of Memphis. Dorothy Wells, '54, will serve as maid of honor. After the wedding, the couple will reside in Las Vegas, New Mexico, where Jim will be in graduate school, and Carol will be teaching.

MILLER-LANDIS

The Central Park Presbyterian Church of Cedar Rapids, Ia. was the scene of the August 21 wedding of Sandra Miller, ex '56, and Charles Landis of Cedar Rapids. Barbara Cech, '56, served as one of the candle-lighters for the ceremony, and Janet Kahler Buehler, ex '56, held the guest book at the reception. The Landises will be living in New York City where Charles is a student at Union Seminary.

EDWARDS-HOLLAND

Joanne Edwards, '54, and Van Holland, '53, were married on August 28 in Paterson, N. J. Jeannine Fiori, '54, served as maid of honor. The couple will live in Blooming-

A Policy

It has been customary for a number of years for the Echo to make some statement at the beginning of a school year as to the policy it will follow as the school newspaper. We have nothing in mind to indicate that there will be any change in the policy of reporting college news as completely and objectively as possible.

The Echo is interested in what its readers think about it, and we want to hear your suggestions and criticisms. Without your help, we do not know how we can improve to make the paper yours.

In a sense we have an obligation to the student body of publishing the best newspaper we can because everyone already has a pre-paid subscription and should receive something worthwhile for the money he has paid.

We make mistakes sometimes, but we want to be conscious of them rather than continuing to do things wrongly. Printed material to be read should have no errors, but the sad fact is that the persons behind the publications are really human too, and something is as apt to go wrong there as in any other situation.

This school year, as was pointed out in Dr. Lloyd's Convocation address, presents a new opportunity for improvement and hope on the part of everyone. We of the Highland Echo want to fulfill our wish of improving constantly—with your help.

Our Ovation

It is rather belatedly that the Highland Echo offers its congratulations to our president, Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, on his election as Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, USA, but we feel we speak for the student body as well as for its newspaper. We wish to add here what we can to the standing ovation may of us gave him Thursday morning in a special chapel service.

Those students who have been at Maryville College for at least one school year know (and probably many realized before they came here) that Dr. Lloyd has a long, enviable, and distinguished record of service to his church group and to the Church of Christ all over the world. His service on the permanent committee for church union in the Presbyterian Church and the many ecumenical meetings in which he has taken part are two instances which illustrate Dr. Lloyd's work for the Christian movement.

For over 20 years he has been president of Maryville College throughout a period difficult and trying to an administrator of any kind, and especially to the leader of a small Christian college. Under Dr. Lloyd's presidency, Maryville College has advanced in both physical and intellectual fields: the curriculum has been broadened, standards are constantly being raised, two unique contemporary buildings have been erected, and, more recently, Maryville "begins a wider student fellowship," to use Dr. Lloyd's own words.

We feel that the delegates to the General Assembly had many similar ideas in mind when they chose Dr. Lloyd to be their leader for the coming year.

So it is with heartiest congratulations and our best wishes that we extend our hope to President Lloyd for a happy and successful term in his newest position of service. We think the church has a good man.

Scots & Soda

By Liz Frei

Now's the time to say "Welcome back, you-all" and how do you like the weather we've been having? We hear that one outstanding senior has found a way to keep comfortable—by attending the faculty reception barefooted. Just wish we could do that in classes when the thermometer hits the 100 degree mark. At this rate all that lovely new grass around the "chopel" won't last much longer in spite of any sprinklers.

-S&S-

Speaking of the chapel, wasn't it nice of Dr. Lloyd to have balcony seats for couples at vespers?

-S&S-

All you late risers had better be bracing yourselves—assigned chapel seats are due any day now. Regular attenders just missed a rude awakening last Wednesday morning thanks to Bob Weaver who found a set alarm clock under the choir risers. He has announced that the owner may retrieve it from his room in the chapel basement.

-S&S-

Miss Ware gave all her little helpers a lively pep talk the other day with a special request that they wear clean aprons. To illustrate her point she added, "With due apologies to you, Duckie, Hank Van Hassel had the dirtiest aprons I have ever seen." And what a territory of apron he had, too!

-S&S-

Dick Henderson has graced this column with the following article, for which we express our deepest thanks (we had been wondering how to find enough news):

The Forum of Decorum

Let it be fully known that the table, cared for by Mildred "The Maid" Beard, have drawn up a constitution so conceived and so dedicated that all regular and unregular guests shall not perish from this good earth—without Millie's gracious consent.

In the course of human consumption, it becomes necessary that all must observe the code of ethics. So we do hereby plan to propose laws which are ethical in the sense that they are not unethical. These laws favor good manners and good health. Therefore is is only proper and fitting that they need be strictly enforced by force.

First, there shall be no smoking while the Doxology is being sung; secondly, no intoxicatoing beverage shall be consumed before the dessert has been served; thirdly, each member of the table, including William (the Conqueror) Dent, must exhibit manners befitting a king or queen—as the case may be. No cursing, no insulting, no lying, no romancing, no arguing are permitted in Millie's presence. However, Miss Beard must visit the kitchen on occasion and . . . but let's be mannerly when she returns.

Fingers, utensils, and other weapons of the table shall be used to the advantage of the stomach concerned. This privilege is granted with malice towards none. At the table this clause shall be known as the Mercy Clause; and permission to use the privilege is gotten from (Billy) Graeme Sieber.

Because this Constitution has been arbitrarily drawn up, it is expected that all those who fall under the restrictions will pledge themselves secretly to uphold and cherish each extra fork or spoonful of food found in the cavernous mouths of Millie's four friends and fair foes.

THE PROLETARIAT

Our Welcome

May we take our only opportunity to welcome both old and new students back to this campus for the year. We hope it will be successful.

Those of you who are at Maryville for the first time have, we believe, come to a fine college, and we think you will feel the same way also. Some new students were able to attend Maryville because of a recently resumed policy which the college was forced to end 50 years ago. This early and definite statement of equal rights to everyone is one for which the college is to be congratulated.

Remember that it is the students who make Maryville College and that its standing is for the most part a result of the performance of its students here and after they leave. For that reason, we believe we should all remind ourselves that opportunities we take advantage of in college are like investments; their fullest value will be gained later.

Our welcome is late, but is is still sincere. We hope we can serve the students well.

Talk of The Week . . . . .

By Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Barbara Wilkie

Are you in the process of planning your entertainment for the week? Let's see what the local movie houses have to offer:

Playing at the Capitol Monday through Wednesday is "Susan Slept Here," a comedy with Dick Powell and Debbie Reynolds.

At the Park Monday there will be a road show, "Assassins of Youth," for adults only (mind you—no less). Tuesday and Wednesday "Cassanova's Big Night," a musical in technicolor with Bob Hope and Joan Fontaine, will be playing. Thursday and Friday Charleton Heston and Eleanor Parker will star in "Naked Jungle," also in technicolor.

More Suggestions

Not much of a range to choose from, is there? Oh well, one can always find plenty to do here on campus. Take your date for a stroll around circle drive these nice summer evenings. (No, I forgot, you can't do that—it's out-of-bounds after 7:15.) Well, go to the student center—except it's closed until 9:30. There are always drive in movies, but who has a car? I suppose pool halls and taverns are out, too. And football season has not started, yet. Well, I guess the only suggestion I can make is for you to break down and study, for a change. Maybe combining a parlor date with it would lighten the ordeal. (Two skulls are thicker than one, as Confucious was always saying, I believe.)

Now if you should happen to be in Knoxville this week, you might see "Magnificent Obsession," with Jane Wyman and Rock Hudson, at the Tennessee Theater.

Like To Read?

How about taking a look at the new books bulletin board the next time you visit the library? Quite a collection of reading matter has been added over the summer. Ranging from fiction to practical helps in living, these books present an interesting array of titles: "Flight into Space," "Company Manners," "How to Make Sense," "Craters of Fire," and "New Orleans Holiday"—to mention a few. Start the semester off with a new book. The stacks will be open Monday for the students who like to browse around before picking one.

So the freshmen won't get lost amidst all that stored knowledge, the librarians have placed helpful exhibits and signs in convenient places. Upper classmen will enjoy them, too. (Incidentally, the library seems to be one of the coolest places on campus for studying on these hot afternoons.)

Faculty Survives Mob

Monday evening Maryville held its annual "handshaking party" (better known to cultured individuals as the faculty reception). Freshmen were probably impressed by the formidable array of faculty members, each of whom had a smile for everyone. However, with the exception of President Lloyd's, handshakes became rather feeble around ten o'clock. Everyone (even the faculty) was rewarded with cookies and punch after the (what shall we call it?) ordeal. True Southern hospitality.

Coming Events

If you have noticed the announcements on bulletin boards, you probably know that Cornelia Otis Skinner will be here on campus November 18 with an Artist's Series program of character sketches. Keep that date in mind. Watch also for announcements of the playhouse and experimental theater productions.

FTA To Give Social On Thursday

The first monthly F.T.A. meeting will be held this Thursday, at 6:45 in Mrs. Kramer's classroom. A social program is being planned, under the direction of Eloise Gazaway.

The club welcomes all those interested in education. Plans are being made to contact personally all freshmen indicating such an interest.

Design Exhibition Now On Display

By Liz Frei

Elements of Design is the subject of the show on exhibit in the Fine Arts Center gallery until the end of this month. This portfolio exhibition containing 24 panels was bought by Maryville College during the summer from the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Ideas basic to all designing are introduced through large photographs, photomontages, drawings and color reproductions with a minimum of text to explain what is illustrated by the pictures.

Examples of designing are included from every field for "whether a man be a painter, a sculptor, an architect, an industrial designer, or a photographer, he must be aware of certain fundamental tools." These include his own senses and the materials with which he works; such abstract concepts as space, form, line, and color; and the relationship of all these things to each other. The exhibit showing all this has been worked out as a profitable experiment in the field of visual education.

'Slushburgers', Fun At Student Mixer

By Bill Deerfield

On Thursday evening, Sept. 2, the annual student mixer was held on the baseball field. The program began at 6 p.m. with one of Miss Ware's famous slushburger suppers.

After the meal, Social Board Chairman, Harry McCall, organized the students into groups according to states. Each of these was assigned a leader, and the games began. At the end of five or six minutes a whistle was blown, and each group was given a different leader and a new game to play.

When it became too dark to see, the program shifted to the Intramural Gym, where a group of both new and old students entertained the crowd with music, singing, and comedy routines.

At 9:30 McCall anounced the opening of the Student Center, thus concluding the program.

Sports Spotlights

By Ken Wilkinson

Since Maryville College does not possess a Grantland Rice of the sports world or a Will Shakespeare of the literary world, it was suggested by someone that I should write the first sports editorial of the year. My first action was to consult Webster and see just what I was allowed to say. This produced some consternation since I was to find that an editorial reflected the opinion of the newspaper. I would like to state at the beginning of this article that all controversial comment involved here is purely the feelings of the writer. Now to proceed.

I made a pilgrimage over to the practice field the other day to observe Coach Honaker's charges in action. What I saw pleased me. Except for a lack of depth of reserves in the backfield this year's squad promises to bring a winning season to the Hill. There are enough returning lettermen combined with new talent to give the Scotties a well balanced team. Perhaps the highlight for this spirit conscious writer was to notice the enthusiasm displayed by the men as they scrimmaged in one hundred degree temperatures. Coach Honaker was hesitant to make any predictions as to the win-loss record for the year but he appeared to be satisfied with the progress shown in the drills and scrimmage. At the expense of jinxing the team I would like to predict a six win and three loss record for the '54 Highlanders.

Now to pass on to another phase of the sports life at Maryville. Those boys who either lack the desire or ability to play varsity ball have started another season of intra-mural touch football. It is too early to tell which teams will end up on top of the totem pole, but early showings give the Frosh Team, Rebels and the Sig Hammers a chance to take the honors. It is hoped by this writer that with improved officiating and management the intramural program will operate with more success than in past years.

Another vital segment of the sports program of any school is the added touch of glory provided by the band. This year's band will be a pleasure to watch in action. With lots of new routines ready for use, we should be proud of our Kilted musicians. I had the pleasure of helping select the majoretts this year and they have the needed talent and beauty to inspire the football players as well as the crowd. Congratulations are also in order to head majorette, Mary Brasfield. As a thought, I would like to suggest that we use an honor guard along with the band.

Four days of intensive practice culminated last evening with the selection of this year's cheerleaders. Those who attended last night's pep rally can appreciate the time and effort these kids put forth and equally proud as I am of the fine spirit shown. I appreciated very much the time given by our former cheerleaders in helping to train the candidates. Another pleasant thought, comes from the fact that new cheerleading uniforms are a possibility. It is hoped the necessary channels will sanction the purchase, and if so, we will have the new uniforms by the second home game.

I am also hopeful that arrangements can be completed for the acquisition of a new Scottie dog to replace Mac who met his demise under the wheels of a car this past summer. I understand that Mac was accorded a proper burial under the scoreboard at Honaker field. Very appropriate. By the way, start thinking of a new name for Scottie number two.

Since there was not much publicity about the new cheer contest, the contest will be continued until Wednesday afternoon. If you have a unique or original cheer that you think could be used here on campus, turn it into your English teachers or to me. Prizes will be awarded to the contestants turning in the three best cheers. In case of a tie, I will keep the prizes.

Now that I have exhausted most of the material at my disposal I would like to give some unsolicited philosophy. I believe very heartily in the support of an athletic program; I furthermore believe that it takes just as active a spectator participation as it does team participation to make a sports program great. So I first of all urge each and every student to attend all pep rallies and games. And when you come to these events plan to cheer your team onto victory. But if the team does not win, do not be one of those cynics who is the first to condemn the coach, the team and the officials. Continue to cheer the team on to victory and display the kind of sportsmanship that will be a credit to our college.

As pep chairman for the year, I am looking forward to a great season in every sport. But it can only come through the cooperation of everyone. The teams and coaches are going to do their parts. The band, majorettes and cheerleaders are going to do their part. The pep committee is going to do its part. That leaves the rest of the work up to you. I believe we can and will have a great year if we follow the motto, "SPIRIT WINS."

Help Wanted

Here we are with a new year started without a new staff. Things looked bright for sports news here at Maryville at the end of last year. Malcolm King would be back to serve as sports editor with a good staff behind him. But Malcolm joined the army; and if this was not bad enough none of his staff returned either. Are there no men who are interested in writing for the sports page? Help is badly needed in order to have a sports page. Anyone who is at all interested please get in touch with the editor.

'Mac,' Scottie Mascot, Killed By Car

"Mac," the Scottie dog band mascot who marched at football games and in parades last year, was killed shortly before school began when he was run over by a car on Wilkinson Pike.

Scots To Play Nine Game Schedule

Hiwassee Tigers First Opponents For 1954 Highlander Football Team

With a squad of 45 hopefuls to work with, Coaches L. S. Honaker and John Davis have opened up official practice for all concerned. The Scots face a tough schedule this year and will miss nine lettermen who have graduated or left the team for some reason or other.

Sixteen lettermen are returning to form the nucleus for Coach Lombe Honaker's squad as he opens his 34th year as head coach at Maryville. Returning lettermen include Clarence Shephard (Capt.), Bob Shelton, Buddy White, Buddy Gilbert, Jack Renfro, Bill Breen, Jim Saunders, Bob Hutsell, Jack Keny, Ted Godfrey, Bob Berrong (Alt. Capt.), Bill Wheatly, Don Moore, Bill Strickland, Roy Hayes anad Bob Wheeler.

What Happened To Scottie?

By Nancy Dunn

In answer to the many questions concerning our mascot, "Mac" is dead.

The playful scottie pup bought last spring by Women's "M" Club soon become the pride of the campus. However, he was too frisky for his own good. Three weks ago an unidentified truck killed "Mac" as he bounded into the road.

We have seen the amount of school spirit our mascot aroused. Is that a thing of the past? Our school, unlike many others, has a chance of obtaining a mascot, but we can't sit back and wait for the next fellow to take the initiative.

Arrangements are being made to borrow a scottie for our first football game, but if all goes well we could have a mascot by our second game.

Everything depends on the student attitude. Do you want a frisky black, scottish terrier marching down Honaker Field with the Highlander band decked out in their splendid new kilts? Do you want a proud little mascot to add some enthusiasm and zest to our pep rallies? Of course you do. At present, Miss Jessie Heron, the peppiest campus figure outside of the cheerleaders, members of Women's "M" Club, and Pep Committee representatives are working on a campus project for letting every student have a part in securing our new mascot.

However, it won't be the scottie that will add the school spirit, it will be all that he stands for. This isn't just a college, this is Maryville College. It is up to you the students to create interest, build enthusiasm, and participate in campus activities.

Let's get a scottie mascot, win our ball games, and ring that old chapel bell long and loud.

Hiller Elected Band President

Walt Hiller, senior business administration major from Pittsburgh, Pa., has been elected president of the college band for the coming school year.

Serving with him will be Nancy Dunn, senior chemistry major from Maryville, vice president; and Mary Brasfield, junior music major from Butler, Mo., secretary-treasurer.

Intramurals

The Intramural Football League got off with a bang on Thursday, as the Playboys upset last year's champions, the Rebels, by the score of 6-0.

The only score in the game came in the second quarter, when after an extensive drive, which started on their own 20 yard line, the Playboys scored on a pass play. The try ofr the extra point was blocked, but as it turned out the play had no significance since the Playboys' lead was never threatened during the remainder of the game.

Friday, the Alpha Sigma Hammers played the Y.M.C.A. Sluggers. For those of you who are interested in seeing football, most of the games are played on Wilson Field at 3:45.

Women's Sports Now WA A

By Joan Herschelman

Football practice has started, the band and cheerleaders are beginning to look like professionals, and the men's intramurals are taking shape, but what about a sports program for Maryville College women? The answer to this may be found in the Women's Athletic Association. WAA is an organization of women students who are interested in sports. These girls do not have the time for crenuous varsity participation, but they enjoy playing sports for fun and relaxation.

WAA is a newly organized group fashioned after Women's Varsity. Actually, this typpe group has been on campus for many years and was at one time called PSAA (Point System of Athletic Awards). This title was later changed to Women's Varsity for brevity. However in recent years there has been confusion as to the true meaning of the word "Varsity." It was felt by osme that the name was discussed, the group considered these ideas and looked for a name which would give the idea of a general program available to all women students.

Maryville's WAA is organized on a point system similar to that used by many high schools and colleges. In order to earn a letter a girl must accumulate points by participation throughout the year. If a girl enters WAA, she is not required to participate in all sports but may choose the events which most interest her. Working through WAA's point system is the only way a girl can earn an athletic letter.

In order to earn a sweater with a large "M" on it, a girl must accumulate a total of 500 points during one year. This is the highest award offered and the sweaters are worn proudly because they stand for hard work and determination. By earning 400 points or more, a girl is entitled to "M" Club membership. A small orange "M" is awarded to those making from 400 to 500 points while a monogram is given for 300-400 points.

The junior physical education majors will lead the groups throughout the coming year. Each will instruct the girls in fundamental principles and rules of the sports. These student leaders will also act as officials in tournaments.

Mary K. Alison will be the first instructor of the season. The lead off sport, soccer, provides many thrills and spills as the two teams fight to protect their goal. The second sport, aerial darts, may be compared to badminton with wooden paddles being substituted for the rackets. Elizabeth Murphy will lead this event. Following aerial darts is the old favorite, volleyball. This sport, led by Bettye Harrill, will be the last one during the first semester.

Basketball will be the highlight of second semester events. During this sport team rivalry becomes most vivid as the Chillies and Howies battle for tournament championship. Elizabeth Murphey, an old "pro" will be blowing the whistle and giving instruction on the best ways to get the ball.

Four of the basic strokes (back, breast, side and crawl) will be stressed in swimming. Mary K. Alison will be student leader in this sport as well as the following track and field events. Fundamentals in shot put, broad jump and other skills wil lbe taught. Closing the season will be softball, led by Bettye Harrill. At this time all of the sluggers aim for Dr. McClelland's front porch.

WAA is for all women students, not just those who are athletically inclined, but any girl who enjoys being part ofa game and participating in sports. WAA will hold it's first meeting on Tuesday, September 14 in Bartlett auditorium. All interested women are urged to attend this meeting.

By Abigail Crosby

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Kemper of Manassas, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean, '56, to Dave Helwig, '53, of Chattanooga. No definite date has been set for the wedding.

Recent visitors to the campus have included Jim Wiley, ex '54, Betty Hammers, '53, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lynn, '52 (Naomi Burgos, '54), Mrs. Greg Howard (Carolyn Beatty, '54), Dave Gates, '54, Dot Wells, '54, Sue Binnion, '54, Mrs. Charles Trotter (Carol Frazier, '54), Tom Fairhurst, '54, Jack Maxwell, '54; Cornelia Force, ex '56, Aleen Williams, ex '56, Pat Brendle, ex '57; Nancy McMillan, ex '56, Alice Draving, ex '56, Carol Cramblett, ex '56, and Mary Moranville, ex '56.

Pieper Receives Master's Degree

J. Pieper, recently on the Maryville political science faculty, received a Master of Arts degree at summer commencement exercises of the University of Tennessee in Knoxville on August 21.

Mr. Pieper is now with the National Board of Presbyterian Men in New York City.

Christian Ed. To Meet Monday Evening

Monday evening at 6:30, the Christian Education Club will meet in Anderson Hall.

The meeting will begin with devotions, after which a discussion, arranged by program chairman Emma Lou Arnold and Betty Knott, will be introduced. The topic to be dealt with will be the various methods and approaches that can be used in teaching kindergarten-age children. At the close of this discussion refreshments will be served.

All new and old students who are interested are invited to attend the meeting.

Dancing Begins In Intramural Gym

The after-supper dances began last Tuesday evening. These informal dances are held each evening, except Saturday and Sunday, in the intramural gym, from 6:30 until 7:15. Popular records provide music. Snell Mills and Mrs. Strick supervise the program.

If enough students are interested, dancing lesosns will be given again this year. Anyone who is interested is asked to contact Ruth Orr.

Photographers will begin making individual class pictures for the Chilhowean Tuesday morning at 9:30 in the basement of the theatre, editor Faith Nollner has announced.

Charge this year will be the same as previously $2 for four proofs. Students are asked to bring money with them.

Come dressed as follows: All girls in a white shirtwaist blouse; all boys in a suitcoat with solid color four-in-hand ties.

Pre-Mins Meet Thursday Outlines Year's Projects

The Pre-Ministerial Club met Thursday night with Forrest Amidon presiding.

On the program for the coming year are a number of plans designed to widen the scope of the Pre-Min Club so that it can be of the greatest possible help to the campus and community.

Among some of the projects outlined are: a closer cooperation with the enlarged parish program, visitation at the hospital and other public homes, and helping to better the community in as many ways as can be found during the year.

IRC Selling Magazines; Replaces Officers

I.R.C. is selling subscriptions to Time, Life, and other magazines at the present time. Raymond Van Stone is in charge of the campaign and sign-up sheets have been placed in the dormitories.

Two provisionary officers have been appointed. They are Kay Powell as program chairman and Raymond Van Stone as treasurer. They replace Ginny Burk and George Hardy.

Pre-Meds To Meet Thursday At 6:45

Paul Payne, parsident of Pre-Medical Society invites all science majors to attend the first meeting of the society on Thursday evening, 6:45 p.m., in the Chemistry Lecture Room, second floor Fayerweather.

Plans for the evening are introduction to plans for the society and a guest speaker. The speaker is a medical student and his topic is "What to Expect in Medical School." Refershments will be served following the program.

Fine Arts Division

In the division of Fine Arts, Elizabeth Daniels, Woodbury, N. J., and Dan H. Kinsinger, Washington, Ill., are filling the vacancies caused by the resignations of Jack Kemp, speech and drama instructor, and Edrie Sellick, music instructor, respectively.

Mr. Kinsinger is a cousin of Lora Kinsinger, who last May, and was last year's managing editor of the Echo.

Assistant Professor Carolyn Blair has returned to the English faculty after a leave of absence for graduate study at the University of Tennessee; and Assistant Professor Elizabeth Jackson, also of the English department, is beginning a leave of absence for graduate study at the University of Colorado.

Highlanders Engage Hiwassee In Season Opener

Sig-Theta 'Orientals' Bow Out Of Rush Week

Formal Held In Small Gym

By Jim Hopkins

The oriental—strange and mystic—has been the mood set this week by Theta and Alpha Sig. The campus seemed to catch the spirit right away. More than one of the new freshmen was seen trying to talk to the 'stuck-up' little Chinamen stationed about the campus, and the dangling lanterns made good boxing bags for those weak enough to give in to the "urge."

Then there was the poster "pretty" who dreamed she ate chop suey . . . and the Theta whose pigtail was pulled plumb off.

Chairmen of this rush week have been Dixie Conner and Bob Brand. There was a fashion show down in the "Foreign Fantasy" foyer which attracted a large audience. It was directed by Betty McKenney and Alice Rowe. And over 40 men attended the stag party planned by Tom Bugenhagen.

Confucius and Incense

Confucius, completed with grotesque music and oozing incense, did his bit to lend atmosphere. (Thanks, Ray Harley.) The art show and the splash party planned by Helen Davis and Kay Leeth were two more colorful attempts to induce new members. In the swimming pool were Bill Strickland, Bob Ramger, Liz Murphy, Dock Jennings and Doris Glad, great comedy acts.

The formal last night was the exotic end. The poor little, big footed Chinese dish, Libby Parrish, and the sure-footed American sailor, Cary Valentine, spread ouf their love affair into 2½ acts.

Helping them along, as if they needed help, were Ethelyn Cathey, Martha Jackson, Carol Moore, Tom Perry, Liz Enloe, and Jim Laster.

Running around on little tip toes—Judy Ross, Jane Kirkpatrick, Lavinia Lee, Katie Marston, Pate Boyd, Gavin Douglas, Bob Finertie, and Rick McNeal. Music—Laura Rainwater. Director—Ruth Orr. Set—Doris Glad.

The president of Theta Epsilon is Sally Butts, and Alpha Sigma's president is Tom Bugenhagen. So ends another season of rush weeks. Or, as the orientals would say—"ding-dong."

Dr. Case To Speak To Pre-Mins Thursday

The Pre-Mins Club will meet Thursday evening, at 6:45 in the Y-Rooms. Dr. Ralph Case will speak on the topic, "Psychology in the Ministry."

Y-Radio Forms Writing Group

A newly-organized group in radio writing will begin work this week with Miss Carolyn Blair, assistant professor of English, giving instruction. Anyone interested in this field is urged to attend the first meeting in Miss Blair's classroom Thursday night at 7:30.

"I Take Off My Snoes," an original radio drama, written and directed by Ethelyn Cathey, will be featured on Y-Radio tomorrow night at 9:30 on WGAP. Carol Sleight will play the leading role of a college girl with tuberculosis.

The first of the year's programs was broadcast last Sunday night. It featured Randall Thompson's "The Peaceable Kingdom," recorded by the Vesper Choir under the direction of Harry H. Harter.

The faculty sponsors for this year are Ralph Moore, who returns as the supervisor, Miss Blair, Paul Cooper, who is the technical specialist.

The YWCA representative, Sarah Pledger, and the YMCA representative, Ray Sammons, invite everyone to tune in every Sunday night at 9:30 over station WGAP to hear the YM and YWCA program.

Echo To Omit Some Issues

The Echo will not be published every week this school year, financial difficulties making it necessary to skip isues that would ordinarily be published under a weekly operation.

Tentatively here is the schedule of issues for the remainder of the semester: September 25, October 9, and 23, November 6 and 20, and December 4 and 11.

Subscriptions to the Echo are available from the business manager, Ronald Jennings. Cost is 50 cents per semester.

Council Looking Into Sunday Dating; Names Committees

Student Council president Carol Moore made appointments of permanent council committees at the regular meeting Wednesday night.

In accordance with two other important proposals, Student Council members are investigating the possibilities of having the Y-Store open on Sunday nights after Student Vols meeting, and Sunday dating for all students.

Appointment of the committees was delayed from last week. Here are the committees and members named to serve on them:

Elections—Liz Murphey, Bill Davis, Herb White, Barbara Chubb, Dick Jenson, Gene Garren, Delores Woods, and two freshmen who remain to be elected.

Executive—Liz Murphey, Harry McCall, Ruth Orr, Don Williams, Nancy Jones, and Bill Howell.

Town Night — Mary Brasfield, Dick Jensen, and Barbara Chubb.

Publicity—Herb White, Virginia Marshall, Faith Nollner, and Joe Gilliland.

Finance — Don Williams, Bill Dent, and Gene Garren.

Student Programs — Henny Laing, Jim Fisher, and Lyn Kiefer.

Harry MacCall made the proposal about Sunday-night opening of the Y-Store, saying that many boys were unable to afford to go to town on Sunday night, and Mary Brasfield said girls in the dormitories lost money by ordering food.

During discussion, it was brought out that the latest Student Vols usually lasts is 9:30, and that time would be the earliest the store could open. President Moore asked MacCall and Jim Fisher to be a committee to look into the matter and report to council next week.

Fisher brought up the question of Sunday dating, and Henny Laing, WSGA president, and Miss Moore told council that a proposal would be made soon about the matter. Probably, they said, it will first be discussed by Student-Faculty Senate before being referred to council for action.

In other business, the council heard reports from various committees and persons. President Moore announced that the Fred Hope Fund drive chapel program was tentatively set for September 30, and that student council members would be asked to help collect pledges at a table.

Bill Davis and Faith Nollner were appointed from council to the

Sally Butts Elected As 1954 Band Sponsor

To Appear With Band

By Barbara Wilkie

The band has chosen Sally Butts, senior elementary education major from Waterloo, Iowa, for its 1954 sponsor, Walter Hiller, president of the band, has announced. Miss Butts will be formally presented in a colorful ceremony tonight before the first football game of the season.

Ralph Moore, band director, will escort her on to the field while the band, in the formation of a heart, plays "Moonlight and Roses." Mary Brasfield, drum major, will then present her with flowers.

Miss Butts is president of Theta Epsilon and is a member of the Vesper Choir. Last year she served as secretary of the junior class. She was nominated by Alpha Sigma society for this honor.

Runners-up included Emma Curtis, nominated by Bainoniar; Libby Parish, nominated by Theta Epsilon; and Nancy Rideout, nominated by Athenian. The band cast the final vote for its selection.

It is the duty of the band sponsor to march before the band in its appearances at football games and parades, including the annual Homecoming celebration.

Harter Names Choir Roster

Results of Vesper Choir were posted last Monday. The following students were selected by Harry Harter as members of the 1954 Vesper Choir:

J. B. Adams, Robert Baker, Jim Barber, Preston Bogia, Malcolm Bonner, Adlai Boyd, Vernon Cooper, Jim Cummings, Bill Cunningham, Charles Cureton, Perry Fuller, David Gilliland, Bill Howell;

Harold Kelley, Jim Kennedy, James Kesler, Jim Laster, Bob Lorenz, Robert McLeod, Harry MacCall, Richard Morse, Phil Muir, Jerry Overall, James Preston, Joseph Quinn, John Ribble, Jack Shafer, Glenn Sherrod, Eugene Spickerman, and Sidney Tedford.

Girls selected are: Nita Anne Baylor, Margaret Blackburn, Anne Buckley, Sally Butts, Bobbye Carson, Emma Curtis, Nancy Dodge, Elizabeth Enloe, Sue Burton, Martha Freeny, Kathy Garrison, Marian Hina, Virginia Hine, Elizabeth Hoaster;

Marilyn Johnston, Lynn Kiefer, Carol Lee Lacy, Shirley Leever, Carolyn Lime, Shirley Mayfield, Jean Morgan, Elizabeth Murphey, Ruth Nelson, Louise Ogden, Mary Ellen Phipps, Jane Rusk, Delores Woods, Doris Scott, Carol Sleight, Sheila Sutton, Polly Trnavsky, and Maryel Vogel.

IRC To Hear George Pordgony

International Relations Club will hold its first meeting of the year Monday evening at 6:40 in the Y Rooms. Margaret Hanna, president has announced. Featured on the program will be George Pordgony a student from Iran, who will discuss Iranian-American Relations.

During his talk he will refer to arious objects of handicraft and pictures he has brought with him from Iran. These will be on exhibit during the refreshment and informal question answer period, which will fololw his talk.

Everyone interested in learning more about foreign affairs and the point of view of people in other countries is invited to the meeting. Maryel Vogel is in charge of planning the first program.

Mrs. Lloyd To Speak At YWCA Sunday

YWCA will meet Sunday afternoon at 1:30 in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center. Mrs. Ralph W. Lloyd will speak on, "The Place of Woman in the Church Today." All women students and faculty are cordially invited to attend.

The meeting of September 12, consisted of a brief song session, followed by the "Y" guest, Dr. Dougals J. Elwood, who showed color slides taken on his recent trip to Egypt.

WSGA Elects 4 Representatives

Mary Lamb, freshman from Freehold, N. J., and Willa Jean Duval, freshman from Louisville, Ky., were recently elected representatives of Women's Student Government Organization. Miss Lamb represents the freshmen in Baldwin, and Miss Duval, those in Memorial.

In Pearsons Hall, the juniors elected were Madlon Travis, Westerville, Ohio, and Kathy Garrison, Lake Wales, Fla. These girls will serve with Louise Ogden, Knoxville; Carolyn Carter, Nashville; Jean Morgan, Mathison, Miss.; and Henny Laing, New Rochelle, N. Y., to form the Coordinating Council, which met for the first time last Monday. At this initial meeting, Mary Lamb was elected secretary.

Town Night Checkers have also been elected to serve in cooperation with Student Council; their duty is to check the sign-out slips and to report all violations to Council.

The girls elected in Baldwin were Helen Hasenstab and Margaret Gilmore; in Memorial, Betty Lou Zimmerman and Janice Kanick; and in Pearsons, Elizabeth Enloe and Delores Woods.

Fisher, Pordgony To Discuss Iran At YM

The main feature of this Sunday's YMCA program will be a discussion of "Iran in the World Today" to be presented by Commodore Fisher and George Podgorny, of India.

SCOTS FAVORED TO TRIM TIGERS

By Jim Demer

King football is here again as Maryville's 1954 season opens up tonight at 8 o'clock on Honaker Field. The familiar Tigers from Hiwassee will furnish the opposition.

We Want More

Last year the Scottie eleven romped over the Tigers 55-6. Hiwassee has been practicing for the past few weeks and should bring in an improved team. Also last year the Tigers were without the services of a regular coach at the start of the season, which has been corrected this year.

Plans Made For Homecoming

Homecoming day will begin with Founder's Day Chapel Service in which Dr. Lloyd will relate the history of Maryville College. Following him will be a special speaker.

At 3:00 p.m. the parade through town will begin, led by Maryville Chief of Police, John R. Bluford, who is the Grand Marshall of the parade. Following him will be the Highlanders' Band dressed in kilts. Then will come the Homecoming Queen, riding in a convertible.

The present plans call for twelve convertibles and fifteen floats. Other marching units will be the bands from Everett, Maryville, and Alcoa High Schools plus units from the Air Force Base, and the Naval and Marine reserve units stationed in the surrounding area.

There will be a reviewing stand on Broadway in order to judge the best float, and a prize will be given to the best Float, which will be presented that night at the football game. The parade will start in front of Thaw Hall, proceed to Washington Avenue and then up Broadway through the business section of Maryville.

Something new may be added at the homecoming game—new cheerleaders' uniforms, and perhaps even a new mascot.

For this Saturday afternoon, Pep Chairman, Ken Wilkinson has announced a Pep Rally to be held in front of the chapel at 1:15 p.m. Afterward the band and the cheerleaders will lead students in a snake dance through the heart of town.

Prayer Meeting Held

"Prayer" was the theme for the second all-campus prayer meeting held Thursday evening in the Y-Rooms.

Grace Harrison was the leader.

Hold That Line

Maryville boasts a strong line which should be able to spring the Scottie backs free for long gains. The left side of the line will see big Don Moore at left end. Moore seems bigger than ever this year and will get the nod over Jim Saunders. Ted Godfrey will start at left tackle and will be aided by LeRoy (Squire) Goodeen. Alt. Capt. Bob Berrong is the left guard backed up by Roy Hayes.

Center Spot

Jack 'Hooks" Keny is the probable starting center but Bill Breen and Bob Bevins will see plenty of action. Both Keny and Breen are lettermen at the center spot.

Right Side

The right end is Chuck Dunn with Ted Wilson spelling him, "Ape" Strickland will be the starting right tackle playing along side Bill Wheatley at right guard. Wheatley and Strickland were teammates at St. Pete high school.

Carrying The Bacon

The backfield is an inexperienced one but will be trying all the time. Captain Clarence Sheperd will hold down the tailback spot. Jim McCall, transfer student from U.T., will back him up. A surprise starter will be Ernie Raulerson. Raulerson will get the nod at wingback with Bob DeLozier as a reserve. Quarterback is Bob Shelton with "Crow" Renfro is a capable sub. The starting fullback will be Buddy White, with Buddy Gilbert backing him up.

The Opponents

Very little is known about the Hiwassee Tigers this year. Indications seem to be that the Tigers will field a stronger team than they have for the past two years. Over the years the two teams have met a total of 15 times with the Scots winning 12 and dropping two.

Trim The Tigers

It seems a good bet that the Scots are going to have a good season. But if we want to see another of the great teams of the 1945 46-47 era we have to back the Scots to the limit. Remember a good team can become a great one with the help of a student body with the right spirit. Let's trim the Tigers.

Freshman George Pordgony Is Little UN Within Himself

By Peggy Fisher

(Written For The Highland Echo)

The Maryville Melting Pot has been livened up with a liberal dash of cosmopolitan flavor this year, about the spiciest of which is a certain George Pordgony, from Teheran, Iran.

Our friend George is a little UN in himself—not content with merely being an Iranian, he disclosed that his mother is Armenian, and his father, Czechoslovakian, and Russian is the language used in his home! Among other of George's international accomplishments is his fluent handling of six languages—Persian, Russian, Armenian, English, French, and Arabic. (Note Thetas—no Chinese!)

Normal Load 17 Subjects

Born in Teheran in 1934, George has spent all but this last month of his life in Iran. He attended the Zoroastrian Boys' School in Iran for 12 years, during each of which he carried a normal load of 17 subjects—trig, plane geometry, solid geometry, cosmology, zoology, botany, geology, palentology, organic and inorganic chemistry, a European foreign language, Arabic, literature (in a foreign language and in his native Persian), and history. Need we add that he considers high school in his country about twice as stiff as that in ours?

George's main activities while in his home country were athletics and Scouting. Among the sports that he has mastered are horsemanship, fencing, and shooting.

His Scouting activities were extensive. As assistant to the chief Scout executive in Iran, he played an important part in quelling the recent riots instigated by Mossodegh, and in caring for the many wounded who over-ran the available medical facilities of the country as a result of the violence.

As to how he got to Maryville, we can thank Doc Griffitts and the Bookstore for that! Joan Platt, a recent MC graduate, now teaching in a mission school in Teheran, gave him his first preview of the place by wearing a Maryville sweatshirt at an event they both attended last summer.

Whether it was the girl or the shirt is a moot question, but George's interest was up. He inquired about the institution at the "American Friends of the Middle East" bureau, which gives information and aid to prospective students in American universities.

On finding out that Commodore Fisher, an old-time friend of his,

Ninety '54 Graduates Report; Large Number In Grad School

By Abigail Crosby

Approximately 90 members of the class of 1954 have reported their current occupations to the Alumni Association, according to Mrs. F. A. Griffitts, secretary in the Alumni Office.

At The Seminaries

A large number of last spring's graduates are continuing their studies in seminaries throughout the country. Jack Rorex, who was married to Joan Peakman on June 12, and Carl Creech will be entering Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary in Austin, Texas, and at Louisville Seminary, in Louisville, Ky., will be Homer Rickabaugh, Don Moffett, Kent Buser, and Tom Fairhurst.

Hal Black will be studying at the Biblical Seminary in New York City; Jack Maxwell, at Columbia Seminary, Decatur, Ga.; and Mitchell Pettus, at Emory University, Department of Theology, Atlanta, Ga.

Bob Read, Walt Elwood, and Gary Baker are at Western Seminary in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Adolph Kunen, Ed Breitbach, and Hank Van Hassel are at Princeton Seminary in Princeton, N.J.

Two of the 1954 graduates are taking further study at the General Asembly Training School in Richmond, Va., Lora Kinsinger, and Annie Laurie Cureton; and a large number have entered graduate school at the University of Tennessee. They are Bob Buchanan, Joan Frei, Charles Miller, Jerry King, Joe McMurry, and Wayne Feehrer.

Jackie Sparks has a dietetics internship at Duke University, and Ran Pierce has an internship at St. Luke's Hospital, New York. Wayne Shelton is studying at Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y., Anne Yoakum has a graduate assistantship in chemistry at the University of Florida, and Robert Young will be at Emory University in Atlanta.

Ken Tuck and Marshall England will both be at the University of Virginia, Tuck in medical school, and England studying dentistry. Moody Bryles is studying at the University of Misouri, and Glenn Gentry, at Vanderbilt.

Teachers

Teaching school in Atlanta, Ga., will be Stan Ray, Patty Halstead, and Mary Virginia Ferguson. Betty Jo Woody and Martha Bur

Dr. Lloyd Is Vesper Speaker

Vespers will be held in the chapel at 7 p.m. Sunday. President Lloyd's topic will be, "The World Council of Churches Speaks," taken from his experiences at Evanston, Illinois, in August.

Sunday will also mark the opening performance of the complete Vesper Choir of 1954-1955.

Rodemann To Show Slides To German Club

The German Club held its initial meeting of the season Monday, September 13 in Anderson where new members were welcomed and plans for the coming season were made.

Officers of the club are: president, Ron Morley; vice president, Guy Selander; treasurer, Morgan Biggs; I.C.C. representative, Mike Connolly; Faculty advisor, Herr Reber.

The next meeting of the German Club will be Monday, September 27 in Anderson Hall. Ingeborg Rodemann, assistant teacher of German at Maryville, will present an informal talk and show pictures and scenes from her trip through Germany, Austria and Switzerland two years ago.

Workshop Elects Speaker, Hopkins

Two new members recently elected to Writers' Workshop to replace vacancies are Lois Speaker, a senior chemistry major from Neptune, N.J., and Jim Hopkins, a junior English major from Memphis.

The next scheduled meeting of Workshop is Monday at 4:30 p.m. in Anderson 23.

French Club To Meet On September 30

French Club will meet for the first time this semester on September 30.

The officers of the organization include John Graulich, president; Carol Hutton, vice president; Janet Whitmore, secretary; Betty Cutler, program chairman; and Marcia Williams, Inter-Club Council. A treasurer also will be elected.

French Club, which exists to further the knowledge of the culture and customs of France, is a closed organization in the sense that membership is limited to 30 students elected from the French classes. Qualifications are scholarship and a genuine interest in the language.

A Broader Education

With the new semester well under way, it is time that all of us, old and new students alike, stop and take stock of the type of work we are doing this year. Are we rediscovering the many sidelights of Maryville, or have we already slipped into the familiar routine of study, play, and sleep—or perhaps just play and sleep?

Each student must remember that his primary reason for being at Maryville is to get an Education, but he must also remember that he will not become an educated person merely by poring over the texts of required courses. There is a happy medium for each student, and it is up to the individual to find it.

The clubs and organizations which have been advertised since the day we got here are not demons banded toegther for the purpose of lowering the curve, but are active groups, vitally interested in their own particular fields and with a definite place in the whole of our campus life.

YM and YW combine with Vols, Pre-Mins, and the Christian Ed Club to produce the Christian friendliness for which Maryville is noted throughout the country. Band, orchestra, and the choirs give students a chance to exercise and develop musical talent or to increase their appreciation for music. This same sort of statement could be made for any and all of the organizations here, so the student is quick to see the wide variety of interest groups open to him.

If, however, one is more interested merely in observing, there is still a balance to be attained. The Fine Arts Center is the hub of a large number of displays, concerts, and shows. The library, too, offers these advantages in the choice of books, magazine, and newspapers to be found there. And, as the year progresses, the student will find a large number of things which will both interest and please him in the Playhouse programs, Chapel speakers, Y-Radio, the Artist Series, and the programs of regular meetings of interest and vocational clubs.

These extra-curriculars are as much a part of any college—and as much a part of Maryville—as are the regular class meetings and study. They must not, however, take precedence over the assignment, but each student must be able to combine the two in a happy proportion to the advantage of both the individual and the college.

Your Student Council

Something which has been a characteristic of Student Council meetings for at least the past two years is the absence of visitors from the student body, who are not in any way connected with the group. At this past week's council meeting, it was brought out that more students should take advantage of the opportunity they have to attend the meetings so they will know and thus understand more clearly the operation of student government on this campus.

We should like to endorse this statement because it is at these Council meetings that decisions affecting every person attending school are made and actions begun which will make campus life more enjoyable and progressive. Those who are members of the legislative body are your representatives and are acting on your behalf.

Undoubtedly it has been a more or less general feeling that student council is "not too important here" which has led to the Wednesday night meetings at which only council members are present (and then sometimes they have had difficulty in obtaining a quorum). This attitude of unimportance is of course erroneous because council handles Town Night violations, all-campus and class elections,, welcoming activities at the beginning of school, and its most vital function is that of being a body of representation which originates student ideas and starts both changes and innovations on the way to becoming part of the plan of things in college life.

Sometimes a situation arises which sharply divides opinion among the students as to what some new council action or proposal is or will do. The best way for you to find out just what is being done at Student Council is to be there yourself. We don't intend to ask anyone to become a devoted attendant of meetings just because it is your duty to be there because they might put something over on you, but we would like you to be present often enough so you will be familiar with procedures and the ideas that are being discussed.

The council extends an invitation each week for everyone to attend. It means you; see what your student council is doing.

Scots & Soda

By Charles Partee

Like Horatio Alger I stand at the bridge, shaking with no inconsiderable temerity. Like sweet Shakespeare I am the bard-tender for mixing this weak's Scots and Soda. Let's open a new case and that objective. Now my objective is to slink this columbine to the base of the page. I generally write in a bellicose vein.

Tonight our Maryville Scotch will pour an Old Fashioned on High Waspy. "Come fill up the cup," as Homer Khayyam said on the deck of his Ruby Yacht. Speaking of decks, and we were, this rolling reporter remarked the good deal of the Athenian Bainonian card sharpies. Carnegie was one of the Outcasts of Poker Parlor. In fact, as they say in Indianese, Poker-haunts-us. Musical accompaniment was to the Beerbarrel Poker.

The Frosh "walk in duty like the Knight of cloudless climes and starry skies," to quote William Jennings, Lord Bryan. By now they have met the real campus fixtures: Next of Ken Wilkenson the peppermint chairman; The Latin Lover, 'Umble 'arry ReCall, chairman of the socially bored; and Carol More, author of the Utopia.

Let me induce myself without further adieu, I am from Arkansas, the nub of the world; if you don't believe it, just axis. We have our own culture over there. In sculptory we have All-Gussie Rodin who chiseled The Stinker; in painting, Mike L. Angle Lowe, who made the famous Moaning Liza; and in history King Tut-Tut of Egypt who wrote the song Al Jolson made great, "My Mummy." In music, Beethoven's fifth is a part of every bar. We had to read Homer's Ibid and Odd-you-see and also Caesar's Gallic Wars. I can still remember that line when Caesar was stabbed by Brutely and said, "My gall bladder is as a whole divided into three parts." In the dance we learned the horse trot—so called because there is a little wagon behind. We teach our cows the art of drama. A man named Campbell runs our drama-dairy.

In spite of all this, as a child I worked from dawn to dust on the grounds of a coffee plantation, and how have YOU bean? Have you seen that cute chapeau called the Boston beanie?

We don't have transportation out there like here. I do have a pet unicorn, though. It is from Mortimer's herd. I rode the crittur to the boundary of Arkansas—that's the Mississippi River—it's like Pistol Creek only more so. Never do I reproach that place with-out sadness, "with rue my heart is laden" for De Soto the man who invented the thing called it Mississippi. With any view for prosperity, he would have named it: De Sota Water.

Now a word of the world situation: Flash. . . Flash. . . Oh, sorry that was only Mr. McCurry, blinking the lights. Ah well, to err is Truman to forgive De Galle of being Frank-o and Joe stopped Stalin. Be a Tito-aller or as a Truman being you'll come out second Bess.

Re-issued: After careful and considerable cogitation, I remain bewildered at the literary device, the prologue, e.g. Chaucer's prologue. According to Webster the prefix "pro" means "for, in behalf of and partisan of" and from the same source log means, "a bulky piece of unshaped timber." Now what would Geoffrey be doing that for? No wonder we have so much trouble with the Flying Chaucer. This is the kind of logic that even an English major couldn't shake a spear at.

Talk around the campus since last Sunday night has been of Mr. Harter's blue satin gown. Some one (not a Vesper Choir member) has remarked that he looks like an "off-color Buddhist priest."

Talk of The Week . . . . .

By Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Nancy Marshall

This is the "culture column," but who plans to be cultured and sophisticated this evening? Our "savage" football team will be trying to overcome Hiwassee with brute force (and strategy), so all should take their loudest cheering voice along to send the Scots to victory. By the way, the new cheerleaders will be making their first public appearance tonight.

Just to prove that Maryville likes variety, haven't the "rush weeks" been great? Alpha Sigma and Theta Epsilon captured that exotic, oriental quality in their formal, while Athenian and Bainonian provided a different ending to the "same old story." The chapel seems to create an atmosphere that just could not be captured in the gymnasium.

Movies

"Magnificent Obsession" is arriving in Maryville. Last week the students went to Knoxville to see it. It will be playing at the Capitol Theater Monday through Friday. Across the street, the Park is offering more variety. The three movies to play next week are "The Glass Web" on Monday, "She Couldn't Say No" on Tuesday and Wednesday, and "Executive Suite" on Thursday and Friday This sounds like a good week to attend the treater.

The library has a wide variety of new books. For the person who enjoys beautiful pictures, The White House by Jane and Burt McConnell would be a good selection. It contains many colored as well as black and white photographs of the President's home. A short history is also sandwiched in among the pictures.

One does not usually realize how design affects his life, but a visit to the gallery of the Fine Arts Center will bring the point home. The exhibit, Elements of Design, explains the basic ideas of design in almost any field. This particular exhibit, which will be on display for the rest of the month, was purchased from the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Want To Sing?

Wanted: men who like to sing. This is the message which is being sent out by Men's Glee Club currently because they have a number of openings for fellows who enjoy singing both sacred and secular numbers. Dan Kinsinger, new on the music faculty this year, is the new director of the organization, which often combines with the Girls' Choir. The Glee Club rehearses on Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 and on Wednesday evenings at 6:45.

History Great, Hope Greater, Says Dr. Lloyd

College president Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd told the student body last Saturday morning that "the experience of the past is great, but hope for the future has more power."

His stated topic was "Hope is Greater than History." Dr. Lloyd, having returned from the World Council of Churches meeting in Evanston, Ill., on Friday, used his subject as being in line with the World Council theme, "Christ, the Hope of the World."

"Here and now hope has greater power at Maryville College," the president said in reference to the students themselves. "This year we begin a wider student fellowship . . . broken 50 years ago by law," Dr. Lloyd said, speaking of the resumed policy of the College to admit students of all races.

He also urged the students to make use of the opportunity to better themselves each succeeding year in college. "If one does poorly in school, the chances are he will not do well in anything," Dr. Lloyd stated. "Above all," he said, "don't fall into a trap of cynicism."

The convocation was postponed one day because Dr. Lloyd, having been appointed a member of the Central Committee at the Evanston meeting, was delayed in returning by committee business. The college choir provided music for the service, and Deans E. R. Hunter and Frank D. McClelland also took part.

Buckley Named President Of Theta Alpha Phi

Anne Buckley, senior from Clifton, Va., has been elected president of Theta Alpha Phi, an honorary dramatic fraternity of those active in playhouse work.

Elected with Miss Buckley were Jim Shields, senior from Maryville, vice president; Abigail Crosby, senior from Columbia City, Ind., secretary-treasurer; and Marcia Williams, junior from Peekskill, N. Y., historian.

Famed MC football player Earl McCall's son, Jim, is a member of the 1954 Highlanders.

Sports Spotlights

By Ken Wilkinson

Last Monday evening I spent an enjoyable three hours as a guest at the annual kick-off football banquet. I was as out of place as a Republican in South Carolina, but, I found the evening quite profitable. For those of you who were not there to share the steak and trimmings as well as the food for thought, I would like to relate some of the happenings.

First of all I should explain that the banquet was sponsored by the Boosters Club, which is composed of a group of our sports-minded town friends. Their main purpose is to increase the spirit of Maryville College.

The invocation was given by Dean McClelland, after which dinner was served. After a few opening remarks were made by the toastmaster, the vice-president of the club gave an official welcome to those assembled.

Coach Honaker then introduced assistant coaches Davis, Cragen and Sheperd. Coach Davis took the floor to give forth with the Maryville roster, a more handsome group of men this writer has not seen since leaving Ohio. Then the high school coaches were presentd to the group and they familiarized us with their senior players which we hope will all be fighting to come to Maryville next year. Now that everyone in the room had been officially recognized with the exception of this writer, who had prepared a twenty-five minute speech, the program started.

Coach Honaker spoke for a brief twenty minutes about the prospects of this year's squad. The first enlightening news to come from coach's lips, was, that "we might win a ball game." He reminded those boys who had not gotten their all-expense scholarships to stop in and see Dean McClelland. He related that we had "a good bunch of boys for the line" and that "we could not tell about the backs yet, as they are inexperienced." He assured his captive audience that this is a "team that is interesting to watch." Perhaps Coach expressed his hope for this year by quoting the immortal Pop Warner. Warner remarked that "a good backfield behind a weak line can look poor, but a not so good backfield behind a good line can look great." We hope Pop Warner's philosophy proves right.

Following Coach Honaker's talk, Mayor Lea Callaway delivered a brief speech. I believe it was the most inspiring talk of the night as the mayor outlined the qualifications needed for a winning team. The three things he deemed necessary were "beef, know how, and guts." He closed by saying that the boy "were not expected to win all of the games, but, they were expected to give their best."

Carl Storey then gave the aims and purposes of the boosters club and presented Miss Ware with a gift of appreciation for the preparation of the meal. He mentioned that she "went out of her way" to do this. He also urged those present to buy season tickets to the Highlander's games. After the singing of the Alma Mater, the meeting was adjourned.

Perhaps the thing that pleased me most about the whole affair, (outside of the meal) was the spirit and and attitude shown by our townspeople. During my three years as a student here I have always felt it would be desirable to increase the ties between the town and college. Maybe we as a student body can work on this in the future.

There are two functions on campus that I would like you to attend today. The first will be at 1:15 this afternoon. It will be our first pre-game pep rally. At that time you will see our new cheerleaders, majorettes and band in action. Brief talks will be given by Coach and by the football captain. Then we will follow a police escort to town in the traditional snake dance. Down on Broadway we will have a few cheers and the Maryville fight song. Then we older people will come home and rest up for the second event of the day—Maryville vs. Hiwassee. Every member of our student body should be in the stands by 7:45 tonight to attend the pre-game ceremonies and watch the Highlanders go after victory numbr one. Let's all plan to be there and cheer the team on so that the bell in the tower will announce victory to the whole town. Incidentally, the annual freshman foot race will be held during half-time. I trust none of the upperclassmen will explain to the freshmen what this is.

A quick trip around the pep circuit sees the cheerleaders under the leadership of head cheerleader Ronnie Pearson, literally whipping themslves into shape for tonight's game. Competition for the forty spots in the band made the drills look professional. Likewise the majorettes were stepping high in readiness for tonight's halftime.

This year's games will be broadcast over our local station, WGAP. Ken Kribbs will be doing the play by play action. Also up in the pressbox will be Sonny Shackelford keeping the stands informed of the progress of the game. His spotters will be Jim Demer and Harry MacCall. Bob Nier will help out at the initial game. I will be bringing you the pre-game happenings and the half-time show.

Until I see ALL of you at the pep rally and tonight's game this is your ridiculous reporter saying two not so ridiculous words—SPIRIT WINS.

Women's Athletics

The Women's Athletic Association met Tuesday afternoon in Bartlett auditorium for the purpose of orientating the new members. Mary Ann Thompson, M Club president, welcomed the new girls and explained the award system. Mary K. Alison, Bettye Harrill and Elizabeth Murphy explained the procedure to be followed concerning health cards, and each gave a short talk on the program to be offered this year. After this short meeting, the girls signed up for either the either the Chillies or the Howies. At the last count there were twenty-six Chillies (3:30) and thirty Howies (4:30).

On Thursday the first regular meeting was held. After groaning through warm-up exercises the girls moved to the field behind Thaw where they began practice in soccer, the world's favorite sport. Fundamental drills in dribbling, kicking and passing were stressed by Mary K. at this first meeting. For many this was the first try at soccer and they found it hard to keep their hands behind their backs. It was not before they learned and were able to race down the field in good style.

Letter sweaters from last year have arrived and those lucky enough to receive one of these are eagerly awaiting cooler weather so they can show off their new sweaters. These sweaters, as well as the letters earned last year may be obtained at Mrs. Queener's office.

Christian Ed. To Discuss Music Requirements

"Music Teachers' Requirements" will be the topic under discussion at the next meeting of the Christian Education Club on Thursday, September 23.

Each state's individual requirements will be discussed and explained thoroughly so this program will be of vital importance to all those interested in teaching music.

The Music Education Club meets at 6:45 in the Fine Arts Center Lounge.

JACK KENY

DON MOORE

Keny, Shepard, Moore Mainstays Of Team

These vital men in the Highlander set-up will be leading the other Scots as they meet the Tigers from Hiwassee tonight. Game time is 8 o'clock.

Moore is one of the best punters on the squad, Keny, a senior center, is a former Maryville High grid player, and Shepard, another veteran Scot player is captain of this year's team. His brothers is on the coaching staff.

Boosters Banquet Honors Team

Last Monday evening the Boosters Club of Maryville had dinner at Pearsons Hall, with members of the 1954 Football squad as guests. After the meal, Madison Byar acted as master of ceremonies and introduced as the speaker Coach Lombe S. Honaker.

Coach Honaker sounded unusually optimistic this year as he said Maryville might win one or two games, though he did not mention which ones they would be.

Before Coach Honaker spoke to the members of the Club, Assistant Coach J. D. Davis introduced the Squad members.

The total number that attended was 200. Others who attended the banquet were varsity coaches and senior football players from the local high schools—perhaps some future players for Maryville College.

Dean McClelland gave the invocation.

Radio Station WGAP broadcast the program at 10 that evening.

Spanish Club To Hold Picnic September 30

Spanish Club officers met this week to plan for initiation of new members, and to talk over programs for the fall semester.

Officers for the fall semester are: Carol Lee Lacey, president; Jean Wildy, vice-president; Shirley Mayfield, secretary; Evelyn Blackburn, treasurer; Jim Crawford, program chairman; and J. H. Schwam, sponsor.

Membership in the Spanish Club is open to all students in advance Spanish or who have studied Spanish before. Regular meetings will be held this semester on the first and third Thursdays of each month after supper.

Spanish Club will meet for the first time on Thursday, September 30, for a picnic outing, to be followed by initiation of new members.

Defying tradition, Maine elected Democrat Edmund S. Muskie governor over his Republican opponent, Gov. Burton M. Cross. However, Republican Margaret Chase Smith was re-elected to the senate, and the three Republican representatives kept their seats.

Adlai Stevenson pointed to these elections in his speech at a Democratic rally in Cincinnati Wednesday. He said that Maine is an example of the trend that the U. S. is tired of the Republican administration.

Maryville Has As Campus Visitor William A. Ditta From India

By Bill Deerfield

This past week, Maryville College was fortunate enough to have on its campus William Allah Ditta, a native of India. While he was here, Mr. Ditta spoke to the YMCA on the subject, "India, After Freedom" and became acquainted with many of the students and faculty through his friendly manner and ability to carry on an interesting and absorbing conversation.

Born and raised in the state of Punjab, Mr. Ditta received his grammar and secondary school education at Presbyterian mission schools. He attended Gordon College, also a mission school, and received his B.A. and B.T. (Bachelor of Teaching) degrees from the University of Punjab.

India 'Pop-Quizless'

It was interesting to learn from him that in India there are no examinations in high school until the student is ready to graduate. At that time the state university, which functions solely as an examining body, gives standardized tests to determine the extent to which the secondary school has prepared the student. If the student passes, he is given a diploma, not from his local high school, but from the university.

This same procedure holds true for colleges, which are all affiliated with the state university. There no examinations until the end of the sophomore year. (It is hoped that this bit of information will not cause a mass exodus from Maryville to "pop-quizless" India.)

Became Teacher

After receiving his degrees, Mr. Ditta taught in two high schools and then became the principal of the Kasur Christian Community Junior High School, a position which he held for several years. Before long however, he was once more in the position of a student, this time at the University of Batna (a teaching university), from which he received a degree of Master of Education.

For many years now he has taught such subjects as Psychology, Methods of Teaching Social Studies, and General Methods and Principles of Education at a training school for (of all people) teachers.

American Scholarship

A little over a year ago, the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, provided Mr. Ditta with a scholarship to further his studies in this country, a part of the Church's plan to train native Indians for leadership in their own country. After having completed his graduate studies at the University of Iowa he has been visiting various prominent Presbyterian colleges in order to supplement his schooling. He will sail for India from New York on October 6.

When asked what he thought of American people, Mr. Ditta replied that he found them friendly, hospitable, and willing to lend any kind of help that is asked for. As for our schools, he felt that our examination system is such that the students have to work hard persistently to maintain good grades.

He further felt that we who are studying at Maryville have a great privilege in working at a Christian college, one in which moral and spiritual values are highly regarded. He was "particularly impressed" with Maryville's emphasis on Bible teaching, and thought the daily chapel services and Sunday vespers a "unique" thing.

As far as his personal faith is concerned, Mr. Ditta, who was orphaned at the age of five, had this to say, "It is wonderful that God provided opportunities for me to grow and serve. God has a purpose for each life and will fulfill it if we submit ourselves to Him."

Students Vols To See Film Sunday Night

Student Vols, which met last Sunday night for the first time this year, will meet again Sunday after Vespers. The program will be in Bartlett. A film entitled "At Word With the World" is to be shown.

Prayer discussion groups are being planned and will begin soon. Leaders will be Harry Robinson, Helen Hasenstab, Don Thiel, and Carol Lee Lacy. Everyone is invited to attend.

Rosa Bauerle is president for this year. Other officers are vice-president, John Barrows; secretary, Donna French; treasurer, Bill Deerfield; and program chairmen, Pat McClanahan and Dick Thompson.

Playhouse To Meet Monday In Theater

The first meeting of Maryville College Playhouse will be held at 7:30 Monday in the theater.

Student-Help committee.

Harry MacCall was asked by the president to appoint a committee to work with the social board on the matter of student attendance at an out of town football game.

After hearing editor Faith Nollner tell of Chilhowean pictures, president Moore asked Bill Davis and Lyn Kiefer to look into the matter of money left over from the publication of last year's yearbook. Under the latest Chilhowean constitution, money left over goes to the class which published it.

The council ratified the Student Center agreement after amending it to read that it would be open on Tuesday nights from 7:15 to 9:30 for persons to play games.

Mary Ann Thompson and Jim Cummings are members of a committee to speak with the Dean of Students about having a Council-Faculty social, similar to one held last year.

In connection with town night, Miss Moore reminded members that Westminster Fellowship and other church youth meetings are counted as a town night, but that choral rehearsals were not. No violations were reported.

Also Miss Moore announced that there would be no campus blood drive because the town Red Cross chapter has disbanded and that every seventh chapel leader would be a student throughout this year. Presidents of the Council, YM, YW, Pre-Mins, Student Vols, and the four classes will be the leaders, she said.

Just before adjournment, Liz Murphey asked the members to "think about" formation of an organization for town students and if there were a need for one.

Council met just outside the entrance to the Alpha Sig house. They were scheduled to meet inside, but decided to meet outside because incense had been burned in the building that day in connection with Rush Week activities.

was on the faculty, he sent in his application.

It took six months to convince the American authorities that he wasn't a Communist, but a special letter from the Shah and numerous testimonies finally cleared his character sufficiently to satisfy both Persian and US red tape.

Does Not Like Europe

When asked how he liked the Western hemisphere, George stated that he didn't care for Europe at all. He found the attitude of most Europeans towards foreigners decidedly poor. His attitude toward Americans is quite different, however. As he put it, "They're just like my countrymen—helpful, kind, and friendly."

He didn't care for New York, which is equal to half his country in population, but found Washington, D.C. and Knoxville very much to his liking.

He was most impressed by the hospitality and friendliness of the American Boy Scouts. As to his opinion of Maryville—"I visited Columbia and the University of Washington, but found the atmosphere of Maryville to be the warmest and the friendliest."

George's plans for the future are definite and ambitious. After his four years at Maryville he hopes to study medicine and surgery, preferably at Memphis. As imigration red tape will keep him in this country for the next eight years, he plans to spend his summers doing Scout work—attending International Jamborees and camps.

George, we'd like to extend a warm Maryville welcome to you, and we hope you'll enjoy us as much as we do you.

Hope Fund Drive To Begin Thursday

Rev. Moffett Tentative Speaker

By Barbara Wilkie

The Rev. Charles H. Moffett, recently returned from the mission field in Ferozepur, Punjab, India, has been tentatively scheduled to launch the annual Fred Hope Fund drive in a speech Thursday morning in chapel. An opportunity will be given for each student to pledge his support in this drive.

The Fred Hope Fund began in 102 as an idea in the minds of three Maryville students, among them Fred Hope, who felt that the YMCA should give money each year to foreign missions. That year $50 was included in the budget for China.

This continued as an annual contribution until the year 1911 or 1912, when a campus-wide drive was instituted. The following year it was decided that the money be used for the work of Fred Hope, who had become a missionary to Africa. His name was then given to the fund.

When Mr. Hope retired, he suggested that the money be sent to China, where it had gone previously during his student days. For the past two years the fund has gone to India for use by Dr. Dorothy L. Ferris, a graduate of Maryville College and head of the Frances Newton Hospital in Ferozepur.

This year the same field of service has been chosen. Mr. Moffett will be able to give first-hand information on conditions in this area. Serving the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., Moffett was in Ferozepur from 1398 to 1953. He and his wife supervised the evangelistic work in this large area of 6600 miles with a population of onde and a quarter million.

Mr. Moffett is now serving a church in Louisville, Ky. He is to bring with him slides and movies of the mission work in Ferozepur.

Disc Club Plans First Meeting

Disc Club will hold its first meeting of the semester Thursday after supper in the Fine Arts Center lounge. Anna McMillan, instructor in piano, will introduce several piano recordings.

The disc-club planning committee, consisting of Mary Ellen Phipps, Betty Knott, Maryel Vogel, Alan Whitelock, Adlai Boyd and John Barrows met this week with their advisors, Miss McMillan and Dan Kinsinger, instructor in voice, to plan programs.

Music to be featured this semester includes violin selections, string quartettes, a ballet suite and the television opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Everyone is invited to attend the disc-club meetings, which are held each first and third Thursday after supper until 7:30.

Roy Beeler Dies; State Official, MC Graduate

Roy H. Beeler, Tennessee attorney general since 1932 and a Maryville College graduate, died late Thursday in a Nashville hospital.

Mr. Beeler came to Maryville after completing preparatory work at Carson-Newman in Jefferson City, and was captain of the football team in 1905. After graduation, he entered law school at the University of Chicago and received his degree in 1910.

Before being appointed attorney general by the State Supreme Court in 1932, Mr Beeler was city attorney for Knoxville and assistant attorney general.

Nelson-Neal Piano Team To Play Here Nov. 2

MC Resumes Larger Series

By Bill Deerfield

The 1954-1955 Maryville College Artist Series will begin on Nov. 2, when Allison Nelson and Harry Neal, the Australian-American, husband and wife piano team will be heard in a concert of twin piano music.

It will be a return appearance for the famous couple who appeared in the 1951 Series.

The concert will be held in the auditorium of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel at 8:15 p.m.

The concert on Oct. 5, season tickets will be on sale at the Fine Arts Center office from 2 to 4 p.m. on Monday through Friday. For the convenience of those people not connected with the College, tickets will also be available at Byrne's Drug Store and Proffitt's Department Store.

Prices will range from $5 for for townspeople to 75 cents for college students. Pre-college students and men and women of the armed forces may purchase their season tickets at a specially reduced rate of $4.00. Tickets may be obtained by mail by sending a request and check to Howard Schwam.

Other artists slated to appear in this year's Series will be the celebrated actress Cornelia Otis Skinner, who will be on the Maryville campus on Nov. 18; the original Don Cossacks on March 10, and the St. Louis Sinfonietta, on April 15.

Miss Vawter of the music department is in charge of publicity for this year's Series.

At the 9th UN General Assembly Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky introduced a resolution to seat Red China in the UN. The United States moved to put off the proposal and the Assembly attendant, adopting the motion 43-11, almost duplicating last year's 44-10 ballot. It was he 3rd straight year the Assembly has taken such action.

Dr. Van Kleffens, Netherlands minister to Portugal, was elected president of the Assembly after the shelving of the Red China issue.

Ten million Americans will get a chance to get Social Security insurance for the first time next year.

Starting in January the Social Security Law will be extended to five self-employed groups not now covered, more household workers, farm hands, and home workers (people who perform work at home for a business firm).

All in all this means that nine out of every ten people who work for a living will be eligible for Social Security coverage after January 1.

French Club To Hold Picnic October 14

John Graulich, president of French Club, has announced that nominations for seven new members to fill vacancies will be held at the next meting, September 30.

Plans are underway for a picnic the 14th of October. Initiations for the new members will be held at that time.

President Graulich stated that future regular meetings, beginning the 7th of October, are tentatively scheduled for the first and third Thursdays of each month.

Rev. Edris To Speak At Vespers Sunday

The Rev. Paul M. Edris, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Daytona Beach, Fla., will speak at Vespers tomorrow at 7 p.m. Dr. Hunter will preside at the service.

Mr. Edris is a Maryville College graduate and is at Maryville visiting his son.

Extra Business Forces Council Into Long Meeting

Student Council had to recess to Bartlett Hall Wednesday night because after an hour, all regularly scheduled business had not been taken up, and it was necessary to move the meeting place to the Student Center was opening at 9:30.

The extended meeting in Bartlett lasted about 25 minutes, making one of the longest Council sessions since the group met for three hours last year to consider a new Town Night proposal.

A number of reports were made, committees appointed, and actions taken. One vote authorized the chairman of the Council Town Night committee to ask Council members to make occasional checks throughout the year to see if girls who have gone to town have signed out.

One Town Night violation was reported. A junior was three minutes late signing in. The council voted to apply the penalty of suspending the town night privilege for two weeks for the party concerned. The council approved a motion to start Town Night penalties on Mondays.

Carol Moore mentioned the form which is posted in Anderson Hall, for making out committee reports to the council.

Liz Murphey gave the election committee report, announcing that the freshman class will meet next Thursday for the purpose of deciding whether or not it will have a nominating committee for officers.

A motion was passed to the effect that the freshman class either (1) nominate candidates from the floor the first meeting, narrow the field down to two candidates for each office the next meeting, and vote for its final choice the following day, or (2) decide on a nominating committee the first meeting, have further nominations other than those of the committee the next meeting, narrowing the candidates for each office down to two, and vote on its choice the following day.

Harry MacCall, social board chairman, reported plans for activities during the semester, including the arrangements for having the fall dance in the alumni gym, the possibility of having the Women's M-Club sponsor the dance

Weaver, Ramsey To Play Bagpipes

Bob Weaver, senior biology major from Saltville, Va., and David Ramsey, senior history major from Whitehouse, N. J., are the two students who have been chosen to play the newly-acquired bagpipes for the kilted MC band.

The choice was announced this week by band director Ralph Moore.

The bagpipes which the boys will play have been imported from Pakistan, Mr. Moore said. The College ordered them through a dealer in this country about three months ago, and they recently arrived from Pakistan, where they were made.

In color, the instruments have trimming and bag in a different color from the Hay Clan tartan of the band kilts. The bagpipes are trimmed with a green-colored kilt.

The new bagpipers will parade as part of the marching band. The biggest problem about the situation has been not with the instruments —but with finding kilts to fit Weaver. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall.

Mrs. J. P. Salsbury To Be Speaker For Founders' Day

The 22nd annual Founders' Day Service will be held Saturday, October 16, at 10:30 a.m. in the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Memorial Chapel. The speaker will be Mrs. J. R. Salsbury, of Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Salsbury is the recently-elected president of the National Council of Women's Organizations of the Presbyterian Church, USA.

Participating also in the service will be the Chairman of the Board of Directors, other representatives of the Directors, President Lloyd, Dean Hunter, Dean McClelland, and the Vesper Choir.

The Founder's Day Service is held annually in connection with the Homecoming program arranged by the Alumni Association and the football game played that night with one of Maryville's rivals.

This year marks the first Founders' Day Service to be held in the Chapel since the destruction of the Voorhees Chapel in 1947.

Skit To Be Program At Student Vols

Student Vols will meet after Vespers, Sunday night in Bartlett Hall, as usual.

The program will include a brief skit centered around the Vols' theme, "One World, One Hope, One Mission."

College Enrollment 661; 15 Under Last Year

College Releases Official Figures

By Bill Deerfield

The Personnel Office has announced that a total of 661 students registered for the fall semester. Of these 250 are freshmen, 192 are sophomores, 120 are juniors and 96 are seniors. There are 3 special students.

The above figures show a decrease of only 15 students under last year's enrollment of 676. The greatest drop was in the ranks of the freshmen, who fell 23 short of the 1953 figure.

This year's sophomore class boasts 22 more members than last year's and the juniors managed to kep their class the same size as that of their predecessors.

The senior class has lost out to last year's class with 17 students less in their ranks.

Beard's Exhibit To Open Oct. 5

Richard Beard, instructor in art, will open his oil painting exhibit in the Fine Arts Center art gallery on October 5 at 7:30 p.m. Beard will give explanations of his work in a talk that evening.

The exhibit will consist of 17 abstract and non-representational paintings, all of which have been done during the past year. This current work is all in a similar new vein—quite different from paintings that he has previously shown. This exhibit will run through the month of October.

Jean Morgan Is Chairman of ICC

Dick Morse was soloist.

New Carnegie Housemother, Mrs. Jones, Has 3 Daughters

By Don Adams

How does a mother of three girls feel about mothering two hundred boys, was the question asked of Mrs. J. B. Jones, Carnegie Hall's new housemother.

Mrs. Jones gazed out the window of her comfortable office-sitting room for a moment, turned and smilingly replied: "I like boys; I feel as if I am among hom folks here. 'These are the nicest boys I've come in contact with.'"

Grew Up In Knoxville

Mrs. Jones grew up in Knoxville, attended Knoxville High School, and attended the University of Tennessee. In 1920 she made marriage and raising a family her career. Her home has been in Florida for the last eighteen years.

"Raising three daughters and keeping house was a full time job in thirty-one years of marriage," she said. "My daughters are grown up now." She pointed at a picture of her youngest daughter Barbara Lea, on her desk and said "Bobby just matriculated at the University of Tennessee Wednesday, after attending Winthrop College at Rock Hill, South Carolina."

Since her husband's death two years ago, Mrs. Jones has been working with a second daughter, Polly, and her doctor-husband, Warren S. Smith in South Carolina. Mrs. Jones' oldest daughter Judy and her husband live in Tampa, Florida.

Has A Visit

Two weeks ago Mrs. Jones received a pleasant surprise when Polly and her three children, Judy and Barbara all come up to see her. Mrs. Jones looked at the photographs of her daughters hanging above her desk and said: "We had a wonderful visit. I don't get to see all my children together very often."

Feels Right At Home

Mrs. LeMaster, housemother at Pearsons, was Mr. Jones' cousin, and with Barbara nearby in Knoxville and with many friends here, Mrs. Jones feels right at home. "Some of my boys come in and visit me every day," she said; "and I hope to get to know them all soon."

Although this is her first experience as a housemother, Mrs. Jones feels that it is an exciting and pleasurable one and she is looking forward to being a second mother to "her boys".

Play Scheduled For Nov. 5, 6

By Abigail Crosby

The tentative cast of Elmer Rice's "Street Scene," the fall play to be presented Friday and Saturday, November 5 and 6, in the Theatre, has been announced by Miss Kathleen Craven, director.

The part of Rose Maurrant will be played by Marcia Williams, and Bill Deerfield will portray Samuel Kaplan. Miss Williams, a junior drama major from Peekskill, N.Y., will be remembered for her roles as Gillian Holyrod in "Bell, Book, and Candle," and Alizon Eliot in "The Lady's Not For Burning."

Deerfield, a sophomore English major from Newark, N.J., has appeared in "A Sleep of Prisoners" as Peter Able, and in "The Lady's Nor For Burning" as Richard.

Other important roles will be played by Tony Clark, who will portray Mr. Keplan; Joan McNaughton, Mrs. Fiorentino; Marion Droter, Mrs. Jones; Ethelyn Cathey, Mrs. Maurrant; Bob Finerti, Frank Maurrant; Don Theil, George Jones; Jim Conklin, Steve Sankey; Ann Wilcy, Shirley Kaplan; Preston Bogia, Filippo Fiorentino; Herb Catlin, Harry Easter.

Minor parts have been announced as Olga Olsen, which will be played by Joyce Boyd; Mr. Buchanan, Vernon Cooper; Agnes Cushing, Ginger Colwell; Carl Aken, Jim Shields; Alice Simson, Betty Messer; Laura Hildebrand, Liz Frei; Mae Jones, Paula Jean Shaeffer; Dick McGann, Bob Brand; Vincent Jones, Bob Clark;

Dr. John Wilson, Dick Morse; Officer Harry Murphy, Bob Clark; Milkman, Don Adams; Letter-carrier, Glen Sherrod; College girls, Lottie Jenkins and Abby Crosby; Marshall James Henry, Al Wolek; Fred Cullen, Don Adams; Old Clothesman, Tony Clark; An Intern, Glen Sherrod; Ambulance Driver, Cary Valentine; Furniture Mover, Bill Creamer;

Nursemaids, Ann Henderson and Ruth Wilson; Policemen, Hershel Netherton, Bill Hind, and Dave Noble; and Apartment Hunters, Ann Hudson and Fred Wyman. There are several roles which will have to be cast from children in town, and a few roles as yet unannounced.

The cast is still indefinite, and the roles may yet be re-cast at any time.

Bainonians To Hold Coke Party

Bainonian will have a coke party with entertainment Saturday evening, as their first meeting with the new members.

Informal initiation will be on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The formal initiation will be held Saturday night, September 25, in the amphitheater of the Fine Arts Center, and in case of rain will be held in the glass enclosed part of the chapel.

Speaking for all the old Bainonians, Esther Lerch, junior from Clearwater, Florida, said, "All the old Bainonians extend a hearty welcome to the new members and we are looking forward to fellowship with them."

Kinsinger To Give Recital October 8

Dan Kinsinger, instructor in music is presenting a voice recital October 8 at 8 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Mr. Kinsinger has a Master's degree in Voice from Northwestern University. He had a voice studio in Peoria, Ill., and also was the soloist with the First Presbyterian Church.

His accompanist, Miss Jane Johnson, graduated from Carleton College and has a Master's degree in Piano from the Juilliard School of Music.

Our First Opportunity

Twice a year at Maryville we have specific times for contributing to missionary work: first, through the Fred Hope Fund pledge arrangement, and later, by means of our support of Barnwarming in November, proceeds of which are sent to one or several missionaries doing Christian work somewhere in the world.

Within the first week of October, the first of these opportunities will be here. An outside speaker will talk at a special chapel service set aside especially for the purpose of explaining and emphasizing the Fred Hope Fund. It is at that time and on the days following that students have a chance to pledge and contribute what they can toward this unique fund from the students of the College.

Officials of the Fund have pointed out especially this year that your help in this matter is not a duty; if you decide to aid someone through the Fred Hope Fund, it is because you have taken advantage of it as an opportunity for Christian giving. This is the idea behind a revolving mission fund set up by a college.

We join with the others who will soon be asking you formally to give to this fund, set up many years ago and named for one of the hundreds who have gone into mission work after graduation from Maryville College. Realize how you will be sharing part of your advantages by making it somewhat easier for Christian representatives to aid those who need it.

Many times we have heard persons testify to the appreciation that has been felt because of the things mad posible by the Fred Hope Fund. The more of us who help, the greater the aid may be gained.

J. T. G.

Your Chilhowean

One of the year-long tasks at Maryville is the making and publishing of the Chilhowean, our record of the year's events. As soon as the editor is elected in the spring, he begins to choose his staff, decides on a theme, picks out the events which he wants presented in the record, and begins on the actual make up of the book itself.

At the same time the business manager selects his staff and begins to plan and sell the advertising, which makes it possible for the book to be printed. Along with the advertising, the business manager must sell the annual. It is his interest to distribute the Chilhowean as far as he can in order that the work of the editor and his staff will be widely distributed.

The annual at Maryville, as at most other small colleges, is completely self-sufficient financially. It receives no funds from the college or the student activity fees, and must raise its own money, principally from three sources. It sells advertising space, as indicated above; it sells page space to various groups, classes, and organizations on campus, and it sells copies of the books to students.

It is this last item that is the most important to the member of the student body. Every year there are many students who do not reserve Chilhoweans; and, when the books are distributed, these same students usually wish very much that they had done so. The Chilhowean must sell 550 books, plus its advertising quota, in order to make the book pay for itself. The staff does not try to make a profit—they just want to present a book the student body can be proud of.

The junior class is working hard to produce a book which will please the entire student body, but they must have the support of the student body if they are to be successful: There is still time to reserve an annual—a deposit of two dollars is all that is required. The remainder is not due until the annual is distributed. It is the duty of everyone who is a student at Maryville College to support the program of the yearbook and to receive the benefits of it by purchasing a 1955 Chilhowean.

Scots & Soda

By Charles Partee

Let us go back to the age of the bustle, if you care to go back that far; back to that bygone error when "necking" consisted in eating that portion of the chicken between the head and the shoulders; when a paragon was not a four-sided figure commonly called a square; when the Prince of Whales was Moby Dick. Let us consider the age of chivalry when Knighthood was in flour, the day of Robin Hood and his sister Little Red Riding, back when burgher did not have ham before it. The days when Knights went armed to the tourniquet; when dramatic heroes like Baron Figtree died of a tragic flu. To the days of Sir Loin who had so much at steak, and the greatest of them all—the boil-plagued Sir Lanced a lot who had the MAGNIFICIENT ABSCESSION and loved the Maid of Atkins.

* * * * *

Once upon a time (this is an original beginning, by the way) Sir Lanced-a-lot was jousting joust about everybody in Sussex and Ethics and he was awarded to the fair Maid of Atkins. She asked him one green night to go in quest of the fabulous Golden Fleas. Bravely affixing a dainty piece of Kleenex to his helm, he and his faithful dog were ready to embark. His trusty squire came running urp. "Hasten, Jason," he said manfully, "bring me the—oops."

* * * * *

Lanced-a-lot was a good Knight (Irene) though he was a slight bit on the heavy side of fat. Soon on the road where Mendle lay he had to fight a savage beowolf—the details of this battle are so terrible as to put one in remembrance of the flag Old Gory. Our hero found his sleeves a bit tattered after the fray and needing some exercise he went out to lunge. Now he had to make a shortstop and kill a wicked giant named Durocher.

Setting out through the Polish Corridor, Lanced a lot came to the Aisles of Grease (the frying pan of Europe). Here he sat back in a soft cheer and put his feet on an Ottoman Turk. Constantinople got the works from the Turks and in Istanbul he was given the key to the city. His Thanksgiving was so ghostly that that fowl deed is now known as Turks key goblins. Fleeing for his life, his horse got mad and began Balkan.

* * * * *

Our hero has now crossed the ocean where his faithful squire Sancho Ezio Pinza sings to him in SOUTH PACIFIC. Here Lanced-a-lot hears of the Golden Fleas. He meets a beautiful French girl named Oo-la-la. Will Lanced-a-lot forget that he has be-knighted his troth to the Maid of Atkins? Lanced-a-lot asks her about the Trojan War and his best friend. She tells him that the last time she saw Paris his heart was young and gay. Oo-la-la persuades him to come up and see the family itchings. "Ah, the Golden Fleas," says our hero. Hiding the fleas on his faithful dog, Hamburger, Lanced-a-lot flies the vicinity.

* * * * *

On the way home Lanced-a-lot was knocked off his pony, making him hoarse. Left for dead, his Armour was confiscated by a large company. As was said he was fat and his Armour was the first potbellied stove. It was a hot article and really grate for the purpose.

* * * * *

Later Lanced-a-lot woke up to find himself, but failed. He was wearing a garment from the fashionable shop of Long John and a tremendous storm came up. Even his faithful dog was soaked. He fell over Slushburger and was carried down the road toward a castle. A rain was raining—this was no ordinary rain—it was a gulley washer, a trash remover, a clod dissolver, and a duck pacifier. The castle's owner Don Jon was awakened and uttered those famous and prophetic words, "I wouldn't leave a Knight out on a dog like this."

* * * * *

Next day the Maid of Atkins came to see him and asked, "O wert thou in the Cauld Blast?" "Yes," he said, "the world is too much with us." "My father says you do't love me," said the Maid. Swearing a mighty oath, Lanced-a-lot swore, "Full fathom five, thy father lies." She believed him and said, saying, "My heart leaps up." They were married that day by King Ozzie Mandius and the witnesses were Don Juan and Don Two. The bridesmaids were Eve and St Agnes.

Maid of Atkins ere we part
Give, o give me back my heart.

Remember those first letters to the very special 'someone' back home? The passionate ones you wrote fervently after you became a "college student" for the first time? Maybe it hasn't been too long ago, or maybe you're just now beginning the 'yearning' process. This entails recalling the "good ole' days," all the 'golden' memories, while holding 'the' picture lovingly, ardently, in your arms and watching the tender tears splash and sliver across the glass.

Anyhow—'spect this is how one of those letters might sound about now. One specially written by the old boy who has "it" "bad"—in spurts:

My dearest darling,

This college life is just wonderful. Maryville is just wonderful. I like it. I am not too far away from you, and anyhow, we get 'cuts.' Isn't that wonderful? I could get on the train some Saturday afternoon and you could meet me at the station. I sure do like it here.

Yes, I saw "Magnificient Obsession" too. Wasn't it wonderful I tho't you'd cry. It almost made me cry too, especially when they played 'our song.' I'm going to study real hard and be just like Rock Hudson. I'm glad she didn't di after all. I sure do miss you. Gues what? Next week, they're having "The High and Mighty." I play the record all the time because I know you like it so much. I wish you were here to see it with me. I will go down with some of the fellows.

There are two picture shows here in town. Do you remember when we saw "The Best Years of Our Lives" at home? It is coming to Maryville next week. I am going to see it so I can remember you. Also "The Naked Jungle." I will miss holding your hand.

I saw that girl I wrote you about again today. She is named Shirley. I can tell very well that she likes me. She does not know that I have your ring, identification bracelet, heart, locket, pictures, key chain and last year's activity card. I tho't I would talk to her today. It is on account of our agreement. We agreed we'd talk to other people. She told me she had a part in the experiment theater. Big honor for a freshman. She still did not impress me. Isn't it great! In the play she's Grigori Steparovitch Smernov. She learned —taught—me to spell it while we walked to the Arts Center. She says I'd be good as Luka. He has the lead opposite Helena Ivanovna Popov. It is a Russian comedy. I learned to spell it while we looked at the bulletin board in the Arts Center.

She told me to look at that. It told that we could go to some concert series in Knoxville for a discount. It is six tickets for $8.00 and a wonderful opportunity. She said we should buy them and go and what did I think. What do you think? The name of the experiment play is "The Boor." I think I will try out. You said I was so good in our senior play last spring. Do you still remember after the show? Wasn't it wonderful?

Do not worry about me with another girl. I miss you so. Could you send me one of those pictures you have of me? My room-mate's mother wants one to show her friends. The play is on October 9. When should I take my 'cuts?' I sure do miss you.

With all my love,
Herchal.

"PRAYER CHANGES THINGS"

Every year in intercollegiate sports as well as in others there is a lot of talk of poor officiating, dissension among teammates which causes them to have a poor season, and many types of unpleasant talk of teams, athletes and coaches. Suppose everyone in the athletic field turned to prayer. Would that help things? Let's take a look at possibilities.

"Prayer changes things." A short prayer before a game, either whispered to oneself or said with the other members of the team will make one more humble which will lead to that person being more respective of his opponents, of the officials' decisions, of his teammates' play, and will keep some, those of superior capabilities, from ostentatious ways.

A Christian on the field of play is easy to recognize. It seems as if he is an easy-going chap, never arguing with an official's decision though he may at times question his interpretation of the rules, slapping his opponent on the back side in a friendly gesture after a play, helping an opponent off the ground after a block or a tackle, or other simflar "out-of-the-way" gestures. Of course, a well-disciplined athlete bears the same qualities, but, more often than not, the two go together.

These actions will not take away from the "ruggedness" of an athletes play. Big Don Moomaw, an All-American and Pre-Ministerial student at UCLA in '53, was the finest lineman of collegiate football in the country that year; yet, from reports, one will not find a finer Christian. There is Reverend Paul Richards, the pole-vaulting minister, who is one of very few athletes ever to clear the fifteen-foot mark in track history. These two prominent examples live by the Scriptures and thrive on prayer.

On the football field, body contact is very frequent and, at times, not too clean as tempers sometimes get a little "warm". Maybe a fist in the teeth or nose, a knee in the ribs, an elbow in the gut, a "clean" clip, or a face mashed into the dirt causes tensions to mount and tempers to reach the boiling point. This is the time that it takes more of a man to forget the incident with a feeling of pity instead of hatred for the offensive person than to use vulgar language or duplicate the dirty play to get even—" . . . Whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek turn to him the other also."

Prayer not only helps the athlete in competition against others, but helps to build unity among him and his teammates—a feeling of oneness, of respect for each other. With such a feeling, the best possible teamwork is bound to come—no dissension, no envy—just a unit functioning as one to obtain a goal, striving toward it in a disciplined, christian way. Dropped by the wayside are the individual stars, the "glory boys."

When an athlete prays, it shouldn't be just for himself, but for is team, for a good, clean game, for good competition and a willingess to accept the win or the loss with good sportsmanship.

A personal example:

A friend played three years of basketball in a high school of ver 2,000 students. Two of those three years he was one of the best layers in the state, being named as one of ten players to the conference team which included the best Class AA schools in the state with he exception. During those three years, I saw that basketeer whisper prayer before each game, and I can't remember a time that he rgued with the officials unjustly or didn't play an excellent teamame. His team didn't always win; he wasn't always top man in the oring column; he accepted the losses as well as he did wins; he repected and gave the credit to the opposing player. He was a well-isciplined athlete, but he knew the value of prayer.

The coaches should be included in this presentation also, because ey are the ones who have the greatest influence on the athletes. hey coach them day after day and are their teacher. He sets the xample. A coach who is constantly "hawking" the officials will have team that is undisciplined in its attitude toward the officials.

In reference to one factor, that of officials, of games in home-nd-home contests between schools, coaches should be aware of the iblical passage: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that en should do to you, do ye even so to them." The passage doesn't ead ". . . that men did to you," but "that men should do to you." is evident in some high schools and colleges that if a coach believes e was slighted by partial officiating while playing at another school, e will return the "favor" by employing biased officials at his school. his doesn't happen often, but it shouldn't happen at all. A person with Christian attitude and who believes in the Word would try to avoid artiality.

It is very true that prayer changes things in all cases and in very phase of life. A prayer would be a big factor in ameliorating a efson's, coach's or team's sportsmanship and attitude toward the game.

An athlete has a right to ask for a certain amount of prestige, r glory is short lived, but remember the others—the teammates, the pponents—also.

A look at The Athlete's Prayer:

Be with me God and help me win
The contest of today
But let me hear with humble heart
The praises people say
Let me be perfect in my form
And let each aim be true
And let me take a certain pride
In everything I do
But fill my soul with honesty
And listen to my prayer
That everytime I play the game
I play it fair and square
Because the glory of this world
Can only last so long
And there is bound to be an end
To every magic song.
And every victory I gain
Belongs at last to You
Because You give me all the strength
To see each struggle through.

Notice the "hear with humble heart the praises. . ." The lack of umbleness is the downfall of many good athletes who fail to realize at they are or should be playing to help their team win, not just to oost their individual scoring, and, in most cases, he wouldn't do as ell if it were not for the other four men.

"Take a certain pride" in the way you act on the court toward our opponents and the officials, and, mainly, control the emotions. e honest with yourself as well as others. When you foul a person nd know it, accept the fact and do not argue with the referee. hen you lost, do not rationalize, but face the real, honest truth that he other team played better than you, otherwise, you wouldn't have ost.

"Play it fair and square" no matter what the win or loss may ean. Always abide by the rules and learn to accept them. Last ut certainly not least is the phrase, ". . . every victory I gain beings at last to You." A good example is again Paul Richards when e cleared the cross bar at the mark exceeding fifteen feet. The first hing he did after he hit the sawdust pile was to leap with joy and hank the Lord for giving him the strength and ability to accomplish he feat.

Let us never be too good to pray because we never are. Always emember: "Prayer changes things."

Scots Meet Jacksonville Tonight In Second Game

In their second game of the season, L. S. Honaker's Maryville Scotties meet the Jacksonville State Teachers College team tonight at 8 o'clock on Honaker Field. The Jacksonville boys are from Alabama.

Last year, playing in very adverse weather caused by fringes of a tornado, the Scots battled Jacksonville to a 0-0 tie on their home field.

Text Of Sportsmanship Agreement

Recently the Maryville College Student Council and Student Body ratified the Sportsmanship Agreement or Peace Pact with Carson-Newman College for the fourth time.

This agreement has been in effect for six years. The first one was signed in 1948 because Carson-Newman and Maryville were each other's greatest rivals. It is now on its way to Carson-Newman to go through a similar process of being ratified by the Council and Student Body.

It will not be in effect until it is signed by both schools, and will terminate in September, 1956 if such action is taken.

According to Student Body President Carol Moore the agreement has "worked very well." Last year Carson-Newman under terms of the pact accepted responsibility for the painting-up of the pillars at one of the Maryville College gates and paid the expenses for removal of the paint.

Here is the text of the agreement as signed and ratified by Maryville College students:

SPORTSMANSHIP AGREEMENT

Carson-Newman and Maryville Colleges

September 17, 1954

We, the representatives from Maryville College and Carson-Newman College in conference agree to the following:

1. The student body of each college will make a sincere effort to maintain a friendly spirit of cooperation and fair play toward the other college.

2. When each college visits the other, cooperative arrangements will be made for welcoming, parade, band program, seating, etc.

3. We agree to carry out friendly rivalry such as cheering, parades, etc., on either campus. In carrying this out, we agree not to participate in any activity that would permanently or temporarily damage or disfigure the campus, or commit any act which would be detrimental to the good feeling between the two colleges. We students agree to uphold this agreement, but in the event that an individual or student body violates this agreement, the student body will make full and complete restitution.

4. This agreement shall be in effect for a period of two years and will be subject to renewal with the ratification of the student body.

Scots Down Hiwassee 26-6 In First Game

The 1954 Scotties got off to a good start on their new football road last Saturday night as they gained a rapid 26-6 victory over the Tigers from Hiwassee.

Highlander Captain Clarence Shepard was the leader in the Maryville drive. He made touchdown runs of 57 and 5 yards, and set up a third score by carrying a Hiwassee punt 50 yards. Fullbacks Buddy Gilbert and Buddy White, blocking back Jack Renfro, and tailback Jimmy McCall were also outstanding players in the backfield. On the line, Jack Keny, the tall center, Bob Berrong and Bill Strickland proved to be the men who helped out the team by their exceptional play.

Maryville scored early in the first quarter, then early in the second period. Hiwassee fumbled on Maryville's 35 after having halted a Scottie drive back on the 20-yard line. Three downs later, Maryville had picked up another touchdown. McCall's conversion kick was wide, and the score was 13-0.

The Scots threatened later in the second quarter, but a pass was intercepted just before halftime, and their drive was stopped. Early in the second half, however, Shepard made his 57 yard run to make the score 20-0.

Hiwassee's score was made in the fourth quarter, the culmination of a drive from the Tigers' own 21. They were unsuccessful in a running play for the extra point. Hiwassee's touchdown ended the scoring of the night, as Maryville, aided by a penalty against Hiwassee, scored on first attempt. Shepard's 50-yard punt return got the Scots within effective territory in the third period.

In most of the game figures, Maryville also came out ahead. The Highlanders gained 18 first downs, Hiwassee 10. In rushing, Maryville got 340 yards in 58 attempts, and the Tigers covered 118 yards in 39 attempts. Hiwassee punted five times, gained 28.7 yards, while Maryville picked up 24.5 average yards from two punts.

In passes, Maryville completed two out of ten for 31 total yards gained, with two passes intercepted, and Hiwassee completed two out of eight and had one intercepted. Maryville's punt return tally was 125 yards, Hiwassee's 98.

With penalties, Maryville didn't do so well. They were penalized 65 yards, and the visitors only received 44.

Poetry Contest Announced

All college students have been invited to submit original verse to be considered for possible publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

This is the Twelfth Annual College Competition.

The recognition afforded by publication will reflect definite credit on the author, as well as your school. Over a hundred thousand manuscripts have been submitted to the National Poetry Association in the past 10 years. Of these, about 4,000 have been accepted for publication.

Rules are simple—as follows:

Manuscripts must be typed or written in ink on one side of a sheet. Student's home address, name of college and college address must appear on each manuscript.

Students may submit as many manuscripts as is desired. Theme and form may be in accordance with the wish of the student contributor. In order to give as many students as possible an opportunity for recognition and because of space limitations—shorter efforts are preferred.

Closing date for submission of manuscripts is Nov. 5.

Send contributions to: Dennis Hartman, Secretary, National Poetry Association, 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles 34, California.

Spanish Club Plans For Initiation

The officers of the Spanish Club held their second meeting on September 21 for the purpose of discussing plans for the initiation-picnic outing on September 30.

Another topic of discussion was the possibility of having a chapel in at the club's regular meetings to read scripture from the Spanish Bible.

Picture Proofs To Be Returned Next Week

Proofs for student pictures taken for the Chilhowean will be returned this coming week, editor Faith Nollner announced this week.

The photographer has been here for the past two weeks, and is going to Carson-Newman to make pictures, Miss Nollner said.

Societies Plan For Initiations During The Week

Initiations for the four societies will be the main campus activity throughout the coming week.

Theta and Alpha Sig, of course, will have the largest number of neophytes, as they both came out on top in getting new members.

During the past week, the main initiation, was that of the Vesper Choir.

The first transcontinental airmail route between New York City and San Francisco was started in 1920.

after the homecoming game, plans for a movie in the new theater, and arrangements for attending the out-of-town football game to Carson-Newman.

MacCall was appointed to see the student-faculty committee on athletics about the football game. Plans are to be made concerning activities on the open date of October 2.

Carol Moore, in the absence of Jean Morgan, chairman, gave the Inter-Club Council report. Don Moore gave the treasurer's report. Lyn Kiefer reported that the money left from last year's Chilhowean budget will be taken care of by the senior class officers.

The council voted to reverse the usual procedure of the council-faculty party by having the council be hosts and the faculty plan the entertainment.

MacCall was appointed to recommend to the Student-Faculty Senate the possibility of opening the Y-Store on Sunday evenings from 9:30 to 10:15. A report was made concerning the estimated amount of money spent by students in the off-campus eating establishments on Sunday nights.

Carol Moore read the duties of the various council committees and appointed Virginia Marshal, sophomore representative, to head the publicity committee.

At the recessed meeting in Bartlett Hall, council president Moore utilized most of the time for appointment various special committees to report to the council on their matters of investigation.

She asked the publicity committee to have special posters made, urging students to apply more time to studying. Ruth Orr, Lyn Kiefer, and Jim Fisher were asked to look into the possibility of council's taking over the publication of the M-Book.

Liz Murphey, Mary Ann Thompson, and Mary Brasfield are to see Mrs. V. M. Queener about having a girls' intramural basketball team to play before regular varsity games.

Bill Howell, Barbara Chubb, and Bill Davis are on a committee to investigate representation on Student Council. Jean Morgan, Dick Jensen, and Mary Ann Thompson are on a special committee to look into the duties and functions of the Inter-Club Council. The Student Council itself is recommending to the ICC that the society Rush Week be investigated.

Liz Murphey requested council members to act themselves as members of a special clean-up committee to promote keeping the campus neat and clean.

Also the Council decided to refer to Student-Faculty Senate this agenda in order of importance:

1. Constitutional revision;
2. Sunday dating for all students;
3. Opening of the Y-Store on Sunday evening between 9:30 and 10:15;
4. Opening of the Student Center on Tuesday night between 7:15 and 9:30 for games.

Paul Payne and Jean Morgan were welcomed as new members of council. Payne is the new president of th junior class, and Miss Morgan is chairman of ICC.

It's MC Day Tomorrow

Volume 40 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, OCTOBER 9, 1954 Number 4

Tomorrow Is 'MC Day' In Mid-South Synod

Students, Faculty To Participate

All churches in the Synod of the Mid-South Presbyterian Church, USA, have been asked to set aside tomorrow as "Christian College Day"—Maryville College Day. The proposed new dormitory for girls is the "Object for Opportunity Giving" for 1954.

Dr. Lloyd, the faculty, many of the students and Directors of the College will play an important part in the observance of Maryville College day in various ways in many strategically situated churches.

In a letter to all churches in the Synod of Mid-South, Dr. Joseph J. Copeland, Second Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, and Dr. Donald Spencer, Second Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga, had this to say: "The Christian church-related college is a distinctively American and particularly sacred heritage. Our duty to these institutions is clear; our support of the dormitory project for Maryville College is essential."

Debate Group Hears Ainsworth

Members of Debate Group met in Mrs. Pieper's home on September 28. In line with topic of discussion chosen for the current year—Resolved, that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to Communist China—Arthur Ainsworth, instructor of political science, spoke to the group on the policy of the United States in regard to recognition of foreign governments.

Thirteen persons were present the the meeting. These included Sarah Pledger and Jo Brooks, returning debaters; Mary Ann Worley, Mary Allen Hannah, Jean Boyd, Mary Lamb, Jeanie Povlovsky, Gary Pennington, Tom Paton, Bob Finnerty, Graeme Sieber, Bob Clark, and Bob Tallent.

Graduate Record Examinations Set

The Graduate Record Examinations, required of applicants for admission to a number of graduate schools, will be administered at examination centers throughout the country four times in the coming year, Educational Testing Service has announced. During 1953-54 nearly 9,000 students took the GRE in partial fulfillment of admission requirements of graduate schools which prescribed it.

This fall candidates may take the GRE on Saturday, November 20. In 1955, the dates are January 27, April 30, and July 9. ETS advises each applicant to inquire of the graduate school of his choice which of the examinations he should take and on which dates. Applicants for graduate school fellowships should ordinarily take the designated examinations in the fall administration.

The GE tests offered in these nationwide programs include a test of general scholastic ability and advanced level tests of achievement in sixteen different subject matter fields. According to ETS, candidates are permitted to take the Aptitude Test and/or one of the Advanced Tests.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information, which provides details of registration and administration as well as sample questions, may be obtained from college advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau St., Princeton, N. J., or P. O. Box 27896, Los Angeles 27, California. A completed application must reach the ETS office at least fifteen days before the date of the administration for which the candidate is applying.

Experimentals To Give 'The Boor' Tonight

First Play Of The Year

Tonight at 8:30 in the Theatre, Experimental Theatre will present its first production of the season, "The Boor," a one-act comedy, written by Anton Chekov and translated from Russian to English by Hilmar Baukhage.

Herchel Netherton, sophomore drama major, will play the part of Smirnov, a violent creditor who is demanding immediate payment on a note. Sadie Davis, junior English major, will appear as Mrs. Popov, a young widow who refuses to pay. The part of Luka, the servant, will be portrayed by Shirley Scott.

The play is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Daniels, instructor in speech and drama. Toppy Lee is chairman of the costume committee; Ann Murray, props; Ellen Colwell and Carol Pitts, tickets and publicity; Tony Clark, lighting; and Abigail Crosby, stage manager and make-up.

There is no admission charge for the performance.

Law Admission Test To Be Given 4 Times This Year

The Law School Admission Test required of applicants for admission to a number of leading American law schools, will be given at more than 100 centers throughout the United States on the mornings of November 13, 1954, February 19, April 23, and August 6, 1955. During 1953-54 some 8200 applicants took this test, and their scores were sent to over 100 law schools.

A candidate must make separate application for admission to each law school of his choice and should inquire of each whether it wishes him to take the Law School Admission Test and when. Since many law schools select their freshman classes in the preceding their entrance, candidates for admission to next year's classes are advised ordinarily to take either the November or the February test, if possible.

The Law School Admission Test, prepared and administered by Educational Testing Service, features objective questions measuring verbal aptitudes and reasoning ability rather than acquired information. It cannot be "crammed" for. Sample questions and information regarding registration for and administration of the test are given in a Bulletin of Information.

Bulletins and applications for the test should be obtained four to six weks in advance of the desired testing date from Law School Adminission Test, Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau St., Princeton, N. J. Completed applications must be received at least ten days before the desired testing date in ordr to allow ETS time to complete the necessary testing arrangements for each candidate.

Only 193 Pledge To Fred Hope Fund

As of late Thursday, 193 persons had made pledges to the Fred Hope Fund, amounting to a total $1037.45. Fund officials have pointed out that the number of persons pledging is quite low and below the amount expected.

Students and faculty members last year made 348 pledges to total $1423.25.

Athenian, Bainonian To Have Joint Meeting

Athenian will meet tonight at 6:15 for a program by the Bainonians and, after the meeting, will go bowling in town.

Next week's Saturday night meeting in the Athenian rooms will feature Robert "Scotty" Marshall who will speak on Scotland.

Council Nominates 19 Seniors For 'Who's Who'

Student Council nominated 19 19 seniors Wednesday night in the annual election of members of the class to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Results of the election will not be known until within the next week or so because the executive council of the faculty has yet to vote, and then the results must be co-ordinated. Council members voted by secret ballot.

Among other things discussed at the meeting was the question or possibility in the future of the band's going to more out of town fooaball games as a sort of pep representative of the college.

After pro and con discussion, the council decided to refer the matter for more detailed discussion to Student-Faculty Senate. Chief obstacle to the matter, as indicated by the discussion, was the amount of money that would need to be spent.

After discussion with representatives from the faculty, the council has planned to have a second annual faculty-council social on October 28, to last approximately an hour and a half.

The Town Night committee reported that monitors in the girls' dormitories were having difficulty getting couples to leave on time. The council requested that the matter be discussed at the next house meetings in the dorms.

Jean Morgan, chairman of the Inter-Club Council, said that she and Dick Jensen as a council committee to investigate the worth and value of the ICC, had decided that it should stay in existence, after talking with representatives.

Students will be allowed to go to the Carson-Newman game, it was announced both at the October 1 meeting and the meeting this past week. Chartered buses will be

'Messiah' Practice To Begin Monday

Rehearsals for the "Messiah" chorus will begin Monday evening in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 7:15, director Harry Harter announced this week.

All college students and interested townspeople are invited to sing in the chorus. Scores are on sale at the college bookstore.

Date for the performance of the Handel oratorio is December 5, in the chapel auditorium. Times for soloists' try-outs will be announced at a later date by Mr. Harter.

Tickets On Sale For Artist Series

The Maryville College-Community Artist Series opens its 1954 season of four programs on November 2 with the two-piano team—Allison Nelson and Harry Neal in a concert feature.

Other guest artists of the Series include Cornelia Otis Skinner giving character sketches, November 18; the Don Cossack Chorus March 10, 1955 and the St. Louis Sinfonietta on April 15, 1955.

The Artist Series will be held in the main auditorium of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel.

Season tickets are $5 for townspeople, and may be purchased at the Fine Arts Center on Campus or at Byrne's Drug Store and Proffitt's Department Store in Maryville. Students may buy season tickets for 75 cents by showing their activity card.

Y-Radio To Present 'Saul Of Tarsus'

Y-Radio will present a biblical radio drama, "Saul of Tarsus" by William Ford Manley, Sunday night at 9:30 over station WGAP. It will be directed by John Graulich and Herb Gatlin will play the role of Saul.

The foiolwing Sunday, October 17, the biblical drama of Ruth, written by Manley, will be presented. Carol Sleight will be the director, Alice Rour will play Ruth, Anne Buckley, Naomi; Dick Jensen, Boaz; and Bob Lorenz as the slave.

Sigs, Thetas Enjoy Music, Dancing At Meet

The new members of Theta Epsilon were formally initiated on October 2. After the ceremony the Theta girls met with Alpha Sigma in the Y rooms for a joint meeting.

Bob Ramger, MC, introduced The Rovers, a boys' quartet composed of Harry MacCall, Bill Howell, Jim Akin, and Howard Kelly. This group sang a selection of songs including "Rock O' My Soul," "Dry Bones," and "So in Love."

The program continued with a calypso dance duet rendered by Lavinia Lee and Mary Ellen Lee. Refreshments were served afterwards.

'Scotty' Marshall Pleased By Maryville's Friendliness

By Ann Wiley

"Do we have a prospective Peter Marshall on the Maryville campus? Just talk to a certain "Scotty" Marshall and judge for yourself. No, Scotty isn't related to the great Peter Marshall, very unfortunately so, according to him, but he is basing his spiritual and mental growth and life upon that of a man called Peter.

"Scotty" was born Robert Marshall, in Stirling, Scotland, in 1934. He entered school at the age of five and was required to go only until he was 15, but he wanted to finish his high school education (equivalent to a junior college, here). But just three months before time for his graduation, Scotty got a chance to come to America, and live with his sister and brother-in-law in Charleston, West Virginia. In West Virginia, Scotty finished his schooling and worked in a bank until his entrance at Maryville College this fall.

America 'Happy Nation'

Asked what his first impression of America was, Scotty admitted that his opinion began forming on his voyage to America, in August, 1952, when he met several college students from Mississippi and Louisiana. He said their energy, happiness, and good will seemed just to shine forth from them and they made him realize, long before even reaching sight of land, that America was a happy nation, and Americans were a happy people.

Scotty waits a table of seven other boys in his spare (ha) time. The people in the back dining room are well aware of their presence, I am sure. The boys fixed Scotty a cake and presented

Services, Game, Dance To Mark Homecoming

Directors To Meet Friday Morning

The Board of Directors will hold its first meeting of the school year next Friday at 10 a.m. in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center. Joe C. Gamble of Maryville, chairman, will preside over the business sessions. Dr. Donald A. Spencer of Chattanooga is vice-chairman.

The Friday schedule for the board also includes lunch at Morningside, an afternoon session in the Fine Arts Center, dinner at 6 in the dining hall, a short business meeting at 7:30, and a reception for the faculty and directors at 9:30.

Saturday morning there will be breakfast and a business meeting at Morningside before the group attends the Founder's Day service at 10:30.

MRS. J. R. SALSBURY
To Speak Next Saturday

Mrs. J. R. Salsbury Is Special Speaker

By Barbara Wilkie

Next Saturday, Maryville College will celebrate Homecoming and Founders' Day with a full schedule of events, beginning with a chapel service at 10:30 in the morning. The usual big parade, alumni barbecue, football game, and dance will also be featured as the day progresses.

Mrs. J. R. Salsbury of Kansas City, Mo., will speak at the 22nd annual Founders' Day Service. She is president of the National Council of Presbyterian Women's Organizations and chairman of its Executive Committee for the 1954-58 quadrennium. She has held many posts in Presbyterian organizations prior to her present one, her last being president of the Missouri Synodical Society.

Born in Ulysses, Neb., Mrs. Salsbury was a Methodist until her student days at the University of Nebraska, when she became a Presbyterian. She was a member of Pi Lambda Theta, a professional teaching honorary society, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Also taking part in the service will be President Lloyd, Deans Hunter and McClalland, and officers of the Board of Directors. The Vesper choir, directed by Harry H. Harter, will sing "How Brightly Shines Our Morning Star," by Walter Shumann and "Two Wings," Negro spiritual arranged by Mr. Harter.

Parade Featured in Afternoon

Events for the afternoon center around the homecoming parade with promises of a variety of colorful floats, accompanied by several bands other than the Scotties'. These include marching units from Everett, Maryville, and Alcoa High Schools, and units from Naval and Marine reserves stationed near here. The homecoming queen, elected yesterday, will make her first appearance. The best float will also be judged.

Number of Alumni Expcted

Alumni will be arriving all day Saturday to register and view the decorated dorms. They will gather at 5:45 p.m. on the football field for a barbecue and bonfire. Edwin J. Best, Alumni Association president, is in charge of arrangements.

Football Festivities

The Scotties will tangle with Emory and Henry football team at 8. There will be the usual colorful half-time ceremonies at which the queen will be crowned and prizes awarded for the best float and best-decorated dorm.

For all who aren't worn out from the day's happenings, there is to be a "victory" dance in the alumni gym after the game. This event will bring to a close this year's annual homecoming celebration.

Dance To Be Sponsored By Women's M-Club

To Last Until 11:45 P.M.

By Ruth Wilson

After the Homecoming Game, the Women's "M" Club is sponsoring a social dance from 10:30 until 11:45. It is informal, and is tentatively planned to be held in one of the gymnasiums.

The theme of the dance will correspond with the themes of the floats in the Homecoming Parade.

Your activity ticket is all you need to be admitted, but students with an out-of-town guest, should see Miss Massey, dean of women, for a special guest ticket.

Sammons, Richards Head Committees For Sophomores

Ray Sammons and Natalie Richards have been appointed chairmen of the social committee and the publicity committee respectively of the sophomore class, president Dick Jensen has announced.

A finance committee also has been formed with treasurer Dick Henderson acting as chairman. Other members are Martha Nelson, Yvonne Huskey, Helen Davis, Jean Boyd, Mary Morrell, and Ronnie Pearson.

The executive committee of the class met September 30 to make plans for a class party in November and a campaign for dues, which starts today.

Members of the committee elected last spring are Dick Jensen, president; Kay Leeth, vice-president; Ann Kelton, secretary; Dick Henderson, treasurer; and Virginia Marshall, Eugene Garren, and Bill Dent, student council representatives.

Spanish Club Discusses Float For Parade

Spanish Club met last Thursday evening for their first formal meeting of the year. They discussed plans for the language float for the Homecoming Parade.

Their next meeting will be on October 21.

Sophomores Campaigning For Dues Payments

Today the newly formed Financial Committee of the Sophomore Class begins its drive for dues.

All sophomores who have not already paid their class dues are asked to see one of the members of the committ in their dorm. Dues are fifty cents a semester, or one dollar for the entire school year.

Bainonians To Have Exchange Program

All Bainonian members are urged to attend tonight's meeting, which will be held in Bainonian Hall at 6:45. Bainonian entertainment will be provided by Athenian members in an exchange program.

Christian Ed To Have Children's Songs Program

On Monday evning the Christian Education Club will have as its program "Songs for Primary Children." At this time songs will be presented which endeavor to tach children to love, understand, and appreciate God.

The Christian Education Club meets at 6:45 in Anderson 303.

Nier Upsets Shackleford In Tennis Tournament

First-seeded Sonny Shackleford was defeated by Bob Nier in the final round of the Open Tennis Tournament. Tom Bugenhagen, "Doc" Jennings, and Doug Brian all fell before the new champion.

The Closed Tournament has not yet been completed but Herb White, seeded second, seems to appar as the victor. He faces the winner of the Bob Boble-Ron Morley match.

As the Marathon match proved equal pairing between Bogle and Jim Demer. Bogle won the last set 6-4 after the lengthy set of 14-12. Demer salvaged the middle set 1-6.

Fisher, Partee To Read At Workshop Monday

At the next meeting of Writerts' Workshop, Peg Fisher and Charles Partee will read and be criticized by Sheila Sutton and Joe Gilliland. This meeting is scheduled for Monday afternoon at 4:30 in Dr. Hunter's classroom.

On this past Monday, Dr. E. R. Hunter and Miss Kathleen Craven were readers and Ruby Roberts and Margie Blackburn, critics.

Thetas To Enjoy 'Maryville Merriment'

"Maryville Merriment" is in store for all Thetas who come to Theta Hall tonight at 6:15. The regular business meeting will precede the entertainment.

Alpha Sig Plans Overnight Hike

Alpha Sigma plans to have an overnight hike to the Smokies this week-end if they can get transportation. They will climb to the Chimney camping grounds and spend the night there. The 28 boys who have signed up will leave Saturday after dinner and return about 5 p.m. Sunday.

Last Saturday night Alpha Sig formally inducted about 30 new members. Afterwards they had a joint meeting with Theta where they were entertained by a program with Bob Ramger as master of ceremonies. A male quartet, The Rovers, sang and the Lee sisters danced.

Beginning next week Alpha Sig will sell Christmas cards in the Alpha Sig house.

The Artist Series

Thus far it has been quite gratifying both to us and to the management of the College-Community Artist Series to see the results of the ticket sales here on campus. We hope the townspeople are taking advantage of an opportutnoity to enjoy excellent artists within the next few months.

Most of us, who were here last year and some time before that, remember how the two or three concerts per year were held in the Alumni Gym, and how cold, uncomfortable, and disconcerting it was to attend them in that building which was made to accommodate crowds which would be up and down most of the time at basketball games and wrestling matches. Still we enjoyed them and only wished that we could have more of them. This year Maryville returns to a former practice of having a series of wider scope because of the better facilities of the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, and we thing that the arrangements as to types of artists will be satisfactory to most people, who naturally have differing preferences.

It is a wise selection of artists: pianists, a speaker whose specialty is character sketches, a choral group, and an orchestral group. So those of you who have not as yet gotten season tickets should see about the matter immediately. Student prices are low and quite reasonable. This year's opportunity is the best in many years.

Small Colleges

An institution is not great because it is large or because of huge enrollment. It is not great because of its large endowment or its large legislative appropriation. It is not great because of its unbeaten teams or because of its new gymnasium. Indeed, there are many colleges in this country that command far higher respect than many large universities.

Invariably one finds there a faculty composed of men who love learning and delight in teaching. There salaries may not be high but they know that the institution has first in its mind their welfare. They are satisfied to invest their lives in such an institution.

A few men leave, tempted from time to time by higher salaries, but more often, perhaps, to become associated with universities whose finer libraries and excellent scientific equipment are indispensable for proper cultivation of some abiding intellectual interest. It is always a surprise, however, to witness the holding power of the really first rate small college.

Such colleges, too, where there is to be found in abundant measure the things of the spirit, have a tremendous drawing power among parents and students extending from generation to generation. It is an honor itself to win admission to such institutions.

Scots & Soda

By Abigail Crosby

(All freshmen or sophomore English students now reading Scots & Soda in Mr. Bushing's classroom are hereby cordially requested and advised to put the Echo down and pay a little more attention to Spenser and/or Professor Hodges. Wouldn't you be shocked if he gave you a quiz on the contents of this column?)—The Editor.

The time is drawing nigh, Seniors! Only 53 days 'til special studies is (is, are, whatever it is!) due. Pity the poor senior, who, searching in vain for his file box the other day, moaned, "Oh, I do hope I haven't lost it—both my note cards were in it!"

x x x x

Corrections! Corrections! Corrections! Pity not only the seniors, but also the advisors. They actually have to read the stuff we write. One harassed professor told his student please to re-read this chapter and make her own corrections. Which she did. Every three lines she very religiously erased a word or two, and then wrote the same thing all over. At least, it looked good!

x x x x

And when will we get that pop quiz over with? Wednesday morning was quite a sight—little groups of ethics students huddled together here and there—in the dorms, at the Grill, in the library, on benches under the trees—with such words as "formalism," "categorical imperative," "altruistic," "the Highest Good" hanging in a thick haze over the campus. But the test didn't come. Now we feel like the people who prayed for rain but forgot their umbrellas. We know the test is just around the corner—but who's going to study any more? Maybe it's this morning . . . Boinggg . . . .

x x x x

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous. Did you see the senior pictures? "Ode to a Bonie Lass," as Bobby Burns once said. Ethelyn Cathey says the senior girls look like they have grass growing out of their shoulders. Bob Lorenz thinks they look like they just popped up one of a bubble bath. And Dock Jennings likens them to the Pharaoh's daughter as she emerged from the bulrushes to rescue the baby Moses.

x x x x

It still holds true. Dr. Orr tells us that a favorite expression around here during his college days was, "Went over to Maryville the other afternoon and spent a month." Yes—it still holds true.

x x x x

Bill Davis was really shook in Chapel a couple mornings ago. He couldn't get awake enough to realize that he was singing out of one of his textbooks and not the Hymnal.

x x x x

Just Wondr'ing . . .

What would happen if fire drills became a daily nightly affair? (No pun intended—honest!) The style this year has been raincoats—but plastic ones aren't quite the thing—they're just a little too transparent!

How does Lyn Keifer's headscarf manage to keep turning up in Dr. Hunter's classroom every day?

Why can't everybody be at Chapel on time every morning? (Ridiculous, ain't it?)

Why does Phil Muir always get through in the dining hall so much sooner than Ethelyn?

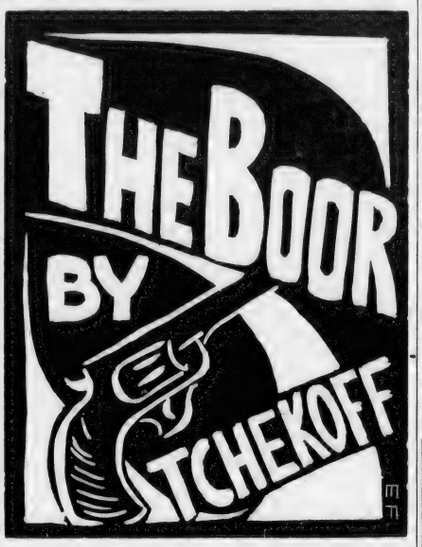
x x x x

After weeks and weeks of wondering how much longer the torrid heat would continue, we were finally releived when the weather broke Wednesday night. Thursday morning one of those who had been complaining the loudest about the heat was heard to remark, "It's just too darn cold! I hate this weather. 'Bout to freeze to death, etc., etc., etc."

x x x x

Did you know that we had a new member of the senior class? He sits right next to Dixie in Chapel—name's Queener. Verton Queener. And did he ever enjoy the student body meeting Thursday morning!

x x x x



Be on the lookout for all sorts of familiar faces this coming week. 'Tis Homecoming! And, by the way, congratulations to our Queen!

Talk of The Week . . . . .

By Liz Frei

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Bill Deerfield

This column is devoted to those two things we never really have time for, but make time for just the same, the two things that we indulge in and from which we develope guilt complexes. They are motion pictures and books, (mostly those of the lighter type.)

x x x

For example, if you happen to have an extra four hours some evening why not sit through the umpteenth rerelease of G.W.T.W. now showing in town. If you go to see this little "throat clutcher" of the old South, please ignore the beautiful background music—the theme song from the picture The High and the Mighty really got a going over last week at the hands of our would-be whistlers.

'That Dance'

Also playing at the Park this coming week will be Abbott and Costello, who will be certain to fracture science fiction in Flight to Mars which will be playing Monday. On Tuesday and Wednesday those fugitives from The Egg and I will appear in Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation, and Thursday and Friday Jane Russell will be back in town with "that dance" in The French Line.

Here on campus we have a wonderful selection of new books just waiting to be read by all us bibliophiles, (and we ain't even got time to read the old ones—already!) The subject matter of these new additions to the stacks is varied and interesting. A few of the titles should stimulate interest, it is hoped. There is, Animals, Men, and Myths by Richard Lewensohn, which has been hailed as a "masterpiece of popular natural history." If you're more artistically inclined John Rewald's The History of Impressions might interest you. Then there is Flight Into Space by Johnathen Nortan Leonard, which appears to be strictly a man's book. For the female bookworms the story of Mary Todd Lincoln, Love Is Eternal by Irving Stone, the author of The President's Lady, is available.

Catholic and Jewish Works

On the more serious side there are several scholarly and excellent works. The Catholic Encyclopedia deals exhaustively not only with the interesting subject of Roman doctrine but also with Catholic biography and contributions in all fields of human achievement, especially those related to the Middle Ages. The Universal Jewish Encyclopedia records accurate facts concerning Jews and Judaism from its very beginnings. It contains biography of famous Jews and both living and dead and should prove a valuable source to anyone interested in the subject of Judaism.

Another work that might be mentioned in conclusion, a work that would undoubtedly prove more edifying to Protestant Christians, the the Interpreter's Bible. The library possesses seven volumes of this Encyclopedia which would serve particularly well in any Bible course or in student's private study.

Spirit DOES Win

Every time a person recites a quotation such as "Spirit Wins" he is immediately on the spot. When I suggested that we use this motto for our pep program this year I was flooded with comments both pro and con. My friends pointed out to me numerous examples of where spirit had played a great part in a successful athletic program and those who are not my friends gave prime examples of schools who had great spirit but a poor record in sports.
